Kennington Theatre is resounding with ceaseless peals of laughter every evening this week as Mr. George Graves gives his inimitable description of the Gazeka, the elusive little animal that may well rank as the mascot of André Messager's bright and sparkling comic opera The Little Michus. The piece is magnificently staged and admirably produced by Mr. George Edwardes' company, amongst the members of which are included several of the original cast. From start to finish the opera goes with a swing which speaks volumes for the loyal manner in which everyone in the company works, and the audience on Monday night was unstinted in its applause. The singing was first-class, the principal numbers being frequently encored; the dances were picturesque, the grouping was artistic, and the fun continuous. As General Des Ifs Mr. George Graves is, of course, the life and soul of the piece, and plays at his very best, his quaint drolleries and clever gags bubbling forth in a seemingly endless flow. Miss Thelma Raye and Miss Iris Hoey are winsome Little Michus, and prove themselves to be charming and accomplished actresses. An exceedingly clever impersonation of Bagnolet, the orderly, is given by Mr. Jack Carrot, a comedian of undoubted ability. Mr. George Miller is also very good as Pierré Michu, and his efforts are readily seconded by Miss Florence Parfrey as Madame Michu. Mr. W. T. Andrews makes a soldierly Gaston Rigaud, and Mr. Leonard Mackay is admirable as Aristide Vert, the perplexed and uncertain lover. Miss Vivien Talleur dances well during her brief appearance as Mlle. St. Cyr, and Miss Adeline Lester as the market woman and Mr. Willie Warde, Jun., as the market man, contribute in a large measure to the amusing features of the third act. The chorus is strong in numbers and distinctly good in vocalisation; the orchestration was of a high standard.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, August 20,
"THE WHITE CHRYSANTHEMUM."

Mr. Frank Curzon provides a very excellent company this week under the auspices of Mr. George W. Lindsay, on a return visit to Noting Hill Gate in The White Chrysanthemum. The melodious music and delightful humour of the piece receive full justice at the hands of an exceptionally strong company. Mr. Horace Mills enacts the part of the invertebrate but resourceful Chippy, alias Lieut. Chippendale Belmont, to whom he imparts an air of original and natural drollery, and his rendering of the song "I wonder" is very clever and pointed. Mr. W. H. Rawlins as Admiral Sir Horatio Armitage, K.C.B., the choleric commander of the China Squadron, fits his part to a nicety, and in the topical song "Really, truly, can it be so?" he hits off the foibles of the present day in most diverting and agreeable fashion. Miss Gladys Elwey is a charming and vivacious Sibyl Cunningham, the O San of the title-rôle, and her songs, "The Butterfly and the Flower" and "The Flight of the Butterfly," are rendered not only with sweetness and charm, but with great dramatic fervour and expressiveness. The White Chrysanthemum is a prime favourite throughout. Miss Daisy Le Hay is a dainty, winsome, and captivating Betty Kenyon, and her rendition of the song-recitation "A Hint" is emphatically successful. Mr. F. Pope Stamper is a manly and handsome young naval officer as Lieut. Reginald Armitage, and his acting and singing are much appreciated, especially good being his rendition of the song of lament in the last act. As Sin Chong, Reggie's Chinese cook, Mr. O. E. Lennon sustains the lion's share of the work, and his indefatigable skill as a humorist and dancer helps the piece along materially to the goal of success. Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., also repeats his excellent work as the irrepressible Private Perks, and does yeoman service in keeping the ball of fun continually rolling. Miss Katie Vesey dances gracefully as the American heiress Cornelia Vanderdecken, and an excellently well-drilled and sweet-voiced chorus aid the effect of the production. Mr. T. Reynolds undertakes the difficult duties of stage-manager creditably.

THE GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, August 20,
the Musical Comedy,
"THE NEW BARMAID."

After a somewhat lengthy absence, musical comedy again holds the boards at this theatre, in the shape of The New Barmaid, and the warmth of the welcome extended to Mr. C. Edwardes's well-selected company is strong evidence of the fact that Woolwich playgoers have by no means lost their taste for this kind of entertainment. Miss Amy Preston is a sprightly representative of the new barmaid, singing prettily and taking the trouble to act her lines as well as sing or speak them. Miss Violet Esmond makes a vivacious Dora Heather, and seems bubbling over with good spirits, which she has no difficulty in communicating to her audience; Miss Winifred Preston gives a commendably dignified rendering of Lady Moulton; and Miss Maude Nichols makes the most of her few opportunities as Brenda Louth. In the character of Captain Lovebury, Mr. Leslie Austin acts easily and naturally and sings several songs with good effect, a notable success being his rendering of that entitled "I love you, ma chérie." As William White, Mr. Alexander Loftus scores heavily, his clever acting and amusing mannerisms keeping the house in a continual ripple of laughter. A large portion of the work also falls on the shoulders of Mr. Charles Adeson, whose antics and patter as Bertie White are responsible for much amusement, and whose rendering of a favourite number—"A little bit of sugar for the bird"—was one of the hits of the evening. Mr. James Grant gives a good portrayal of the fire-eating Colonel; and Mr. W. E. Chewd extracts a lot of fun from the part of the comic Frenchman. The excellent dancing of the Star Trio is one of the features of the performance.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 20,
the Play, in Four Acts, by Fred Melville, entitled
"THE UGLIEST WOMAN ON EARTH."

Mr. Melville is a dramatist who always manages to hit the public taste, and large houses are being attracted this week to the Brixton Theatre, where a visit is being paid by The Ugliest Woman on Earth. The play is mounted in a lavish manner, and an exceptionally powerful company is engaged. Miss Beatrice Homer gives an excellent reading and a clever study of the Ugliest Woman. A manly, straightforward, and convincing performance is that of Mr. Philip Darien as Jack Merriman. Mr. Leyton Cancellor gives a finished and a really good interpretation of the unscrupulous Hubert Gold, and receives excellent support in his villainy from Mr. Charles Barrett as Antonio Luchesi, who gives a clever conception of an Italian; and Miss Nell Oliver as Rose Courteney, who acts remarkably well an unthankful character; Mr. Allan Devonport gives a good representation of the gambling and drink-sodden artist, Tom Redvers. The comedy characters of Tubby Herrick and Aggie Brown are in the capable hands of Mr. Tubby Edlin, who is a born comedian, and Miss Nellie Jackson, and cause the audience to indulge in hearty laughter whenever they appear. A very clever and realistic portrait of a London "hooligan" is presented by Mr. Wallace Aston; Dr. Carr is sympathetically played by Mr. Leonard Thackeray; and Miss Margaret Watson gives an impressive portrayal of Morita, an Italian girl. The smaller but indispensable character of Griffiths, purser of s.s. Osprey, is brought into prominence by the excellent acting of Mr. Cecil de Lee. The minor parts are in capable hands. Mr. Tubby Edlin is the courteous general-manager of the company. A beauty competition was arranged for last night (Friday), when Mr. Melville offered prizes for the handsomest lady in Brixton.

LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, August 20,
the Drama, by James Willard, entitled
"A WOMAN'S PLUCK."

In booking Mr. James Willard's company to appear at the Lyric this week in the spectacular drama A Woman's Pluck Mr. Jennings is to be congratulated. The Lyric patrons were in raptures on the night of our visit, and a full house during the week was ensured. Miss Grace Lester takes the leading part with considerable dash and vigour, and as Grace Daremont greatly pleases her audiences, being rewarded on Monday by the presentation of a bouquet. Mr. Austin Mortimer as Dick Darnell, the villain, is also very successful. As Winston Dale, Mr. Harry T. Wood proves himself an artist of ability; and Miss Violet Carr makes an exceedingly pathetic and winsome Jessie Pope. A word of praise is also due to Mr. Harry Emmerson as Mathew Pope and to Miss Elsie Maitland as Mrs. Pope, both of whom exhibit pathos of a high order. Mr. Fred Norburn, in the dual characters of Mark Scanlon and The Tiger, forcibly impresses the onlookers. A clever light comedy character-sketch is given by Mr. John Campling as General Daredevil, and he is ably assisted in his mirth-making by Miss Helen Elmar as his wife, and Miss Tina Shaw as his precocious grandson. Mr. Frank Etherbridge as Sir Noel Fordyce also makes a decided hit.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, August 20,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"KITTY GREY."

Peckham is favoured this week with a return visit from that silver-voiced and fascinating little lady Kitty Grey, and it is small wonder that, despite the heat, large audiences are assembling to welcome so popular a personage. Mr. George Stephenson's company gives an admirably smooth and good all-round rendering of the musical comedy, all the parts down to the smallest being excellently filled. Miss Hilda Guiver, who invests her rôle with great dramatic abilities, looks very handsome as Kitty Grey, using her powerful voice to great effect, and scoring well in her songs, "The powder-puff" and "Round and round." Miss Marie West, in the more subdued character of Lady Binfield, looks charming and plays capitally as the sorely-tried wife, singing very sweetly "The bamboo hut" and "In a quiet little country town." Mr. Lauri Lisle is very quaint as the lady-killing little King of Illyria, and scores well with his topical song "The blue moon in the sky." Mr. J. Knox-Orde makes a good-looking Sir John Binfield, and sings very nicely. Miss Nellie Laurine gives an excellent character-sketch as the theatrical dresser, Mrs. Bright; and Mr. Leslie Steward causes roars of laughter by his comicalities as the eccentric sprig of nobility, Lord Plantagenet also proving himself an agile dancer. Miss Gertrude Page makes the most of her opportunities as Sadie de Poulson. The remaining characters are all in good hands, and the chorus is remarkably efficient, the scenery and effects being also quite beyond reproach. The orchestra is under the skilful bâton of Mr. Forbes Russell, and Mr. J. MacCabe fulfils his duties admirably as business-manager. The stage-management of the piece reflects the greatest credit on Mr. P. Allerton Turner, who is entrusted with this important duty.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, August 20,
the Drama, by Frederick Melville, entitled
"BETWEEN TWO WOMEN."

Mr. Frederick Melville's four-act drama Between Two Women is just of the order calculated to interest a Dalston audience. Exciting incidents abounding, the attention of the audience is secured from start to finish, while the engrossed crowd disregards no chance of duly encouraging the best actors—or those who are fortunate enough to have the best parts—in their most telling scenes. Mr. Stephen Langton as Harry Millard is provided with a part in which he is seen to advantage. Miss Molly Malone as the tender and loving Violet Thornton and Miss Winifred Pearson as the wicked Carmen de Savereaux manage to portray these well-contrasted characters with care and finish. Mr. Godfrey Tearle is capable as the Rev. Philip Carton; Mr. Ernest Walton does well in a totally different class of character—that of Bill Barge; Mr. Nevill Graham is a sufficiently authoritative shop-manager; and Mr. Fred Danvers as Jack Pringle (who is always in trouble) and Miss Lilian Earle as Polly Popp (who is the cause of most of his cares) provide opportunity for a good deal of laughter. Other members of Mr. Melville's excellent company include Miss Nellie Watson, Miss Lottie Manville, Miss Margaret Waller, and Miss Lulu Bowes, and Messrs Walter Thornton, J. P. Kennedy, Watkin Wynne, W. Hooker, W. Herberts, J. Clarke, R. Yorke, and Frederick May.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, August 20,
the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled
"THE STREETS OF LONDON."

Good houses have been attracted to the Kingston Theatre this week by the production of the above popular melodrama. Mr. Frank Harding's company is a thoroughly capable one, and not the least successful member thereof is Mr. Harding himself, who plays the scheming Gideon Bloodgood with considerable success. Mr. Maitland Marler achieves a distinct success as Badger; and Mr. Edwin Bennett gives a good account of himself in the part of Captain Fairweather. Mr. Philip Knox and Mr. A. Eldred also give sympathetic portrayals of their respective parts of Mark Livingstone and Paul. The low comedy work of the drama is ably sustained by Mr. E. Coleman and Mrs. Stanislaus Calhaem as Mr. and Mrs. Puffy respectively, and by Miss Helen Anderson as their precocious offspring, Dan. The play is capitally presented in the matter of scenery and dresses.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, August 20, the Drama, in Five Acts, by Ernest Martin and Fewlass Llewellyn, entitled
"THE COAL KING."

Messrs. Polini and Maitland present this drama, which is a striking picture of colliery life in Lancashire, and it meets with entire approval, enthusiastic applause coming from all parts of a crowded house. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland as Tom Roberts is to be congratulated on an excellent and consistent piece of work. Mr. Gilbert Fenn plays with power and effect as Sir Reginald Harford, J.P. (the Coal King); Mr. Escott Robson presents an admirable study of Walter Harford; Mr. Alfred Terris is very good as Jim Williams; and the same remark applies to Mr. Alfred Claude Clarke as Dick Shirley. Mr. John Coghlan as Seth Baker, Mr. Harry Stock as Ned Jenkins, and Mr. Harry Nelson as Jack Brown are all well placed. Mr. Louis Stanford is a capital James, and Mr. Fabian Lock makes an effective Detective Saxby. Miss Evelyn North is admirable as Mrs. Baker; Miss Sinna St. Cloud acts well as Mad Ann; Miss Sybil Coghlan is bright and attractive as Araminta Green; and Miss Gertrude Valentine cleverly depicts the varying moods of Grace Shirley, playing in a charmingly sympathetic manner throughout.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, August 20,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled
"THE FEMALE SWINDLER."

Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company in Walter Melville's drama The Female Swindler appeals strongly to the habitués of this theatre, who were in great force on Monday. Headed by Miss Gracie E. Leslie in the character which gives the piece its name, the company works together with a will, and achieves great success. Miss Leslie very ably portrays a difficult and complex character in which guilt and remorse alternate, and gallery and pit are indeed glad when in the end the charming Lu Valroy resolves on the better path. Mr. Joseph Millane, in a Sherlock Holmes' part, plays with power; Mr. Wilfred Cheetham as Geoffrey Warden does admirable work, fully realising the part; Mr. John Belton as Abraham Mikestein also plays well; Mr. Henry Wright as an assistant detective very cleverly assumes his numerous disguises; Miss Mary Dawson makes a pretty maid-servant; James Oliver, a retired merchant, is carefully presented by Mr. A. Kenyon Gray; as May Andrews, Miss Florrie Kelsey quite captivates the house; and Mr. Guy P. Ellis makes a manly Harold Travers.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, Aug. 20, the Drama, in Five Acts, by Henry Arthur Jones and Henry Herman, entitled
"THE SILVER KING."

This fine drama is achieving great success at the New Prince's Theatre, and is being admirably presented by G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company of talented players. Mr. Herbert Ford's portrayal of the much-tried Wilfred Denver is powerful. His earnest and impassioned manner earns for him considerable applause. As Nellie Denver, Miss Victoria Addison is sweet and attractive, and quickly wins her way into the hearts of her audience. Mr. Tom Paulton plays the faithful Daniel Jaikes in a capital manner; and Miss Jessie Apted makes an engaging Cissy. Mr. Charles Baird gives a masterly representation of the Spider; as the weak and weedy Henry Corkett Mr. Claud Vernon is well fitted with a part; and as the rascally Elijah Combe, Mr. Henry Osman's make-up is excellent, and his delineation of the character could not be surpassed. As the burly Cripps Mr. Charles H. Fenton gives a careful study; Mr. Allan Jeayes is excellent as the ill-fated Geoffrey Ware; and Mr. Arthur J. Rooke makes a capital detective of Samuel Baxter. Mr. Charles Birch is good as Frank Selwyn; and as the garrulous Mr. Parkyn Mr. Percy Stone wins golden opinions. Messrs. S. Bingham and S. Hatchway ably sustain the rôles of Binks and Bronson; and Mr. John Randall is good as Gaffer Pottle. Miss Viola Holland gives a capable rendering of the part of Olive Skinner; and Miss Amy Wood creates amusement by her quaintness as Tabitha Darden. Miss Margaret Rooke makes an attractive Susie.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Aug. 20,
for the first time in London, the Historic and Romantic Drama, in Four Acts, by Frank M. Thorne, entitled
"NAPOLEON THE GREAT."

Napoleon ..... Mr. Hugh Montgomery
Colonel Lavarennes ....Mr. Henry Earlesmere
Colonel Jules Meuron ..... Mr. Phil Harper
Paul Laczinska ..... Mr. Bartlett Garth
Pierre Pomponnet ..... Mr. Frank M. Thorne
Sergeant Choupin ..... Mr. Albert Sinclair
Marshal Bessieres ..... Mr. R. W. Ellis
Marshal Davout ..... Mr. T. A. Jones
Monsieur Fouche ..... Mr. G. Acton Dix
Garbois ..... Mr. Wilson Brown
Claude ..... Mr. Thomas Wheeler
Courier ..... Mr. D. Anderson
Marie Walewska ..... Miss Leslie Warner
Mlle. Leonie Marboeuf .... Miss Maud Russell
Marcelle Choupin ..... Miss Marie Harcourt
Mère Dumont ..... Miss Florence Thorne
Lisette ..... Miss Adelaide Cromer

Makers of plays evidently have a decided partiality for the character of Napoleon I., many writers for the stage introducing him more or less prominently into their works. He is, of course, the central figure in the romantic and historical drama, Napoleon the Great—first produced at Preston on Aug. 29, 1904—a well-written and exciting play that proved much to the liking of West Londoners on Monday evening. The first scene takes place outside an old inn at Villeneuve, and we witness Napoleon's victorious return from Austria. A Polish fanatic, Paul Laczinska, aided by one of Napoleon's own officers, Colonel Lavarennes, plots to kill the Emperor while staying for the night at the inn, but Paul's wife, Marie Walewska, who has apparently previously been of service to Napoleon, determines to frustrate her husband's plan. She warns Napoleon of his danger, and he accepts the proffered hospitality of Madame Marboeuf, whose daughter, Leonie, is affianced to Colonel Jules Meuron, a young officer whose father had years since saved the Emperor's life. Laczinska is arrested, but manages to escape, and in the next act, on the outskirts of the forest of Fontainebleau, he kills an aged and wounded soldier, and dons his uniform. The man he has slain bears a striking likeness to Laczinska, and his body being found, it is thought the Emperor's would-be murderer is dead. Napoleon is greatly displeased at his escape, and gives the Minister of Police, Fouche, to understand that if his enemies are not brought to justice a more capable man must take his place. Fouche then consents, to Lavarennes's plan, which is that Meuron—whom he is anxious to get out of the way, as he wishes to wed Leonie—shall appear to be concerned with the Emperor's assassination. A paper is left on the ground addressed to Meuron which will prove him to be a traitor. Leonie picks it up, and of course conveys it to her lover. Meuron is charged with being implicated in a conspiracy against the Emperor, but Napoleon will not believe a word against the gallant young soldier until the paper is found in his pocket, when he orders his arrest at once, and he is condemned to death. Leonie's pleading for her sweetheart's life is of no avail for a time, but the Emperor finally relents, and Meuron's sentence is altered to imprisonment for life. This is not at all to the liking of Lavarennes, who forges the Emperor's signature to the death warrant, but Meuron manages to escape from prison, the bullets from the guards' muskets being extracted by Pierre Pomponnet, Meuron's foster-brother. Marie Walewska has recognised her husband when he turns up again by a ring on his finger, but promises not to disclose his identity if he will clear Meuron—he having overheard Lavarennes's plot. In the last act Napoleon comes to visit the fair Marie, for whom he has conceived a violent passion. He has previously, however, told her she can never be the Empress, and although she loathes her husband and would make any sacrifice for Napoleon, she is not inclined to be his mistress. Laczinska is hidden inside a secret panel, and whilst Marie is absent from the room makes another attempt on the Emperor's life. Meuron, also concealed in the apartment, stays the knife of the murderer; the villainy of Lavarennes is disclosed; and with his death and that of Laczinska the drama ends, Meuron, of course, being reinstated in the good graces of the Emperor and restored again to his faithful Leonie.

The company responsible for the representation of the play, Messrs. Granville and Thorne's, is an excellent all-round one, especially to be commended being Mr. Hugh Montgomery for his impressive and finished impersonation of the important part of Napoleon. Particularly good was the actor in the scene where the Emperor declares his passion for Marie Walewska, but throughout the portrayal was excellent, facial expression, elocution, and bearing alike being admirable. Another striking performance was the Paul Laczinska of Mr. Bartlett Garth, the despair of the Polish fanatic in the last act, where he is caught like a rat in a trap, being a realistic and thrilling piece of acting. The scoundrelly Colonel Lavarennes was enacted by Mr. Henry Earlesmere in a convincing and easy fashion; and Mr. Phil Harper was excellent as Colonel Jules Meuron. The important rôle of Marie Walewska had full justice done to it by Miss Leslie Warner, the actress playing with an enthusiasm and earnestness that cannot be overpraised; and Miss Maud Russell was entirely satisfactory as Leonie Marboeuf, being particularly good in the scene where she pleads with the Emperor for her lover's life. The author, Mr. Frank M. Thorne, has written plenty of amusing lines, and supplied himself with a fine comedy part in that of the timid drummer, Pierre Pomponnet. Screamingly funny was the scene where the chain-mail that he has made for the Emperor is tested on his own body, and his portrayal throughout was a most mirth-provoking one. He received admirable support from Miss Marie Harcourt, a bonny and buxom vivandière, and two other impersonations that made for hearty laughter were the Sergeant Choupin of Mr. Albert Sinclair—an admirable performance throughout—and the Mère Dumont of Miss Florence Thorne. The other parts were all ably enacted, and the scenery and costumes call for commendation.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, August 20, the Drama, in Five Acts, by Henry Pettitt and Augustus Harris, entitled
"HUMAN NATURE."

A capital interpretation of the Drury Lane drama Human Nature is this week being given at the Standard, Shoreditch. The capable body of players engaged for the present stock season take full advantage of every opportunity offered, and supply a performance of high worth. Mr. Ashley Page ably supports the rôle of Captain Temple, and plays with considerable force and spirit; Mr. Tom Taylor gives a perfect portrayal of the scheming solicitor Matthew Hawker; and Mr. Alfred Harding carefully paints the vindictive nature of Paul de Vigne. Mr. John Brownson sustains with sufficient force the part of Stephen Mardyke; whilst Mr. C. A. Chandler does all that is possible with the part of the Rev. Arthur Lulworth. Considerable merriment is caused by Mr. Johnny Chippendale as Horatio Spofkins. He makes the most of every opportunity, and is ably and substantially assisted in the lighter scenes by Miss Mattie Everett as Maggie Wilkins. Mr. John Sargent has a capital "make-up" as Joe Lambkin, and depicts the nature of the rougher class of man to perfection. Miss W. Williamson plays with considerable pathos as Dick, a waif; and a commendable performance is also given by Master Frank Brownson as Frank, Temple's child. Miss Georgie de Lara proves effective as Cora Grey; and Miss Maggie Lindsay's clever characteristic sketch as Mrs. Lambkin is all that could be desired. Miss Amy B. Ellis is good as Mrs. Lulworth; Miss Marion Denvil plays with feeling as Nellie Tempie, and is highly acceptable in the part. The minor characters are adequately supported, and the scenery and effects are worthy of special mention.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Aug. 20,
the Play, adapted by S. Comyns Carr from Dickens's Novel, entitled
"OLIVER TWIST."

Playgoers at Fulham this week are having an exceptional treat in the shape of a visit by Mr. Bannister Howard's company in the version of Oliver Twist as played by Mr. Beerbohm Tree at His Majesty's Theatre. The company is one of unusual excellence, and the staging and scenery leave nothing to be desired. Mr. Stanley Drewitt essays the difficult and exacting part of the horrible old Jew, Fagin, and well deserves the applause he wins. It is a powerful study of a terrible and repulsive character, and Mr. Drewitt plays it with splendid force and a variety of subtle touches. Mr. James Skea is a capital representative of Bill Sikes; the part suits his fine physique to a nicety, and he portrays the leonine strength and ferocity of the man with great success. Mr. Charlie Clark as the Dodger, Mr. R. C. Hunter as Charley Bates, and Mr. A. Klein as Barney, with Mr. J. Johns as Chitling, make an amusing quartette in the rôles of Fagin's pupils. Mr. Fred Penley as Mr. Brownlow is a delightful old gentleman, and both he and Mr. W. H. Rotheram as Mr. Grimwig seem to have stepped bodily out of Dickens. Mr. Rotheram is also responsible for the part of Monks, and plays it well and strongly. Mr. Paige Lawrence is manly and bright as Harry Maylie; Mr. Edward Walsh is very good as Bumble, and Messrs. Appleby and Williams are amusing at the servants Giles and Brittles. Miss Dorothy Marsdin makes a very good representative of Oliver, and acts cleverly. Miss Lingham is a painstaking Mrs. Maylie, and Miss Dorothy Mayhew as Rose Maylie looks wholly delightful as an Early Victorian maiden, while her acting is no less charming than her looks. The part of the ill-fated Nancy is assumed by Miss Edith Anton Laing, who plays the part with rare skill and power. All the members of the large cast are fully competent, and it is not often one finds a touring company so strong at all points.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Aug. 20,
the Romantic Drama, by C. Watson Mill, entitled
"A WARNING TO WOMEN."

The Standard Star Company is still at this popular South London house, and despite the hot weather capital audiences are flocking to witness the exciting and well-written drama A Warning to Women. The part of the heroine, Moira Kennion, is artistically and sympathetically played by Miss Olge Audre. Miss Audre has an arduous rôle to play, but the different phases in the complex character of the woman who is more sinned against than sinning are admirably depicted. Mr. J. C. Aubrey as the grim, relentless Dr. Marcus Dread scores a great success by his impressive acting. Mr. Roy Redgrave is a picturesque figure as Shaun, a wandering Irish minstrel, and acts with much intelligence. Mr. Jack Denton is very good as the young but good-hearted swell, Lord Eversleigh. Miss Eva Dare is bright and pathetic as occasion serves as Sheila Kennion. Mr. George Villiers scores a great success as a foolish Frenchman, Ferdinand de Joules. Mr. H. C. Cooper is a duly impressive Rev. Emmanuel Wallace; and Mr. W. Lawrence looks handsome and scores well in the first act as the blind Fergus McNaughton. Miss Marion Turner deserves praise for her spirited acting as Hildred. Mr. Herbert Woodin is amusing as Mike McQauds; Mr. Frank Lister acts with much pathos as the old squire, Kennion, and is the recipient of great applause throughout the evening. Miss Jennie Marks acts well as the crippled Myles O'More; Miss Ruth Zillwood makes the most of her part as Molly O'More. The piece is very well mounted, and the whole production is evidently in great favour with the good folks of Rotherhithe.

THE NEW GRAND, MANSFIELD.

The above building was erected by Mr. F. Houghton, contractor, of Mansfield, the architect being Mr. T. V. Woodham, of Nottingham. It is of brick and stone, and will hold 1,500. The seating and upholstering is by the famous firm of Dean; the house is lighted throughout by electricity, and is arranged as follows:—Two boxes, stalls, dress circle, pit, and gallery. There are no pillars, and every seat commands clear view of stage. The theatre has nine exits direct to the street, and three separate entrances. There are six dressing-rooms, each 30ft. long and 10ft. wide, four refreshment rooms, lounge and crush rooms, and general offices. The building is 130ft. deep by 65ft. wide. The stage is 38ft. deep by 65ft. wide. Large dock doors open direct to street. The height to flies is 42ft., and the opening is 30ft. by 20ft. The scenery has been painted by Mr. George Collier, jun.

The building is in the main street in the centre of the town, and electric trams pass the doors, connecting up all surrounding districts. There are plush tip-up chairs in the dress circle and stalls and plain tip-up seats in the pit. The theatre will be booked in conjunction with the King's Theatre, Sutton-in-Ashfield, the proprietor of both houses being Captain Clayton. The general-manager is Mr. Edward Gray, who has for five years been the popular acting-manager of the Britannia Pier, Great Yarmouth. The theatre will be opened in September. The front of the house will be illuminated by three large flare arc lamps, and there will be seventy-two incandescent lamps under the portico, which is 12ft. deep, and extends along the whole width of the front. The building is completely isolated, having a 15ft. roadway on both sides and a 60ft. roadway in front. At the back is a lawn with shaded walks about 200ft. square, which will be laid out as ornamental gardens; and here in the summer months an open-air theatre will be erected. Four complete fire installations have been supplied.

NEW GRAND THEATRE, MANSFIELD.

PROPRIETOR, CAPTAIN CLAYTON. ARCHITECT, MR. T. V. WOODHOUSE.

PRESENTATION.—A merry party assembled at the festive board in the Queen Anne room of the Carlton Hotel, Sheffield, on the 17th inst., and did full justice to the recherché supper provided by the new manager, Mr. T. S. Carter, late of the Theatre Royal. The pièce de résistance, however, of the evening was the presentation to Mr. A. Daniel Burton, of the Burton Gala Agency, with a useful portmanteau, a dressing-case, and an illuminated address, these gifts being supplemented by a silver tea-service for Mrs. Burton. Mr. Harry Dunlop, of the Dunlops, in making the presentations, eloquently voiced the private sentiments of the subscribers; and Mr. A. D. Burton returned thanks for himself and wife in a few feeling words. Toasts and songs followed; and a delightful evening was spent. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. A. Daniel Burton, Mr. and Mrs. Dunlop, Mr. Silvo, the Ardells, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Knott, the Hamiltons, Mr. Harry Burton, Le Phred, the Browns, Prof. De Lyle, and Mr. De Cora. A vote of thanks to Mr. T. S. Carter, "mine host," ended the pleasant proceedings.

MISS GRACE E. LESLIE, the popular melodramatic actress, is anxious to deny that she is in any way connected with the Mrs. Grace Leslie mentioned in a case tried at the Tower Bridge Police Court last week.

MISS IDA MILLAIS' No Man's Land company, under the direction of Mr. Henry Herne, will pay its ninth visit to the Alexandra, Sheffield, next week. Although the piece has been on the road so long, it is well booked through 1907.

CIBBER ON BETTERTON.

Betterton, says Colley Cibber in his "Apology," was an Actor, as Shakespear was an Author, both without Competitors! form'd for the mutual Assistance and Illustration of each others Genius! How Shakespear wrote, all Men who have a Taste for Nature may read and know—but with what higher Rapture would he still be read could they conceive how Betterton play'd him! Then might they know the one was born alone to speak what the other only knew to write! Pity it is that the momentary Beauties flowing from an harmonious Elocution cannot, like those of Poetry, be their own Record! That the animated Graces of the Player can live no longer than the instant Breath and Motion that presents them, or at best can but faintly glimmer through the Memory or imperfect Attestation of a few surviving Spectators. Could how Betterton spoke be as easily known as what he spoke, then might you see the Muse of Shakespear in her Triumph, with all her Beauties in their best Array rising into real Life and charming her Beholders. But alas! since all this is so far out of the reach of Description, how shall I shew you Betterton? Should I therefore tell you that all the Othellos, Hamlets, Hotspurs, Mackbeths, and Brutus's whom you may have seen since his Time, have fallen far short of him; this still would give you no Idea of his particular Excellence. Let us see then what a particular Comparison may do! whether that may yet draw him nearer to you?

You have seen a Hamlet perhaps, who, on the first Appearance of his Father's Spirit, has thrown himself into all the straining Vociferation requisite to express Rage and Fury, and the House has thunder'd with Applause; tho' the mis-guided Actor was all the while (as Shakespear terms it) tearing a Passion into Rags—I am the more bold to offer you this particular Instance, because the late Mr. Addison, while I sate by him to see this Scene acted, made the same Observation, asking me, with some Surprize, if I thought Hamlet should be in so violent a Passion with the Ghost, which, tho' it might have astonish'd, it had not provok'd him? for you may observe that in this beautiful Speech the Passion never rises beyond an almost breathless Astonishment, or an Impatience, limited by filial Reverence, to enquire into the suspected Wrongs that may have rais'd him from his peaceful Tomb! and a Desire to know what a Spirit so seemingly distrest might wish or enjoin a sorrowful Son to execute towards his future Quiet in the Grave? This was the Light into which Betterton threw this Scene; which he open'd with a Pause of mute Amazement! then rising slowly to a solemn, trembling Voice, he made the Ghost equally terrible to the Spectator as to himself! and in the descriptive Part of the natural Emotions which the ghastly Vision gave him, the boldness of his Expostulation was still govern'd by Decency, manly, but not braving; his Voice never rising into that seeming Outrage or wild Defiance of what he naturally rever'd. But alas! to preserve this medium, between mouthing and meaning too little, to keep the Attention more pleasingly awake by a temper'd Spirit than by meer Vehemence of Voice, is of all the Masterstrokes of an Actor the most difficult to reach. In this none have yet equall'd Betterton. But I am unwilling to shew his Superiority only by recounting the Errors of those who now cannot answer to them, let their farther Failings therefore be forgotten! or rather, shall I in some measure excuse them? For I am not yet sure that they might not be as much owing to the false Judgment of the Spectator as the Actor. While the Million are so apt to be transported when the Drum of their Ear is so roundly rattled; while they take the Life of Elocution to lie in the Strength of the Lungs, it is no wonder the Actor, whose end is Applause, should be also tempted at this easy rate to excite it. Shall I go a little farther? and allow that this Extreme is more pardonable than its opposite Error? I mean that dangerous Affectation of the Monotone, or solemn Sameness of Pronounciation, which, to my Ear, is insupportable for of all Faults that so frequently pass upon the Vulgar, that of Flatness will have the fewest Admirers. That this is an Error of ancient standing seems evident by what Hamlet says, in his Instruction to the Players, viz.

Be not too tame, neither, &c.

The Actor, doubtless, is as strongly ty'd down to the Rules of Horace as the Writer.

Si vis me flere, dolendum est
Primum ipsi tibi——

He that feels not himself the Passion he would raise, will talk to a sleeping Audience: But this never was the Fault of Betterton; and it has often amaz'd me to see those who soon came after him throw out, in some Parts of a Character, a just and graceful Spirit which Betterton himself could not but have applauded. And yet in the equally shining Passages of the same Character have heavily dragg'd the Sentiment along like a dead Weight, with a long-ton'd Voice and absent Eye, as if they had fairly forgot what they were about: If you have never made this Observation, I am contented you should not know where to apply it.

A farther Excellence in Betterton was, that he could vary his Spirit to the different Characters he acted. Those wild impatient Starts, that fierce and flashing Fire, which he threw into Hotspur, never came from the unruffled Temper of his Brutus (for I have more than once seen a Brutus as warm as Hotspur): when the Betterton Brutus was provok'd in his Dispute with Cassius, his Spirit flew only to his Eye; his steady Look alone supply'd that Terror which he disdain'd an Intemperance in his Voice should rise to. Thus, with a settled Dignity of Contempt, like an unheeding Rock he repelled upon himself the Foam of Cassius. Perhaps the very Words of Shakespear will better let you into my Meaning:

Must I give way and room to your rash Choler?
Shall I be frighted when a Madman stares?

And a little after,

There is no Terror, Cassius, in your Looks! &c. Not but in some part of this Scene, where he reproaches Cassius, his Temper is not under this Suppression, but opens into that Warmth which becomes a Man of Virtue; yet this is that Hasty Spark of Anger which Brutus himself endeavours to excuse.

But with whatever strength of Nature we see the Poet shew at once the Philosopher and the Heroe, yet the Image of the Actor's Excellence will be still imperfect to you unless Language could put Colours in our Words to paint the Voice with.

Et, si vis similem pingere, pinge sonum, is enjoyning an impossibility. The most that a Vanduke can arrive at, is to make his Portraits of great Persons seem to think; a Shakespear goes farther yet, and tells you what his Pictures thought; a Betterton steps beyond 'em both, and calls them from the Grave to breathe and be themselves again in Feature, Speech, and Motion.

There cannot be a stronger Proof of the Charms of harmonious Elocution than the many even unnatural Scenes and Flights of the false Sublime it has lifted into Applause. In what Raptures have I seen an Audience at the furious Fustian and turgid Rants in Nat. Lee's Alexander the Great! For though I can allow this Play a few great Beauties, yet it is not without its extravagant Blemishes. Every Play of the same Author has more or less of them. Let me give you a Sample from this. Alexander, in a full crowd of Courtiers, without being occasionally call'd or provok'd to it, falls into this Rhapsody of Vain-glory.

Can none remember? Yes, I know all must!

And therefore they shall know it again.

When Glory, like the dazzling Eagle, stood
Perch'd on my Beaver, in the Granic Flood,
When Fortune's Self my Standard trembling bore,
And the pale Fates stood frighted on the Shore,
When the Immortals on the Billows rode,
And I myself appear'd the leading God.

When these flowing Numbers came from the Mouth of a Betterton the Multitude no more desired Sense to them than our musical Connoisseurs think it essential in the celebrate Airs of an Italian Opera. Where, then, must have lain the Charm that once made the Publick so partial to this Tragedy? Why plainly, in the Grace and Harmony of the Actor's Utterance. For the Actor himself is not accountable for the false Poetry of his Author; That the Hearer is to judge of; if it passes upon him, the Actor can have no Quarrel to it; who, if the Periods given him are round, smooth, spirited, and high-sounding, even in a false Passion, must throw out the same Fire and Grace as may be required in one justly rising from Nature; where those his Excellencies will then be only more pleasing in proportion to the Taste of his Hearer. And I am of opinion that to the extraordinary Success of this very Play we may impute the Corruption of so many Actors and Tragick Writers, as were immediately misled by it. The unskilful Actor who imagin'd all the Merit of delivering those blazing Rants lay only in the Strength and strain'd Exertion of the Voice, began to tear his Lungs upon every false or slight Occasion to arrive at the same Applause.

GAIETY THEATRE COMPANY.

At the annual meeting of the Gaiety Theatre Company, Limited, at the Gaiety Theatre on Monday, Mr. George Edwardes, in his speech as chairman, said the receipts for the year under consideration were £93,457, as against £81,134 in 1904-5, showing an increase of £12,323. The gross profit of the year was £17,196, as against £9,651, showing an increase of £7,545. Instead of paying a larger dividend than 15 per cent. we propose to write down the asset known as stage properties by £6,200 more than last year. In order to get this addition of £12,323 we had to expend £5,374 more on the stage; but we saved in general expenses £796, on rents, rates, and taxes £97, and on advertising and bill-posting £403, making in all £1,287. The printing and stationery is £115 18s. 10d. less, the cost of electric lighting is £109 less, while the alterations and repairs are £317 more. We are getting the new piece ready, and hope shortly to produce it. It is a somewhat different class of entertainment from what we have been doing here, and I think we want change.

Mr. A. G. Mackenzie seconded the motion, and remarked that a good deal had been heard lately of the bitter cry of the middle classes, and they had only to look at the various reports of hotels, theatres, and caterers for public amusement of all kinds to see that they had not been doing nearly so well as formerly. People were spending about 10 per cent. less than they were a few years ago. They had a shilling income-tax to pay, and in very many cases there was not another shilling in the £ to provide for amusements. Considering all these things, he thought this company had done remarkably well.

Mr. Keevil thought the accounts presented showed that they could afford to pay a dividend at the rate of 20 per cent., and he asked the chairman if he would accept an amendment to increase the amount the board recommended.

The Chairman said he could not accept any such proposition.

A Shareholder said he would like to congratulate the board on the improved position shown, and said he was especially pleased to see they had got a leasehold redemption policy. In his opinion nothing was better calculated to improve the price of the shares on the market than the knowledge that the capital would be intact at the end of the lease.

The motion was unanimously agreed to.

Mr. Charles Martin moved a vote of thanks to the chairman and directors for their services.

The motion was seconded by Mr. Dingwall and unanimously passed.

The Chairman, in acknowledging the compliment, said this was the first company he had ever become manager of in London, and the Gaiety always occupied first place in his consideration.

"AMASIS."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA

SIR,—The attention of our client, Mr. Frederick Fenn, has been drawn to the letter from Mr. W. Gunn-Gwennet appearing in a recent issue of your journal, in which Mr. Gwennet insinuates that the plot, construction, and scenes, and even some of the lines, of Mr. Fenn's comic opera Amasis have been plagarised from an unpublished piece of his.

Our client instructs us that he has never, until a few days ago, ever heard of the existence even of Mr. Gwennet's play, nor has he ever seen the manuscript thereof, and any similarities which Mr. Gwennet alleges exist must, therefore, be merely pure coincidence; but Mr. Fenn cannot agree that they are "astounding" or "astonishing," having regard to the subject-matter of the two plays being the same, viz., ancient Egypt.

We have written to Mr. Gwennet for a retraction of, and an apology for, his libellous and utterly unfounded insinuations; and meanwhile, as you have published Mr. Gwennet's letter, we must ask you, in justice to Mr. Fenn, to kindly give equal prominence to this letter in the next issue of your journal.—We are, Sir, yours faithfully,

Aug. 23. BRANDON AND NICHOLSON.

MISS MABEL SEALBY is now playing Miss Maudie Darrell's part in The Beauty of Bath at the Aldwych Theatre.

PRESENTATION.—On the stage of the Victoria Theatre, Broughton, on Tuesday night, the theatre staff presented to Mr. J. Fred Watson, the energetic and genial manager, a gold-mounted umbrella as a mark of their esteem and regard. Mr. C. S. Radcliffe, the secretary of the company, made the presentation on behalf of the staff, and the managing-director, in the course of a few remarks, testified to the fact that Mr. Watson had the full confidence of the directors, and said he was pleased to see that he had the goodwill of the staff.

MANY members of the profession will learn with regret of the sudden death at Blackpool last week of Mrs. Ralph Rushton, the wife of the proprietor of the Park Hotel, where for the last quarter of a century the leading dramatic and variety artists have been accustomed to stay. Mrs. Rushton, who was a most popular lady, and won the esteem of all visitors and residents in the town, where she had resided for about thirty years, had for some time been subject to heart disease and complications, and about noon on the 14th inst. there was a sudden and startling change. The family physician was hurriedly summoned, but, despite the best attention, she gradually sank. The funeral, which took place at Blackpool Cemetery, was largely attended, the wreaths including one from Mr. George Scott, the manager of the Alhambra, who was staying at the hotel on his holiday at the time the sad event occurred. Floral tributes were also sent by Mr. T. Sergenson, owner of the Grand Theatre, Blackpool; and by Mr. G. H. Harrop, general-manager of the Palace and the Tower Circus.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, in an article on "Sleep and Sleeplessness" in P.T.O., says that he was awakened at two o'clock regularly for the last few weeks. "It is the price I have had to pay," says Mr. O'Connor, "for the anxiety and worry of carrying the Musical Copyright Bill into law. I paid the price willingly enough." Few of those who benefit by the passing of the Bill are aware how much tact, energy, and perseverance, besides an intimate knowledge of the House of Commons, are needed in the pilotage of a measure of this sort through the House.

Mr. James Welch and Miss Audrey Ford were married on Saturday. Miss Ford, whose real name is Miss May Fisher, is the daughter of the popular comedienne Miss Lottie Venne (Mrs. Walter H. Fisher), and appeared with Mr. Welch, we may recall, in the production of Mr. Hugh Morton's farce Glittering Gloria at Wyndham's in the July of 1903, when she created an agreeable impression in the character of Dorothy Kenworthy.

Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. Charles Hawtrey, and Mr. Pinero were the guests of the King at luncheon at Marienbad on Monday. Among others staying at Marienbad are Mme. Yvette Guilbert, Mme. Saharet, and Miss Miriam Clements. There are, of course, besides, a great number of Viennese "stars," among them Frl. Mizi Günther and Herr Trenmann, who on Monday last were most heartily applauded by His Majesty King Edward, who greatly enjoyed the performance of Die Lustige Witwe, manifesting his delight with the singularly fascinating and "catchy" music by Herr Lehar and the exhilarating libretto.

Miss Dot Stephens has been discharged from the Wolverhampton Hospital, and is seeking convalescence at Margate. Despite the terrible ordeal through which she has passed, Miss Stephens is very cheerful, and expresses the most profound gratitude towards those who have hastened to help her in her misfortune. "I do not seem to gain much strength lately," she says, "but perhaps dear old Margate will pull me round again. How I long to walk, but I must be patient. It seems so funny not to be playing, and I get the 'blues' rather when I pass the 'theatre,' but never mind, I can only thank God for sparing my life."

Miss Stephens, who has made a wonderful recovery, is loud in praise of the authorities at the Woverhampton Hospital, where she has lain since the day of the accident. "They have treated me splendidly," she said, "and I don't know how to express my thanks. Dr. Dent performed a wonderful operation, and there is no doubt he saved my life. And as for the matron—well, there, she is the most womanly woman I have ever met."

When Miss Stephens recovered consciousness at the hospital she was informed that she had had "rather a bad accident" by Dr. Dent, who added that he would have to take her foot off. "All right," do what you like," was the plucky reply. "Shall I be able to walk?" "Yes, I think so," said the doctor. "That is all I want to know," said Miss Stephens, "go ahead." The plucky lady, despite the sad nature of the accident, is not despondent. "I sometimes forget my foot is taken off, and I will start up to walk," she said, with a laugh. "Of course, I shall be able to walk. Several London firms have offered to supply me with artificial limbs gratis. I am glad I shall be able to walk."

The final meeting of the committee who had charge of the Birmingham theatrical and music hall sports this year took place at the Woolpack Hotel, Moor-street, on Tuesday, under the chairmanship of Mr. J. E. Margoschis. On the proposition of the Chairman, seconded by Mr. McManus, the proceeds were thus allocated:—Birmingham Children's Hospital (Bed Fund) £150, Birmingham General Hospital £25, Birmingham Queen's Hospital £25, Birmingham General Dispensary £25, Birmingham Eye Hospital £20, Birmingham Military Veterans £20, Birmingham Lying-in Hospital £20, Birmingham Orthopædic Hospital £10, Birmingham Ear and Throat Hospital £10, Birmingham Skin Hospital £10, Birmingham Homœopathic Hospital £10, Birmingham Police-aid Clothes Association £10, Music Hall Home £10, Music Hall Benevolent Fund £10, Moseley Convalescent Home £10, Birmingham Crippled Children's Union £10, Women's Hospital £10, Blackwell Sanatorium £5, Actors' Benevolent Home £5, Actors' Orphanage £5.

The formal delivery of the decision in the appeal by Mr. Albany Ward, the lessee of the Empire Theatre, Oxford, against the refusal of the city magistrates to grant a licence was made at the adjourned Court of Quarter Sessions for the city of Oxford held for the purpose on Saturday. The matter had been left for three weeks to enable Mr. Ward to take time to consider the judgment of the Recorder, which he foreshadowed at the sessions held on July 28, that the appeal from the justices' decision must fail on a technical objection which was urged by the counsel for the magistrates.

It was stated on behalf of the appellant that it had been decided not to ask the Recorder to state a case, but to abide by his decision. A postponement of the decision for two months was, however, requested, as an application had been made to the Divisional Court to grant a rule nisi, on the grounds that certain magistrates who were on the bench when the licence was refused should not have sat, as they were members of the Watch Committee, and had previously voted against granting it; and also that when once a licence had been granted the conditions could not be altered by granting it for one year. The justices had nothing before them but the report of the Watch Committee, of which body Alderman Lucas, a director of the other theatre in the city, was vice-chairman, but he did not adjudicate at the refusal. The Recorder said he could not accede to the request for postponement, and the appellant must pay the taxed costs.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Homewood (Miss Joan Blair) are returning from South Africa by the Walmer Castle, due on Saturday next. They have been kindly released by Messrs. B. and F. Wheeler in order that they may resume their positions in Mr. E. S. Willard's company, and leave England again on Sept. 14—Mr. Homewood for his fifth and Mrs. Homewood for her third American trip.

A new one-act play, entitled La Marseillaise, by Frank E. Potter, will be produced by Mr. Arthur Carlton at the Theatre Royal, Worcester, on Sept. 6. The action takes place in the Bastille during the night and early morning preceding the outbreak of the Revolution. Rouget de L'Isle (the author of the world-famous revolutionary song which gives the play its name) is deftly woven into the plot, and will be played by Mr. Arthur Carlton himself, supported by Mrs. Carlton as the wife Marthe. In most plays dealing with the French Revolution the sympathy is all on the side of the "aristocrats," but the new piece has a pro-revolutionary hero, and should mark an interesting departure.

Mr. F. R. Benson's "South" Shakespearean Co., which commenced its autumn tour at Hunstanton on Aug. 6, has since been drawing large audiences at the East Coast towns, in spite of the hot weather. They now proceed to Scotland for a two months' tour.

Mr. Geo. Edwardes's next production at Daly's, the music of which is by M. Hugo Felix and the libretto by Captain Basil Hood, is now being actively rehearsed for presentation at the end of next month. A welcome feature of the new musical piece, which is based on Sardou's Les Merveilleuses, will be the reappearance of Miss Evie Greene, whose return to the London stage has been too long delayed. Other exponents of the ladies of the Directoire will be found in Miss Mariette Sully, Miss Denise Orme, and Miss Gabrielle Ray, and Messrs. Robert Evett, Louis Bradfield, Fred Kaye, W. H. Berry, George Graves, and Willie Warde will also appear in the new play.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in Florodora will visit the Kennington Theatre next week. The exceptionally strong cast includes Mr. Daly Cooper as Tweedlepunch, Miss Edith Housley, who played Lady Holyrood in London with such marked success, clever tiny Miss Nellie Bowman as Angela, Miss Violet Gratzice as Dolores, and Mr. R. Courtier Dutton as Abercoed. Mr. Howard's company with Oliver Twist will be at the Brixton next week.

The second week of the Hutchison season at the West Pier, Brighton, proved most successful, the plays presented being Cousin Kate and On the Love Path. For this, the third week, Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison are producing A Bit of Old Chelsea and A Country Mouse, with Miss Annie Hughes in her original parts. R. C. Carton's clever farce Public Opinion, which has now a sub-title of Pansy's Breach of Promise Case, will furnish the attraction for the fourth week, Miss Emma Hutchison heading the cast.

A plucky rescue from drowning was effected at St. Leonard's on Saturday by Mr. Brember Wills, a member of Miss Katie Johnson and Mr. F. G. Bayly's Billy's Little Love Affair company, then performing at the local Pavilion Theatre. A lady, whilst bathing, was carried out of her depth by the heavy ground swell, and Mr. Wills, who was on the beach at the time, at once swam out and succeeded in bringing her to shore in an unconscious condition. He at once made off; but his bravery had not escaped notice, and at the matinée performance the orchestra greeted him on his appearance with the strains of the "Conquering Hero." At the evening performance he was publicly presented by Mr. Monckton Hoffe, the business-manager, for Mrs. Johnson, with a box of everlasting flowers, sent by the lady he had rescued.

The King's Theatre, Westgate-street, Cardiff, with the Grand Hotel adjoining, is to be sold in September by Messrs. Gottwaltz and Perry at their property sale-rooms. The properties are held upon leases for 99 years from 1885 and 1887 respectively, the theatre being let upon lease which yields a present profit rental of £450 per annum.

Mrs. Michael Gunn has rearranged and redecorated all the dressing-rooms at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, and has also devised for lady patrons a luxurious tea saloon, roomy and spacious, and artistically decorated in green and white, while palm trees and delicately tinted glass relieve the eye. This thoughtful provision for their comfort will no doubt be thoroughly appreciated by the lady playgoers of Dublin, and will increase the popularity of this already most popular theatre.

Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton, the proprietors of the Royal Opera House, Leicester, on Sept. 22 will inaugurate matinées for the various attractions presented at their premier Leicester theatre. Mr. Henry Dundas, the business-manager of the Opera House, is already making this widely known in the hunting shire, where there is a great population who will no doubt appreciate the enterprise of the new management. Tea will be provided for their country visitors, and Saturday being market day at Leicester, the matinées at the Opera House should prove a success.

An effective form of advertisement and a good one has been introduced to the East-End theatregoers by Mr. Clarence Sounes. The novelty consists of a post-card giving on one side a map of the district surrounding his elegant Prince's Theatre, showing the principal roads and arteries leading to the position of the theatre in the East India-road. A sentence full of meaning is printed above the map; it reads, "All roads lead to the Prince's Theatre, Poplar," and the public are following this instruction.

Mr. Frank Seddon, the musical director of the Opera House, Northampton, has, we understand, been appointed resident-manager for the same house, and will commence his new duties on Monday next. Mr. Seddon, who has been in Northampton some three years, is well known and highly respected, both for his musical abilities and for his courtesy.

Mr. Louis Calvert's wisdom in augurating his career as a manager with a return to comic opera is being amply proved at the New Theatre, where the booking for Amasis extends well on to the end of the year, and money is turned away at nearly every performance. It is well to note that St. Martin's-lane, where the road was "up," is resuming its normal appearance, the approach to the theatre from the north being now quite clear.

Mr. John Bayliss, a well-known Liverpool musician, died on Tuesday at Morecambe. The deceased gentleman was for about twenty years conductor of the orchestra at the now closed Prince of Wales's Theatre, Liverpool, and was exceedingly popular. During the last three summer seasons he held a similar position at the central Pier Pavilion, Morecambe. When Terry's Theatre, Strand, was opened Mr. Bayliss was appointed leader of the orchestra. He wrote the music for the brilliantly successful pantomimes which for many years were produced at the Prince of Wales's, Liverpool. Mr. Bayliss, who had passed his fifty-ninth year, was buried on Thursday at Kirkdale Cemetery, Liverpool.

Miss Margaret Ashton, acting under the strict orders of her medical adviser, has been compelled to cancel her immediate engagements. The charming American soprano, who has been urged by her doctor to take a sea voyage and complete rest, was fortunate enough to secure, at the last moment, a state cabin on the Majestic, and sailed this week for New York, whence she will proceed to her home in Denver. She hopes that with the complete change and rest she will be able to resume her European engagements towards the end of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's revival of Claudian, which created such a great sensation on its last tour, starts again on Monday next at the Royal Opera House, Leicester. During the summer vacation new scenery has been built, the large wardrobe entirely renewed, and more pictorial printing added to the already extensive plant by Messrs. David Allen and Sons, Ltd. The tour, which includes many of the large towns, runs till Whitsuntide, 1907, Mr. Chute having secured the company for that date at Bristol.

Miss Marie Studholme has been engaged by Mr. Seymour Hicks for his revival of Alice in Wonderland early in December at a theatre not yet decided upon. Later on Miss Studholme will enact the title-rôle of Mr. Hicks's new comedy Everyone's Darling, upon which he is now engaged. The autumn of next year will find the charming comedienne on tour with her own company, which will be run in association with Mr. Hicks.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier has finally decided upon Thursday next for the production of The Morals of Marcus at the Garrick. The cast is headed by Mr. C. Aubrey Smith, who will play the interesting Marcus, and the other parts will be presented by Messrs. Julian L'Estrange, Sydney Valentine, Charles V. France, and Wilfred Forster, and Misses Lillah McCarthy, Helen Rous, Olivia Glynne, Sadie Jerome, Marianne Caldwell, Sybil Audrey, Gordon Walker, Valerie Salberg, and Alexandra Carlisle. The first act takes place in a cottage at Surbiton, and the rest of the piece passes in London.

Mr. Fred Bulmer has taken over from Miss Nettie Ware the very successful drama When Woman Hates, and is sending out a specially selected company. The production will be elaborate, and the author, Mr. Wm. Hibbert, is now assisting in the preparation. Many of the best provincial theatres have been booked.

Mr. Norman V. Norman has acquired the rights of the romantic costume play by Denis Cleugh and C. Duncan Jones, entitled Robin Hood, or the Outlaw of Sherwood Forest, and will shortly produce the piece. The part of Maid Marian will be played by Miss Beatrice Wilson.

Mr. Cecil A. Collins, who has just terminated 13 weeks' stock season with Mr. Percy Williams at Plymouth, has been re-engaged by Mr. Beerbohm Tree to play Bill Sikes in Oliver Twist in his forthcoming autumn tour.

"When London Sleeps" opened to a large house on Monday night at the Grand, Nottingham, when a highly attractive addition was made to the already strong cast by the appearance of Mr. Lester Collingwood, who temporarily resumed his well-known and admirably artistic rendering of the character of Captain Rodney Haynes. Mr. Collingwood is an indefatigable worker, having the business management of this company as well as the entire management of the Alexandra, Birmingham, to look after. Mr. Fred Bernardo is stage-manager, and Mr. Frank Howard acting-manager for When London Sleeps.

The Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, will reopen for the autumn season on Monday. Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett, the managing-director, has arranged for the appearance of many West-End successes, and has in preparation the tenth annual Alexandra Theatre pantomime, which will be entitled Dick Whittington.

Mr. Richard Flanagan will produce on Monday, Sept. 10, a romantic drama, adapted by Mr. William Palmer from Sir Walter Scott's popular novel "Ivanhoe." The principal parts will be cast as follows:—Ivanhoe, Mr. A. Caton Woodville, jun.; Prince John, Mr. James Berry; The Black Knight, Mr. Herbert Dansey; Sir Brian de Bois Guilbert, Mr. H. Gomer May; Sir Reginald Front de Bœuf, Mr. Victor Rae; Locksley, Mr. J. H. Troughton; Friar Tuck, Mr. Harrison Brockbank; Cedric, Mr. John Wainwright; Wamba, Mr. J. H. Atkinson; Isaac of York, Mr. Charles Garry; Lady Rowena. Miss Katherine Harrington; Elgitha, Mrs. Wilson Holt; Ulrica, Miss Minnie Webb; Rebecca, Miss Dora Barton. The play is in five acts and thirteen scenes. The scenery has been painted by Messrs. Hugh Freemantle and William Palmer. The music has been composed and arranged by Mr. Yorke Sheffield, and over 100 persons will take part in the production.

Mr. Norman V. Norman, with Miss Beatrice Wilson and company, who have lately been drawing large audiences in the South of England, broke all records at Weston-super-Mare on Saturday with David Garrick, every available seat being occupied before the performance began, and over two hundred people having to be turned away.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Shepherd (Miss Helena Head) are among the most successful English invaders of America. They sailed last Saturday for a return visit to the United States, having spent the summer, with their one little daughter, among the Devonshire moors. Mr. Shepherd is under contract to Mr. Fiske—in whose company he played last season in Monna Vanna and Thérèse Raquin—to create an important part in Mrs. Fiske's new production at the Manhattan Theatre, New York. Miss Head, who played her first engagement on "the other side" two years ago, has been called one of the most charming Rosalinds on the stage. Portia was another of her many successes.

Mr. Tom Craven's play, The Wife and the Woman, will be produced in the United States next autumn.

Miss Annie Windsor has been engaged by Mr. Lewis Waller to play the part of Lucy Rellerton in Monsieur Beaucaire on tour. Miss Windsor has already played the part successfully with Mr. Norman MacOwan in his spring tour.

Signor Valenza, the conductor of the Town Band at Shanghai, was born at Naples, and received from his father—a talented musician—his musical education as pianist, harpist, and composer. He went to India with a first-class opera company in 1883, visiting Simla and Calcutta, and finally going on tour as conductor of an operatic company to Burma, China, and Japan. He was then appointed conductor of a philharmonic society at Batavia. Then he was in Calcutta for five years; and subsequently wielded the bâton with an Italian opera company in Greece and Turkey. After conducting with the Arthur Rousbey and Carl Rosa companies in London, Signor Valenza went to Shanghai, where he has held the above appointment for five years. He has conducted all kinds of orchestras, from that of grand opera to a music-hall show, and his repertory of all kinds of theatrical productions includes over a hundred pieces and a number of musical comedies. Signor Valenza has had several offers to remain in England, but has not yet decided whether he will stay in this country.

Miss Zena Dare, who is winning so many laurels by her exquisite singing and dancing as the heroine of The Beauty of Bath at the Aldwych, will, at Christmas, take up the rôle of Peter Pan on a tour of Mr. Barrie's charming piece. Simultaneously Peter Pan will again be revived at the Duke of York's.

"Peter's Mother," the play in which Miss Marion Terry is to make her welcome reappearance, will be produced by Mr. Otho Stuart at Wyndham's on Sept. 12. In the cast of Mrs. Henry de la Pasture's piece will also be found Miss Dolores Drummond, Mr. A. E. Matthews, Mr. Alfred Bucklaw, Mr. E. W. Garden, and Mr. Fred Kerr. A contrast will be obtained by the production the same evening of a grim one-act play by Mr. C. Hamilton, entitled The Sixth Commandment, the characters in which will be played by Miss Madge McIntosh, Mrs. Edward Saker, Mr. Percival Stevens, and Mr. Walter Hampden.

Miss Marie Hanbury's friends will hear with regret that she has been very seriously ill, and on Sunday last underwent an operation at the hands of Dr. Fothergill, the Manchester specialist. Although progressing as favourably as can be expected, it will be several weeks before she will be strong enough to fulfil her professional engagements; and in consequence the autumn tour of A Woman's Past, in which she was to appear in her original creation of Bessie, has been postponed for a time. We wish Miss Hanbury a speedy return to health and strength.

Mr. Otho Stuart is making elaborate preparations for the revival of Tristram and Iseult, which is due at the Adelphi on Sept. 4, and two of the scenes will be found to be of unusual splendour. At Christmas matinées will be given of A Midsummer Night's Dream, the revival of which met with such a favourable reception last year. Tristram and Iseult, if it justifies the hopes formed of its success, will be then presented in the evening.

"Lady Kinton's Necklace" is the title of Servais Le Roy's mystical play due for production in a few weeks, and in which Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco will play principal parts, supported by one of the finest all-round companies it is possible to gather together. The entertainment will be of three hours' duration, and will not be a variety show. Magic and mystery will play an important part in the attraction, but comedy will be given every chance. An interesting story will bind together many of Servais Le Roy's masterpieces in the way of illusions, conjuring, &c., and the venture will form one of the most novel enterprises of recent times. Offers for spring dates are very numerous, and the show is booking well ahead. The general manager—Mr. W. Scott Phipp—has everything well in hand.

We regret to have to state that Mr. Charles Lockwood—late manager for Mr. John Peachey's An English Violet company—passed away at his house in Wolverton Gardens, Hammersmith, on Wednesday. Mr. Lockwood was cousin to the late Miss Sophie Larkin, and was manager for several tours for Mr. Herbert Shelley. A kind and courteous man, he will be deeply mourned by his many friends.

Mr. H. M. S. McLellan, who is staying at Eastbourne, witnessed the performance of his play On the Love Path on Monday last by Mr. Percy Hutchison and company, and was highly pleased with the entire and general performance and production of the play. In a letter to Mr. Hutchison he says: "I have no suggestions to make regarding the acting of my play, let me repeat that the general performance was most interesting to me." This is certainly very satisfactory to Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison, as authors, generally speaking, are not very easy to please. The author of Leah Kleschna also witnessed a performance by the same company of Cousin Kate.

Mr. Norman V. Norman has acquired the rights of a costume comedy in three acts, by the Rev. Frederick Langbridge. Mr. Langbridge, who has just been appointed a Canon of Limerick Cathedral, is part author with the Rev. Freeman Wills of The Only Way, After All, and Count Hannibal (the play in which Mr. Norman and Miss Beatrice Wilson have been so successful). The new play deals with an episode in the life of James Edward Francis Stuart, known as the "Old Pretender."

The Adelphi Theatre reaches its hundredth anniversary this autumn. When it was opened in 1806 it was called the Sans Pareil, and belonged to a Mr. Scott, whose daughter was a pillar of strength to the theatre, for she not only combined the representation of the principal parts with the duties of première danseuse, but wrote all the pieces produced.

"Her Luck in London," a drama which has been prosecuting a successful tour since its production at Blackpool last November, will be seen for the first time in London on Monday, at the Grand, Islington. The company travelling with the piece is that of Miss Mary Neil and Mr. George Kirk, and includes the clever young actress Miss Florrie Groves.

"The Lord of the Last," a two-act musical farce, which received its first representation at Worthing on Thursday, will come to London on Monday, where it will be presented at the Camden Theatre. The new piece—the book and lyrics of which are by Fred A. Ellis and the music by Percival Knight and Denham Harrison—will be elaborately staged.

"The Sweet Girl" is the alluring title of a musical comedy which will be given its first English production by Miss Claudia Lasell's company at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, on Monday. The piece has been adapted from the original of Alex. Landesburg and Leo Stein, by A. Demain Grange, William Caine, and Herbert Cottesmore, the music being by Heinrich Reinhardt. In addition to Miss Lasell, the cast includes Miss Alice Lethbridge, Mr. George de Lara, Mr. Algernon Newark, Mr. Lister Marrah, Mr. Leonard Russell, and Mr. Fred Eastman.

"Geoffrey Stirling," the powerful adaptation by Mr. Neville Lynn which attracted favourable attention on its production at the Fulham in the December of 1904, commences a long tour on Monday week at the Colosseum Theatre, Oldham. Mr. Henry Doughty's company will be engaged in its representation.

Mr. Bannister Howard's opening of the Castle Theatre, Richmond, redecorated and in many ways improved, will take place on Monday with Sergeant Brue. Great interest is being excited in the event, and the success of the enterprise under such experienced management seems to be assured.

One of the songs from Mizpah, the Biblical play written by Ella Wheeler Wilcox and Luscombe Searelle, which has had such a pronounced success in America, has been published by M. Witmark and Son. It is entitled "The night wind sighs unto the rose," both words and melody being by Mr. Searelle, who wrote much of the dialogue and all the music of the play. The ballad, which is written throughout in the key of E flat, has a pretty and dramatic tune which well matches the beauty of the lines, while the accompaniment is remarkably effective.

Mrs. Langtry has had remarkable success on the turf this week at Folkestone, where "Mr. Jersey's" horses twice headed the list on Wednesday. In the Kent handicap her three-year-old Aurina was first past the post, and the Hythe Juvenile Maiden Plate was won by Petchora, another of Mrs. Langtry's horses. Her well-known five-year-old Vergia, who has done the popular actress good service, also scored a minor success, running third in the Romney High-Weight Handicap.

Mr. H. A. Jones is rehearsing his new play The Hypocrites at the Hudson Theatre, New York, where Mr. Charles Frohman will produce it next week, with Miss Jessie Milward in the leading female rôle. The piece will resemble Mr. Anthony Trollope's novels in having for its material the "county society" in a small English town. Mr. Jones still complains that the drama in England is "choked with musical comedy."

Mme. Mathilde Marchesi, the famous teacher of singing, has received the gold medal for music, art, and science from the King's own hands. His Majesty, who has always shown especial favour towards members of the musical profession, has recently acquired a plaque in silver of Mme. Clara Butt, made by Mr. P. F. Hedley. It is exhibited at Ashton's Royal Agency, where replicas may be obtained.

Mr. Lewis Waller was fined £5 at Diss Petty Sessions on Wednesday, for driving a motor-car too fast at Scole, near Diss. The police estimated his speed at twenty-six miles an hour

Mr. Charles Macdona's special company in Mr. Popple (of Ippleton), which is playing at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway, this week, has been very successful in spite of the hot weather. The house on Monday night was packed to the doors, and the company was received with genuine and marked enthusiasm. Mr. G. P. Huntley had an "extra special" reception, and Miss Millie Legarde in Miss Ethel Irving's part, Miss Kate Forster who follows Miss Marie Illington, Miss Eva Kelly and Miss Nellie Hodson were warmly applauded. This company is the last and most important that Mr. Macdona has dispatched to the provinces this autumn. The other "Popple" provincial company appears at Kingston next week. Mr. Macdona has decided to revive with a very strong company and at least one particular star, that very funny farcical comedy A Night Out. A tour is being booked from Christmas next. He has also arranged to take over the entire rights from Mr. Dance of The Chinese Honeymoon. The principal company will also re-open under Mr. Macdona's management at Christmas. That delightful musical comedy from the Criterion Theatre, The White Chrysanthemum, has scored a huge success. All Mr. Macdona's other enterprises are doing exceptionally well.

Mr. Ben Greet and company will open Mr. Bannister Howard's season at the Crystal Palace on Sept. 17 with A Midsummer Night's Dream. Thenceforward a remarkable list of attractions will be furnished in the theatre in the Palace, which came under Mr. Howard's management last February.

Mr. E. A. W. Rodrigo, the Cingalese composer, whose adaptation of old Indian airs added so greatly to the attractiveness of Miss Ruth St. Denis's recent matinées at the Aldwych Theatre, has just published a spirited march, entitled "Caffrinha." It has been played with great success at the Crystal Palace by Mr. Herbert Godfrey's band. Mr. Rodrigo is an entirely self-taught musician, who has made his mark in Ceylon as the popular conductor of a Cingalese band. He scores his own music, and has trained the "boys" in his band—over twenty in number—to play exceedingly well. They all appear in native costume, making a striking contrast to their leader in smart European clothes.

Discipline behind the scenes is a feature of modern management. Smoking, it is needless to say, is strictly forbidden, but a certain popular manager has evidently determined to show his employees the road to perfection. The following notice appeared on the call-board of a West-End theatre this week—"Any member of the staff coughing or sneezing on the stage during a performance renders himself liable to instant dismissal." If the same rule could be enforced in the front of the house—at public meetings and in churches as well as at the theatre—it would revolutionise the manners of audiences.

The terms of the will of the late J. L. Toole are already made known. Its provisions include a bequest of £2000 to Mr. E. J. Lowne, who thus receives an acknowledgment of constant and faithful service in the capacity of a trusted business manager and an esteemed friend. £2000 is also left to Mr. Toole's sister and his deceased wife's sister, and to his friend Shelton £1000 is bequeathed. Mrs. Billington and Mrs. Routledge each receive the sum of £500, and to Sir Henry Irving's sons £400 each is left.

A number of old friends and stage attendants benefit by smaller amounts and by articles from his rich collection of stage properties and theatrical literature and autographed portraits. The value of the estate will not be known until the sale of the effects at Mr. Toole's Maida Vale house has been carried out in accordance with his instructions, but the residuary legatee will benefit by the addition of £4000, which was originally bequeathed to Sir Henry Irving, and which, in consequence of the death of his old friend, will revert to the estate.

The English Drama Society, who gave agreeable representations of three of the Chester plays last June, have, through their secretary, Mr. Nugent Moncke, approached the Chester Archæological Society, with the view of furthering a reproduction of these plays in the city of their birth. The Council of the Chester Archæological Society have constituted a committee for the purpose, and it is hoped that the performance may take place at Whitsuntide.

The licence of the Public Hall, Redditch, which is extensively utilised for dramatic and musical performances, was granted on Wednesday, 15th inst., to Mr. W. Predgold.

The translation of Sherlock Holmes has reached its fiftieth performance at the Berliner Theatre, Berlin, with Herr Bonn in the name-part. It proved a splendid advertisement for the piece that the Crown Prince not only attended the performance twice, but on the second occasion filled the stalls with the soldiers of his company, treating them in the entr'acte to beer and sandwiches in the theatre garden.

A German version of Mr. Pinero's comedy A Wife Without a Smile met with a cordial reception on its production a week ago at the Trianon, Berlin, and is still holding the boards there. The translation is called Die Frau ohne Lächeln.

Summer holidays at the Apollo Theatre have now come to an end, and every member of the original cast of The Dairymaids is back, greatly invigorated for the season of continued success which lies before them. Miss Carrie Moore, Miss Florence Smithson, Miss Gracie Leigh, Mr. Dan Rolyat, Mr. Walter Passmore, Mr. Ambrose Manning, Miss Phyllis Broughton, and Miss Agnes Fraser are all working with added zeal to delight the large audiences which are nightly attracted.

Miss Ellaline Terriss and Mr. Seymour Hicks, agreeably combining work and play, are spending a portion of their vacation in Dublin, where they opened on Monday night last with The Catch of the Season at the Theatre Royal. The house was packed to its utmost capacity, and all the reserved seats for next week have been sold. Among the new numbers introduced into the popular musical play a "Geographical" song sung by Miss Terriss was an instantaneous success.

The highly dramatic play of The Jewish Hamlet was again repeated on Monday evening at the Pavilion Theatre by the talented members of the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company. An interesting feature was the artistic interpretation of Avigdor (the Yiddish Hamlet) by Mr. Henry Ginsburg, who received an enthusiastic reception from the crowded house, while the remaining parts were capably portrayed by Messrs. Isaacowitch, J. Fineberg, J. Scherman, Goldsmith, Schilling, Streng, Rosenfeld, Mesdames F. Waxman, Goldstein, J. Kayzer, and Rubenstein. During the week David's Violin, Bar Cochba, Hyman in America, The Good Counsellor, and The Bells have been played.

The staff of the Theatre Royal, Halifax, took their annual outing on Sunday, Llandudno, the beautiful North Wales watering place, being selected for the purpose. Blessed with magnificent weather, the party journeyed by train from Halifax to Liverpool, where they boarded La Marguerite, which set sail at 10.45. A drive round Ormes Head was subsequently enjoyed, and after partaking of dinner and tea a departure was made at 7 o'clock, Halifax being reached at 11.10 p.m.

MR. CARNEGIE AND THE DRAMA.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie laid the memorial stone of the King's Theatre, Leven-street, Edinburgh, last Saturday. The new theatre is to be opened in December. In the spacious galleries and pit a large company assembled to witness the ceremony. The memorial stone was placed on the box space of the grand circle on the O.P. side, and here on an improvised platform were seated the chairman, Mr. R. C. Buchanan, and other directors of the Edinburgh Construction Company (Limited), the proprietors of the theatre, Dr. Carnegie, Provost Mackie, Leith, Councillor Cameron, and Dr. Hew Morrison.

The CHAIRMAN said they were met to witness a performance—an episode in one act—such as was seldom seen within the walls of a theatre. He felt proud that the aims to which his fellow-directors and himself had set themselves were within measurable distance of realisation. They had endeavoured to formulate a scheme whereby the capital of Scotland might have a theatre worthy of the best and the greatest dramatic traditions of the past. They meant to put all their energies into the work. It was a work on a high plane of action, an ambitious plane of action—action that sought to place within reach of the public of Edinburgh and of the many visitors to that beautiful city a continuous series of the dramatic works of the dramatists of the past, of the dramatists of the day, and of the dramatists yet unborn. It was perhaps natural that in such a theatre as that the feeling should be prompted that standing, as it did, in Scotland's capital, it was to be regarded as a National theatre. The plea for a National theatre had had the support of all men and women who acknowledged the high destiny of the drama, the late Sir Henry Irving being foremost among them. If that theatre might lay claim to the title "National," it would be because it would be run on the lines on which a National theatre would be run. The ideals would be all that constituted what was purest in art and elevating in entertainment.

A jar containing current coins and newspapers was then placed in the stone, which, on being lowered into position, was laid by Mr. Carnegie, who pronounced it "well and truly laid."

Mr. CARNEGIE then gave an address on the drama. He said:—It is some forty years since I was within the walls of a theatre in Edinburgh. Well do I remember that I then heard and saw one of the greatest dramatic treats I have ever had, and I have had many rare nights listening to good plays. Charles Webster played Sir Pertinax MacSycophant in Macklin's Man of the World. I hope it will be often repeated in this house. Many are the lessons for life I have received from the theatre. My first knowledge of Shakespeare came from attending a theatre and seeing his plays performed. I had not read his works. As telegraph messenger boy it was my duty to deliver telegrams to the manager of our Pittsburg theatre. We boys made it a practice to ask the gatekeeper if we might slip upstairs to the gallery, which privilege was accorded. In this way the works of Shakespeare were revealed to me.

What is the mission of the drama? We have the answer in the master's words—"both at the first and now, was and is, to hold, as 'twere, the mirror up to nature, to show virtue her own feature, scorn her own image, and the very age and body of the time his form and pressure." The highest and best are now grateful for knowing men and women of the actors' profession. In each of the two branches of our race we have had in our day one who stood out among his fellows. Our American, Joe Jefferson, was one of the sweetest and purest characters it has ever been my fortune to know or hear of, a friend who did one good, a model of all the virtues. I do not know a gentler, purer, character than the delineator of Rip Van Winkle; and your Irving, crossing the ocean so often with him, it was my privilege to know him well. He, too, was in every respect a man whom all delighted to honour, and we have living in the profession to-day men and women of the same character whom it were invidious to mention. It is a far cry from burnt ears to Westminster Abbey, where Irving lies with Garrick, distinguished members of what is now recognised as an honoured profession. The theatre has come to stay, and it devolves upon us to avail ourselves of its tremendous power for good, and support it wherein it is worthy. Subventions to the drama and the opera are not favoured by our race: we know nothing of the subsidised theatre or opera, but since our Governments fail to support either, the duty appeals with greater force to the citizen. The best way for good people to aid and improve the theatre is to patronise it as often as a good play is produced, and avoid it when a bad one is offered. The appeal for aid to a bazaar rarely fails, I am told, on this side of the Atlantic. When a manager of a theatre like this—which is on Marlowe's lines, who laboured to exalt the stage—makes his appeal to the community on behalf of a standard good play, or of a pleasing spectacle for the children, such as has been taking New York by storm, the work of our talented fellow-countryman, Mr. Barrie, the man or woman of good position in Edinburgh should consider it a duty to patronise these and to induce others to do so. Purchasing a number of tickets and sending them to their poorer neighbours and their children is a sound exercise of generosity, a good use of surplus wealth. There is no pauperisation in this, no taint of charity. This is the legitimate reward which the manager has the right to expect at your hands. Peter Pan has just run continuously in New York the whole season, and the theatre was only closed owing to the summer heat. It is to start again when the heat is over.

I hope it will be so in Edinburgh, for it is a delight to children rarely equalled, and so with the cycle of Shakespearian plays promised at the inauguration of this theatre. If parents will see that their sons and daughters attend this cycle, more than one of their children is likely to look back in after life, as I do, to the revelation of Shakespeare as one of the controlling forces in his life for good. Ladies and gentlemen, I am greatly pleased to appear upon this occasion, because I have a note from the Lord Provost of Glasgow, stating that the proprietors and managers of this new theatre have done much for the elevation of the drama in Glasgow. Your sons and daughters who prefer to spend their shillings to see and hear plays of Shakespeare instead of squandering them upon lower things, are not likely to give you trouble in after life. Books laden with good fruit, which are sealed to the multitude, will have been opened to them, which cannot fail to affect their character and their tastes. I ask you then, citizens of Edinburgh, to consider the King's Theatre an institution worthy of your support, because it has the power, if sustained by you, to lead men and women into a higher atmosphere. I shall watch the future of this theatre with deepest interest. It is here somewhat in the nature of an experiment, but one which, as a fellow-burgess, I commend to all the good, generous, public-spirited citizens of the Metropolis. I lay this memorial stone, saying to my fellow-citizens of Edinburgh, in the words of Hamlet and Polonius, "'See the players well bestowed." Polonius—"I will use them according to their desert." Hamlet—"Much better, man, use every man after his desert, and who shall scape whipping? Use them after your own honour and dignity."

THE initial performance at Tower's Hall, a new place of amusement in Sheerness, is announced for Wednesday and Thursday, when Two Little Vagabonds will be presented under the direction of Messrs. Henry Chappell and G. W. Bowes.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, AUG. 23.—The position of manager of the Opera is an enviable one, and it, therefore, is not surprising that M. Gailhard, now at the head of that establishment, should cling to his post with all his might. But will he retain it? It is doubtful. Every seven years the "privilege"—as it is called here—to manage the Opera has to be renewed, and for the last twenty years M. Gailhard has retained the post. The seven years will soon come to an end again, and a large portion of the Paris public are now clamouring for a new manager. Not only are they displeased with the choice of new works produced at the Opera, but they are expressing their surprise that an institution which receives an annual subsidy from the State of £32,000 should at the end of every year show a deficit of £8,000. This figure has never varied. Many candidates have come forward to replace M. Gailhard, among them the brothers Isola, M. Gunzbaung, &c., none of whom, however, have much chance. The only serious candidates are M. Broussan and M. Messager; and of these two the former is decidedly the favourite. M. Messager is a first-class musician, a charmingly versatile composer; and his qualities of chef d'orchestre are justly appreciated. What we, however, require at the Opera is someone like M. Albert Carré, who, in addition to an artistic temperament, has had considerable experience in theatrical management. Such a man is M. Broussan. Remarkably gifted, highly intelligent, he was appointed director of the Lyons Opera, where he performed wonders. He changed the whole répertoire, brought out new operas, mounted the Trilogy; and the Lyons public who had ceased to patronise the house flocked there in numbers, with the result that the Lyons Opera, which, for a quarter of a century had lost money every year, became a paying concern. M. Broussan is very strongly backed, and his nomination as M. Gailhard's successor more than probable.

THE trouble about Le Foyer is still not at an end. M. Claretie remains obdurate, and M. Mirbeau obstinate. M. Guitry, the manager of the Renaissance, not being—like M. Claretie—a member of the Académie Française, and not having such a rooted respect for that august body, is quite prepared to produce Le Foyer in its present form, and it is more than likely that it will see the footlights at that house.

THE dispute, to which reference has already been made in these columns, between MM. Clèves and Larochelle, managers of the Porte-Saint-Martin, and the Authors' Society threatens to take an acute form. These gentlemen refuse to pay to the Society any royalties on Cinderella, alleging that the private arrangements they made with the English authors dispense them from having recourse to the Society's services, which in this case would become somewhat onerous. But the Society has a heavy hand. It does not allow anybody to disobey its rules; and when at the end of the year the treaty between the Porte-Saint-Martin and the Authors' Society expires it is more than probable that it will not be renewed. We would then witness a repetition of what occurred when the Folies-Dramatiques rebelled against the Society. On the other hand, it is said that the difference between the Porte-Saint-Martin and the Authors' Society is due to other causes, and has nothing to do with Cinderella. This, however, appears doubtful.

M. DECORI's new play, Jean Chouan, is in active rehearsal at the Théâtre de la Gaîté. The scene of the play is laid in Laval, in the year 1793, with the exception of the fourth tableau, which takes place in Coblentz. The author, an able actor, who for many years was at the Ambigu, will interpret the principal rôle. The other parts will be impersonated by Mlle. Bouchetal, Mlle. Kerwich, Mlle. Barra, M. Péricaud, M. Gravier, M. Renot, and M. Céalis.

"LA TIMBALE" is the title of a four-act piece by MM. Vandérem and Lenotre which Mme. Réjane has just accepted. It will be produced after Le Vieil Homme, by M. de Porto-Riche, and a comedy by M. Capus.

I AM sorry to have to record the death of M. Alphonse Herman, who from 1892 to 1903 was chef d'orchestre at the Ambigu. He had written the music for all the dramas produced there during that period: Les Deux Gasses, Gigolette, Les Chouans, &c., and he was also the author of many overtures and songs that enjoyed a certain popularity.

AT Cluny the rehearsals have begun of the piece that is to follow Les Francs-Maçons, which has reached its 450th performance. It is a vaudeville by MM. Hugues Delarme and Gally, wherein M. Valot, the creator of the rôle of Lapudeur, will play a leading part. M. Perret, a new arrival from Lyons, will make his début therein.

M. GERNIER intends to inaugurate his theatre with La Vie Publique, which under his management at the Renaissance secured such a great success. The author, M. Fabre, has changed several scenes that dragged a little, and cut down some of the speeches that were somewhat too verbose. M. Gernier will, of course, appear again in the principal character, and the rôle of Astrand has been entrusted to that excellent actor, M. Zanvier.

MM. LOUIS DECORI AND MAURICE LEFEVRE have written a five-act comedy, La Part du Feu, that will be given at the Théâtre Antoine. We are told that it has been adapted for the English stage, and will be produced in London, with Miss Marie Tempest in the chief rôle.

THIS is the list of the new plays to be produced here this season:—

AT the Comédie Française: La Courtisane, by Arnyvelde. La Réveuse, by MM. Henri Kistemackers and E. Delard. Chacun sa Vie, by MM. Gustave Guiches and P. B. Gheusi. L'Ecran Crisé, by M. Henry Bordeaux. Potiche, by Henri Bataille. La Furie, by Jules Bois. Son Bonheur by Romain Caolus. Les Deux Familles, by Emile Fabre. Claire Fresneau, by Paul and Victor Margueritte. Electre, by Emile Poizat.

AT the Variétés: Paris—New York, by Emmanuel Arène and Francis de Croisset. Miquette, by De Flers and Caillavet.

AT the Gymnase: Le Voleur, by Henri Bernstein. Le Goût du Vice, by Henri Lavedan. Joujou Tragique, by Mme. Jehanne d'Orliac. L'Irrégulière, by Edmond Sée.

AT the Vaudeville: La Femme Artiste, by H. Bataille. Le Nid, by Michel Provins.

AT the Odéon: La Faute de l'Abbé Mouret, by Alfred Bruneau. Jules César, by L. de Gramont. Une Fantaisie, by Albert Guinon and A. Bouchinet. La Maison des Juges, by G. Leroux. Ramuntcho, by Pierre Loti. Florise Bonheur, by G. Mitchell and G. Baschet.

AT the Gaîté: Vidocq, by C. Bergerat. Chantecler, by E. Rostand. Jean Chouan, by M. Decori.

AT the Bouffes: Petit Léon, by G. de Buysieulx and Roger Marx. Le Cœur de Sylvie, by G. Nigaud.

AT the Renaissance: Les Passagers, by A. Capus.

AT the Antoine: Le Lien, by L. Descaves. Ddquerette, by Maurice Donnay. La Maison du Bonheur, by Emile Favre.

AT the Sarah Bernhardt: La Nuit Perverse, by Réné Fraudet. Sainte Thérèse, by Catelle Mendès. Les Bouffons, by M. Zamacois.

AT the Réjane: Le Vieil Homme, by G. de Porto-Riche. La Timbale, by Vandérem and Lenotre.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

(SPECIALLY COMPILED FOR THE ERA.)

MISS ALMA MURRAY.

Miss Alma Murray, who is the daughter of the well-remembered Leigh Murray, is the wife of Mr. Alfred Forman, the translator of Wagner's "books." She is a very fine elocutionist, and one of our best teachers of acting. She first appeared when a child at the Olympic Theatre as Saccharissa in Mr. W. S. Gilbert's play The Princess. From 1879 to '81 she was with the late Henry Irving at the Lyceum, as Julie de Mortemar in Richelieu, Jessica and Portia in The Merchant of Venice, Annette in The Bells, Julie in The Lyons Mail, and Daisy and Ruby in Pinero's Daisy's Escape and Bygones. From 1881 to '83 she was with Messrs. James and Thorne at the Vaudeville, chiefly in old comedies. She appeared as Sophia in The Road to Ruin, Julia in The Rivals, Grace Harkaway in London Assurance and Clara Douglas in Money. Her Kate Hardcastle in She Stoops to Conquer was seen later at the Olympic. From 1883 to '94 she appeared at the Adelphi, Olympic, Drury Lane, Princess's, Prince of Wales's, Strand, Globe, &c., principally in melodrama, romantic drama, and comedy-drama. From 1894 to '95 her appearances were:—Avenue Theatre, Raina Petkoff in G. B. Shaw's Arms and the Man, and Comedy Theatre, Mrs. Silvester in Sydney Grundy's New Woman. She was the principal actress in the Shelley and Browning performances, playing Beatrice in The Cenci. She was seen as Juliet at Edinburgh in 1884, and at the Metropole, Camberwell, in 1897. Her first appearance on the provincial concert platform was made at Liverpool in 1899. She recited at the opening of the Colston Hall, Bristol, in 1900; and subsequently appeared with Mr. John Hare at the Criterion Theatre as Clarissa in Louis N. Parker's The Sequel, and at the Pavilion Theatre as Marion Grey in Mr. G. R. Sims's Woman from Gaol. In 1905 she appeared at His Majesty's under Mr. Tree's management as Mrs. Maylie in Oliver Twist. Her last appearance in the large provincial towns was as Pauline in Called Back, by Hugh Conway and Comyns Carr.

THE PROMENADE CONCERTS.

On Tuesday evening, at Queen's Hall, the first novelty of the present season was given in an orchestral suite, arranged from the music to Gozzi's "Turandot," by Signor Ferruccio Busoni. The suite, which was heard for the first time in England on Tuesday evening, is based on the comedy of Gozzi, and relates how Turandot, the Chinese Princess, asks all suitors for her hand to correctly answer riddles. All fail, and are beheaded, until one, Kalaf, a Prince of Astrachan, appears, is quite equal to the occasion, and answers all her riddles; they therefore marry and live happy ever after. Such is the story, and Signor Busoni, in his composition, has given full effect to the Eastern colouring which is both quaint and imaginative, the combination of Oriental with Western ideas being most successful. Signor Busoni's suite is in six movements; in some respects a lesser number would have greatly added to the general effect. Mr. Wood's orchestra admirably interpreted the work, which, owing to its gifted composer, was received with respect by the large audience, without, however, any special enthusiasm. Included also in the programme was Richard Strauss's Symphonic Poem, "Don Juan," Mendelssohn's Scherzo from A Midsummer Night's Dream, Mozart's Concertante Symphony in E flat for violin and viola, in which Mr. Henry Verbrugghen and Mr. S. L. Wertheim greatly distinguished themselves as the soloists; Wagner's "Runzi" overture, Rossini's overture, "La Gazza Ladra," and "Minuet des Follette," "Danse des Sylphes," and "Marche Hongroise" from Berlioz's Faust.

The vocalists were Miss Maud Santley and Mr. W. A. Peterkin, the former artist singing "Non più di fiori" from Mozart's opera La Clemenza di Tito, with the Corno de Basseto obbligato, cleverly played by Mr. F. Gomez. Mr. Peterkin sang with great spirit Sullivan's "Ho! Jolly Jenkins," from his opera Ivanhoe.

At Queen's Hall on Wednesday evening Mozart's Symphony in G flat was the first item in the concert. This fine work, the opening Adagio of which somewhat resembles Beethoven, was played by Mr. Wood's band with great care and artistic finish, their efforts being heartily recognised by the large audience present. Another fine performance by the orchestra was in Schubert's immortal Unfinished Symphony, "which time cannot wither nor custom stale its infinite variety"; indeed, forty years have not diminished the interest the musical public take in this noble fragment. Other works given by the band were the Serenade from "The Childhood of Christ" (Berlioz), Humperdinck's "Dream-Pantomime" from Hänsel und Gretel, Bizet's overture "Patrie," Berlioz's march "Les Troyens," and the overture to "Il Barbiere di Seviglia" (Rossini). Miss Ethel Leginska (a pupil of the celebrated Leschetizky) displayed great ability in Hensett's Pianoforte Concerto in F minor. It was the young lady's first appearance at the Promenade Concerts, and her skill and admirable technique were rewarded by most hearty applause. Miss Perceval Allen and Mr. Charles Knowles were the vocalists.

THE Spa, Whitby, has entered upon a new lease of life under the energetic management of Mr. W. Payne Seddon. Performances are now given four times a day by the Caledonian Boys' Band and various entertainers in the new glass pavilion, and the theatre is being visited by a succession of good companies, the attendance being over double that of any previous season. The Gordon Highlanders drew record gates last week, and this week Mr. Edward Terry, The Walls of Jericho, the Jamaica Choir, and Mr. Bert Coote's children are the attractions.

GARRICK AND HIS ENEMIES.

Mr. H. B. Irving's third instalment in the Fortnightly Review, of his essay on "The English Stage in the Eighteenth Century" is so admirable, that we regret being only able to insert its essence. "When we turn to the other side of Garrick's career," says Mr. Irving, "that of a manager of a theatre, for thirty years joint-manager of Drury-lane, the story wears a different aspect. In spite of his triumphs as an artist, in spite of the success of his management, the wealth and prosperity his calling brought him, the reader of his biography cannot fail to be surprised, astonished, indignant at the worries and mortifications that made the player's life as a theatrical manager anxious and miserable. Never was a man so tried, so ill-treated, so badgered and worried by players, authors, critics, even by those who called themselves his friends. . . . Courted and caressed by the greatest in the land on one side, he was every now and then rudely reminded that he belonged to what some were pleased to consider an inferior and despised calling, and was held fair game for persecution and insult at the hands of all sorts and conditions of men. When a member of this calling was seen to be brilliantly successful, popular, and admired, and, above all, rich and prosperous, envy filled the breasts of less prosperous persons who held themselves to be vastly superior to mere players, rage stirred up the bile of incompetent playwrights whose wretched dramas the player had dared to reject, a desire to pull down what they had set up seized hold of the more malicious part of their audience; and so the most unworthy cause, the most human infirmity, the most trivial error would be seized upon as a weapon with which to strike at the unprotected player. Fully allowing for their very venial imperfections of character, humanity has seldom displayed itself in more odious colours than in its treatment of David Garrick and Mrs. Siddons at certain periods of their careers; success was dearly bought that could bring with it such ignoble treatment, such undeserved humiliation. . . .

"Dr. Johnson's disparagement of play-acting may be allowed to pass; being short-sighted and hard of hearing, the doctor could hardly have been in a position to appreciate the full significance of what was passing on a stage; but his personal treatment of Garrick is difficult to explain on any other ground than that of rather unworthy jealousy. The friendship that Garrick had showed him in producing, to the best of his ability the Sage's unendurable tragedy of Irene was poorly repaid by the ill-natured picture Johnson drew of his friend in No. 200 of the Rambler, a number published on the very morning that Garrick, always sensitive and nervous, was to make his first appearance in a new part. The spiteful depreciation of Garrick in the character of Prospero is in no worse taste than the self-glorification of Johnson as the rugged Asper. That Johnson should have been a little envious of the wealth that was being accumulated by his old friend is natural; they had started life together; Garrick, the more energetic of the two, had outstripped the indolent Johnson in the acquisition of the good things of this world; but, as Leslie Stephen wrote, 'a grave moral philosopher has no right to look askance at the rewards which fashion lavishes upon men of lighter and less lasting merit which he professes to despise.' Johnson's depreciation of acting is ignorant and unfeeling—the utterance of a Philistine; his behaviour to Garrick, in more ways than one, grudging and ungenerous; he was not philosopher enough to accept with equanimity either the failure of his own tedious play or the success of his old schoolfellow. Throughout Johnson's life, by the side of occasional commendation of Garrick, runs a constant stream of depreciation of the man and unjust ridicule of his art.

"Smollett's conduct towards Garrick is a good specimen of the kind of treatment the actor had to endure from a celebrated man. Garrick had politely and with the usual protestations of regret, rejected a bad play of Smollett's called the Regicide. In 'Roderick Random,' the author takes his revenge by drawing a portrait of Garrick under the significant name of Mr. Marmozet; thus he writes:—

> 'It is not for the qualities of his heart that this little parasite is invited to the tables of dukes and lords, who hire cooks for his entertainment; his avarice they see not, his ingratitude they feel not, his hypocrisy accommodates itself to their humours, and is of consequence pleasing; but he is chiefly courted for his buffoonery, and will be admitted into the choicest parties for his talent of mimicking Punch and his wife Joan.'

"This attack appeared in 1748; but in 1757 we find Smollett, in his 'History of England,' lauding Garrick to the skies for his genius as an actor and the service which as a manager he had done the English stage. What had occurred in the interval to bring about this sudden change from venomous attack to glowing panegyric? Why, in January of 1757, Garrick had produced at Drury-lane a patriotic farce of Smollett's called Reprisal; or, The Tars of Old England, and paid him well for it. From that moment Smollett was his contrite friend.

"Garrick's biography teems with unpleasant experiences of this kind. He procures from Mr. Pelham the Minister, by his influence, and his influence alone, a pension for Ralph the historian; but because he will not perform Ralph's wretched plays, all gratitude is forgotten, and Ralph attacks the actor in a pamphlet in which he holds Garrick responsible for the present deplorable state of a theatre that rejects the masterpieces of Mr. Ralph. It should be added that a play of Ralph's, called The Astrologer, had been produced in 1744, and on the second night of its run the theatre had to be closed for want of an audience.

"Again, Garrick helps with money one Hiffernan, an Irish adventurer, and allows a play of his to be put on at Drury-lane; but it is so unsuccessful that it convinces everybody but the author of his utter incapacity to please an audience. Thereupon Hiffernan writes and threatens to publish what Davies described as a 'bloody libel' on the private character of Garrick. As the name of his wife was concerned in the libel, Garrick, on hearing of Hiffernan's intention, paid the blackmailer to suppress it.

"Dodsley, Hawkins, Mrs. Griffith, and many another author whose merit neither Garrick nor anybody else could perceive, vented their spleen against the manager by ascribing to all manner of unworthy motives his rejection of their plays. The case of the poet Churchill is interesting. In 1761 this very irregular clergyman woke to find himself famous by the publication of his poem the Rosciad, a dramatic review in satirical verse of all the leading actors of the day. Small wonder that its publication caused a panic among the players, for some of them were scourged cruelly, their imperfections ruthlessly exposed in cutting verses.

"With the members of his own calling Garrick paid the penalty of extraordinary success by encountering jealousy and hostility open and avowed, treacherous and clandestine; but it never amounted to much, nor very seriously disturbed his peace of mind, with one exception, and that exception Samuel Foote. This ill-natured humourist was a perpetual thorn in the side of Garrick. . . . Foote, at the Haymarket Theatre, invited the ready half-crowns of his patrons by performing pieces of his own composition, the characters in which were thinly disguised burlesques of well-known persons. Gratitude was a word unknown in the mimic's vocabulary; he might owe Garrick some hundreds of pounds, borrow his scenery, ask favours of him, place himself under all manner of obligations to the other's good nature; none of these considerations could deter him from wounding his benefactor's susceptibilities by holding him up to ridicule on the stage, scoffing behind his back at his so-called stinginess, pouring contempt on his acting and vilifying his character. Yet in the hour of his awful misfortune, when he had to defend himself against the vilest slander, Foote found no more loyal friend, no more faithful supporter, than David Garrick. . . .

"Garrick was not sufficiently straightforward and courageous in facing his enemies; he preferred to conciliate, to what he called 'finesse' with men whose ingratitude and baseness one would have wished to see him treat with the scorn and indignation they deserved; his diplomacy, on which he prided himself, only exasperated those on whom he practised it. His very good nature that made it so difficult for him to say 'No,' led him to dodge and procrastinate, until those he had not the determination to refuse were worn out and irritated. Garrick loved the notice of the great, the society of persons of rank. So did Dr. Johnson, but he had the courage to say so, whereas Garrick, in his heart delighted, would affect to be unconcerned at a royal command or a nobleman's invitation. Like many great men, he liked to be surrounded by flatterers and dependents, and as such persons are not to be found among men of superior worth, Garrick was reproached for encouraging the sycophancy of such an ignoble crew as the Kenricks, and Kellys, and Woodfalls.

"These were the great actor's failings. I have enumerated them because, without them, it is impossible to do justice to Garrick or his contemporaries; but they were failings in every sense venial and superficial, the natural imperfections of a human character. Had Garrick not been an extraordinarily successful player, an object of envy and resentment to bigoted and prejudiced minds, they would not have been so severely visited on him in his lifetime, and we should have heard less about them after his death. 'In the height of the public admiration for you,' wrote Mrs. Clive, who had acted and quarrelled with Garrick all her life, 'when you were never mentioned with any other appellation but the Garrick, the charming man, the fine fellow, the delightful creature, both by men and ladies; when they were admiring everything you did and everything you scribbled—at this time I was a living witness that they did not know, nor could they be sensible of half your perfections.' If Garrick were vain, ubiquitous, affected, economical in trifles, he was at heart good-natured, forgiving, and noble in his generosity. He gave with a lavish hand to those needy and distressed; they repaid him by treachery and ingratitude; he overlooked their trespass and gave again. No man better deserved his good fortune; no man less deserved the detraction, the envy, the malice that poisoned the cup of his happiness. He raised the dignity of the player, he improved the condition of the theatre, he was a generous and charitable man in the highest sense of the words, a devoted husband, an amiable and accomplished gentleman, in whom the vanity, the sensitiveness, the restlessness of the artist, obscured only from an unfriendly eye a heart that pitied and forgave, a hand ever ready to succour the afflicted, a gentle and a Christian spirit. Davies, who knew Garrick well, no fulsome eulogist, closes his life of the great actor with these words: 'No man of his profession had ever been so much the object of admiration; few men were ever more beloved; nor was any man better formed to adorn society, or more sincerely disposed and qualified to serve mankind, than David Garrick.'"

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

SYDNEY, JULY 9.—The only change for the last fortnight has been the going of the Royal Comic Opera Company from, and the coming of Mr. William Collier and his complete American company to, Her Majesty's Theatre. On the Quiet is a cleverly-written farce-comedy with some serious situation presaging trouble, if the dramatic inevitable is not bound to occur. Mr. Collier has a brisk method and an easy, experienced style. Robert Ridgeway is loaded up with strong lines of the American "get back" calibre, and Mr. Collier makes every one of them tell. Miss Mabel Tagliaferro is a petite comédienne with little to do but be loving and lovable. But the lady is sweet and all that the author could possibly require or demand. Two handsome actresses, Misses Grace Hansell (Phœbe Ridgeway) and Amy Stanley (the Duchess of Carbondale) are welcome in the picture. The Duke of Carbondale could not possibly have a better portrayer than Mr. Grant Stewart, and a most enjoyable parson was the Rev. Dr. Walcott as pictured by Mr. Charles Poore. The genial old Judge Ridgeway gave Mr. John Saville every opportunity for impressing the audience, and he gripped them all. The scenery, especially the capital one of the yacht cabin and deck, was good.

MR. BLAND HOLT is still running In Sight of St. Paul's at the Royal, and the pictures of English life are of absorbing interest, as is also the story, but these give way to With Flying Colours, for which Mr. John Brunton is painting some special naval scenery.

THE TIVOLI has Mr. Harry Rickards's big bill, the names including Little Cliff, the wonderful boy comedian, Leyton and Kendall, Maud Faning, Brinn, Miss Nita Leete and pictures, Larola the excruciator, George Bentley, Tom Dawson, Arthur Elliott, Blake and Granby, Irving Sayles, and others, to be added to on the 14th by Vasco, and Alexander and Bertie.

SYDNEY, JULY 17.—With Flying Colours delighted Mr. Bland Holt's many patrons at the Royal, and the romantic story will be told to full houses for some time to come. The mounting is perfect, and the rapid movement and strenuous acting give full money's worth to the onlookers and plenty of work to the participants. The full strength of Mr. Bland Holt's company is spread over the long list of characters, the chief interpreters being Miss Frances Ross, Miss Harrie Neland, Mr. Walter Baker, Mr. Albert Norman, Mr. Arthur Styan, and Mr. Charles Brown. The laughter is provided by Mr. and Mrs. Bland Holt.

"ON THE QUIET" should not need removal or replacement, but Mr. J. C. Williamson announces that the Collier Comedy Company will stage The Dictator on the 21st. To-morrow afternoon the boys of the training ship Sobraon are invited by Mr. Williamson to enjoy On the Quiet.

THE Royal Comic Opera Company had to postpone its Adelaide opening for a week owing to the threatened appendecital operation on Mr. Reginald Roberts. That has been averted, and Mr. Roberts is now on his way to join his comrades in South Australia.

THE Tivoli welcomed two new and excellent "turns" on Saturday, the 14th. Vasco, called the mad musician, proved himself anything but mad in his manipulation of a large number of musical instruments. His is a distinctly clever performance. Alexander and Bertie are powerful gymnasts, and give an attractive show. Their trapeze work is startling, but graceful and artistic. The rest of Mr. Harry Rickard's company include Little Cliff, Binn, Larola, Nita Leete, Maud Faning, and Rose Cabani.

BOSTOCK and WOMBWELL'S Circus without horses fulfils all expectations, the latest comer being Miss Freda Cuthbert, an intrepid lion tamer.

A NEW and original drama by Charles Whitterd, entitled Secrets of London Society, was produced at the Dalston Theatre, N., on Friday, August 17, for copyright purposes.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA—1850-1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

THE MOODY-MANNERS OPERA COMPANY.

In marked contrast to the music of Mozart heard on Thursday night were the two examples of the modern Italian school, Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci, performed on Friday, Aug. 17. A new-comer, Miss Enriquita Crichton, appeared as Santuzza in the first opera. It will be remembered, no doubt, that Miss Crichton achieved considerable success by her creation of the part of Ingibjora in Mr. Nicholas Gatty's remarkable opera Greysteel, and therefore much was expected in her performance of the unhappy peasant girl by the audience on Friday night, and in this they certainly were not disappointed. Miss Crichton's reading of the part contained all the characteristics of a fine actress as well as vocalist; not a point was missed in the more dramatic situations. In this respect Miss Crichton's Santuzza much resembles Madame Calvé's rendering, and the young artist could certainly not follow a better example. Mr. John Child as Turiddu sang with more freedom and intensity than on the last occasion, and Mr. Marshall Vincent made an excellent Alfio. The music of Lola was admirably sung by Miss M. Wilcocks, while Miss Arnold again appeared with success in the character of Lucia. Both chorus and orchestra were excellent, and a good account was given of the famous Intermezzo.

In Leoncavallo's Pagliacci Miss Ada Davies made her first appearance this season as Nedda. Miss Davies has a pure and pleasing soprano voice, and although slightly nervous, made a most favourable impression. As Canio Mr. Charles Carter repeated an excellent performance, giving a most dramatic rendering of the great scena "On with the Motley." Mr. William Dever was again responsible for the part of Tonio, and Mr. V. Brodo for Beppo; while Mr. Lewys James made the most of the small part of Silvio. The chorus was again most effective, and Signor Sapio, who conducted both operas, secured good results from the orchestra.

Last Saturday evening Wagner's Lohengrin attracted a large audience. In many respects the cast was the same as on a former occasion, Madame Fanny Moody making a sympathetic Elsa, and Miss Toni Seiter a dramatic Ortrud. Mr. Joseph O'Mara proved a capital Lohengrin; he has sung this part before in the present season, but not to Madame Moody's Elsa, and this constituted a most attractive feature of Saturday's performance. Mr. Charles Manners again made a most dignified king, and Mr. Lewys James a manly Telramund. Great earnestness and intelligence marked the representation, which warmly deserved the frequent and hearty applause. Herr Richard Eckhold conducted, and at the conclusion was called on with the principal artists.

In the afternoon, at the matinée, Lucia di Lammermoor was given, Madame De Vere repeating her excellent embodiment of the unhappy Lucy Ashton with the same success as on the first performance, the principal change in the cast being a fresh Edgar in the person of Mr. Wilson Pembroke, who sang the music of the part admirably. Mr. Magrath appeared as Bide the Bent, and the rest of the cast was adequately filled.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held last Tuesday; there were present Mr. M. R. Morand (in the chair), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Mesdames Carlotta Addison, Kate Bishop, Beatrice Lamb, Kate Phillips, and Saba Raleigh, and Messrs. Cecil Barth, Burton Cooke, F. Cremlin, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Walter Russell, Spencer Trevor, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). The Hon. Solicitors reported that they had written a letter for a member making a claim for monies owing, and they had also advised a member upon a point submitted. Helena May Parsons was nominated for election.

The secretary reported that the first of the series of provincial meetings, which it is hoped will be convened by commissioners while on tour, was held at the Theatre Royal, Newcastle-on-Tyne, on the 16th inst., when Mr. H. B. Irving, a vice-president of the Association, took the chair. The Secretary stated that he had sent the following telegram to Mr. Irving on the occasion: "Please accept thanks for your kindness in presiding at the initial meeting, and also thank Miss Georgina Hamilton for inaugurating the series which will, I trust, result in great and lasting benefits to the Actors' Association.—Charles Cruikshanks, Secretary." The Council desired the Secretary to express their personal thanks to Mr. H. B. Irving and Miss Georgina Hamilton, and to congratulate them upon the result of their efforts.

The chairman read a letter from the president of the Actors' Benevolent Fund of South Africa, in which Mr. James Nelson was exonerated from all blame that may have been attached to him in connection with the engagement of artists, inasmuch as he was not financially responsible.

In connection with the meeting of the members to consider the questions involved in the proposed "Irving Memorial," the Secretary reported that he had, since the date of the last meeting, received letters on the subject from Miss Ellen Terry and Mr. F. R. Benson, Vice-Presidents of the A.A. Mr. Arthur Collins had graciously placed the saloon of the Drury Lane Theatre at the disposal of the Council, and the meeting would therefore be held at that place on Monday, Oct. 1, at 11 o'clock.

The secretary announced that the fifth bi-monthy meeting of the members would be held in the saloon of the Association on Thursday, Sept. 13, at 2.30, when Miss Beatrice Lamb would address the assemblage. The Secretary announced that he had, by direction of the Finance and General Purposes Committee, circularised the members of the Association whose subscriptions for the current year were unpaid, with the exception of those ladies and gentlemen who were abroad fulfilling engagements. Percy Northcote, Esq., M.B., M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., 101, Jermyn-street, St. James's, was elected as an Honorary Medical Officer to the Association. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Craigie, which took place on the 18th inst., was attended by a distinguished assembly. A solemn High Requiem Mass was celebrated at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Farm-street, at which the American Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid were present. The crowded congregation also included Miss Ellen Terry, Mrs. T. P. O'Connor, and Mrs. W. K. Clifford. The coffin, which had lain throughout beneath a pall and surrounded by wreaths, was subsequently conveyed to St. Mary's Cemetery, Kensal Green, where the Right Rev. Monsignor Brown, Vicar-General of Southwark, officiated at the burial service. The coffin bore the inscription: "Pearl Mary Teresa Craigie. Born Chelsea, Mass., U.S., Nov. 3rd, 1867. Died London, Aug. 13th, 1906. R.I.P." Among the numerous floral offerings were wreaths from Lady Bancroft, Mr. George Alexander, Captain Robert Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bourchier, and the O.P. Club.

Mr. George Alexander, writing from the Engadine, has corrected the statement in a daily paper with regard to the late dramatist's play of The Ambassador, which he produced at the St. James's in 1898. Mr. Alexander writes:—"Will you permit me to say that Mrs. Craigie's play, The Ambassador, was received with unqualified praise by the entire Press and public, and gained much 'more than moderate applause'? It enjoyed a remarkable and highly lucrative run of over 200 performances at the St. James's Theatre, and was played by me with great success in the principal cities of the United Kingdom."

SWALLOW.—In loving memory of William Charles Swallow, who departed this life Aug. 23, 1900. Never forgotten by his loving mother, sisters, and brothers.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. Evan Good, for so many years our correspondent at Newcastle and Gateshead, has been appointed assistant manager at the Pavilion Theatre, Glasgow. Before taking up his departure, he was the recipient of a handsome silver cigarette case from the members of the North Durham Rugby F.C., of which club Mr. Good was an enthusiastic member.

MR. GEORGE DANCE'S company is this week making a welcome re-appearance at the Grand Theatre, Southampton, in The Duchess of Dantzic, Miss May Glenn being conspicuously successful in the title-rôle. Mr. Steve Fitzgerald is exceedingly humorous as Papillon, and is responsible for the excellent stage-management. Mr. Gilbert Yorke gives a good study of Napoleon; and Miss Buena Bent plays prettily as Lisette. The chorus is excellent.

HOW TO KEEP COOL.

We strongly recommend all who suffer from the prevailing heat to add a few drops of Condy's Fluid to the Daily Bath or Foot Bath.

A Condy's Fluid Bath imparts a delightful sensation of Coolness, Freshness, and Purity. It invigorates the body and braces the nerves. The Cooling, Strengthening, and Bracing effects are Simply Magical, they are so very lasting.

Sold by all Chemists, 1/- 8oz., 2oz. 2/- Caution.—Insist on having "Condy's Fluid."

"THE ERA" LETTER-BOX.

A Stamped Envelope, plainly addressed, must be enclosed with application for each Letter. Letters, after lying at this Office for One Month, are forwarded to the Postal Authorities, to be returned to the Senders.

A NEW play, by Frank Adair, called Held Apart, will be produced by Mr. A. Clifton Alderson at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham, on Monday, and will subsequently go on tour. The piece will be elaborately mounted. Great pains have been taken in selecting a first-class company.

PRESENTATION.—At the St. James's Theatre, Manchester, on the 15th inst., owing to the great success of An Actor's Romance, Miss Lillian Beszant and Miss Florence Nelson were presented with huge shower bouquets, and a large box of chocolates to little Marion Ryder, who scored a great success in the child part of Phillis Davenport.

ONE night last week at Mexborough during the scene in £1000 Reward, in which Detective Rainsworth threatens to annihilate his enemies by means of a bomb, which finally turns out to be only an indiarubber ball, the town supply of electric light failed, leaving the Prince of Wales's Theatre in darkness. The scene was continued in an impressive half light supplied by occasional candles, for about a quarter of an hour, when the current was restored, but the incident served to emphasise the good temper of a crowded audience who were palpably in a mood to make allowance for far more disastrous occurrences, such was their enjoyment of the drama. The success of the piece may be gauged by the fact that over 30 dozen photo postcards of Miss Halling, who plays Madam Sanson, were sold in front of the house during the week.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Almanack and Annual ("Era" Office, 1s.), a copy of which lies before me, is an invaluable publication for those who wish to have stage records by them. It contains a dramatic and musical calendar, lists of new plays and important revivals produced at the London and suburban theatres during 1905, and also of plays produced in the provinces. Further, we have lists of the new plays and revivals produced at the principal Paris and Berlin theatres. "The Era" Almanack has been regularly issued since 1868, when is was compiled by Edward Laman Blanchard, a comedian whose fascinating life was recorded by Clement Scott. The Almanack closes with an illustrated list of those members of the profession who died during the course of last year, headed, naturally, by Henry Irving. Amongst the other names are those of William Rignold, Frank Celli, Ada Neilson, and Minnie Mario. There is an added pathos in the deaths of those who were so long bodily before the public, and the ringing down of the last curtain seems to have added significance.—T. P.'s Weekly, Jan. 26.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, AUGUST 25, 1906.

OLD AND NEW BURLESQUE.

Though Aladdin is to be the next novelty at the Gaiety Theatre, and the entertainment will be denominated a "burlesque," we must expect to find it considerably different from the old Gaiety burlesques, both in conception and detail. The fact is, no one can say exactly what a "burlesque" is. The title covers a great deal of ground, from BEAUMONT and FLETCHER'S Knight of the Burning Pestle, which burlesqued the romances of chivalry, down to the later Gaiety burlesques, the chief features of which were the extraordinary achievements of the leading artists, and the immense amount of "gag" and business which they introduced.

The essential property of a genuine burlesque is that it turns a serious idea into ridicule by associating it with absurdities. In The Knight of the Burning Pestle, produced in 1611, the hero, Ralph, a grocer's apprentice, turns knight-errant, like Don Quixote, and thus travesties the romances of chivalry. FIELDING'S Tom Thumb is a burlesque tragedy, in which not only the spirit, but the blank verse vehicle is ridiculed. The same line was taken by PLANCHE in his very literary and long since "old-fashioned" works. From 1831 to 1865 was the PLANCHE period; between 1865 and 1885 flourished F. C. BURNAND, H. J. BYRON, and ROBERT REECE. We can hardly class Mr. W. S. GILBERT amongst the burlesque writers. The 1865-1885 burlesque was a more or less mechanical product; and Mr. GILBERT'S travesties of Elisir d'Amore, Fille du Regiment, Bohemian Girl, Norma, and Robert le Diable were merely clever exercises which were to prepare the great Savoyard for the subtler and more intellectual humours of his librettoes. But the trio above mentioned were practised workmen who "turned out" burlesques of any serious theme by a process which was more or less fixed and mechanical. The plot of any well-known play was taken, and retold, with comic characters in the place of the originals, rhymed verse, embellished with puns, instead of dialogue, and the whole interspersed with lyrics sung to the popular music-hall airs of the day. The 1865 to 1885 burlesque period owed a great deal indeed to comic song-tunes.

The explanation of the popularity of the '65-'85 burlesque is to be found in the craving which exists at all times in a large majority of playgoers for an entertainment which is sufficiently disconnected not to make it necessary to follow a "story," and simply aims at supplying diversion—in short, a variety entertainment thinly disguised in the dramatic form. At the commencement, burlesque was refined, "scholarly," and literary. Next, it broadened, and became more "popular." And then we come to the period when the author's work was insignificant, compared to that supplied by the leading artists.

The phenomena of public favour are inexplicable. How can we account for the fact that people of the same nationality successively adored and subsequently scorned (1) the refined literary burlesques of the PLANCHE period, and (2) the pun-flavoured absurdities of the succeeding epoch? Here are some lines from a burlesque of the pun period:

A river! I debate with myself wedder
I'll end my tale with a sensation header
From a small boat. It could not clear the weeds;
One cannot make an oar way through these s(weeds).
Why should I live? Alas, from me forlorn
Each lad turns on his heel to show his (s) corn.

Here very alert and watchful attention is needed, or else the precious gems with which the verse is studded will be lost. It seems incredible to us at the present day that whole auditoriums-full of average playgoers could be found sufficiently ardent in pun-detection to derive delight from such lines as the above. But we have to remember that it was not on its "literary merit" alone that the burlesque of the Middle Period depended. It was, even then, mainly a "question of artists." When BURNAND'S Black-Eyed Susan was produced in 1866 at the Royalty, with FRED DEWAR as Captain Crosstree, CHARLES WYNDHAM as a Deal smuggler, Miss OLIVER as Susan, Miss NELLIE BROMLEY as Dolly Mayflower, and E. DANVERS as Dame Hatley, the personal element was already a strong factor of the success of a burlesque. In the cast of BROUGH'S Perdita at the Lyceum in 1856 we find included such artists as Miss MARIE WILTON and Mr. J. L. TOOLE; and the names of CHIPPENDALE, COMPTON, C. COGHLAN, and KATE TERRY appear on the Haymarket bills of burlesque about the same period. Burlesque had the advantage of being pretty much a "go-as-you-please" entertainment. Individual attraction, the magnetism of natural drollery, high spirits, personal comeliness, and dancing and singing ability, made a direct appeal to the audience, even though the personal appeal was trammelled to a certain extent by the literary pretension of the author's lines. As time went on the pun fell into disrepute, and the onus of amusement rested chiefly upon the artists. Who that saw Little Jack Sheppard at the Gaiety remembers anything of the "book"? All our recollections are of FRED LESLIE, NELLIE FARREN, and DAVID JAMES. It was not that the pieces were not cleverly written—"RICHARD HENRY'S" Monte Cristo, Junior, was a proof to the contrary—but it had become the fashion to place most importance on the "creations," the "business," and the songs and dances of the principals. And the same may be said of Messrs. SIMS and PETTITT'S Faust Up to Date, with Mr. E. J. LONNEN'S Mephistopheles and Miss FLORENCE ST. JOHN'S Marguerite, though, by the way, the book contained some very well concocted puns. With the advent of "ADRIAN ROSS" as a collaborator with Mr. J. L. SHINE in Joan of Arc, produced at the Opéra Comique in 1891, we approach the era of the musical play. Ruy Blas, Guy Fawkes, Esq., and Cinder-Ellen Up Too Late were to carry on the tradition for a time; but burlesque was on its last legs, and, with the departure from the scene of the popular idols who had kept it going it subsided for all practical purposes, attempted revivals being only moderately successful. We may be certain that Mr. GEORGE EDWARDES'S Aladdin will be written and arranged to suit the taste of the times, and will be "up to date" in the exact sense of the term.

MISS DOT STEPHENS' SAD CASE.

Miss Doris Stephens, best known in the professional world as Dot Stephens, a very clever vocalist and dancer, met with a terrible accident late on the Saturday night of June 30. She had fulfilled an engagement at H.M. Theatre of Varieties at Walsall, and left the same night to go to Glasgow, where she was to have appeared the following week. On reaching Wolverhampton she had to wait some time to join the midnight mail on the London and North-Western line, and there met some professional friends. She went to the Hippodrome, Wolverhampton, and was afterwards accompanied to the High Level Station by a gentleman, who secured her a seat in a second-class compartment, and saw that the door on the platform side was properly fastened before the train started. On arrival at Stafford the door on the offside was found to be open and the compartment empty. There was a quantity of luggage on the racks and seats, and as there appeared to have been an accident a light engine was at once despatched up the line to search the track. On reaching Fordhouses, about three miles from Wolverhampton, the unfortunate young lady was found lying in the six foot way in an unconscious state, and terribly injured. She was conveyed to the Wolverhampton station, and thence to the General Hospital. She was found to be seriously lacerated about the head and body. On Sunday afternoon she had recovered consciousness, but had no recollection of how the accident occurred. It is supposed that she was under the impression that she was travelling in a corridor car, and on opening the door fell to the ground. Asked how she could account for the accident, Miss Stephens remarked, "The railway carriage was stuffy, and I went to open the window. After that I recollect nothing more till I regained consciousness in the hospital."

Miss Stephens was a clever vocalist, dancer, and actress, and first appeared with Mr. Bannister Howard as the Salvation Army lass in The Belle of New York, remaining with the company three years. She then joined Mr. George Dance for the part of Mrs. Pineapple in A Chinese Honeymoon and afterwards Mr. C. P. Levilly, understudying Miss Stella Gastelle as Alesia in La Poupée, a part she subsequently played, and was to resume in the autumn in Mr Herbert Ralland's company, lately on tour.

It is intended to purchase an annuity for Miss Stephens, whose terrible misfortune has already excited the greatest commiseration.

So sad a case has rarely, if ever, been brought before the dramatic and musical profession, whose record abounds in deeds of charity. The name of Miss Stephens is now to be added to the already full scroll of benevolent actions.

All subscriptions will be duly acknowledged in these columns. Subscriptions may be sent to Mr. J. Bannister Howard, Hon. (FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, AUG. 23.—A cordial reception was accorded to this piece, adapted from the French by an unmentioned author. It is not particularly original, and its four acts are a trifle too spun out, but it serves to pass an evening in a dearth of novelties, and our city being full of tourists at the present moment it will no doubt enjoy a certain measure of popularity. The plot is narrated in a few words. Claude Latournelle, the hero, has been the sport of woman and her willing slave from boyhood to ripe middle-age. He cannot resist any single member of the fair sex, and finds himself in the dilemma of choosing between the girl he loves and wants to marry and the mistress he loves and is loath to part from. He marries Hugnette finally, but his old weaknesses overmaster him, and the marriage later on is dissolved. After many misunderstandings and complications, the wedded pair become reconciled again, Claude swearing to turn over a new leaf. The dialogue is bright and at times witty, which atones for paucity of plot and several exaggerations. As to the acting, it was capital, Berlin's old favourite, Harry Walden, taking the chief rôle, while his pretty wife—formerly a member of the Residenz Theatre under the name of Frieda Wagen—gave the part of Margot. Fräulein Wendt gave the rôle of Hugnette with much natural drollery, gaining a good deal of well-earned applause.

THREE one-act farces from the French were produced at the Kleines Theatre on its recent re-opening, Courteline's Mimensiege and Das Trottoir Roulant, both translated by Siegfried Triebitsch, and La Chance de Mari, by MM. De Flers and De Caillavet, adapted under the name of Diplomatie in der Ehe, by Gertrud Leow. All three failed somewhat in their desired effect, the audience of the Kleines being accustomed to heavier diet—witness the enormously long run of Gorki's Nachtasgl on that stage. The second-mentioned piece made the greatest hit. It was given here some ten years ago with success, and being well and vivaciously acted, it was heartily applauded on its second appearance also.

AN interesting experiment was the season of the Italian Children's Company, under the management of Professor Guerra, who, I am told, runs the undertaking purely on the grounds of philanthropy. The whole company comprises nearly thirty children, in age from ten to fifteen, and, being natural artists, the effect is as pretty as it is quaint. Whether the voices will be able to stand the strain put upon them is another matter. The opening performance was that of Il Barbier di Sevillia, in which a certain little Signorina Lewi (on one side she has obviously German blood) made a sensation as Rosina. With all her fifteen years she is a thorough artist to her finger tips, and her voice and the management of it astonished her hearers. Several other operatic works were given during the season of these clever juveniles, but The Barber remained the most popular.

THE Residenz re-opened on Saturday with a revival of Hennequin and Bilhaud's successful farce Die Höhle des Loewen. Herr Alexander, the manager, and Berlin's favourite comedian, gave his own clever and highly humorous rendering of Gaston, gaining the customary storm of applause. The theatre, by the way, has been painted and otherwise beautified throughout during the holidays. The new season will bring many novelties and a few important changes and additions with it. Among the new theatres the one of most consequence in the Neue Schauspielhaus, of which imposing building in Nollendorf Platz, W., I have already written. We watch its rapid progress with interest; it is to be completed in several months, and the Mozart Hall—the concert-room which is part of the comprehensive structure—will be ready for opening by October. Fine in and out-door restaurants are also adjoining, all the features being in the same handsome style. Herr Haim, the manager of the Neue Schauspielhaus, has got together a thoroughly efficient company, among whom are some of Berlin's first artists. He himself is an actor of merit and an experienced and popular manager.

AT the new Royal Opera (Krolls) Frau Metzger-Froitzheim commenced a season. Her initial performance was that of Carmen—a rôle which suits her beautiful voice to perfection. The rendering was artistic in every point down to the smallest detail, and well deserved the applause it met with. Herr Kunwald conducted in his customary able manner, but he had the utmost difficulty to cover the deficiencies of the inadequate chorus.

THE Royal Opera opened last week after the usual summer holidays of eight weeks' duration. For the opening performance Wagner's Rheingold had been selected—a scarcely judicious choice, several of the cast being obviously unused to harness. Herr von Strauss conducted, and had all his work cut out for him. That the house was well filled and that the audience were enthusiastic are facts that go without saying, especially when it is borne in mind that a large percentage of seats in our Royal theatres is filled by non-payers, Government and Court officials.

A GREAT and well-merited success was achieved by the recent revival of Goldmark's delightful little opera Das Herinchen aur Herc (the Cricket on the Hearth) at the New Royal Opera. Dr. Kunwald was compelled to repeat several of the numbers, and the house was closely packed with most appreciative listeners. The effective tableaux at the end did not fail to make their usual impression, being extremely well set.

HERR LEO BLECH has been engaged as one of the conductors at the Royal Opera. He is, in the nature of things, a good musician all round, and has already made a name as composer of light opera. Blech's pretty little one-act work Das war ich was produced with decided success at the Royal Dresden and Berlin Opera Houses two seasons ago—being at the time fully detailed in your columns—and Alpenkönig und Menschenfeind (a fairy opera of taking melodies and skilful instrumentation) ran at the New Royal Opera for some time.

COUNTESS PROKESCH—a famous actress better known under her maiden name of Frederike Gossmann—died very suddenly at Gnumden last week. She was well known and much esteemed both in Berlin and Vienna.

AT Marlborough-street Police-court on Tuesday, Mr. Helmsley, of the St. James's Theatre, applied on behalf of Mr. George Alexander for the renewal of a licence permitting Miss Byrne, aged 12, to continue as understudy to Miss Iris Hawkins, playing in His House in Order. There being no objection on the part of the police, Mr. Denman renewed the licence.

"SEASHELL," a pretty song by H. E. Pether and Percy Edgar, has been in very great request at Douglas, thanks to the delightful rendering by Miss Mabel La Blanche.

THE LONDON HIPPODROME.

Room has been found at the Hippodrome this week for the infusion of a number of fresh turns into a programme already well stocked with talent. A place of the first importance must be given to a Russian equestrian named Gudzow, who submits a series of thrilling feats of horsemanship. He assumes all sorts of positions on the back of his steed, picking up pieces of paper with the greatest ease while careering round the ring at an excessive speed. Later he attaches his foot to the stirrup, and falling from his horse is dragged along the ground round and round the ring, the impression he creates upon an audience accustomed to exciting scenes being a distinctly sensational one. How he manages to escape the hoofs of his galloping horse and to return uninjured to his saddle is a mystery which lovers of the hunting-field would find it invaluable to solve.

The Leamy Troupe of gymnasts go through some new evolutions on the trapeze and flying rings, each lady performing feats of muscular skill and intrepidity, while another fair member of the troupe varies the proceedings by making ascents by means of a rope to the dome of the building, descending with graceful ease and deliberation. All their feats are warmly cheered, special favour being shown towards the skill with which one of the ladies hanging by her teeth to a rope held in the same manner by her partner revolves with bewildering rapidity.

A return is this week made of the Willé Brothers, whose balancing feats prove as exciting as ever, the audience being thrilled with admiration as the intrepid performer assumes all sorts of positions on his precarious perch. A ladder is also brought into requisition, at the apex of which the daring artist holds himself up on one hand, while the ladder is sustained on the foot of the bearer, to whose skill in equipoise much of the credit of the performance belongs. Abdullah's Arabs have a fine field for their diversions in the arena of the handsome house, and their ground tumbling and pyramid building are very invigorating. Each performer has his own special accomplishment in the way of handsprings and somersaults, and is greeted with loud cries, either of encouragement or otherwise, by his comrades. The pyramid building of the troupe is as graceful as of yore, and the way in which one stalwart member of the band bears up no less than nine of his companions in picturesque array is wonderful.

The monkey tribe is adequately represented on the stage, where Galletti's marvellous apes enact a number of episodes distinguished by rich comicality. The fun begins as soon as a couple of combative monkeys enter in a hansom cab drawn by a dog, and grows very hilarious when the animals are persuaded to extract the tune of "The Old Folks at Home" from a number of bells, the intervals of which are relieved by the pranks of the players, who engage in a set-to on the slightest provocation. A sulky race with similarly droll interludes is also indulged in, and the representation of a hairdresser's, in which the customer is subjected to all kinds of indignities, ends with both the barber and his client removing their coats preparatory to a prospective encounter. The animals act apparently without any promptings from their trainer, who is heartily to be congratulated upon the way in which he has developed the sense of humour in his sagacious pets. Another new arrival is found in the Althoffs, who elicit roars of laughter for their comical act, while their trio at the end, in which cornets and trombone figure, is effectively played.

Continued success attends the efforts at merry-making on the part of the Harmony Four, whose eccentricities are welded with melody in a manner which is well appreciated, and Buddha's Blackboard remains to excite feelings of the utmost wonderment, admiration being also created for the witty replies that appear on the mystic panel. The Kauffman Troupe of lady cyclists continue to wheel their graceful way and perform rare feats of skill and daring; the Sisters Klos exhibit cleverness on prettily-decorated flying rings; Mlle. Doris is seen again in her finished act on horseback; Mr. Alf. Daniels provides a most amusing interlude; the American Bioscope numbers exquisitely coloured views of Japan rapids among its various films; and the bill is also contributed to by the Jack Theo Trio, equilibrists; and Lavater Lee and mule. The Flood retains its place at the end of the programme and is a source of exhilaration and wonderment. Mr. Colin Hazlewood now plays the part of the lively Wilkins in a droll fashion, and Mr. Hal Forde invests the bridegroom with an agreeably light touch that ingratiates him in favour. Miss Simeta Marsden has sufficient to do in the part of the heroine to reveal a musical voice and considerable dramatic attainments; Mr. Cecil Morton York is the "heavy villain" to the life, and Miss Aimee Roberts and Mr. J. Windham Guise contribute creditably to the incidental portion of the sketch, of which the country dance by Tiller's Eight Snowdrops is a pleasing feature. The representation of the rushing torrent is terribly realistic, and concludes one of the most remarkable productions with which Mr. Frank Parker has ever been associated. The elaborate programme of music rendered by the Hippodrome Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Clarence C. Corri is bright and agreeable throughout, and is invaluable to the effect of the various acts.

MR. HARRY BRETT, who is again touring with Mr. Albert Chevalier, is experiencing much gratification in the success of his latest song, entitled "I haven't the time to spare," which is written and composed by himself. Mr. Brett is the author of "Our 'Armonic Club."

THE following gentlemen were initiated into the mysteries of the Terriers' Association recently:—Albert De Breen, of "The De Breens," John Lloyd Thomas, of "The Harmony Four," and Frank Keegan, comedy cyclist. Terrier George Preston presided.

CHARLES SMITH, 20, Herbert Holmes, 19, and John Dyer, 16, were charged on Monday with assaulting the police. Police-sergeant 10 E stated that on Saturday night he was called to quell a disturbance in the gallery of the Middlesex. He found the prisoners and several others shouting and swearing, and when he endeavoured to restore order he was attacked by about a dozen of them. He attempted to arrest Holmes, who struck him in the right eye, and two or three others whom he caught hold of were dragged away. Finally he arrested Smith, whereupon Dyer made a running kick at him, which he only avoided by releasing Smith and jumping down some stairs. He next took Dyer into custody, and succeeded in getting him to the station. Holmes and Smith were afterwards brought in by other officers, and the former said, "If I am fined there is plenty of money in the gang to pay." Police-constable 244 E stated that on the way to the station Holmes tripped him up, and struck him in the face. He then ran away, but was stopped by another officer. Mr. J. L. Graydon, the proprietor of the Middlesex, said the prisoners were a constant terror to the place, and they had been refused admission over and over again. There was a terrible scene outside the house on Saturday night, and the witness had to send a messenger in a cab for police assistance. Holmes was sentenced to two months' hard labour, and Smith and Dyer to one month each.

A PANTOMIMIST'S STORY.

The late Mr. David James used to tell a capital story, a bit of Whitechapel romance, about one Garente, a famous pantomimist, and Harry Carles, a clown, which Mr. J. L. Hatton repeats in his most interesting reminiscences of the late Mr. J. L. Toole.

"Old Garente," as they called him, was a famous East-end pantomimist, and a friend of Harry Carles, the well-known English clown, who had settled in Italy.

"Garente had taken several English pantomimists as attractions on his Continental tours. Among them was a certain East Ender, who on his return related to his admiring friends many strange and curious adventures. He had the gift of imagination, and his hearers mostly had every desire to assist him in making his points. In a Whitechapel smoke-room, favoured by a select and regular company, he had a chair of his own, and was always willing to narrate his continental experiences, and his friends were never tired of listening to them. There was one story in particular which they more especially enjoyed. They always drew him promptly for this for the benefit of any new friend, and however often he related it they never called it old, and the prologue of the draw was often in itself amusing enough.

"One of the company would remark: 'You know Italy, mate?'

"'Rarther!' he would answer.

"'Wonderful country?'

"'I should think it was!'

"'You were there with old Garente?'

"'I was, mate;' and so on, until at last some other drawer would ask, 'Did you ever cross the Alps?'

"'Did I ever what?"

"'Cross the Alps?'

"'Why, it was a-crossing the Arlps as me and Garente had the 'otiest adventure of all as occurred to us.'

"'Tell us about it,' the questioner would say in a spirit of inquiry, as if he had not heard the story a hundred times. Then the pantomimist would remove his pipe from his lips and relate his affair with the bandits.

"'We had had good business,' he would say, 'very good business, and old Garente stuck to the bag—oh, he was the dooce to stick to the bag, old Garente! He always carried his money in a bag and never parted with it—a closish chap, like all them furriners, never wasted a coin on extra drinks, nor nothing in the way of good fellowship! Well, we was a-going along all right, a-crossing the Arlps, when all of a suddent we thought we hears military music. We stops and listens, and old Garente, he becomes most uncomfortable, a-listening with all his might. We all listens likewise, and we hears far off in the distance the sound of a band, paying a regular bandit's march, the sort of music as you've all heard no doubt at old Drury in Timour the Tartar, a regular bandit's march—Taratar, taratar taratara thrum, thrum. Thrum! Taratar, taratar, taratar, tarata! Sshsh—sshsh. Thrum!' (imitating the well-known march from Timour, cymbals, drums, and the rest). 'We was not listenin' more than ten minutes when they comes round a bend of the Arlps, a reg'lar army, all a-glittering on prancing 'osses, with flags and banners a-waving, and in front a band of at least fifty performers, with silver trumpets, and cymbals, and side-drums, and the entire rig out. It was a grand sight, in them spotless mountains, the 'osses a-prancin', and all of 'em with saddle-cloths embroidered with gold and silver, and the army a-comin' on behind the band, with sabres a-flashin' in the sun, and marchin' orderly as if they was Hinglish 'Orse Guards, but, of course, differently dressed—turbans and simytars, and gold lace, and jewels on the bridles of the 'osses; and, well there, such a turn-out as would have been a honour to any country, and to tell you the truth, Timour the Tartar weren't in it with 'em, grand as Timour were when I see it in its glory. And the band comes blazing on, in all its splendour—Taratar, taratar taratara, thrum, thrum. Thrum! Taratar, taratar, taratar—taratar taratar! Sshsh, sshsh. Thrum! Old Garente says, "Hide, boys, hide," says he. He knowed what they was, and what we'd got to expect. Well, we hides like a shot, we vamooches behind a rock; but the heagle eyes of them bandits, they was on us, make no mistake, they'd been on us no doubt all the time; and they dooced soon 'auls us out. "Halt! halt!" says the chief, first in Italian, and then in Hinglish. "Right about," he says. "Forward for the bandit's cave!" And they turns, and off we was marched, the band a-playin' as before, and old Garente a-trying to hide the bag under his cloak, but it weren't no go; besides, what was the good of the bag when our lives weren't worth a hour's purchase? Well, at larst we come to the bandit's cave.'

"Here one of the listeners would ask what sort of a cave it was; the narrator expected questions, and was always prepared for them.

"'Oh, the regler thing,' he would say, 'the regular bandit's cave—blood and bones and all that sort of thing about—Turkey carpets, silver shields, drinking cups, and gold tables—the regler thing! We was in a pretty funk, I can tell you, when all of a sudden Garente's brother, who'd been a-hyeing the bandit-chief a long time—and I'd begun to notice it—all of a sudden he looks the chief in the eye, turns a flip-flap, and shouts, "Oh! here we are! Why, its Harry Carles!" And blest if it won't. It was Harry Carles, the clown as had guv' up the show business and settled down into a bandit chief; and here he was with all his army, on the march! Well, I needn't say as they not only spared our lives, but they was awful good to old Garente as an old pal of the chief's; they let him keep his bag; and what is more, a lot of 'em dismounts and they puts us on their 'osses, and marches off—Taratar, taratar taratar, thrum, thrum. Thrum! Taratar, taratar, taratar—taratar taratar! Sshsh, sshsh. Thrum! right to the bandit's palace, where they entertained us. Well, I fails for language to tell you how they entertained us. Every kind of luxury, champagne—well, we could have swum in it if we'd wanted—dancing girls with coins a-hung round their necks, and Turkish trousers above their ankles, and Lord! such eyes they had! And it was more like a dream than anything earthly; and as for the palace in a general way, the palace of Timour the Tartar was a fool to it.'"

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The following abridged description is specially drawn for The Era by Messrs. Hughes and Young, patent agents, 55-56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all matters relating to the patenting of inventions:—

6917.—Emergency-exit fastenings. Patentee, W. H. Tonks, 201, Moseley-street, Birmingham. This invention relates to one end of a crush-bar which is pivotally connected to a knob formed with the double bevel pinion on its inner end and capable of angular rotation in a horizontal plane about the axis of the pinion. Pressure on the crush-bar rotates the pinion, and, through the toothed levers, withdraws the bolts. The lower bolt is made heavier than the upper so as to cause the bolts to return automatically to locking position. In a modification the knob is made to slide inwards, its upper portion being provided with teeth for operating the bolts. Rollers are provided for limiting the outward movement and to prevent unbolting from the outside.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Miss Marie Tempest has accepted for a limited period an engagement at the Palace Theatre, where she will "fill in" prior to her appearance in Mr. Alfred Sutro's new piece, specially written for her, and to be produced by Mr. Charles Frohman. By this engagement Mr. Butt adds another distinguished theatrical name to the long list of those who have appeared on the boards of the beautiful house in Shaftesbury-avenue, including Mrs. Tree, Mr. Charles Warner, Mr. Lal Brough, Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. Harry Paulton, and Mrs. Brown Potter. Miss Tempest will appear about the middle of September, and will sing four numbers—two accompanied by the orchestra and two at the piano.

Mr. E. A. Pickering, who was a few years ago a very popular acting-manager at the Alhambra with Mr. Dundas Slater, has resigned his position as manager of the Tivoli, Cape Town, and it is understood has accepted an appointment under Mr. Alfred Butt at the Palace Theatre. Mr. Pickering is now on the voyage home.

Mr. and Mrs. William Francis and Mr. and Mrs. David Day left Euston at noon yesterday (Friday) for Liverpool, there to embark on the White Star liner Celtic, bound for New York. The members of the party will be absent about four weeks. Their visit will partake largely of the nature of a family re-union, and will give them an opportunity of congratulating their sons on the rapid strides made by the firm in the United States. Both Mr. Fred Day and Mr. William Francis fils will be afforded some relaxation from the strenuous labours connected therewith.

There will be a private view of the Empire, Camberwell (the converted Metropole Theatre) on Wednesday afternoon next, when Mr. Jesse Sparrow, the managing-director of the syndicate that have acquired the house, will welcome a large number of professional friends and the Press. It has been generally stated that the Metropole was the first of the suburban theatres. This is not the case, both the Lyric, Hammersmith, and the Grand, Islington, preceding it by a number of years.

Mr. Arthur L. Edwards, who has been appointed assistant-manager and treasurer at the Oxford, has had a large and varied experience as an entertainer, both on the concert and operatic stage. He was very popular in Australia and New Zealand before he set sail for this country in 1901. "Down under," he played several of the tenor rôles in Gilbert and Sullivan operas, and sang both at concerts and oratorios. On his arrival in London he found much favour on the concert platform, where his artistic singing gave considerable pleasure.

One day during their summer vacation Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant were seated in a summer-house in an old-fashioned garden when they saw coming towards them a very curious creature. In the distance it seemed to be a man with the head of an animal. "What on earth is this?" asked Maskelyne. "Perhaps it's a daylight ghost," suggested Mr. Devant. An explanation was soon forthcoming. A Midsummer Night's Dream was being performed by some pastoral players in the adjoining grounds, and Bottom had lost his way. The incident gave the two magicians an idea for a new and bewildering play, in which there is a summer-house haunted by several ghosts, who appear and disappear even when they are surrounded by members of the audience. The play, which will be produced at St. George's Hall on Sept. 3, is appropriately entitled Daylight Ghosts.

Mr. and Mrs. Bransby Williams were sitting in the stalls enjoying the entertainment at the Tivoli on Monday, when the well-known and popular impersonator of characters from the novels of Charles Dickens was appealed to by the management to get them out of a difficulty. Mr. Harry Lauder's sudden indisposition prevented his appearance, and though Mr. Whit Cunliffe had been secured in his place, that favourite comic singer could only give seven minutes of his time. As Mr. Lauder's turn occupies twenty minutes a hiatus was threatened; but the timely aid of Mr. Bransby Williams prevented this. The young actor gave several imitations of stars of the legitimate, and his selections included Mr. Beerbohm Tree, who was in a private box, and highly appreciated the mimicry of himself.

The effect of the passing of the long-delayed Copyright Bill is noticed by the activity on the part of the music publishers. M. Witmark and Sons have been holding back their special "plums" and novelties pending the efforts for protection of their property. Now that the much-desired Bill has passed they are bringing out their latest American hits, and have some decided novelty songs to offer to their professional friends.

Miss Rachel Lowe had a narrow escape from what might have been a very serious accident in Wolverhampton on Tuesday. As she was crossing a street she was run into by a bicyclist and thrown nearly under the wheels of an advancing cable car. Happily the car was stopped at the critical moment. As it was, Miss Lowe sustained a severe nervous shock, but appeared at the Empire as usual, and scored an immense success with her latest novelty, "The Progressive Woman." Miss Lowe will spend next week at her Paris house, reopening on Sept. 3 on the Moss and Stoll tour at Hull.

Misses Ella and Dacia Hope, who are to make their début on the variety stage on Monday next at the Hippodrome, Colchester (one of the Walter De Frece houses), are natives of Blackpool, in which famous seaside resort Ella has shown much versatility by playing with amateurs such different rôles as Yum Yum (The Mikado), Serpolette (Les Cloches), Lucy (Dream Faces), Phyllis (Iolanthe), and Lady Harding in The Idler. She has a charming voice of considerable range, and is an excellent mimic. Dacia, her partner, besides being a high-class vocalist, is also a clever comedienne, and recently won warm encomiums for the winsome manner in which she played O Mimosa San in The Geisha for a week at the Grand Theatre, Blackpool.

Happy Fanny Fields sailed for England last Saturday, having spent her summer holidays in New York, and will return to work with restored health and energy, new songs, and up-to-date patter. The merry little Yankee-Dutch girl goes into pantomime at Liverpool next Christmas. She has had many tempting offers to remain on "the other side," but playing in America, with Sunday performances and long jumps, is too much like working to suit her "Serene Happiness."

Mr. Sydney Hyman will depart for America by the s.s. New York from Southampton on Saturday, Sept. 8. He will combine business with pleasure, and secure some new attractions for the Hyman enterprises on the Rand and at the Cape.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas, who opened in Johannesburg at the beginning of this month, were very popular with their fellow-passengers on the long journey from Southampton to South Africa. A fancy dress ball was given on board. Mr. Lucas hid his identity in the disguise of a country bumpkin, and his clever little wife appeared as Topsy, taking the first prize for a specially made costume. A concert was also given, in which the two Dickensonians took an active part, over £8 being collected for the benefit of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund. Mr. Joe O'Gorman went out by the same ship, and as the passenger list also included the names of Miss Jessica Grace, Brothers O'Gorman, and Messrs. Robbins and Collier, there was no lack of professional talent.

A company has been registered to "acquire the freehold property known as the Palace-by-the-Sea Theatre, Clacton, and the business carried on there by H. Ford. There is to be no initial public issue. The first directors are Messrs. P. W. Willard, G. Atherton, A. R. Dean, J. B. Rowell, and H. Hooper. Mr. P. W. Willard is the managing director.

A novel burlesque skit on the "Back to the Land" topic, entitled The Land Grabbers, was produced at the Hippodrome, Hulme, on Aug. 15. It was immediately booked by Mr. Broadhead, and is now being successfully presented on his tour, topping the bill at the King's Theatre, Longsight, next week. It has proved a big laughing success at Ashton, and should make a big hit in town.

The new Eastbourne Hipprodrome company has been registered with a capital of £12,000 in £1 shares. The company adopts an agreement with Florence A. Winter for the acquisition of the freehold premises known as the Hippodrome, Eastbourne. There will be no initial public issue.

Mr. John Bayliss, musical director of the Morecambe Central Pier, died on Tuesday morning after a brief illness. Mr. Bayliss, who had reached the age of fifty-nine, was a well-known musical man, for many years connected with the orchestra of the old Prince of Wales, Liverpool, and filled several London engagements.

The building of the new Hippodrome at Belfast has commenced. It is understood that several cross-Channel and Belfast people are interested in the project. The site adjoins the Palace in Great Victoria street, and the building will be worthy of the city.

At the second performance at the Belfast Palace on Saturday evening an interesting extra turn was supplied when Raku, the famous Japanese wrestler, was presented with a handsome gold watch in recognition of his gallantry in saving a man from drowning in the Lagan at the Queen's Bridge on the 17th inst. Raku was walking over the Queen's Bridge on Friday afternoon, when he saw a man in the water. He immediately divested himself of his coat, jumped into the river, and succeeded in keeping the man's head above water until a ferry-boat came to the rescue.

Mr. Harris, the manager of the Palace, in making the presentation, said he had been asked on behalf of the subscribers to hand over the gold watch as a token of appreciation of Mr. Raku's heroic conduct. He (Mr. Harris) was sure he was only expressing the sentiments of the audience when he hoped that the famous wrestler would be long spared to wear it. Mr. Raku's manager, in reply, returned thanks, and said Raku desired him to say that he had only done what any Britisher or Japanese would have done—namely, gone to the assistance of a man who was in danger of losing his life.

Before the Sheffield Licensing Magistrates last week at the Court House, a formal application for a public dancing, music and singing licence for a house to be called the Tivoli Music Hall, in Burton-st, Owlerton, was made by Mr. A. Muir Wilson. Mr. Muir Wilson had previously proffered the application on July 4 on behalf of Mr. J. C. Brothwell, of Burton-street. The chairman informed Mr. Muir Wilson that he and his colleagues had visited the premises, and had come to the conclusion that the place was utterly unsuitable for such a licence, and refused to grant one.

Mr. J. W. Rowley's name was unfortunately omitted from our report of the Bradford Empire for the week commencing the 13th inst., when the well-known Yorkshire comedian was on the top of the bill.

Mr. Leo Fritz, the well-known and popular variety agent, is, owing to the very big increase of his provincial business, transferring the same to Leeds, making the Yorkshire metropolis his centre. His new office is at 211, Parade, York-road, Leeds.

Miss Lil Hawthorne made her first appearance in Halifax last Monday, starring at the Theatre Royal, the Press being loud in their praise of her artistic abilities. Miss Hawthorne has filled in most of the time she should have played at the London Coliseum; and Glasgow, Dublin, and Liverpool follow Halifax.

Miss Emma Don was unfortunate enough to lose, on her journey from Southampton to Birmingham, her large basket and a hat box containing all her private clothing and papers.

Miss Ray Ford has undergone a very serious nasal operation under the treatment of Dr. Haring, of Manchester. She is making an excellent recovery.

Meiер and Mora will present at the Surrey Theatre next week for the first time in England their latest scenic production, introducing a novel pot-pourri entertainment on board ship. When the show was first produced in South Africa a few months ago its success was instantaneous.

Miss Lillian Doreen has been singing with much success J. F. Lambe and H. E. Pether's song, "The bonny brier bush." The former has supplied the lady with an original monologue.

Miss Daisy Jerome's latest number, "My Lady Vi, let me hold you in my arms again," by Percy Edgar, has been secured for publication by Mr. David Day.

Miss Bessie Butt, who became such a popular dancer in the productions at the Coliseum, was unable to work at the Granville this week owing to a slight injury to her knee, caused through a "banana fall." She will, however, resume work on Monday at Stratford.

That clever writer, R. P. Weston, has collaborated with Maurice Scott in a song, entitled "Come down from your pedestal." It has been accepted for publication by the Charing Cross-road firm.

Mdlle. Renée, the charming and talented daughter of Virto, the instrumentalist, who used to be known as Little Irene, is fulfilling the promise of her early youth, and displaying to great advantage her hereditary gifts, which have been finely cultivated. She is this week winning golden opinions at the Tivoli Theatre, Barrow-in-Furness.

The Dayton family of acrobats, who are repeating their successes on the Continent, return to old England in December.

Miss Rosa Adams, the daughter of Harry Adams, the well-known song writer, had an unpleasant experience and a narrow escape of a night in the open in the neighbourhood of Colchester at the close of Sunday last. The young lady set out alone to visit Lexden Springs, a spot surrounded by acres of corn land, and, mistaking a path, wandered on and on, not meeting a soul of whom to inquire the way. She retraced her steps, but darkness came on, and she next tried to make for the lights of the town, but tall hedges and broad dykes prevented her. At length she espied a single glimmer, and groping her way through a quickset and across some marshy land, it proved to be a light on the railway. She climbed the steep embankment and by running along the six-foot way at length reached Colchester Station. She was very much frightened by the adventure, but after a thorough rest was enabled to open on the Monday at the Hippodrome with her accustomed vivacity and go.

Mr. G. Rhodes Parry resigned his position at the Palace, Manchester, on July 28, to take over the district management of the De Frece circuit, which is so rapidly growing, and of which the headquarters are 178, Charing Cross-road.

Mr. Parry was married on July 28 at the Cathedral, Manchester, to Miss Lena M'Gown, of Sale, Cheshire. He received a handsome present of a solid silver tea and coffee service and tray from the patrons of the Palace; and the staff of that house presented him with a very serviceable case of cutlery.

Mr. G. H. Chirgwin spent a most enjoyable time last week at Portobello, near Edinburgh, in wild sea-bird shooting and fishing. He has left his family at the popular seaside resort, and picks them up on his journey from Glasgow to Hull.

Mr. Jack Woolf, the energetic and ever-alert manager of the Queen's, Poplar, has induced the North London Railway Company to run an extra late train at 11.30 p.m. from Poplar to Bow and Bromley and neighbourhood. This will greatly benefit the patrons of the Queen's who hail from further east than Poplar.

An excellent picture of the late Mr. J. L. Toole is exhibited in the window of Messrs. Müller and Co., of 62, Strand. It is from the artistic brush of Mr. Ernest Stuart, who has been very successful with portraits both of the variety and theatrical profession. The painter has caught the lamented comedian, who is wearing a grey hat, in a very contented frame of mind, and the fine expressive mouth seems to be just breaking into a smile. Mr. Stuart is really a marine painter of considerable gifts, but he makes a hobby of portraits, and his likeness of dear old Johnnie has been much praised by friends and relatives alike.

Mr. Campbell Rae-Brown, who has returned to town for the rehearsals of his Kissing-Cup musical comedy sketch, tells an amusing story in connection with The Express Baby, now being played at the Palace Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue. The much-admired and splendidly-realistic replica of an infant was especially made for this piece by Mr. "Willie" Clarkson, but on the way down to Brighton, where The Express Baby was produced, some hitch occurred in the transit of the box containing the infant from the station to the theatre. The mail-cart, Mr. Frank Esmond, the mean old aunt, and, of course, Miss Edith Evelyn, were in evidence, but no baby!

In ten minutes the company was down to appear. "Mr. Esmond, you can't go to the station," said Miss Evelyn, "but you must go and borrow a baby from somewhere." So off went Esmond, his teeth set in determination, to find a baby. In five minutes he was back, carrying in his arms a real live one! the mother from whom he had stolen it, and whom he had discovered at the pit entrance, in hot pursuit. This lady, however, yielding to the persuasions of Miss Evelyn, was soon pacified, and stood at the wings while her little one made its first appearance on the boards. So well did it behave in Mr. Esmond's arms that no one discovered it was not a dummy.

The London Pavilion and the Palace Theatre cricket teams will play a match on Wednesday. This is always an interesting fixture, and both elevens are very keen on winning. It is to be hoped that the weather will be propitious, and that a draw will be avoided.

The Water Rats enjoyed their up-river outing on Sunday, when a party of a hundred were conveyed by launch from Windsor to Marlow and back. The train journey to the Royal town was by saloon carriages, leaving Waterloo at 9.45 a.m.

Lieut. Alsini, the popular magician, who was a few weeks since at the top of the bill at a theatre in the South, and unable to appear through a fall, has now completely recovered, and has been making a great success in the provinces with his "Queen of Sheba." He is due on Monday at the Metropolitan with his "Lady in Black" mystery.

The following artists will leave Southampton per the Kenilworth Castle, to-day, Saturday, to fulfil engagements with Messrs. Hyman in South Africa:—Miss Kitty Loftus, Mr. Ted E. Box, Mr. A. D. Robbins, Miss Miniature Marie, and Mr. William Gourlay ("the Scarecrow"). Amongst those arriving home from the Cape on the same day are:—Mr. Austen Boyd and Miss Trixie Gilfain, Collins and Hawley, Miss Yolande Noble, Mr. John E. Coyle, and Mdlle. Alexia.

Miss Katie Lawrence will produce immediately a new song, by Richard Elton and Denham Harrison, entitled "Lies! Lies! Lies!" This popular lady will appear at the Middlesex and the Palace, Camberwell, on Monday, Sept. 3.

Mr. Tom Costello, having now entirely recovered from his recent serious illness, wishes to thank his many friends for their letters of sympathy and their kindnesses during his indisposition.

Mr. Walter Bentley, the energetic agent, through increase of business, has augmented his staff and removed to more convenient and roomy offices at Cromwell House, Surrey-street, Strand.

Miss Constance Moxon produces her new monologue, "A Toff for Ten Minutes," at the Chelsea Palace on Monday.

Mr. Ernie Mayne, who has bottomed the bills all round the Stoll London Empires, is leaving town for eight weeks. He has been secured by Mr. Stoll until 1910. Christmas will see him at the Grand Theatre, Edinburgh, playing Idle Jack in Dick Whittington.

The staff of the Queen's Palace, Poplar, will take their annual outing on Sunday, when a party of nearly fifty strong, in charge of Mr. Morris Abrahams, will journey in brakes to St. Margaret's, Herts.

"The Scarleteers," including Miss Lilian Sanders, Miss Rosa Mellish, Miss Daisy May, Mr. Alex. B. Gilbert, and Mr. Charles Hinchliff, have been delighting crowded audiences in the Cafe Chantant in the North Tower Gardens of the Crystal Palace during the week. Mr. Bannister Howard has secured a most attractive programme for next week. The many turns will include Mr. Frank Lawton in his speciality whistling and bone act; Mlle. Ameda, hand-balancing and foot equilibrist; Jack and May McKenzie, variety entertainers; Joan Deering, vocalist and violinist; and Walter Grace, the septuagenarian tenor.

Mr. Tom Costello produces immediately a comic song, entitled "The ten-bob rise; or, My Old Pal Joe." It is by Edgar Bateman and Bennett Scott, and has already been issued by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

Mr. Sydney Stone, a clever singer hailing from the States, will shortly be seen in town in original songs and "business," notably ditties entitled "Sweethearts" and "I would like to marry you," which Mr. David Day has published. The young artist's advent on the London stage will be watched with great interest.

Mr. Jack Lorimer (who on the 21st inst. celebrated the first anniversary of his marriage with the daughter of Will Mitcham and Maud Ross) has been greatly delighted by the great hit made at the Holborn Empire, the Brixton Empress, and the Middlesex by his young sister, Miss Ina Lorimer. The promising artist returns to school in Scotland immediately, and will make her reappearance on the London boards in June next.

The Narow Brothers, who, it is unnecessary perhaps to state, have broad views of their responsibilities in the direction of comedy, are exploiting a very novel act, which has been secured by Mr. Oswald Stoll for a dozen Empires and for the London Hippodrome. Other proprietors who have secured it for their stages include Messrs. Frank Macnaghten, E. Dottridge, Albert Bushell, Jesse Sparrow, W. C. Horner, J. F. Elliston, C. E. Elphinstone, J. C. Whiteman, Samuel Lloyd, H. J. Worswick, W. B. Broadhead, and Captain Warren Wright.

Mr. John Smith placed on the market on the 19th the 286th publication issued by Messrs. Francis and Day in their series of "Sixpenny Pops." It is "In Chicago," described as "Canned by Edgar Bateman, and labelled by J. Airlie Dix." The ditty has been received with great favour, notably at the Empire Theatre, Leicester-square, being sung there by Mr. R. Huntly.

"Medley" Barrett, the well-known mime and writer for the variety profession who has during the current season been delighting the countless visitors to Scarborough as principal comedian to Catlin's Pierrots, had upwards of 7,000 persons present on the occasion of his benefit on Thursday in last week. His "Golliwog" song is in much demand.

In the cast of The Earthquake, which is to sound the last word in sensational productions at the London Hippodrome, will be found Messrs. Cecil Morton York, Windham Guise, Hal Forde, and Miss Simeta Marsden. The two first-named gentlemen have been leading members of the dramatic representations at the house almost from the commencement of its career.

Mr. Herbert Shelley has been playing his new one-act drama, Dan the Outlaw, to crowded and enthusiastic audiences at Blackburn. He is receiving contracts for this entertainment running to the end of 1908—ample proof of its popularity.

Duncan and Godfrey, the popular coster sketch couple, sailed yesterday per s.s. Orient for Australia under a contract made by Messrs. Pacey and Reeves with Mr. Harry Rickards.

Mr. George Brooks is letter-perfect in a song called "Jack of All Trades—Master of None," one of the best examples of the comic writing of Fred W. Leigh, the author, who, in conjunction with H. E. Pether and Miss Vesta Victoria, set nearly all America singing "Waiting at the church." Mr. Leigh is away enjoying his holidays at the present time.

A most interesting exhibition of Ju-jitsu will be given at the Hackney Empire next week by Raku, who has just finished his engagement as instructor to the London Police and to the Army gymnastic staff at Aldershot. Raku makes his show particularly interesting by practical examples of how to defend oneself against roughs, and his assistant, Miss Moto, at the same time demonstrates how a frail girl may come out triumphant after a bout with a garrotter. Raku has appeared three times before His Majesty.

A plucky rescue of a lad from the Serpentine was effected on Saturday by "Le Domino Rouge," who made her first appearance at the Palace Theatre on Monday night. Two boys were rowing at the west end of the Serpentine, when the younger one, aged twelve, fell into the water. Without a moment's hesitation "Le Domino Rouge," who was driving by, sprang from her carriage and dived in. A bold, quick stroke brought her to the sinking lad, whom she was conveying in safety to the shore when a boatman came to her assistance. The boy suffered from nothing more than fright.

The regular meeting of the Chelsea Lodge of Freemasons was held on Friday, the 17th, at the Town Hall, King's-road. In consequence of so many of the regularly appointed officers being away, the Lodge assumed a somewhat cosmopolitan character, and was constituted in the following manner:—Bro. Wolfe S. Lyon (treasurer) as W.M., Bro. John Worth (G.A.P. of England) as I.P.M., Bro. G. H. Dyball as S.W., Bro. Douglas White as J.W., Bro. Harry Cox (Earl's Court Lodge) as S.D., Bro. Harry Bawn as J.D., Bro. W. F. K. Walton as I.G., Bro. Angelo Asher as organist, Bro. Fred Clay as D.C., and Bro. C. J. Doughty as secretary. A letter of regret, stating inability to be present, was received from Bro. Serpentello, who has been fulfilling an engagement in New York. Bro. Serpentello is the S.W. of the Chelsea Lodge. There was a good attendance, the visitors including Messrs. Bigny, Mayville, Fred McNaughton, F. H. Pedgrift, Primavesi, Leo Tell, Albert Christian, Fred Farren, Geo. Gilbey, Jimmy Prior, Geo. Grahame, J. Neiman, B. J. Whiteley, Ernest Rees, F. W. Phillips, J. J. Orr, Aguzzi, Harry Cox, and Ervin S. Hubbard, a P.M. of the Hiram Lodge, Washington.

Messrs. Ernest Rees, Jacob Neiman, and Benjamin Whiteley (of the Five Whiteleys) were initiated into the Order; and Messrs. Pryer, Farren, Tell, and Herbert Heriot Hill were passed to the second degree. Bro. Worth, at the request of the acting W.M., delivered the charge to the initiates in a most impressive manner. Subsequently the members and their friends adjourned for refreshments to the Chelsea Hotel, in which are many historical relics of old Chelsea, including the armchair always used by Carlyle when visiting there. Letters and telegrams were received from many members, including Messrs. J. W. Matthews and Albert Le Fre; also from two of the members in America—Serpentello and Mike Morris.

Miss Ada Reeve, who is adding to the gaiety of perspiring citizens at the Tivoli, will appear at the Paragon on Monday, heading a strong company which includes Mr. Wilkie Bard and Mr. Tom Foy. The popular soubrette will be on quite familiar ground, as she scored a very great success at the Mile End-road house when in her teens, and as a kiddy learnt her art at the Pavilion Theatre just up the road.

Owing to the success of Swan and Vesta in their new production, In Nelson's Days, at Queen's, Poplar, on Monday, they were immediately secured for a twelve months' tour of India and China by Mr. Leo Montague, English representative for Mr. D. Gardner Brown. They leave Victoria on Monday next, and return to England in August, 1907, to open at the Gaiety, Brum.

Maudie Francis, the daughter of Mr. Watson Francis, manager of the Empress, Brixton, a pretty, dark-eyed child of ten years old, accompanied by a lady, appeared at Old-street Police Court on Saturday last with Mr. David Hart, manager of the Grand Theatre of Varieties, Gravesend, her agent, to apply for a licence to perform during the week at the Foresters'. It transpired that the child was to appear twice in the evening—two houses a night—and was engaged in singing and dancing. Mr. Biron remarked that the Act required an interval of four hours between each performance.

Mr. David Hart contended that that only applied to theatres when matinées of such performances as pantomimes took place, and the child was engaged on the stage for some two or three hours. The performances in a music hall, even on the two-houses-a-night system, were close together. Mr. Biron, having considered the point during an interval, said that (without expressing any opinion upon it) he would grant the licence for the child.

Mr. Jesse Sparrow has accepted the invitation of the committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund to become a vice-president of that society, in place of the late Mr. Frank Weeks.

The London meeting of the International Artistes' Lodge was held on Sunday, Aug. 19. The chairman was elected and the meeting opened at 7.30 p.m. The members present were 1,312, 1,354, 487, 202, 388, 876, 382, 305, 1591, 100, and five guests. The minutes were then read and adopted unanimously. A letter was read from brother Voyce with reference to his accepting the position of representative of the International Artistes' Lodge in the case between Collins and Hart and Messrs. Cadle Bros. Brother Voyce stated that he would be in London on Sept. 2, and it was proposed and passed by the meeting that he and Messrs. Cadle Bros. should be communicated with.

At the previous meeting of the I.A.L. it was agreed to hold a conference of members of the Executive Committee of the V.A.F. and I.A.L., and all except the members concerned were asked to kindly retire. Both parties then assembled for the conference.

The gist of the important and far-reaching affiliation scheme between the V.A.F. and the I.A.L. is contained in Article 3, which, as passed at last Sunday's meeting, reads as follows:—"The International Artists' Lodge extends to the Variety Artists' Federation the option of having legal advice and protection for Variety Artists' Federation members on the Continent exercised through the Legal Protection Committee and solicitors of the International Artists' Lodge. Costs of litigation, if any, to be borne by the Variety Artists' Federation. The Variety Artists' Federation extends to the International Artists' Lodge the option of having legal protection for International Artists' Lodge members in Great Britain and Ireland exercised through Legal Protection Committees and solicitors of the Variety Artists' Federation, costs of litigation, if any, to be borne by the International Artists' Lodge. The members of either society requiring legal advice or protection must be qualified under the rules and regulations of the organisations to which they belong."

This article will, of course, be remodelled should a change in the constitution of either organisation demand any modification. Brother William Berol, the delegate of the Variety Artists' Federation to the general meeting of the International Artists' Lodge, recently held in Berlin, goes to the States as the special delegate of the Variety Artists' Federation to approach the White Rats of America for the purpose of forming a similar coalition with them, and it is confidently hoped that what he has achieved in Berlin he will accomplish in New York.

Dr. Walford Bodie has again opened in London, and has repeated his former triumphs at the Stratford Empire this week. Despite the record tropical weather, he has been packing the place nightly at both houses. Huge crowds wait at the stage-door nightly at the close of the performance, and Dr. Bodie is lustily cheered as he drives away in his carriage. Mr. Stoll has specially arranged to send the Doctor to the Coliseum, Glasgow, for one week on Monday next. He then returns again to London for a long run.

Mr. Gilbert Wells, the author of "Varmer Giles" (so successfully sung by Mr. George Bastow) and countless other successful songs, will be married on Friday next, the 31st inst., to Miss C. M. Nichols, a lady unconnected with the profession. The ceremony will take place at Christ Church, Brixton Road.

Miss Ethel Netherton, who has recently seceded from musical comedy in order to delight variety audiences as an exceedingly smart male impersonator, is a native of Plymouth. She received her early musical training under the direction of the late Mr. John Hele (then borough organist of that town), and made her first appearance in public at the early age of eight, when she sang solos at the Guildhall, Plymouth, before an audience of 3,000 people. She also had the honour of singing a solo before our present King, then Prince of Wales; this was followed by a long course of studies abroad, notably at Paris and Milan.

On her return to her native town she was seen by Mr. Frederick Mouillot's general manager, and promptly secured by him for musical comedy. She created the part of Lili in The Transit of Venus, and has played many leading rôles, notably Winifred Grey in The Runaway Girl, Bessie Brent in The Shop Girl, Dora Wemyss and La Favorita in The Circus Girl, O Mimosa San and Molly Seamour in The Geisha, and Maia in The Greek Slave. Her last appearance in musical comedy was in the part of Nancy in Mr. George Edwardes' Toreador. Mr. Harry Leamar, the musical and dramatic agent, 157, Strand, is at present busy booking her.

The secretary of the Music-Hall Benevolent Fund has received as a donation in aid the sum of £10 from Mr. Harry Calver, being part proceeds of the Birmingham theatrical charity sports.

Mr. Joe O'Gorman has also written to say that on his outward journey to South Africa he, assisted by Messrs. Robins and Collier, Mr. and Mrs. Lucas, his wife, Jessica Grace, and his two sons, the O'Gorman Bros., gave three concerts on board. At the last of these he obtained the captain's permission to make a collection in aid of the M.H.B.F. The sum of £8 5s was subscribed and handed over to Commander Brown, of the R.M.S. Walmer Castle. The thanks of the president and committee are publicly given to Mr. Calver and Mr. O'Gorman and the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly assisted on these occasions.

The 477th meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association was held at the offices on Tuesday, when there were present Messrs. George Gray (in the chair), Harry Blake, H. Griff, Fred McNaughton, Fred Neiman, George Preston, C. Douglas Stuart (secretary), and Douglas White (hon. treasurer). Minutes of the previous meeting were read and passed, and matters arising out of them dealt with. Cases of refunds and lost luggage were considered, and the secretary reported the receipt from the Ocean Accident Company of a sum of £19 odd in settlement of various insurance claims. The secretary's statement of accounts for the week ending August 18 showed the addition of twenty-two new members, while the receipts were £28 18s. 9d. and the expenditure £14 4s. 9½d. The hon. treasurer's cash account was also received.

A communication was read from Mr. G. W. Gerald (the agent in Paris) stating that the concession which he had succeeded in obtaining was that of individual second-class travelling at third-class rate. It would be necessary for artists before obtaining the voucher to produce their contracts for the engagements to which they were proceeding. The secretary announced that arrangements for securing the same privilege for the journey from London to Paris were in hand. It was decided to present Mr. W. H. Clemart, the vice-chairman of the committee, with a type-writer, in acknowledgment of services rendered to the Association during the absence of the secretary on holiday last year. It was resolved that a letter be addressed to those members of the executive who had been in town and had not attended the requisite number of meetings, intimating that their resignations would be accepted.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE TIVOLI.

Miss Somebody from Somewhere—otherwise London's favourite comedienne, Miss Ada Reeve, just home from South Africa—came to the Tivoli on Monday, and, notwithstanding the tropical heat, packed the house from floor to ceiling. We see too little in this gay metropolis of ours of the charming Ada, who has distinguished herself in many forms of theatrical and music hall art. No actress that we could name sings a song with such a real appreciation of its witty points, such crystal-clear enunciation, or with such piquancy, and the house rapturously applauded Miss Reeve, many of them no doubt remembering her triumphs at the old Gaiety in musical comedy. She has been well fitted with songs. "Born, not made," we heard at her last engagement in a variety theatre; but "June," with a dainty dance to conclude, and "Auntie sent me marketing" are quite new; and so is "If the world were ruled by girls." This song made an immediate hit, the audience being quick to seize on points so deftly put by the singer. The verses treat the "suffragette" question in quite the ironic vein, and discuss with amusing raillery the results that might arise if we were dependent upon women as M.P.'s, policemen, doctors, soldiers, postmen, firemen, and burglars. A lady letter-carrier might be charged with tampering with "the mails"; the extinction of fire might be sadly interfered with by a lavish display of "hose"; and the number of cases in the police courts would go up enormously if "Bobby" were to be represented by a cherry-cheeked, blue-eyed maid. "Born, not made," describes a number of quixotic personages who ignore the chastening influence of experience in their conduct of life. Miss Reeve is certainly the strongest attraction that has been at the Tivoli for some time, and she was never more popular than now.

Early in the evening Mr. Tom Woottwell tells, in his own inimitably funny and artless way, the story of "The little shirt my mother made for me," an idyll of filial affection that exerts considerable effect upon the springs of laughter. Later Mr. Tom Costello, with a perfectly wonderful make-up as a tramp, narrates the adventures of the wastrel upon whom fortune in the shape of a generous friend has bestowed a ten-pound note. A dosser's rags and the "flimsy" do not exactly correspond, and Mr. Costello's account of the tribulations and trials endured by its possessor in his endeavours to change it is very funny. Eventually he tries to pay an imagined debt of two shillings to Jim; but Jim, in the language of the Cockney, is not "taking any," and makes it very warm for the ragged-looking individual, who he thinks is trying to take advantage of his innocence. A very fine bit of character work is Mr. Costello's tramp—worthy, indeed, of his very high reputation.

Miss Alexandra Dagmar, looking very handsome in pink silk, shows the great range of her voice by imitating a double-voiced singer, and also is responsible for a capital piece of mimicry in her impersonation of a German soubrette. Miss Dagmar likewise amuses as a patterist, several of her wheezes rousing the laughter of the house. She winds up her turn by some excellent jodelling, of which vocal exercise she is a past mistress. Miss Lena Verdi is worthy of a much better song than "On the pier at Brighton." She should be immediately fitted with something which would give her a chance of displaying her comedy gifts. She is responsible for some excellent imitations of music-hall stars, which bring down the house. Miss Nellie Wallace moves her listeners to laughter by her odd appearance when singing "Where are you going to, my pretty maid?" We will not attempt to describe how the favourite low comedienne arrays herself. Her appearance is altogether a marvellous study in unrelieved, but droll, ugliness.

Mr. Tom Edwards, in hunting costume, gives an entirely new show in ventriloquism, and his "young father" with his "first"—an infant with a resolute and continuous wail—is a study in domestic felicity which keeps the house in a roar. The return of Mr. Russell Wallett, the lady in black, is decidedly welcome, and his imitation of a serenade given by a lover with a bad cold is as clever as ever. Mr. Wallett's lecture to the dear girls is also worth going a long way to hear. Miss Annie Purcell pleases with her pretty number "Glowworm"; Miss Alice Hollander hushes the house to silence and rouses it to applause by singing an "Ave Maria" of Mascheroni's; and heavy demands are made upon Mr. Harry Fragson's good nature. He is as popular as ever, especially in "He received me most politely." Mr. Harry Lauder and the Three Laurels are also in the list. The former gentleman was, however, unable to answer to his number on Monday, and his place was taken at short notice by Mr. Whit Cunliffe, who sang "It's a different girl again," and Mr. Bransby Williams, who gave his excellent imitations of Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. George Alexander, and the late Sir Henry Irving as Shylock. Mr. Joseph Wilson, who has just returned from his holiday in Dorset, was warmly welcomed by a number of friends on Monday. Mr. James Howell, the popular acting-manager, has been ably officiating during his absence.

THE PALACE.

The art of mystification is also the art of advertisement, but Le Domino Rouge, who masks her identity at the Palace, is much too clever to need such adventitious aid as the puff preliminary which her well-concealed anonymity has given her. To the large number who will inevitably be drawn to the fine variety house in Shaftesbury-avenue by her clever and attractive entertainment neither her name nor her nationality will matter much, for art is truly cosmopolitan, and a dancer of such unique attainments would win popularity even under the prosaic name of Smith. Report has it that "Le Domino Rouge" has made a great success across the pond in her mystic mirror dance. With the upper part of her face veiled and her figure swathed in a shawl of flaming scarlet, which left one shoulder bare, Miss Anonyma burst upon the vision of a darkened house on Monday, and in the red glare thrown upon the stage figured in tip-toe waltz with variations, dancing in front of a number of mirrors—placed at different angles, in which her supple and sinuous form was many times reflected. By an ingenious contrivance, probably worked by electricity, the mirrors disappeared, and within the frames half a dozen ballerine, prettily costumed, disported themselves, their divertissement quite harmonising with the wonderful toe dancing of their veiled leader, without any attempt being made on their part to rival her tour de force. The variety and charm of the turn were increased when the dancing of the girls was repeated in front of the mirrors. "Le Domino Rouge" concluded her turn with the wild whirl of a sort of cachuca, and her style in her final solo was decidedly Moorish in more senses than one. There is no doubt that Mr. Alfred Butt has secured a very great attraction in this young and gifted terpsichorean, and the stage lighting and effects are quite Rembrandtesque in their effect.

Another new-comer to the Palace on Monday was Mr. Fred Wright, jun., who has just finished an engagement with Mr. George Edwardes as Wun-Hi—his brother Huntley's original part—in the revival of The Geisha at Daly's Theatre. By Mr. Edwardes's permission, Mr. Wright is enabled to introduce the Celestial's well-known number, "Chin-Chin Chinaman" in the Japanese opera, and "The Wonderful English Pot" from The Cingalee. In both of these selections the young comedian seemed to be more at home than in the rather weak "Tired of being respectable," in which he was handicapped by obvious nervousness. Mr. Wright's clever dancing brought down the house, and when more used to his surroundings, he should do extremely well as a variety turn.

The broad humour and extravagance of The Mumming Birds have evoked laughter in variety houses all over the United Kingdom, and the hilarious proceedings of Mr. Fred Karno's troupe of comedians receive the heartiest encouragement in Shaftesbury-avenue. The inebriated swell who reminds one very strongly of a popular Bohemian and sporting pressman now with the majority, excites as much laughter as when the amusing skit on a music-hall performance was first given at a suburban variety theatre, and the "human boy," as Mr. Chadband would certainly call him, is just as humorously played. We are precluded from giving the names of the cast, as they are not printed on the programme, but the topical vocalist, the Swiss "nightingale," the prestidigitateur, the rustic glee party, the saucy serio, and the wrestler are all funny, and enter heartily into the pleasant conspiracy of mirth.

Miss Maud Courtney's coon love song is made into a duet by the help of "The Mysterious Mr. C," who uses his falsetto notes very effectively, singing from the dress circle. But why the mystery? Mr. Fred Niblo does not vary his lectures very much, but his discussion on the form of the mere male raises much laughter, and proves that Burns had some solid basis for his assertion that Nature tried her 'prentice hand on man, and "then she made the lasses O!"

The fun in the early portion of the programme finds a welcome stimulant in the shape of Mr. Campbell Rae-Brown's amusing sketch The Express Baby. The pleasant and diverting imbroglio is cleverly and divertingly presented by Miss Edith Evelyn as Mrs. Rippleton and Mr. Frank Esmond (who, by the way, handles the infant capitally), and Miss Kitty Dease is effective as Aunt Alexandra. Other turns in the bill include Miss Lily Flexmore, a wonderful dancer; the Brothers Hayes, comedians and dancers; Gladys Archbutt, speciality dancer; Ray Wallace, mimic; the Philippi Brothers, acrobatic equilibriste; the Westwoods, expert and comedy cyclists; and Lucette de Verly, the chic Parisienne, who is fulfilling her last week.

The latest Bioscope pictures include the sensational collision between a couple of locomotives travelling at sixty miles an hour on Brighton Beach, America, an arranged affair, witnessed by nearly 100,000 people. Mr. Herman Finck, whose excellent orchestra play Nicolai's pretty overture to The Merry Wives of Windsor in the course of the entertainment, has arranged appropriate effects for the two engines approaching each other from different directions and the final catastrophe. During Mr. Alfred Butt's absence on the Continent, his position is being filled by Mr. Fitzroy Gardner with tact and courtesy.

THE ALHAMBRA.

We are getting quite classical on the stage nowadays. Mr. Frederick Fenn, at the New Theatre, is telling us all about the sacred cats of ancient Egypt, while the Alhambra management, in their ballet L'Amour, take us back over two thousand years, and attempt to revive the glories of an empire whose history extended even beyond the period when letters were invented. What in our youth would be called a symposium upon a kingdom of great antiquity is not necessary here, although, forsooth, one feels disposed to do something of the sort after gazing at Assyrian basreliefs one minute and dodging an excessively modern motor-'bus the next! But this new ballet is a thing to be seen and admired. The story it tells brings to one's mind recollections of the fairy tales of childhood; in fact, it is really a fairy tale. The love affairs of Prince Nashar and the wooing by several suitors of King Darius's beautiful daughter Niletta are followed with great interest. And it is all so poetically inspiring and so pleasingly fantastic that one does not want the picture spoiled by carping references to historical truth. Signorina Maria Bordin is, in the present instance, the much-sought-after Princess, and although she doesn't speak a word, there is sufficient eloquence in her dancing to enable the spectators to read the meaning of her movements. Whether she is engaged in a merry, giddy whirl, or in slower and more dignified steps, her motions are ever as graceful as they are rythmical. It is clever pantomimic acting that we get, too, from Signor Alfredo Curti as Prince Nashar, M. Henri Frielli as Darius, and Signor Giovani Rosi as the High Priest, while a word of praise is due to Signorina Enrica Varasi for her "sacred dances." One cannot fail to admire the beautiful tableaux of the temple and the palace, and the entrancing tout ensemble presented by the whole company, from Signorina Bordin down to the warlike ladies who carry javelins and the dainty maidens with their shields of flowers.

There is variety of species in Perzina's performing animals, and we can well believe that no small degree of ingenuity must have been required to develop the intelligence of the different members of this somwhat mixed assemblage. The monkeys are the most amusing, and to watch one of them riding on the back of a terrier, and clinging to the dog with wonderful tenacity, is in itself a source of laughter. Then there are the highly cultured representatives of the parrot tribe, agile cats, and a "bunny" who isn't bashful. A vocalist whose notes fall upon one's ears like the soothing rippling of waters is Miss Fatmah Diard, the American prima donna, in whose singing there is tuneful expression and range and depth of feeling. For hilarious knockabout comedy one can always look to the Craggs, and their below-deck act, in which all the gentlemen are, for the time being, stewards, and one, a particularly green specimen, is exceedingly funny. They are amazingly smart acrobats, and a coup-de-main takes the form of one man laying, back to the ground, with his feet in the air, and another standing upon the upturned boots, executing a somersault, and alighting with wonderful precision on his former position. The Amoros Sisters are seen in an attractive novel act. One lady performs triple dislocations from a trapeze, and the feats of the other are scarcely less startling, notably her eye-bewildering side jumps. Remarkable gymnastic exercises, the easy gliding in mid-air from one horizontal bar to another, the springing up from a "bounding bed" and turning continuous somersaults, and a number of other original acts constitute the "business" of Tony Wilson and Heloise, and extremely acceptable business it is to the audience. The Bellong Brothers understand the science of balancing the human body on wheels, and their cycling act gives evidence of much adroitness, resource, and physical strength. The Alhambra would not be the Alhambra now without the magnificent Urbanora pictures. At the moment we are being shown the London Scottish on their march to Culloden battlefield and the manœuvres that take place in the neighbourhood. These are most realistic and cleverly arranged, as are also the series depicting the troubles of a husband while his wife was away from home, and the flight of the convict. The brilliant, the sparkling, and exciitingly gay Parisiana is still with us, and its scenic splendours, lovely dresses, fascinating dances, and enchanting music still draw laudatory exclamations from the spectators.

As a result of the sale of Mr. George Leyton's songs in Gateshead recently, Mr. Joe May, of the King's Theatre, has handed over to Mr. James Passmore, Gateshead's Crimean veteran, the sum of £8 2s. 9d.

Fred and Lillie Monckton, who are fast booking into 1907 with their musical sketch, What Railing Did," have just acquired the sole rights of another screamer, bearing the excellent title Who from Wych?, which they intend to produce shortly.

CHAT WITH MR. ALFRED BUTT.

(By our own Commissioner.)

"Ever since I became manager I have recognised that London is now so well supplied with amusements of all kinds that the public every day are becoming more particular than they were a few years ago, and where one attraction used to be sufficient several are now required."

This statement comes from Mr. Alfred Butt, who, nearly two years ago, succeeded to the management of the Palace Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, on the death of Mr. Charles Morton.

Let Mr. Butt continue. "That is why I determined to go to America, where my trip fully repaid the trouble and expense involved. I can assure you that there is a vast difference between the American vaudeville stage and the English. A large number of the acts that have made big successes in the States might not attain the slightest degree of success here, and at the same time many of our attractions would not be understood in the land of the Stars and Stripes. On the other hand, there is a great number of really good acts, principally sketches, to be seen in America, and several of these are under contract to appear at the Palace Theatre."

"And lately, Mr. Butt, you have been bringing actors and actresses from the legitimate theatres to your music hall."

"I have had very good reason for doing so, in consequence of the scarcity of suitable variety artists. There is now quite a field for actors and actresses to fill in their time between their engagements at the variety establishments, with profit to themselves and advantage to the music halls. In most cases they are able to give a form of entertainment that provides a distinct change. Thus, we had Miss Lottie Venne in The New Regime, Miss Millie Legarde in "Won't you come and spoon with me?" Miss Kate Cutler and Mr. Arthur Playfair in Hero and Heroine, Miss Carrie Moore in The Dairymaids, and my latest acquisition is Mr. Fred Wright, jun., in a Chinese song."

The way in which Mr. Butt first became connected with the Palace Theatre is worth recording. After leaving school he took up accountancy, and some eight years ago, while engaged in the liquidation of a big company in Huntingdonshire, he met one of the directors of the Palace Company who happened to hear of the kind of work with which he was associated, and asked him if he would accept the secretaryship of the Shaftesbury-avenue hall. Going before the board of directors, Mr. Butt made them quite a sporting offer. They judged by his appearance that he was much younger than was actually the case, and thought that this might be a barrier in the way of appointing him. However, Mr. Butt offered to take up the position for three months, no question of salary to be considered until the end of that period, and if they then came to the conclusion that he was unsuitable for the post he would not even ask for the quarter's remuneration. The result was eminently satisfactory to both parties, and Mr. Butt was retained. At that time Mr. Philip Yorke was the assistant-manager, and when he resigned the late Mr. Morton placed the vacancy at the disposal of Mr. Butt, who was, however, still to remain secretary and treasurer. A little later he was made business-manager.

Replying to a question as to the management of an important theatre like the Palace, Mr. Butt remarks: "All matters concerned with the organisation in its many phases have to be attended to during the daytime. Outsiders have no idea of the time and trouble which must be expended in this direction if a place of entertainment is to be properly conducted. Even the most insignificant number on our programme is not allowed to be presented to the public until we have been assured that it is all it should be.

"So far as the Palace is concerned," he goes on, "I think we are in a unique position, inasmuch as, in the first instance, a large proportion of our patrons will not visit the ordinary music halls; and, secondly, we are able to engage so many high-class artists who could not advantageously be seen elsewhere. I am a great believer, however, in music halls working together. There is undoubtedly a sufficient number of the variety-loving public to enable all the vaudeville houses to do good business."

"What are your views on the sketch question?"

"Well, as that is a subject which only affects the Palace in a very small degree, sketches rarely being an important item of our programme, it would be, perhaps, unfair to say anything beyond mentioning that I think the ideal system is that in vogue in America, where managers and proprietors pay £100 a year for an entertainment licence which permits of all kinds of performances being given, provided the public safety is assured."

One disadvantage of an extremely youthful exterior was brought home very forcibly to Mr. Butt a little while back. A gentleman was shown up to his office, and, seeing him for the first time, exclaimed, "No, no; I want to see your father." On receiving from Mr. Butt an assurance that his father was not connected with the profession, the stranger remarked, "Well, then, it must be your elder brother that I want to see."

THE EMPIRE (OXFORD) LICENCE.

To the Editor of The Era.

Sir,—I did not say that Ald. Lucas adjudicated in the Empire case; indeed, I put a saving clause in my letter, and said I believed him too fair-minded a man to do so. He, however, was in Court; and sat so near the Bench that many people, including the reporters, thought he was "on it." (I mean the Bench, not the licence.) The source of the statement was the whole of the Oxford Press for June 9 last; and as Ald. Lucas never troubled to issue a disclaimer until a long time after, he and them must accept the blame.—Yours faithfully, H. A.

THE SOUTH LONDON.

The hottest day of the year had no deterrent effect on variety lovers in South London, who crowded into the popular hall on Wednesday in almost their usual overwhelming numbers. The sketch of the week well matches the weather, and keeps the audience in a state of continual warmth by its exciting incidents. It is entitled Balaclava, and is written by Mr. Harry Bruce, an actor who has long been associated with melodrama on the regular stage. Bound up with the episode of the historic charge of the Light Brigade is the story of a young trooper who has been found asleep at his post. He is sentenced to death, but it is afterwards revealed that he had succumbed to a drug placed within his reach by the villain. The colonel of the regiment decides that the accused is innocent, but although he leaves the prisoner temporarily in the safe keeping of an Irish sergeant, the villain is permitted to drag him forth to be shot, and it is only by the return of the Colonel that the tragedy is averted and the villain disgraced. Subsequently the fateful order to take the Russian guns arrives, and the charge is made, the first to surmount the enemy's fort being the young trooper and a devoted youngster, who turns out to be his betrothed, who has disguised herself as a boy and joined her lover's regiment. Each of the brave assailants is engaged in a hand-to-hand encounter by at least two of the burly Russians until, amid the thunder of cannon and the flashing of fire, all that is left of the British regiment arrives to the rescue. Mr. Harry Bruce acts with indomitable spirit and energy as the falsely-accused trooper, and Mr. Robert Purdie (the head of the company) looks a veritable Lord Roberts in the part of the Colonel, and makes his voice ring with quite the military note.

Humour plays an important part in the sketch A Queer Customer, with which Messrs. Johnson and Bert are associated. The antics indulged in by an eccentric individual outside a wayside inn are very ludicrous, and require the exercise of no inconsiderable skill. The gentleman who plays the hotel proprietor is very smart, and the act is amply applauded. Mr. Sam Mayo obtains a hearty welcome when he appears as a Chinaman, whose sallow complexion increases the effect of immobility for which the comedian is renowned. Much fun is caused by the song, which is renewed when the favourite comedian appears in the well-known "ulster" to sing, with all-unchanging countenance, a ditty to which the last line gives a comical finish.

Miss Elsa Joel displays her brilliant voice in a popular excerpt from Carmen, the melodious intricacies of which are charmingly rendered. Miss Joel then proceeds to delight the audience with some impersonations, the first being an imitation of a French serenade by a Parisienne, and the same lady singing "Because I love you," in the rendering of which there is no little humour. An English contralto singing "Queen of the Earth" is given with such effect as to arouse a storm of applause, in response to which the clever cantatrice, who scores quite the hit of the evening, gives an imitation of a coster singing "I can't tell why I love you." It is a concession to popular demand for a cultivated ballad vocalist to put her talents to the purposes of burlesque, but Miss Joel managed to sing her various excerpts with such skill as to leave the excellence of her vocal powers undiminished.

Parodies at the piano are furnished by Mr. Burt Shepard, who satirises the hackneyed ballad "I wouldn't leave my little wooden hut for you" with his customary drollery, and also turns the song "'Neath the shade of the old apple-tree" to the purposes of laughter, of which he obtains a liberal allowance. The Sisters Lavender, handsomely costumed, win all hearts by their pretty singing and dainty dancing; and Miss Lilian Watson develops a distinctly comic vein in her songs of "Night Duty," and completely proves her ability as a low comedienne by her rendering of "The day that I got married," in which the vagaries of domestic infelicity are many and varied. Mr. Charles Dillon has a peculiar appearance and a funny method in "I'll see what I can do"; and the pictures shown by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope are greatly enjoyed. Mr. William Payne is the new manager at the old-established hall in the London-road, and Mr. Charles E. Howells ably conducts the orchestra.

DR. BODIE AT STRATFORD.

The Stratford Empire has been packed nightly this week, and local report puts this happy state of affairs mainly to the credit of Dr. Walford Bodie, described on the programme as the Electric Wizard. That title would certainly be confirmed by everybody who has witnessed his extraordinary feats. The present is the doctor's fifth visit to London, but it is his first appearance in Stratford, although, as he informed the local music-hall habitués, it would not be the last. Bodie, who is particularly jubilant over his triumph in a case at Leeds Assizes, where he sued a local nurse, starts his act with an introductory statement. Then he goes on to show how he can defy the forces of electricity, by, at his own computation, passing three million volts (high frequency) through his body. He creates roars of laughter as he practises his electrical experiments on some half-dozen men, who dance and shriek and assume all manner of ridiculous postures under the shocks. Then he enters upon the more serious portion of his show by bringing before the footlights several of his former patients who have been successfully treated by him. Of these, Miss Flo Bedford, of 24, President-street, King's-square, Islington, is one. She is seventeen years of age, and suffered from curvature of the spine, for six years having to wear a belt. So serious did her condition become that for two years previous to seeing Dr. Bodie she wore the belt night and day. She was discharged, we are told, from two of the leading hospitals as hopeless and incurable. Dr. Bodie treated her on a previous visit to London, and she is now as perfect as a human being can reasonably expect to be. Another of the healed who came forward to testify to the doctor's skill was a boy of five, who suffered from spinal disease, and was cured by Bodie's electrical treatment. On the night of our visit two or three new patients were carried upon the stage to be relieved of their bodily afflictions. There was, for instance, an Ilford child of five years of age, whose right leg was withered and useless and paralytic. Bloodless surgery—electricity—Dr. Bodie—and the boy ran joyously to the wings. A case which was said to be of special interest to Stratford people was that of a local girl, eight years old, who could neither stand nor walk. She appeared to be little more than skin and bone. The audience were informed that she was a particularly difficult subject for treatment, as her feet and arms and spine were affected. But, apparently, it is these awkward cases that Dr. Bodie delights in curing, or attempting to cure. The result in the present instance seemed highly satisfactory, and loud applause greeted the successful termination of the doctor's quick remedial efforts. Outside the theatre, as the audience had filed out and the doors were closed, a crowd of people waited to get a glimpse of the doctor as he walked to his carriage, and he was heartily greeted as he strode through the human avenue kept clear by the police.

Mr. Tom Leamore has met with a serious accident. On Monday night while opening some wine the bottle burst and jagged one of the fingers to the bone. Mr. Leamore has been compelled to keep to his room owing to the loss of blood. Doctor Arnott, of Brixton, who has been attending him, said it would be at least another week before he could work, but as he is booked to open at the Opera House and Empire, York, he will resume business on Monday.

HOLBORN EMPIRE.

Mr. Carl Hertz, the famous illusionist, is ever on the alert for something new, and on Monday evening at the Holborn Empire he produced, for the first time before a British audience, a novel and surprisingly mystical act, entitled The Bridal Chamber. A huge oblong frame is wheeled on to the stage. It is seen to be perfectly empty. Curtains are then drawn all around it; a few seconds later they are separated, and reveal a completely furnished bedroom, containing a bed, with pillows, sheets, bedding, &c., reclining upon which, in her night attire, is the handsome bride. The illusion was effected with amazing rapidity, and, watch the stage as one might, it was not possible to detect the bed or the lady being placed in the receptacle. The same lady, Miss Emeline d'Alton, assists Mr. Hertz in other of his magical doings. In another scene she is apparently hypnotised by Mr. Hertz, and, in a state of trance, laid upon the floor. Then, at his will, she gradually rises from the ground, her body all the while remaining stiff and straight. These are only two out of a number of exceedingly interesting feats of illusion and legerdemain. Mention should be made of the marvellous blackboard upon which is written by an unseen hand answers to questions put to it by members of the audience. Carl Hertz's "show" is of the kind that sets one thinking. Mr. Frank Seeley, quaint in mannerism and in his method of delivery, has a host of funny ideas to offer in his song, "I had to go back and change it"; and Miss Edie Veno gains great favour for her tuneful singing and her graceful dancing.

From Mr. V. L. Granville we get a couple of artistic character impersonations. His first is Wilfrid Denver, in The Silver King, and a very realistic performance it is. We are brought face to face with that picturesque personality, and dramatic expression and utterance tell the tale of the conscience-stricken soul, of the man whose nights have been a hideous nightmare by reason of a false belief that he has committed murder. Exit the Silver King—enter Svengali. It is Svengali of the vicious, deformed mind, Svengali of the revengeful, scheming mind, Svengali, the creepy, evil thing. It is scholarly, thoughtful, cultured acting, and Mr. Granville thoroughly deserves all the praise that is showered upon him. Mr. Alf. Lester and company have an exceedingly amusing trifle in A Scene-shifter's Romance. A young lady appears before the footlights, and starts to sing a pretty song. Before she has got through the first verse, she is disturbed by the loud clanging of scene rods, which are flung upon the floor. Then there enters the cause of the noise, a stage-labourer carrying a heavy piece of scenic workmanship, which he drops in the most careless manner. A laughable conversation between the two ensues. The scene-shifter tells of his blighted hopes, how eighteen years ago he had visited the playhouse to enact the rôle of Hamlet, and to become a shining star, and had been a stage-hand ever since! Then he endeavours to instil into the lady's mind what a "hartiste" should do in order to ensure success. His generosity does not end there. His warm heart goes out to the fair creature, and matrimony is suggested. "Wot price a double turn on the 'alls?" The piece is capitally acted, and the duologue is punctuated with roars of laughter.

The Six Colbergs, juvenile musical prodigies, come in for a goodly share of attention from the audience. They display their talents upon various musical instruments, and the smallest member of the troupe makes an intensely comical conductor. Miss Rosie Archer is a versatile comedienne. Her imitations of Miss Vesta Victoria, Mr. Harry Lauder in "Stop yer ticklin', Jock," and Miss Kate Carney in "'Liza Johnson," are amongst the best of the kind that we have heard. The Brothers Hayes are seen and admired in a series of table dances executed in smart and lively style. Messrs. Goggin and Davis treat the house to a comic acrobatic act, their skill and agility being highly praiseworthy. Miss Flo Challis, in a handsome and becoming deep blue gown, sings the praises of "The boy in navy blue," her vocalism being distinctly good. Mr. Dan Crawley, a comedian in whose business one may always look for character and humour, has a diverting ditty in "Father keeps on doing it"; and the New York Nippers furnish an entertaining sketch in Bedtime, their frolics creating uproarious merriment. A number of attractive pictures, a few illustrative of the methods by which we obtain our ice supply, are exhibited by the Bioscope.

MISS CISSIE CURLETTE IN DOUGLAS.

The newest and most welcome turn in the Opera House is that of Miss Cissie Curlette, a mimic artiste of great natural talent, whose imitations of the denizens of the farmyard still continue to delight large audiences. There is a refreshing absence of coarseness or vulgarity in this new entertainment; it is full of piquant charm, and is an unique rôle for the comedienne. Miss Curlette is a vocalist of considerable attainment, and her ballad singing is as charming as her mimicry. A bright, vivacious actress, she grips her hearers from the outset, and she gets all the humour possible out of the situation. The adventures of "Farmer Giles," sung with the quaint broad accent of the Devonshire farmer, exhibits a new feature of the artist's capabilities. Miss Curlette is a welcome addition to the variety stage; she has made enormous strides since her first appearance some 18 months ago, and a recent South African tour has still further enhanced her value as a first-class artist.—Mona's Herald, Aug. 15, 1906.

"IN NELSON'S DAYS."

In Nelson's Days is the title of a musical comedy extravaganza produced on Monday at the Queen's, Poplar, by Swan and Vesta. A youth, dressed in the costume of the gallant young man about town of the period, is making love to a pretty girl, who, although from her heart she thoroughly reciprocates his affection, pretends that his suit is vain, and that she doesn't care for him at all. She tells him that she wants a man who will brave the battle and the breeze—in short, that she has a partiality for sailors. He goes away, and while he is absent she dances merrily and sings a song, "Not just yet." The young gentleman returns, disguised as an able seaman of the old-fashioned type. Then there is a good deal of fun. She tells him that she will go and find a captain for him, and a few minutes later comes back herself attired somewhat similarly to the pantomime naval officer impersonated by the principal "boy." She insists on making him resemble as much as possible a sailing-ship. He lays at full length on the floor and the lady fastens a mast upon his back. The "ship" rocks as though it were assailed by a boisterous sea, and the Captain's attempts to stand on deck are not altogether appreciated by the improvised "vessel." The extravaganza is laughable and well acted withal. Mr. Bert Swan contrives to be serious and lover-like at one time in the earlier part of the sketch, and rollicking and breezy at another time, when he essays the character of a jack-tar. His songs, "Tell me that beautiful story" and "The life of a sailor," are effectively rendered, and he dances in a smart and lively fashion. Miss Marie Vesta shines as a burlesque actress in the rôle of the girl, and she, too, proves to be skilful in the light fantastic line. Her rendering of the lyric, "Not just yet" and her duet, "The captain and the ship," with her partner, are pleasing vocal items.

The latest contributions to the "Fred Locke" Fund notified by Mr. J. G. Crichton, 9, Bridge-street, Glasgow, are as follows:—Andrew Campbell, 5s.; Walter Purvis (219), 5s.; and R. L. Aim, 2s.

The conclusion of Mitcham Fair was marked by great public enthusiasm. Never before within living memory has there been so great a crowd of eager visitors, and the general opinion is that its popularity has been so clearly demonstrated that even the Conservators must admit their error of judgment and bow to the will of the people.

That it is a people's question is becoming more and more evident. The Croydon Citizen, a popular democratic paper, speaks in no uncertain voice. In truth, the boldest utterances of the accredited champions of the showmen "pale their ineffectual fires" before the red-hot words of the editor of the Croydon Citizen. He says:—"Mitcham has insisted upon holding its fair; and Mitcham, we think, is right. Not everyone cares about merry-go-rounds, cocoa-nut shies, exhibitions of abnormally fat women and extraordinary diminutive men, and all the other wild excitements of these nomadic events, but the particular taste of individuals in the matter of enjoyment is scarcely the point at issue. What is at stake is the right of the people of Mitcham, Croydon, Beddington, Wallington, &c., to the free and uninterrupted use of the common, threatened as it is by the action in this and other matters of the Conservators. For, observe, the Conservators have not proved, nor essayed to prove, that the holding of a fair endangers life and limb, or interferes with the right of the public to enjoy this open space, while the playing of golf does. Yet, though they have, by special resolution, permitted the golf, they have arbitrarily forbidden the fair. Upon the strength of their resolution with reference to the former, indeed, a joint-stock company has been floated, the shares of which no doubt pay well enough and have acquired a marketable value.

"In other words, property in the common has been created and presented by these custodians of the public rights to a group of private individuals. On the other hand, the fair, which goes back to the spacious days of Queen Elizabeth, and involves the livelihood of a humble but particularly harmless class of men, is prohibited. Why this distinction of persons? and what right have these Conservators to obsequiously permit in the one case what they autocratically deny in the other?"

And again:—"Have the Conservators conscientious objections to fairs? While they play golf, do they object to roundabouts on principle? Is it the inherent and well-known Puritanism of Mr. Alderman Foss that leads him to adopt such a 'what-I-have-said-I-have-said' attitude to these humble showmen? We can scarcely think so, and can only suppose that it is another case of truckling to the classes on the part of those appointed to look after the public interest. Mitcham fair has, apparently, given offence merely because it is organised by the poor for the poor. To say that the site is inconvenient is beside the question. The organisers of the fête have offered to go to any other part of the common that the authorities may deem more suitable. But no notice has been taken of this offer, partly because the other available sites would interfere with the golfers, and also because the Conservators clearly meant to put the fair down in any event."

We have often in these columns referred to the great importance of guiding public opinion and feeding the Press with accurate information and statistics regarding the show business. In many instances this has been shown to be the saving of the business. Mitcham is our latest example of the importance of letting everybody know the justice of the showmen's plea for trade defence. When the local authorities last Easter began their overt scheme—all unknown to the great majority of the people—to abolish the fair, the local Press either agreed with the proposal or assumed a non-committal attitude—"waiting to see how the wind would blow." Now the very first thing the Guild did was to send to the Press the showmen's view of the matter, and by circular letter and personal intercourse with the leaders of the people at Mitcham aroused public interest. The response of the Press and the people was instant and magnificent, and the climax was reached when at the mass meeting on the fair Sunday five thousand people voted for the retention of the fair. But all this meant hard work and expert talent and experience. In this connection one incident alone will exemplify the need for organised and efficient work to meet any emergency. A misleading paragraph—evidently inspired by the Conservators—went the round of the Press, announcing that there would be "no fair at Mitcham." In less than an hour from the office of The Era over fifty circular letters were sent to the editors of all the London papers and to the Press agencies, giving an official contradiction to the misleading paragraph, and informing the Press and public that the Home Secretary had refused to abolish the fair, and that the Mitcham Fair would be held as usual.

This was duly signed by the officials of the Guild, and at once fixed public attention upon the fight to retain the fair.

We gave last week the gratifying result of this work in the unanimous voice of the Press as favourable to the showmen's cause. We venture to add this week the opinion of the local Press, and to add that it is quite evident that the people of Mitcham will be guided by the local Press to defend their common rights. It is evident that the Croydon Citizen has a clear grasp of the situation, and that larger issues will be put before the electorate.

Speaking of the deprivation of the people's rights on the use of the common—as illustrated in the fair dispute—the leader continues with this warning to the Board of Conservators:—

"We do not think they will succeed. Not for the first time the whole of the inhabitants of Mitcham are unanimously against them; and even Mr. Alderman Foss will find the coercion of a whole population a task beyond his strength. It is doubtful if the Conservators have even the law behind them, for they base their interference upon the right to levy tolls for the booths and pitches which they allege they have acquired by purchase. The right to levy a toll, argues Mr. Deputy Millar Wilkinson (who, by-the-bye, is not a Conservator in the full sense of the word, and sits upon the board only by sufferance as an act of courtesy to the City Corporation, which has assisted in the past with funds for the preservation of the common), gives them the power to accept or refuse spaces for the booths. But we doubt if this is sound law, and whether the right so acquired enables the holders to override the privileges of the Mitcham people under the charter they hold. It is one thing to be able to charge a rent or toll for the pitches occupied, it is quite another to decline to let them to those who have a prescriptive right to organise a fair upon them.

"Whatever view, however, may be taken of the legal question, it is clear that the Home Office is not going to interfere, and without such assistance it is not easy to see how the small body which constitutes the Board of Conservators is going to put its Czar-like decree into force.

"Nor have they only the public opinion of Mitcham to take into account. There are Croydon, Beddington, and Wallington, too, to be considered, and although these districts may not be so closely concerned in the holding of the fair as Mitcham appears to be, popular opinion in them is none too pleased with the behaviour of the Conservators in giving away a large part of this open space to the exclusive use of a few purse-proud golfers. There is a very strong feeling growing up against the present Board for its mismanagement of this important trust, and unless we mistake the signs of the times, public opinion after this fresh proof of ineptitude and partiality will need very little urging to make a clean sweep of the present Conservators, and to replace them by a set of men who will take a far broader view of the duty committed to their charge. After all the Conservators are the servants and not the masters of the public."

The Conservators are quite determined to persevere in their determination to claim authority to stop the Fair at Mitcham, despite the fact that the people—whom they are appointed to serve, desire its continuance. The trial of their legal position will come before the High Court of Justice. Writs, at the instance of the Conservators, have been served upon three representative tenants of the Fair Green at the last fair. Mr. Alfred Ball, showman, Mr. Charles Hill, roundabout proprietor, and Mr. F. Wilson, stallholder and amusement caterers. The writs were returnable for Aug. 22, but as considerable time will be required to prepare the case for the showmen, Mr. T. Watson Wright, solicitor to the Guild, has arranged to have the case in the list either for November or February next. It is of the utmost importance to have a clear decision as to the presumed right of local authorities to over-ride the statutory law of the land.

We can well imagine that the Home Secretary will want to know why his deliberate decision was disregarded.

The Guild came to London and began its beneficent work only just in time. What will those showmen do now who have hitherto refused to join and subscribe? After the success with the London County Council over living vans, and the defeat of the bad bye-laws proposed by the Middlesex County Council, and now the triumph of Mitcham, the Guild has proved its usefulness. What showman now can hesitate about throwing in his lot with the Guild? As regards financial support, it is high time they realised the warning words of George Sanger, their veteran leader and president of the Guild. He said at their last meeting in the Agricultural Hall: "I will hold office on one condition, that is, if—and only if—you put your hands down into your pockets and support the funds as you ought to do."

We are glad to hear that the tenants at Mitcham gave liberally to a special subscription list. This was right and necessary, for until the Guild is much wealthier than at present local fairs must be defended at the cost of the people using the fairs. The Guild has more than enough to do financially with Parliamentary defence and public propaganda work. The Guild executive is still waiting for the guarantee fund of £300 a year for Parliamentary work alone. This will mean that all lessees and proprietors must give in proportion to their capital in the business, and that every stallholder and trader must subscribe. The need is urgent, and the work must be continued.

A conspicuous figure on the fair-grounds of the Midland and Shropshire rounds is Harduck, the handcuff king and gaol breaker. In a recent interview with our Midland correspondent he gave the following notes of his interesting life:—Born at Brooklyn, U.S.A., twenty-five years ago, the son of Inspector Harduck of the Secret Service Police, he early in life began to study handcuffs and criminal irons. As a boy he delighted in mastering their secrets, and became famous as an expert in the art of extricating himself from all kinds of manacles. Six years ago he came to England and opened at the King's Music Hall, Liverpool, with his marvellous exhibition. Here he startled the town by escaping from a skeleton straight jacket brought from Rainhill Asylum. He then went on tour with his marquee through Scotland and Ireland. Crossing over to the Continent with a specially organised variety company of his own, he travelled France and Germany.

A striking illustration of the power of showland to draw within its borders men specially gifted with talent, the Handcuff King is now on his triumphant tour of the English fairs. He offers at each show £10 if he fails to release himself from any regulation handcuffs or criminal irons. He also effects his escape from all kinds of queer prisons—coffins, barrels, tin trunks, &c.—and he assured our correspondent that no contrivance, patent or otherwise, could hold him.

Mr. Stroud, the lessee of the fairground at Horsham, at his own expense fought the would-be abolisher of the fair, and in the High Court won a signal victory, the judge refusing to grant an injunction against the fair. We confidently anticipate that Mr. Stroud will hear no more about it. At Horsham it was one man against a thousand, and although one man can become a thorn in the flesh to a whole town, sound sense and justice is found to win in the end against prejudice and selfish fluster.

Sanger's hippodrome and menagerie was at Hastings on Friday last week, and attracted large and interested audiences. The Fondants, wire equilibrists, gave a clever turn, and Sanger's famous troupe of elephants supplied a remarkable exhibition of animal training. Pimpo's jumping and clown dogs and Hoffmann's marvel pony were also very entertaining. In the spectacle Nero, or, The Sports of Ancient Rome some intricate equestrian manœuvres were executed, and Cyclo gave an exhibition of strength. Miss Lina, on her horse Hawkcombe, gave a pleasing feat of horsewomanship, and daring riding was displayed by M. Roberts. The Maro troupe of acrobatic equestrians were very interesting, as was the comic business of the clown Pimpo. The Airlees, flying dudes, gave a good trapeze act; and the bill included the Courier of St. Petersburg; Zampo, the bounding wonder; and British tars at practice.

Subscriptions to the Showmen's Guild Fund, 1906.—Per Mr. Mitchell:—Wm. Mitchell, sen., £1 1s.; Joe Delaney, 10s. 6d.; Mr. and Mrs. Block, 10s.; and T. Slater, 5s.

At Astwood Bank Great Temperance Fete were Mr. Thomas Scott, of Worcester, with steam galloping-horses, park swings, shooting saloons, bottle battery, striker, cokernuts, &c.; also varieties and stalls by Messrs. Embling, Smith, Lewis, and Bullock. At the Assembly Room, Astwood Bank, the great American Bazaar Company has been doing capital business.

At Booley were Herberts' roundabouts, swing-boats, bottle battery, cokernut sheets, &c.

Showmen and others should take note of Studley Mop Sept. 28. Studley is a large village in Warwickshire, four miles from Alcester, three miles from Redditch, and twelve miles from Stratford-on-Avon. The chief industry is the manufacture of needles, fishing-tackle, &c. The population is 2765.

At Eagle Davis's novelty exhibition, High-street, Merthyr, Bunce, the pig man, is exhibiting to large houses nightly.

The Yorkshire holidays and local feasts are now in full swing. Upon this excellent round are the well-known concerns of Monte Brothers, Relph and Pedley, E. Farrar, Rhodes, Testo, Hastings, Tuby, Crighton, Gibson, Westray, Dennis, Blakey, the Waddingtons, the Marshalls, the Redfearns, the Howdens, the Collins's, Seeds, Morleys, and all the host of Yorkshire caterers.

Pudsey Feast had for its entertainment Relph and Pedley's Excelsior coliseum of variety and cinematography, Tuby and Son's similar concern, Professor Gibson, the occult demonstrator in black and white magic; Hastings's two ground booths, Westray's freaks, and Blakey in feats of strength. Howden and Son's two machines—the motor-track and the Japanese air-ship, "The Wheely-Whirly," Redfearn's motors, Relph and Pedley's "Whirling the Whirl," P. Collins's ostriches, Corrigan's steam swings, Waddington's steam yachts and manual swings, and highfliers by Messrs. Redfearn, Morley, Casey, and Hutchinson; rifle saloons by Messrs. Ratcliffe, C. Burgess, Casey and Lever; bazaars by Messrs. Gledstone, Howorth, and Seed. Variety and throwing games by Messrs. Illingworth, Burgess, Redfearn, While, Vanner, and twenty other caterers.

At Morley, for the Feast-time, were Farrar's theatre of living pictures and varieties, Westray's two exhibitions, Professor Watson and school of athletes, Waddington's three machine sets—the motors, steam yachts, and ostriches—Morley's steam swings, and Proctor and Morley's highfliers, the rifle saloons of Messrs. Lever and Jameson, and some fifty more fair-ground novelties and varieties.

Horsforth kept its Feast with the following shows, machines, and fair-ground novelties:—Rhodes, portable Theatre Royal; H. Testo's cinematograph; Wm. Murphy's motor-cars; swings and highfliers by Messrs. Morley, Casey, Gledstone, and Hutchinson; bazaars by Gledstone, rifle galleries by Casey and Ratcliffe, all the fun of the fair by Messrs. Powell, Baines, Illingworth, Stewart, H. Powell, Hutchinson, Gledstone, and many others.

Preparations are being made energetically for the big Fair and Carnival at Olympia at Christmas. Nearly all the gallery has been let to well-known purveyors of "All the fun of the Fair." On the ground floor several important concessions have been disposed of to English showmen, notwithstanding the reservations for several big novelties from Coney Island. One of the most interesting side-shows will undoubtedly be Hales' Tours of the World. Though of American origin, it is being built in England at a cost of £2,000. Messrs. Warings are furnishing the two full-sized Pullman cars which are used in this exhibit in the latest approved style. Those who have enjoyed the "Lighthouse Helter-Skelter" at Earl's Court, will be able to revel in the same pastime at Olympia, when the doors of the "Mammoth Fun City" are thrown open to the public. Two great American aerial acts have been secured, and George Hackenschmidt will be found among the attractions of the opening week.

The Wakes at Great Harwood were in the capable hands (as regards amusements) of Messrs. Starkie, Holland, Hughes, Howarth, Taylor, Stanley, Gullagher, Forshaw, Ingham, and Martin.

Mr. Alf. Ball, with the Royal Bioscope, is at Crayford doing splendid business. One night this week, with his usual generosity, he gave a benefit performance for the Handcross Vanguard Disaster Widows' and Orphans' Fund.

At Malpas Fair on Tuesday were Mander's cinematographs, Pedlar McMahon's boxing and athletics, Miss Maggie Collins's gallopers, Beach's steam horses, Miss Collins's steam swings, Collins's and Beach's big boats, swings, and Winchester ranges, Grainger's rifle saloon, Beach's cartwheels, and Hampton Handcock's show.

Leith Flower Show and Sports took place on the 17th and 18th inst, in Victoria Park, Newhaven-road, Leith. No living carriage was allowed this year. Present were the shows of Messrs. Johnston, Freman, Broshley, Emma J. Danson, Edmunds, Smith, Stringfellow, Russel, and John Wilmot, jun. The ground was under the personal management of Mr. Walter Wilmot.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

T. H. (Co. Durham).—Shall at all times be glad to hear from you and from the round you travel. You have been too long silent.

W. B.—The next step in the defence of the people's Fair at Mitcham will be a huge petition to the Home Office in favour of retaining the Fair.

I. M. (Blackburn).—The syndicate to which you refer appears to be all right. Will, however, make definite inquiries and let you know.

Prof. L. (F.O.S.).—How did your matter end?

Anxious Father.—The Children's (Vagrants) Bill will have to take its chance in the ballot for next Session. We will watch its advent.

AMUSEMENTS IN NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director Mr. Robert Arthur; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—The boards of this splendidly managed theatre are occupied this week by Mr. M. Russell Rosse's company, which is attracting well-filled houses with Captain Swift, and an all round good representation of this popular play from the pen of Mr. Haddon Chambers is given. A fine portrayal of the title-rôle is given by Mr. Ernest E. Norris, whose direct and forceful methods are well suited to the part. He is excellently supported by Mr. Walter Gregory, who acts breezily as Gardiner, and Miss Elizabeth Watson as Mrs. Seabrook. Other parts are in the able care of Mr. A. J. Harding, Mr. W. Burgess Barrett, Mr. Norman Clark, Mr. Michael Dwyer, Mr. Clarence Pelham, Miss Nora Dwyer, Miss Lillian Revell, and Miss Jessamine Newcombe.

Tyne Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. F. C. Sutcliffe.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company present The Silver King this week, and it was cordially welcomed on the opening night by a large and delighted audience. Mr. Fred D. Davis sustained the leading part of Wilfred Denver with great dramatic skill and energy; Mr. Edward J. George, who had a cordial reception, infused plenty of humour into the part of Daniel Jaikes; Miss Daisy Scudamore as Nellie Denver won the warm sympathy of the whole house. A delightful little Cissy was presented by Miss Flossie H. Davis. Mr. H. G. Lowther (the Spider) and Miss Dorothy Radford (Olive Skinner) in their respective parts each did yeoman service.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clark.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt and company with Two Little Sailor Boys provide the fare at this popular house this week. The play contains an abundance of pathetic, thrilling, and humorous incidents, and those present on Monday evening showed their appreciation in no uncertain manner. Miss Madge Steele as Lola Grey is seen to great advantage; Mr. Jerrold Heather makes a capital Noel Tregarthen, and Mr. W. H. Hallatt fills the rôle of Captain Tom Yorke ably; and as the two little sailor boys Miss May Day and Miss Ethel F. Greene show much ability

Grand Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Sentenced for Life, the convict drama, is appearing here this week, and on Monday evening was played with great success to a well-filled house. Percy McGentle, as impersonated by Mr. James A. Firth, convulsed the audience with laughter with his genial humour. He was well supported by Mr. Arthur Keand and Mr. Reg. Oldroyd as the two comical convicts; Mr. Edward E. Louis made a manly Lieutenant Roy Stillwell, and Miss Madge Douglas was greatly admired as Adele Gray.

Empire Theatre.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Richard Thornton.—So great was the success which attended the visit of Fred Karno's company in Moses and Sons last week that the management have extended the engagement for another week. Mr. Fred Kitchen was unable to appear, owing to slight indisposition, in the part of Perkins, but an able deputy was provided in Mr. A. Bruno, who sustained the part in an admirable manner, and provoked much merriment. The rest of the company all worked together in a manner that left nothing to be desired. Marie Kendall's beautiful costumes and lively songs are of a high order. Terry and Lambert in their character-sketch, The Cobbler and His Wife, are a great success; and others included in the bill are Eric, ventriloquist; Steve McCarthy, comedian and dancer; Canary Company in a merry pantomimic incident; Frank Lynne, funny mantograph, and Pierce and Maizee in a costume singing act.

Pavilion Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Fioretti and Elby, who are top of the bill this week, perform some remarkable bounding feats; Wilbur Hill and Willete Whitaker give a capital musical speciality, and are a popular turn, their songs and selections on the banjo being encored time after time. The Waldrons in their production Our Sammy, obtain a gratifying reception; Miss Katie Marsh as an actress, vocalist, and dancer is greatly admired; Fred Cary, a comedian of originality, receives numerous encores; and John P. Dane, comedian; the Brontes, comedy duologue; Sidney Dolf, comedian; Mountford and Walsh, society entertainers, and the Barrascope complete the bill, which has drawn bumper houses.

Miss Victoria Monks, who has been taking a little holiday in Paris, accompanied by her husband, Mr. Carl Hooper, returned to the Oxford this week. She is making a hit with the reply to her popular song, "Give my regards to Leicester-square," and wears a smart Parisian frock of the deepest pansy satin, with a wide border of violets round the short skirt, an underdress of paler tint, and a cap composed of the same flowers.

There is not a little excitement, before and behind the scenes, in Mr. Harry Tate's new sketch, Gardening, at the Oxford, for a motor is driven into the middle of the stage, causing havoc in the garden and roars of laughter from the audience. The farce is played in a very pretty setting, and "Harry" is as skilful with the scythe, rake, and spade as he proved himself with the fishing-rod.

STORIES OF SHOWMAN LIFE.

By the Rev. T. Horne, Chaplain Showmen's Guild.
(Copyright.)

"A SHOWMAN DETECTIVE."

In the days of long ago, when George Wombwell, the father of menageries, was building up the reputation which still remains his, that of the greatest of all wild beast experts, it was only natural that, even in the early days of his success, he had many rivals. Among these must be reckoned James Hilton, whose menagerie (though smaller than Wombwell's) obtained considerable popularity and success. Historically, Hilton's wild beast show is only known as being the progenitor of the afterwards famous Manders menagerie.

My story is concerned with the very early days of Hilton's menagerie, at the time when James Lee (a man of almost equal ability with his brother, the more celebrated Nelson Lee) was manager of the show. The mystery of the terrible tragedy of this tale of showman life would have remained unsolved but for the genius of James Lee.

The menagerie was located at Taunton, and just as the show was being closed for the night, a travel-stained stranger, apparently a seaman, mounted the steps of the front and accosted Lee. "If you happen to be short-handed, Mister, and would like a rough, handy sort of man like myself to look after the animals and make himself useful, I should be glad of the job."

Now it did happen that the menagerie was in pressing need of two more workers, and Lee, after measuring the man up in his mind and being satisfied with his first impression, said very heartily:—

"Yes, my man, if you don't mind serving a sort of short apprenticeship, we can find you work."

"Thank you, sir."

Then Lee, remembering some of his own hard experiences on the road and guessing that the man was hard pressed by poverty, gave him a couple of shillings with the remark—"Get yourself some supper and a bed, and begin work to-morrow morning at eight."

That was the introduction of William Beaver, afterwards known throughout Showland as "Sailor Bill," to the menagerie and to the comradeship of the wandering Bohemians on the road. Beaver proved an immense acquisition, for he had that magnetic attraction (which but few men possess) that makes it possible for its possessor to control with a glance and pacify with a touch of the hand the most turbulent and unmanageable animals.

The rivalry between the menageries then on the road was very keen, and it was a tremendous feather in the cap of James Lee when he secured for Hilton's a really large specimen of the ourang-outang, the giant ape of Borneo. This valuable animal was placed in the care of Beaver; in fact, no one else dare go near the ferocious creature.

Shortly after the arrival of the huge Simian (whilst the show was located at Bristol) James Lee engaged another hand, a youth named Joseph Bond. It was out of sheer pity that James Lee found him employment about the show. There was just that little touch of romance about young Bond that irresistibly appealed to the heart of James Lee. He was the boy, so often realised in romance and sometimes in actual life, so smitten with the love of the show that, with or without the consent of parents or friends, determines to become a travelling showman. It was not difficult to see that he was masquerading under the name "Bond," and probably belonged to some well-to-do family, and was most evidently well educated and refined.

Now a curious thing happened; perhaps it was owing to those secret springs of antagonism that perplex us in human life: William Beaver, the trainer, conceived a violent dislike to the gentle youth, James Lee's latest protégé, and almost from the beginning set to work to make things difficult for young Bond. Lee was quick to notice this, and took Beaver to task for it, and for a time he restrained the exhibition of his antipathy for the newcomer.

Between the latest importation—the ourang-outang—and William Beaver there had grown up an immense affection. So great and absorbing was this attachment of the monkey for the man that Beaver was able to enter with impunity the cage of the powerful brute and make it go through a sort of performance which in those far-away days was regarded as most marvellous. This singular ability with the animal made Beaver an indispensable part of the show, and unfortunately so fed his vanity and self-importance that Lee at times found it extremely difficult to tolerate Beaver's arrogance and to retain his services.

Towards the end of the season at Bristol, a quarrel took place between Beaver and young Bond. This quarrel would have ended in a fight between the two (unequal as the younger man was for the fray) but for the intervention of James Lee, the manager.

Sternly rebuking the older man and sending Bond for a time out of the show, Lee said—"Now let us have no more of this senseless jealousy. You forget that when you came to us you were just as much an object of pity as the youngster. We gave you a chance, and we have given Bond a chance, and valuable as your services are, we shall not allow you to dictate who shall or who shall not be employed about the menagerie. Every man to his own graft, Sailor Bill. You are all right with animals, but to run a show like this men with brains as well as physical power are needed. Let us have no more of this senseless bickering."

Sailor Bill took this kindly-meant straight talk with a frown, and muttered something to the effect, "Well, let him look out. I suppose he's a swell, and therefore better thought of than us common chaps."

Of the reply Lee took no notice; but Hilton, the proprietor, was a keenly-interested spectator of the scene, and said to Lee, "I don't like Sailor Bill's humour at all. He's just the sort of chap that would do a man a bad turn."

"No," answered Lee, reflectively. "He's got a vile temper; but it's all froth. His heart is good at bottom."

"Did you hear how the big monkey shook the cage and wanted to get at young Joe when he and Bill were quarrelling?"

"I heard the brute good enough; but did not turn round to notice its capers."

"Well, I should not like to quarrel with Sailor Bill, and then for the monkey to get loose. I know it would go like mad for an enemy of Beaver's."

That was the end of the matter for the time, except that at the performance that night Sailor Bill was noticed to be carrying more drink than was good for him, and that the great ape displayed more than usual affection and docility towards its keeper.

* * * * * *

It was a terrible crime—a most brutal murder. The murderer in his insensate fury had torn and mutilated the body of his victim in a way that beggared description. The murdered man was Joseph Bond, and the scene of the tragedy was the narrow sleeping-compartment of one of the caravans. The fell deed was done in the dead of the night after the quarrel between Beaver and Bond.

Everybody about the menagerie remembered the quarrel now. The effect was so terrible that every man at once sprung to the obvious cause, and a thrill of righteous horror and wrath went round the show, and every man's face said "This is Sailor Bill's revenge."

Both Hilton and Lee were distraught with the agony of the terrible blow that had fallen upon them—for both of them, in common with the rest of the people about the show, loved the poor done-to-death youth. The police were soon on the spot, and every care was taken to immediately investigate the strange and gruesome details of the murder.

The quarrel between Beaver and Bond had to come out, and this, of course, was damning suspicion against Beaver. Away to Beaver's lodgings went the police, only to find that he had not slept there, but had packed his things in a hurry late at night, and had said that he was catching the boat to Liverpool. This, too, was a further cause of suspicion against him.

The police were so sure of their man that no effort was made from that point forward to trace any other possible clue or to view the crime in any other light than murder of the most common and brutal kind. "Oh, he's a big brute of a sailor, and we know what sort of men these tramp sailors are. It's a quarrel, and then out with a knife, and red murder is the finish of the row."

With but one exception, and at first he hardly dared to speak his mind, the whole body of showmen were at one with the police and public opinion. The exception was James Lee.

"No," he mused, "I think I know human nature too well to have made so big a mistake in my judgment of character. I can't quite bring myself to believe that Beaver was capable of so brutal a crime. His running away is dead against him. There are curious things about the crime that in the interests of justice ought to be cleared up. The first thing, however, is to find Beaver?"

The police found Beaver, and sooner than they anticipated, for he turned up at the show the day after the murder and to everybody's surprise said, "Send for the police. I have heard that they want me. No," he continued, "don't look at me like that," and here he broke down and wept as only strong men can weep. "I did not murder Joseph Bond. God knows that I am free from that horrid deed, however black it looks against me."

"Why did you run away the night of the murder?" was the stern question of James Lee.

"Well, the answer's a bit suspicious, but it's the truth—I was afraid and ashamed of myself—afraid that my temper might lead me into trouble, and deeply ashamed with my conduct and ingratitude towards you who had stood in as my friend in the past. In fact, sir, whether you believe it or not, I made up my mind to clear out and go back to sea again, because I felt that I had forfeited your respect."

"Yes, yes," said Lee, "I can quite understand that; but why didn't you go to Liverpool, as you left word you were going to do at your lodgings?"

"Well, that's simple enough to answer. I just missed the boat, and then determined that I'd walk to Cardiff and get a ship there. On my way (so quick does bad news travel) I was overtaken by the news of poor Joe's murder. I sat down by the roadside and thought it all out. Why, of course, I knew that our quarrel would fasten suspicion on me. It was a big struggle, I can tell you, to turn back and face it out; yet you see I've done it—I've done it!"

"And that's a big point in your favour, Beaver," was James Lee's grave reply. Then, speaking to Hilton and the show people, Lee added, "Every man in England is held to be innocent until he has had a fair trial and has been found guilty of the crime laid at his door. I, for one, will say but this at this moment—I am favourably inclined to believe Sailor Bill's straightforward tale; yet a most horrible crime has been committed. He is suspected of that crime, and must be tried for it. I, for one, will, until positive proof is given, hold him innocent, and will strain every nerve to help him."

"Yes," exclaimed Hilton, "I'm with Lee in this matter. It's a most horrible murder; but I will not judge Beaver unheard. Of course, Beaver must give himself up to the police, but we will do all we can to clear up the mystery of the crime; and you shall have all legal assistance in your defence."

Again poor Sailor Bill broke down, and his emotion was pitiful to see.

Then it was that a curious thing happened—the great monkey, the ourang-outang, began a violent shaking of its cage and to cry aloud and to roar in terrible grief. This extraordinary sympathy of the animal with its keeper Beaver drew all eyes to the cage, and as they watched they saw the monkey place its long fingers through the bars of the cage and deliberately extract the linch-pin of the heavy iron cross-bar that fastened the door of the den. Before anyone could intervene the monkey was standing by Beaver's side and lavishing upon him almost human affection and quite intelligent sympathy. This astonishing climax to the extraordinary scene set James Lee thinking. "Take the monkey quietly back to its den, Beaver. We must have the police for an experiment I want to make."

A messenger soon brought the chief constable of Bristol to the menagerie, and with him two officers.

"Here," said Lee, "is the man you suspect of the murder. He has returned, and is, we think, able to explain his absence. I ask you before sending him away to give me a private interview in order that I may lay before you important evidence relating to the terrible deed."

"Certainly, certainly, sir," answered the chief constable. "As the man has surrendered to the police we will comply with any reasonable request that may tend to elucidate the mystery surrounding the crime."

"Yes, sir, the crime will prove a bigger mystery than we anticipated, and it is to clear up some aspects of that mystery that I venture to claim your assistance" was Lee's remark, as he led the chief of police to Hilton's living-carriage.

Here it was that Hilton, Lee, and the chief constable conferred for quite twenty anxious minutes. The result of that conference was seen in the despatch of Beaver in a closed carriage to the police-station in charge of the police and the absolute secrecy observed in the matter, for the news was not allowed to go forth that the suspected man was in custody.

* * * * *

In the dead of the night a curious thing was done in Hilton's menagerie—a weird midnight experiment in criminal investigation, such an experiment as never before or since has been essayed. Standing behind a screen at the end of the show, near to the living carriage, were the chief constable of Bristol, and with him the Mayor of the city, and Hilton and James Lee.

With James Lee evidently rested the working out of the problem before them. To the show at this solemn hour of the night William Beaver was brought, and silently took up his place by the screen.

For the purpose of his carefully planned experiment, James Lee had attired himself in a suit of the murdered man's clothes.

Lighting up one of the grease-pot flares of those days the two men—Lee and Beaver—went towards the den of the giant ape. Fixing the light to the ring pole Beaver and Lee (in the character of the dead man) went through all over again the too well remembered incidents and violent words of the quarrel.

Then Lee went away, taking the exact road to the sleeping compartment of Joseph Bond.

Beaver went behind the screen to await his next cue in the weird drama of the night.

With the exit of Lea, the giant ape, with the rapidity and decision of a set purpose, was seen by the all-intent watchers to stretch his long arm through the bars and to lift the cross-bar and slip out of the den. The huge beast did not touch the ground, but clambered along the top of the dens, holding a firm grip of the bars of each den as he passed them. When at last he reached the side door through which Lee had made his dramatic exit as Bond, then it was that he touched the ground.

No sooner was the silent-footed creature outside than the watchers were folowing close upon his track.

The monkey made a straight course for the sleeping berth in the van where the unfortunate Bond had met his death.

James Lee, the detective of the moment, had left nothing to chance. In the sleeping-berth was a life-sized figure. The horrid creature was seen to lift the large ventilator in the roof of the caravan and to slip down upon the bed, and again with the figure was the tragedy of dumb animal hatred and malignity enacted. Hilton, who had come prepared and with his mind fully made up what to do, shot the monkey dead when with his terribly claw-like fingers he was grasping the throat of the figure.

Measurement was taken of the monkey's hands, and these fitted exactly to the terrible death-marks on poor Bond's throat—a piece of evidence of the greatest corroborative value to the vindication of William Beaver and testifying to the remarkable ability of James Lee, to whose other titles, well earned and well worn, was added that of "The Showman Detective."

"OLIVER TWIST, or, THE THIEF-MAKER."

A Sketch, in Three Scenes,
Produced at the Queen's, Poplar, on Monday, August 20.

Fagin .....MR. ROLLO BALMAIN
Bill Sykes .....MR. ARTHUR ST. JOHN
Mr. Brownlow .....MR. LOUIS GORDON
The Artful Dodger .....MR. GEO. FLETCHER
Charley Bates .....MR. F. TRAVERS
Police Officer .....MR. LUKE WILLING
Oliver Twist .....MISS EMMIE ORFORD
Nancy .....MISS SARA MIGNON

More Dickens! This time he comes in very acceptable shape in Mr. Rollo Balmain's sketch. Scene 1 shows us Fagin's den—a weird-looking underground apartment in which one can imagine all manner of villainous plans being invented. The conversation between the lovable Jew and the amiable Sykes and the others is centred mainly round the subject of the disappearance of Oliver Twist. Bill, of course, deplores the loss of the boy because the latter had such an extremely neat little figure which might have been made for the burglary business. How well could the boy creep through small openings where the bulky Sykes scarcely had as much as a look-in! Fagin, too, indulges in lamentations, for Oliver's absence means a loss of revenue to him. "And he was just getting nicely into the pizness, ma tear!" But the lamentations soon give way to a festival of rejoicings, for the wanderer is brought back to the fold. How welcome he is made! No wonder, for he has some books and a five-pound note which a kind gentleman entrusted to what was intended to be his temporary keeping. He is quickly dispossessed of these, and is only saved from ill-treatment by the intervention of Nancy. He tries to escape, but the others are too alert and fleet of foot for him. Then he is marched off to assist Sykes in the cracking of a crib. The venture proves unsuccessful. Oliver is wounded by a shot, and Bill and his confederates are compelled to decamp hastily. We next see Oliver in the garden of Mr. Brownlow's house, in which the burglary had been attempted. The good-hearted gentleman is taking a kindly interest in the lad's welfare, and Oliver confides in him the story of his unhappy life. Nancy appears later, and Mr. Brownlow offers to find a means of removing her from her evil companions, but Nancy declines. All she cares about is that Oliver is being well looked after. Fagin creeps into the garden while they are speaking, and overhears Nancy's indictment of himself and his associates. He vows revenge. Mr. Brownlow leaves Oliver alone for awhile, and an attempt by the Jew to kidnap the boy is frustrated. The final scene takes us back to Fagin's den. Nancy is charged by the keeper thereof with betraying them to the police. When Bill Sykes returns Fagin incites him to take a terrible revenge upon the girl, and there is a violent quarrel, which terminates with the death of Nancy. Finding that he has been duped by Fagin, Sykes turns his attention to that worthy, and with the aid of his club makes himself a worthy candidate for hempen honours. The curtain goes down on his arrest.

The little piece is presented in an admirable fashion. From Mr. Rollo Balmain we get a skilful portrayal of the odious character of the Jew. His acting of Fagin is studied and exact in every particular, and altogether it is a highly praiseworthy piece of work. Miss Sara Mignon appears as the unhappy, ill-treated Nancy—Nancy, with the good moral instincts of a woman, even in evil surroundings, and bound fast by that peculiar feminine code of honour to the objectionable Bill Sykes—and the part in its varying phases is excellently played. Mr. Arthur St. John furnishes a sound representation of the sturdy, loud-mouthed burglar; and Mr. George Fletcher as the Artful Dodger and Mr. F. Travers as Charley Bates adequately fulfil the requirements of their characters. Miss Emmie Orford is a pathetic figure, and is, moreover, convincingly earnest, as Oliver Twist; and the Brownlow of Mr. Louis Gordon brings before us the pleasing picture of a warm-hearted, amiable, and generous gentleman. The whole production has received great praise locally.

CHARLES COLLETTE will appear at the Britannia Pier Pavilion, Great Yarmouth, on Monday and twice daily next week in his musical patter sketches, Hard Luck and Travellers' Yarns, as well as in his farce-duologue Tea for Two, in which he was so successful at the London Pavilion. Mr. Collette will be supported by the clever young actress Joan Derry.

WALNEY ISLAND.—James Dunn's Park Pierrots.—Proprietors, Bliss and Bliss.—Mr. Frank Probin is a favourite here in baritone songs; Louis Kerno is a clever coon singer; Arthur Holland goes well and Prete is a clever ventriloquist; and Mr. Norman Lee is an immensely popular pianist; while George and Leo Bliss are a smart and clever pair of comedians. The Park is illuminated with electric lights, and is well patronised.

MISS JESSIE PRESTON produced on Monday at the Metropolitan a highly successful "Reply" to Mr. Harry Lauder's "Ma Scotch Bluebell," which proved such a "hit" that the audience would not be satisfied until she gave an encore dance. Strange to say, Miss Preston follows Mr. Lauder on the programme.

LE DOMINO ROUGE, the most important new turn at the Palace Theatre this week, is dressed, as her name suggests, in vivid scarlet. Her stiff velvet hat is coquettishly tilted over the red lace scarf that covers her mask and is twisted round her hair, with a bunch of flowers of the same brilliant hue behind the left ear. Her dress itself is composed of an embroidered silk shawl, leaving one shoulder bare, and clasped at the breast by a diamond bird. The eight pretty girls who accompany her amazing toe dance with a series of less elaborate steps are dressed in white silk, with touches of canary yellow, glittering and tinkling with big golden sequins.

MR. EDWIN J. BRETT and Miss Emmeline Orford have specially commissioned Mr. Charles D. Hickman to supply them with a new sketch. Mr. Hickman is part-author of Love Germs for the Smythsons, and Nursery Pets for Tom Fancourt and Jennie Ruble.

THE HIPPODROME WAYZGOOSE.

FRONT OF HOUSE OUTING.

Mr. Fred Trussell is invariably to the fore in looking after everybody's welfare. His annual wayzgoose in the interests of his staff is particularly paid attention to. He is, we need hardly say so, father to all his trusted adherents, and as each year goes round, so does Fred Trussell "go one better." This year's annual outing was a singularly happy one, and went off without a hitch. The party, numbering about sixty, journeyed from Waterloo to Portsmouth Town last Sunday (August 19), and from thence to the Esplanade Hotel, Southsea. On the journey down light refreshments were served "on board," as the Americans say, and these, we understand, were most enjoyable, as they were taken together with harmless pastimes. Luncheon was promptly served at one o'clock, and consisted of a most delicate and appetising spread of Lobster. Mayonnaise of Salmon.

Roast Beef.
Lamb and Mint Sauce.
York Ham. Veal and Ham Pie.
Potatoes, &c.
Cheese and Salad.
Ale, Claret, Mineral Waters, &c.

There was no speech-making on this occasion, the interesting remarks from the various heads of departments being reserved for a later period. Meanwhile, some very diverting sports were indulged in—some on shore and some on board the boat. Two members of the party—Messrs. Currie and Groombridge—competed in a walking match, the distance being 100 yards, for a large purse. This was won, after a sharp tussle, by Mr. Currie, who was immediately hero of the happy party and, be it mentioned, for the whole of the day among his circle of friends. On board the special boat to Ryde there were various other sports, and on landing carriage drives to places of interest were indulged in. At 6 p.m. the whole company assembled for dinner at the Esplanade Hotel. Here it was that Mr. Fred Trussell not only proved himself a spendid organiser, but a most interesting and instructive tutor, on the question of loyalty. The latter was particularly applied when he proposed "The health of His Majesty the King and the Royal Family." Mr. Trussell also proposed "The London Hippodrome" and "The Directors" as subsequent toasts. Dinner consisted of Roast Beef. Horseradish Sauce.

Boiled Leg of Mutton. Caper Sauce.
Roast Veal and Bacon.
Potatoes. French Beans, &c.
Fruit Tarts. Custards. Blancmanges.
Cheese and Salad.
Ale, Claret, Mineral Waters.

Many congratulatory telegrams were read from Sir Edward Moss, Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, &c. There were other toasts proposed by Mr. Chas. Richards and Mr. Dave Thompson, while Mr. Harry C. Wild and Mr. Arthur C. Hicks jointly responded to that of "The London Hippodrome." Then came "The Ladies," by the chairman, and, finally, "The Visitors," to which Mr. Lavater Lee, the Hippodrome droll, responded most amusingly; and afterwards Mr. Willie Trussell, manager of the Palace Theatre, Southampton, had a few words to say regarding his presence as a visitor. Much regret was felt at the enforced absence of Mr. Frank Parker, the stage and equestrian director of the Hippodrome, owing to overpressure of work occasioned by his having to superintend rehearsals for his new and gigantic show, The Earthquake. Mr. Henry W. Garrick, Press manager, Mr. J. Collard, several newspaper representatives, and other personal friends of the "family," were also present.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

"THE tipping system" is still engaging the attention of the music-hall artists, and the discussion which has taken place has produced several noteworthy suggestions. One is that a box be provided and placed under the control of the stage manager in the hall or other convenient place, and that artists who wish to tip give what they choose and when they choose. Another suggestion is that artists send a yearly contribution to the Benevolent Funds of the Stage Employees Society, and the sums named are from 10s. to £2 each, according to the special services rendered and the salary of the artists. Assuming that the artist would have the right to recommend employees in need for assistance from the fund, this proposal has much to commend it, as it follows that the fund would be wisely administered and help those who need help most. There is, however, a strong feeling to entirely abolish "tipping," and it is reported that Mr. George Gray, "The Fighting Parson," has already announced his intention to refrain, in future, from giving any tips. Should Mr. Gray's action be generally adopted, the members of the working staff in music-halls would find it to their interests to reconsider the conditions of their employment and endeavour to place themselves in a more certain and dignified position.

MR. A. E. WOOD is with Mr. H. B. Irving as master carpenter. It is undecided whether Mr. Irving will take any member of the stage staff to America. On this point it may be well to point out that while difficulties would probably arise in the case of workmen employed under contract to accompany a theatrical company to America, no trouble need be anticipated, providing each workmen are members of the National Association of Theatrical Employees. The American Alliance of Stage Employees only invokes the Klien Contract Labour Law against non-members of a Theatrical Protective Association, and it has come to a friendly understanding with the British organisation.

A MEETING of the carpenters' branch of the N.A.T.E. will be held on Sunday evening, at 8.30, in the Salisbury Hotel, St. Martin's Lane. Several important items will come up for consideration, and all members are urged to attend.

A MEETING of representatives of the London branches of the N.A.T.E. has been held during the week to consider proposals with regard to the annual concert in aid of the benevolent funds of the society. It has been suggested that any donations received from patrons of the concert be placed to the credit of the National Open Benevolent Fund and that the subscribers be afforded the right of recommending applicants for assistance from that fund. It is thought desirable that an effort should be made to build up this open fund, and at the same time avoid the misapprehension that the society accepts donations from non-members towards its ordinary funds.

AT Westminster on Monday Mr. John Troutbeck held an inquest on George Ford, forty-four, a carpenter, lately living at Thrush-street, Manor-place, Walworth. It appeared from the evidence that the deceased man was employed at the Apollo Theatre, and on Thursday, the 16th, while working at his bench beneath the stage, he suddenly collapsed and fell to the floor. He was taken to the hospital, where he died a few hours after admission. Dr. Reed, house physician, said there was a fracture of the skull on the right side, and on the opposite side there was a large effusion of blood on the brain. The man had fallen down in a fit, and had struck his head, causing the fracture. The master carpenter at the theatre said the deceased man did not strike his head with any force. Dr. Reed pointed out that the man's skull was abnormally thin, and a light blow would fracture it. A verdict of "Accidental death" was returned.

AMUSEMENTS IN GLASGOW.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphreys. — Mr. Louis Calvert's splendid company is here playing the ever-popular Sunday to full houses. The title-part is exquisitely played by Miss Emilie Polini, who receives unstinted applause for her rendering of the character; the four far-western "boys," over whose household Sunday rules, are effectively acted by Mr. William Lockhart as the gruff Towzer, Mr. Sidney Rennef as the fatherly Davy, Mr. Cecil Yapp as the kindly Lively, and Mr. Arthur Vezin as Sunday's country lover, Jacky. Mr. Leonard Pagden gives a fine impersonation of Colonel Brinthorpe, and Mr. G. Wallace Johnstone is also good as the unscrupulous Arthur Brinthorpe. Miss Muriel Pope as a Nun, and Miss M'Aimée Murray as Mrs. Naresby, give natural representations of pleasing characters. Tom Oxley is a fine part, well played by Mr. Ernest A. Douglas, and a highly satisfactory cast is completed by Mr. Ernest Harrison as the Abbot.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie. —Good performances of Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace are being given here this week by Mr. Thomas McKenzie's company. The part of Captain Mowbray is taken by Mr. Yorke Stephens, who fills the rôle with a quiet, easy grace that is admirable; Miss May Straker is seen to advantage in the part of Isabel Kirke, her acting being natural and affecting to a degree; Mr. W. Brisco Owen bears himself well in the difficult part of Lieutenant David Cairn; and an excellent bit of character work is contributed by Mr. Maitland Dicker as Colonel Jardine; Miss Frances Vine is highly amusing as the frivolous Mrs. Gorringe; in striking contrast is Miss Esther Royal's portrayal of Mrs. Jardine, the strong-minded hostess; the Detective is well represented by Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson; and the parts of the Footman and Miss Potts are ably filled by Mr. Lawrence J. White and Miss Isabel Fladgate. The comedietta entitled Uncle Joseph is the curtain-raiser.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane. —Mr. C. P. Levilly's company, in the second week of the engagement, is giving Amorelle, which drew a crowded house on Monday. As the vivacious heroine Miss Stella Gastelle has a part that affords her unlimited opportunities, and in acting, singing, and dancing she displays her talent and versatility in a manner that captivates the audience. Mr. W. H. Powell is now the Dr. Napoleon Crow, and gives an exposition of eccentric comedy that is most amusing; Miss Kitty Cavendish as Lesbia acts with much ability, and her songs are charmingly rendered; Miss Avis Grahame makes a humorous Marina, and some clever dances are contributed by Miss Mabel Fairchild; Mr. Manfred Russell's Jules is a creditable performance; as Francois Mr. Frederick Hobbs gets his best chance in the last act with the dashing military song, in which he makes a hit; Mr. William Griffin plays the Count de Cideaux with good effect; as the old sailor, Father Dotard, Mr. Fred Seymour gives a clever performance; Mr. Aubrey Carr as Alphonse, and Mr. George Paulton as a Banker, lends able support.

GRAND, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascart.—Mr. J .W. Whitbread's company, in a round of Irish plays, opened on Monday with the romantic drama, Lord Edward, or '98, Mr. Robert Faulkner being in the title-part. He acquitted himself in his well-known style, and gained admiration for his manly rendering. Mr. Dane Clarke, who directs the tour, as the informer, Francis Magan, brought down the wrath of the house for his embodiment of stage villainy; Mr. Ion Ireland as Francis Higgins did well; Mr. James O'Brien as Thady, in acting and singing repeated former successes; and Mr. James Daly as Neilson, Mr. Henry Richardson as Tony. Mr. Charles Boyle as General Hotche, Mr. Henry Forrest as Major Sirr, and Mr. G. Nolan as Major Swan, all lent valued aid in the performance; Miss Cecilia Dare as Pamela, acted with sympathy; Miss Mollie Miller as Edward was admired in this juvenile part, and the Katey of Miss Monica Kelly was very sprightly. The playing of the Lord Edward Brass Band added to the interest of the representation.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Miss Annie Bell's company is appearing this week in Sapho, a new version of Daudet's celebrated French novel by Birkett Winning. Miss Bell, who portrays the title-rôle, does not belie her high reputation; Jean Gausin is in the hands of Mr. Sidney Arnold, who plays this part with more than ordinary success; Cesaire is also capably presented by Mr. George Autley; Little Miss Graham as Joseph is all that could be wished; the acting of Pringle Roberts as Flamond is most impressive and convincing; and Mr. H. Langford as Caroudal, and Mr. Charles Merrion as Dechelette, ably portrayed two elderly roués.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—The Throne of Terror is this week ably interpreted by a company under the direction of Mr. William J. Miller. Mr. Miller is quite equal to the part of Robespierre; Mr. Roy Milton is powerful as Captain Eugène de Lisle; and the Comte de Roquefort is well played by Mr. Frank Fuller; Miss Katherine Maude Davies succeeds in evoking the sympathy of the audience as Marguerite; Miss Ethel Lanyon Maude effectively sustains the character of Victorine; and the comedy parts are in the capable keeping of Mr. Bert Ellis as Goujou, and Miss Eva Norman as Peppietta. The drama was very well staged.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr J. H. Oakden.—Messrs. C. H. Phelps and Harry Tilbury's company is providing the attraction here in The Blind Foundling, written by Mr. Phelps, who appears in the part of Gerald Dalton, and gives a clever performance; Mr. Alfred G. Fry is a forcible Mark Redman; Mr. Harry Tilbury, a funny Dick Dobbins, contributing several songs; and Miss Millie Doris as Winnie also ably assists with songs and humour; as Fairy, the blind foundling, Miss Mabel Hall gives a clever and pathetic performance; Miss Belle Tilbury acts with fine effect as Isabel; and Mr. Bernard Webb as Jasper Waterford, Mr. Frank Harvey as Parson Ray, Miss Arline T. George as a Gipsy, and Miss Amy Dalby as Viola are all well placed.

NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong.—The attraction here this week is the successful drama The Mysteries of London, which is under the direction of Mr. M. Montgomery. Mr. Alfred D. Adams as Victor presents a good picture of the scientific assassin, and Miss Laurie A. Pardie is seen to advantage as Lena North.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Limited; District Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Mussett.—Chirgwin is the principal attraction here, and the white-eyed one rattles on with jokes and puns, and an occasional sly dig at our local fads. His musical items are heartily enjoyed, and, of course, "The Blind Boy" is asked for, and played. Lockhart's elephants, under the guidance of Captain Taylor, give a very clever performance. Two strongly contrasted human beings are on view here, viz., Henri Cot, the French giant, and Prince Colibri, the Russian midget. Mabel Bardine and company appear in a taking sketch, Nell of the Halls. Harrigan and Holt, as before, shine in patter and dancing; Jean Seul's mystery turn is cleverly worked; Atroy is a smart juggler and hoop manipulator; Violi's musical items are highly popular; and Algernon J. Hicks gives several neat impersonations of Dickens's characters.

ZOO HIPPODROME.—Proprietors Moss' Empires, Limited, and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Great counter attractions in no way diminish the patronage bestowed on this popular place of amusement. Frank and Jen Latona (great Glasgow favourites) top the bill, and their amusing sketch, The Musical Slavey, meets with a great reception; a clever entertainment is given by Carrie Laurie and her juveniles; Woodward and Walton are clever exponents of sand dancing, and the Three Behans are smart comedy artists and dancers; Charles Unthan, the armless wonder; Ruby Dahl, in her latest novelty, The Merry Mannikins; Arthur Albert, comedian; Alburtus and Bartram, club jugglers; Picton Roxborough and Fanny Wright, in musical comedy; and the Hippodrome series of animated pictures, make other acceptable turns.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Morris and company appear in a scena, The Lost Coon, with lots of lively singing, dancing, and fun included; Ernest Montefiore and company present a dramatic and pathetic playlet, The Little Colonel, which takes well; Fred Russell, with the aid of Coster Joe, provides one of the best ventriloquial turns going; Chummie La Mara sings her songs with lots of dash and style; and Maud Esmond also scores well; Will Sergeant's speciality song is very successful; the Five Saxonians in a musical turn; Eugénie Fougère, chanteuse; and Carlo Bianchi, equilibrist, complete an excellent programme.

COLISSEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—The bill here is a first-rate one from every point of view. The Boissetts and company are seen in the humorous A Trip to the Continent; Harriett Vernon as the Lilac Girl is a big draw, her fine costumes and her well-rendered ditties winning universal admiration; the Fisher Opera Trio, in an excerpt from Faust, please lovers of music; the singing of Charles Robinson is excellent; MacDonald and Huntingdon are capital American singers and dancers; and the eccentric musical turn of the Three Albions finds many admirers; Stuart and Stuart are successful comedy artists; the illustrative walks of Will English are amusing; and the Bioscope is deserving of mention.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Fred Locke's amusing extravaganza called The Trippers is being presented here this week by Charles Majilton's company. Mabel Hind is an acceptable comedienne; Will Lytton displays versatility; the Akimotos, Japanese troupe of acrobats, do some astonishing feats of strength and balancing; Billy Williams, Australian comedian, provides an excellent entertainment; the original Cecilias are clever performers on various instruments; the patter of Williams and Warden rattles on to a laughing accompaniment; the Seven Zerbinis present a brilliant spectacular and musical display; Harry Brown is a coloured comedian whose singing, dancing, and fun are much applauded; and the Palacescope completes a pleasant programme.

QUEEN'S.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—An excellent programme is provided here this week. Ada Fawn, comedienne and vocalist, is at the top of the bill; the Cullane Comedy Trio are specially favoured; Mulvey and Miriam, in an amusing comedy act, are successful; and other attractions include Chas. Lestre, juggler; Chas. Serra, statuary equilibrist; Bertha Winder, clog dancer; Two Paolias, athletic specialists; Maggie Binnie, vocalist; Tom Moore, comedian and vocalist; and the Bioscope.

AMUSEMENTS IN EDINBURGH.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—A most cordial and demonstrative reception by a large audience greeted Mr. H. B. Irving on Monday evening, when he appeared with Miss Dorothea Baird and a special company in Mr. Stephen Phillips' poem-play, Paolo and Francesca. The work has not hitherto been seen in Edinburgh, and increased interest was therefore manifested in the production of this tragic story, told as it is with striking simplicity in rhythmic language of singular beauty. Mr. Irving did every justice to the rôle of Giovanni Malatesta, to which his personality and talents enabled him to give a most impressive interpretation. Miss Baird was exquisitely tender as the child-like Francesca; and the sterner character of Lucrezia was well sustained by Miss Maud Hilton, who rendered with great effect some of the finest lines in the play. The Paolo of Mr. E. Harcourt Williams was marked by manly dignity and sympathetic appreciation of the part; Miss Ada Mellon as the blind and aged Angela was powerful in the description of her prophetic dream; and able support was contributed by Mr. F. Tyars, Mr. T. Reynolds, and Mr. Charles Dodsworth, as Corrado, Marco, and old Pulci respectively; as well as by Miss Nannie Bennett as Tessa and Miss Elaine Inescourt as Nita. On Saturday evening Mr. Irving appears in The Lyons Mail.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. George T. Minshull.—Playgoers may congratulate themselves on the revival of Faust Up-to-Date, happily brought this week to Edinburgh by an admirable company under the management of Mr. F. J. Harris. The humour of this spirited burlesque is well carried through by Mr. Herbert Sparling in the rôle of Mephistopheles, who fires off innumerable political gags and topical allusions with the happiest effect. Miss Eda Mardy is charming as Marguerite, and gives distinction to the part both by her acting and singing. Some most amusing comedy is contributed by Mr. Stephen Adeson as the Lord Chancellor, and Mr. Fred Winn gets unlimited fun out of an irresistibly entertaining personation of Valentine. Miss Moyra Sackville, as the rejuvenated Faust, acts with great vivacity, adding dainty dancing to sweet singing; the somewhat broad comedy character of Martha is successfully undertaken by Miss Marie Shiels; and minor parts are all well filled. A large and efficient chorus does full justice to the attractive music, while the nimble work of a clever troupe of dancers increases the attractions of a delightful performance.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton.—Miss Annie Abbot is quite a magnetic attraction at the head of this week's bill. She cannot be lifted herself by the strongest man; yet she not only lifts ten men, and more, but easily draws a full house. So much may be accomplished by a little bit of science in the right place. Alexandre and Hughes provide another strong turn, their clever concertina playing and really good patter maintaining their assured popularity. Mr. Ludwig Amann's impersonations of notabilities are, if possible, better than ever. Messrs Mark Melford & Co. appear to advantage in the quietly humorous sketch Only a Wedding; and another amusing sketch, entitled Watch the Chalk, is rattled through in an agreeably boisterous fashion by Goodfellow and Gregson, assisted by Mr. Bert Wade. The Barowsky Trio introduce some novelty, as well as smartness, into their excellent acrobatic display; Rezene and Robini, trapeze and knockabout artists, also give a good performance; Mr. C. J. Johnson, a coloured comedian, finds great favour with the audience for his nimble dancing in cake-walk style; while a second good dancer is found in Mr. Josh Dixon, whose efforts are in many ways reminiscent of the late Dan Leno. Mr. George Reeves, comedian, and Miss Rosie Bartlett, comedienne, both contribute pleasing turns; and a series of good pictures is exhibited by the American bioscope.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Fischer.—The Scarlet Clue, a sensational drama, is presented here this week by Miss Grace Warner's company. Mr. George Gordon, as Michael Stanton, a swell mobsman, plays with powerful realism. Miss Grace Warner in the part of Sal Scarlet shows fine dramatic power and artistic skill. In the dual rôle of the twin brothers Mr. Reginald Brown gives a clever study; Mr. Arthur Page contributes a capital character sketch of Crazy Jim; and Mr. J. L. Leigh as Billy the Rotter supplies most of the comic business. Miss Hilda Herne makes a sweet and attractive Elsie Dane; Little Violet Palfrey as Little Polly acts in a delightfully natural manner; Miss M. Stamer as Miss Edmond and Mr. S. Brien as Edward Croker give excellent impersonations.

NEW MUSIC.

"Good-bye, girlie, I must go," is written by Messrs. Charlesworth and Clifton Bingham, and set to music by Edward St. Quentin, the publishers being W. Morley and Co., Great Portland-street, W. The song has considerable merit. It is supposed to be the farewell of a young soldier just called to the front. The lover is clearly brave and manly, and tries to cheer up the maiden he is leaving in sorrow. The music is quite appropriate, being a mixture of martial and sentimental strains, and we fancy, if sung with spirit in a popular music hall, it could not fail to gain an enthusiastic reception. The chorus is also just the kind of music to rouse the public. We therefore predict a future success for "Good-bye, girlie."

MR. CHARLES MCCONNELL has been elected a member of the Stockwell Angling Society. This flourishing body, which includes amongst its numbers so many well known professionals, is on the look out for some good private water.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA.

Kind expressions from Authors and Managers.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT.

"I congratulate you on your 'Fifty Years of the Drama': the list must prove both interesting and useful to lovers of and workers for the stage."

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES.

"I think the new feature of The Era is most interesting and useful. A list of plays produced from 1850 to 1900 will certainly be of great service to a very large number of your readers."

MR. EDWARD TERRY.

"An admirable idea, and will prove a most valuable record."

MR. FRANK CURZON.

"Your list, I think, will be most useful for reference."

MRS. W. K. CLIFFORD.

"I think the list will be immensely useful."

MR. SYDNEY GRUNDY.

"Your list will be exceedingly useful. But, of course, there is no reason why old titles should not be used again. Indeed, some day we shall have to go back to them. Some of our modern titles, when they are not mere proper names with an adjective attached, display the desperation of the dramatist in too ludicrous a light. Such a title as 'The Importance of Being Earnest' amounts to a misdemeanour."

MR. ARTHUR W. PINERO.

"The list of plays produced during the last half-century is a most valuable record. The thanks of those interested in the theatre are due to The Era for this and many other enterprises."

MR. ALFRED SUTRO.

"The list you are compiling will be of very great benefit, and I am looking forward to the time when it shall be complete, and obtainable in pamphlet form."

MR. JUSTIN HUNTLY McCARTHY.

"I have watched with the greatest interest the progress of your alphabetical list of the plays published during the last half of the nineteenth century. It is a most useful undertaking, and when it appears in volume form it must prove of great value to all who are concerned with the drama."

MR. ISRAEL ZANGWILL.

"The list of plays will be very interesting and useful when published in complete form. The etiquette of the profession apparently still allows of novelists' titles being used by playwrights. Thus, The Master, which will appear in your list as a play by somebody else, is the name of a book of mine; while the new play, Noah's Ark, has the same title as a shorter story of mine."

MR. ARTHUR LAW.

"The publication in The Era of a list of plays produced during the fifty years, 1850-1900, is an excellent idea, and will be most useful to authors who may be in doubt as to their right to a certain title. When it is issued in book form I shall be very glad to possess a copy."

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER.

"Mr. Arthur Bourchier thinks the list very useful indeed."

MR. TOM GALLON.

"Your idea seems to me to be a most excellent one. Quite apart from the fact that there is always a difficulty in knowing what titles have been used, there very often arises the question of when and where a play was actually produced—a question difficult to be answered. Actors and authors should alike be grateful to The Era."

MR. HAROLD MONTAGUE.

"I think the idea of printing a list of plays produced during the last fifty years an excellent one. It should be of great value to authors."

MR. ARTHUR SHIRLEY.

"The list of produced plays was not merely a happy thought, for the same idea has probably occurred to many, though until The Era carried it out no one took the pains to collect and publish such a truly valuable record.

"Managers, dramatists, as well as would-be authors, will henceforward have a long list of titles to refer to, and there will be neither reason nor excuse for encroaching on pre-existing copyright in play titles. What a lot of trouble it should save us all!"

MR. WALTER MELVILLE.

"I think it shows great enterprise on the part of your journal, and likely to prove most useful and at the same time interesting to the general profession."

MR. ARTHUR MORRISON.

"The list you are publishing will be a most valuable work of reference to everybody taking an interest in the stage, and I have no doubt that when it is published as a book you will find its success warrant you in issuing fresh editions from time to time, with the information brought to date in each case."

MR. J. J. DILLEY.

"The idea is an excellent one, and there can be no question at all of the usefulness of such a summary. Cousin Grace has not been included. This is a little piece from the French, played at a matinée performance at the Gaiety Theatre, Dec. 4, 1884."

MR. COSMO HAMILTON.

"I think that your new feature is an excellent and most useful one. A list of plays produced during fifty years is interesting not only to the playgoer, but essentially so to the manager and the playwright. They will only have to consult it to be sure that a title has not been used before."

MR. CHARLES H. E. BROOKFIELD.

"My attention has been called to your list of plays produced between 1850-1900. I have no doubt it will prove interesting and useful to many."

MR. F. FRANKFORT MOORE.

"The list of plays produced during the past fifty years, now appearing in The Era, will, I am certain, prove, when completed, extremely valuable to everyone associated with the drama in England. I am convinced—and I have had a considerable amount of experience in this direction—that it will be especially valued by all writers upon stage matters. The advantage of being able to refer at a moment's notice to the criticisms upon the production of various plays in various newspapers must be apparent to everyone. If such a list had been in existence some years ago I would have been saved a vast amount of worry and vexation of spirit. The Era has once again proved itself appreciative of the conditions under which the best interests of the drama in England are maintained."

MR. LOUIS N. PARKER.

"I think your list of plays, produced between 1850 and 1900, will, like the other contents of your paper, be invaluable."

Manager Fred Morgan, of the Theatre Royal, Norwich,
says:—
"As good a play as "The Sign of the Cross." There is a fortune in it. I cannot see how it can fail."

This unsolicited expression of opinion comes from a manager who for over a quarter of a century has been associated with the highest forms of dramatic art, and whose wide experience and vast knowledge make his opinion of great value.

What Higher Recommendation is Possible?

"WHEN IT WAS DARK."
"WHEN IT WAS DARK."
"WHEN IT WAS DARK."

Manager Francis Laidler, of the Prince's Theatre, Bradford,
said:—
"A fine play. Will make a lot of money."
Manager C. Imeson,

said:—
"Delighted with it. A great play."
Manager E. Shirrah, Theatre Royal, Manchester,
said:—
"There are great moments in the play."
Manager Eastwood,
Colosseum Theatre, Oldham,
said:—
"A fine play. Beautiful."
Manager Hardy,
Theatre Royal, Rotherham,
says:—
"Not only my circle, but my pit and gallery have been alike in their verdict. It is one of the most interesting stories they have ever had the pleasure of witnessing."

But One Opinion in all Classes of Theatres,
"A great play."

To those who would acquire the beauty of a great thought, "When it was Dark" will supply it.—Bristol.
The Times.
It is a play that is bound to make one think. It has a wonderful depth, a wonderful hold upon the audience, and it was set forth at the Theatre Royal last night with such a completeness and vividness of colouring that, whilst it was at times weird, it at others inspired awe. The acting and mounting reaches a standard which has never been excelled, and rarely equalled, at the Theatre Royal, for many years at any rate.—Bristol.
The Guardian.
It cannot be seriously urged that there is anground for an opinion other than that the play is a most remarkable one, and that it is admirably conceived, and is as educative as it is interesting.—Crewe.
Midland Telegraph.
A more remarkable, brilliantly-conceived, interesting, and, in a great measure, educative play one has not seen for many a day.

Further expressions from the Press of Oldham, Bolton, Bradford, Chatham,
Middlesbrough, Burton, &c., &c.
A great thought.
A play which will live for years.
A bold, but meritorious effort, to lift dramatic art to its true level.
All should see this wonderful play, which will do much good.
Appeals with intensity to all sections of the community.
Nothing so daring, so original, so enthralling, has been seen on the stage before.
Other plays dealing with religious questions have been written before, but none have approached this in grandeur of conception.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

No. 1122.

WHEN JENKINS WASHED UP.

A woman is getting ready for a good wash up; she places her bath half full of water on a stool, and gazes around almost despairingly at the many piles of plates and dishes. Feeling somewhat faint she sits down holding her head between her hands, just as her husband enters the room. He, seeing how queer she is, at once volunteers to undertake the task, and with a little persuasion and coaxing leads her from the room.

Taking off his coat the worthy man vigorously starts his job, placing the plates, etc., in the water with none too much care. With much splashing he gives them a rub round and throws them from him to the floor. Picking up another heavy lot, he drops them in the water, and in his carelessness, upsets the whole concern. He still goes on quite undismayed by the damage, breaking and dropping the crockery until the place is full of wreckage. He then starts on the dresser; jumping up he begins to clear all the china, and throws it into the bath. Without warning, the poor man is precipitated through the dresser, it giving way under his strenuous exertions. He crawls out from beneath just as his wife enters the room. The sight overpowers the poor woman and she sinks into the chair in despair. Her husband goes to her side and urges her to be calm and patient. Taking the bath and holding it on high he invites the broken pieces to return. He goes back through the dresser, the plates flying to their places, and the others miraculously adjust themselves between his hands, he taking them with many majestic flourishes.

This picture shows a splendid reversing movement, and gives an extremely comical effect.

LATEST FILM.

THE WORLD'S WIZARD.

The earth, revolving in space, meets with a tremendous upheaval. Every continent splits apart from the world in a holocaust of flame and smoke, and the "World's Wizard" rises like a phœnix from its ashes. Taking each separate continent in his hands he transforms them into smaller globes, which he throws from him. Each globe as it falls bursts open, and a symbolical figure emerges from each shattered ball. Having produced five charming feminine forms, representing Europe, Asia, Africa, America, and Australia, our Wizard changes each one into articles typical of the country. Asia is transformed into a large ivory tusk, and into this he throws the cotton of America, the gold of Australia, and the diamonds of Africa. These commodities mysteriously change to stars, which float into the sky from the tusk, each star containing the face of one of the maidens. Blowing through the tusk, the magician sends out a mystic vapour which condenses into a moon. Showers of streaming ribbons flutter from the edge of the moon as it makes a revolution, and then parting, disclosing fair Luna, Goddess of the Night. At the Wizard's command the moon changes to the crescent, and Luna disappears within the mysterious tusk, but quickly floats out again as the Wizard breathes through the magic horn. Placing the crescent under the recumbent goddess, the "World's Wizard" and the lovely Luna float off on their "honey"-moon through space.

OUR LATEST SUBJECTS

THE MINER'S DAUGHTER.

AN ORIGINAL KINEMATOGRAPH DRAMA. WILLIAMSON'S COPYRIGHT.

List No. 293. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED. Length 600ft.

SCENE 1.—Artist sketching in a wood. Miner's daughter—a dainty country maid—enters and stoops to gather flowers. Artist persuades her to pose in the picture for him.

SCENE 2.—Another woodland scene. Artist and his model have become great friends.

SCENE 3.—Outside of miner's cottage. Miner seated, playing violin; daughter standing beside him, sewing. Enter artist—introduction to father—asking permission to visit—father hesitates—asks them to come inside and talk about it.

SCENE 4.—Interior of cottage. Father, after some consideration and talk with them, forbids the acquaintance. Affecting parting of the lovers rudely interrupted by the father.

SCENE 5.—Outside of cottage—moonlight—elopement.

SCENE 6.—The same morning: Father's search for his daughter—finds letter—tears it up in rage—disowns her.

SCENE 7.—Off to work, very despondingly.

SCENE 8.—An interval of five years. Interior of artist's studio. Wife and child posed on raised platform—artist painting—all the appearance of a rising artist.

SCENE 9.—At the Royal Academy. Fame. The picture in the previous scene can be recognised on the line. Enter artist and wife—congratulations of friends.

SCENE 10.—Explosion in the mine. Shows cage descending with miners—miners at work, among whom the father can be recognised—explosion!—falling timbers—smoke and effects.

SCENE 11.—The Rescue.

SCENE 12.—In hospital. Daughter, hearing of the disaster, hastens to the hospital, to which her father has been taken, but the old man is obdurate—refuses to see her or accept her gifts.

SCENE 13.—A country lane. Motor car draws up. Artist, child and wife alight and walk towards cottage.

SCENE 14.—Another view of the miner's cottage. The miner, convalescent, is seated outside, a nurse in attendance. Miner looks very helpless and despondent—asks for his violin—fruitless attempts to play—vision of his daughter, which fades away as he looks round.

SCENE 15.—Here we see the daughter with her husband and child looking round the corner watching the poor old lonely man. The child is sent to take some flowers to grandpa and make friends with him.

SCENE 16.—The old man sees the child approaching—nurse lifts child on his knee—something in the face or voice tells him who she is—he relents and opens his arms to his daughter, who now runs up to him, followed by her husband, and the reconciliation is complete.

AUTUMN TOURS.

WE ARE NOW VERY BUSY CLEANING DRESSES FOR AUTUMN TOURS, but have plenty of room, and, like Oliver Twist WE ASK FOR MORE.

We are also very busy Cleaning and Renovating Tableaux Curtains and Draperies from London and Country Theatres and Music Halls.

We still hold the field as Cleaners and Dyers to the Theatrical and Music Hall Professions. This fact is clearly proved by the unsolicited testimonials we are continually receiving.

Professional work takes precedence over all other orders.

By Special Arrangement
TOURING MANAGERS
can have their Wardrobes Cleaned between Shows, when in or near London.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St James's Gazette.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN. — HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—Charley's Aunt is as fully appreciated as ever. Mr. Stanley Cooke gives a really admirable impersonation of Lord Fancourt Babberley; Mr. C. B. Keston as Colonel Chesney, Mr. Walter Beaumont as Stephen Spettique, Mr. Hastings Lynn as Jack Chesney, Mr. Richard B. Mason as Charley Wykeham, and Mr. Sydney Compton as Brassett all work admirably together; while Miss Lena McNaughton makes a handsome and stately Donna Lucia, and Miss Lillian Lait and Miss Kity Carew are charming in the parts of Kitty Verdun and Amy Spettique. Miss Gladys Storey is an attractive Ela Delahay. The piece is exceedingly well staged.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Madame Laurie's Children give a delightful performance in The Kindergarten act, and the Reed Oetzmann troupe show unflagging vivacity and exuberant humour in their pantomimic sketch, On Tour in the Tyrol. M. and Mlle. Sardou are singularly skilful exponents of the occult art, and Mr. George Helm and Miss Emmie Cozens appear with success in a highly amusing comedietta, The Doctor and the Patient. Among the other clever artists in the programme are Mr. E. J. Sheldon, a capital comedian; Miss Gertrude Moore, who sings and dances remarkably well; Miss Marie Rivers, an agreeable vocalist; Mr. Cliffe Dover, a good eccentric comedian and dancer; and Selby and Myers, a pair of superior comedians.

ABERTILLERY. — THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Thomas.—Mr. Sidney Dench's company in The Rich and Poor of London is here this week on a special return visit. Mr. Dench himself gives a realistic representation of Spider Jack; Miss Dora Dench as May Braithwaite speedily becomes a favourite; Miss Emily Woodleigh admirably sustains the character of Auntie Scrimp; Miss V. Lesborough makes a capable Ruby Redgrave; Miss Sybil Viney is an amusing Polly Philpot; Mr. Graham Arthurs is responsible for a faithful portrayal of Doctor Morton; Mr. Cole Aspinal could scarcely be better placed than as Mark Grabbem; and Mr. F. Danner made a capital Earl of Ravenswood.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Lyons; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. E. Williams.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company is playing Are You a Mason? here. Mr. Howard L. Tracey's Frank is one of the successes of the performance; and Mr. Ernest Cossart impersonates George Fisher with good results, his make-up as the young milliner being good. Mr. E. H. Paterson, who is also general-manager, as Amos Bloodgood causes considerable fun; and as Hamilton Travers, Mr. Fred Jacques is clever; whilst Mr. Dare Austin's Ernest Morrison is ably played. As John Halton, Mr. Edwin Millins does well; Miss Adelaide Grace as the distrusting mother-in-law is capital; and Miss Mabel Younge's Eva is a meritorious performance. Misses Babs Stuart, Madge Merrique, Dora F. Harvey, and Minnie Rayner make the most of their small but necessary rôles. Mr. Othniel Grahame is acting-manager to the company.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—The Great Awakening is being presented here this week by Miss Maud Hildyard and company. The evil propensities of Lola Selby are portrayed in a thorough manner by Miss Maud Hildyard, who exercises the feminine wiles of the character effectively, and displays at times great tragic intensity. Mr. C. Vivian forcibly presents the part of James Selby, an escaped convict; Mr. Chas. E. Linney is expert in delineating the worst traits of a vicious man; Mr. Bernard Copping doubles the parts of the old baronet, Merton, and his son Jack, the fierce madness of the latter in the later acts being admirably done; Mr. Herbert Evelyn is vigorous in the portrayal of a much-wronged young Captain, the lover of Molly Merton, a part well played by Miss Doris Rigby, who is amiable and sympathetic. The comic element is fully developed in the hands of Miss Isa Billington and Mr. Willie Scott. The mounting of the piece is effective.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—At the Hippodrome Cailler, a man of splendid physique, does some great feats of strength. Lil O'Gorman is a smart comedienne and a graceful dancer. Charles Somers, comedian, provokes considerable mirth; and Bruce and Ross are a droll pair, who combine with their absurdities considerable ability as acrobats and dancers. In Madam Constance Bellamy the audience recognise an old favourite of the operatic stage, and her fine singing is loudly applauded. The Betsons, who describe themselves as "mad cyclists in the drawing-room," give an entertainment of a novel character, and provoked roars of laughter. Lorne and Rene, two charming ladies, won favour by their song scena Capital and Labour. In the second part both ladies displayed great ability as vocalists, and the turn is both novel and pleasing. The Silbon Family present their miniature circus, introducing a couple of smart ponies, a dog, and several cats, which are well trained and sagacious. The Schiavonys are a party of exceedingly smart acrobats (five in number), who perform some marvellous feats of skill and daring. Miss Ella, a young lady of wonderful strength, catches two members of the party, one on each hand, while somersaulting, and carries them round the stage. The butler is a wonderfully clever gymnast, and is screamingly funny. The bioscope pictures are very amusing.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaughten.—This week there is a return to "Picture Entertainments," with Mr. Baker E. Belphor as vocalist.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. Laycock.—A well-balanced programme is presented here this week, the premier position being occupied by a diverting farcical comedy entitled Kiss Your Father, in which that excellent comedian Mr. Lonnon Meadows sustains the part of Felix O'Callaghan in mirth-provoking style. Other parts are well filled by Messrs. Lewis Leslie, J. W. Wilkinson, W. Dunlop, Miss Ada Tilley, and Miss L. Leslie. Ariel and Astarte (lady and gentleman) give a clever and smart exhibition on the horizontal bars and swinging trapeze; Miss Maud Beaumont is a dashing burlesque actress, and sings her songs in winsome manner; Mr. E. C. Clayton's pictures are well received; a very entertaining turn is furnished by Captain Devereux's splendidly trained dogs; Mr. W. H. Downs, coloured ballad vocalist, is a favourite with his well-rendered songs; the Bros. Harrison, comedians and dancers, and Mr. Jack Crawley, American comedian, complete the bill.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—This week Mr. Edward Marris' No. 1 company, under the direction of Mr. W. H. Kirkby, in Somebody's Sweetheart, is delighting Ayr theatre-goers. Mr. W. H. Kirkby as Martin Blabbé is irresistible in his humour, and is well supported. The Stanton Ashleigh of Mr. E. H. Bertram is manly; Freddy Ashleigh, as played by Miss Millie Gordon, is particularly smart and pleasing. Mr. Douglas B. Watson gives a clever interpretation of the Florida fruit grower; Mr. J. Templar Ellis does capable work as Lem Lee; Old Joe, the negro servant, had a good exponent in Mr. Reg. Hugh Hamber; and Mr. Dan Dane made an admirable detective; Miss Molly Hackett as Lulu (Somebody's Sweetheart) dances, acts, and sings winsomely and sweetly, making herself very popular; Zora is made appropriately fascinating by Miss Cordelia Knight; Mrs. Ainslie is well played by Miss Norah Melton; and the two barmaids, Molly and Kitty, are capably presented by Miss Rosie Chandler and Miss Dolly Payne.

LOW GREEN.—Ernest Hampson's Pierrots continue to attract large and fashionable audiences. In addition to the strong combination, the open-air cinematograph has proved an excellent draw. Mr. F. H. Dundas is still a favourite with his continual change of songs; Messrs. Giddings and Mannialing some pleasing songs; Mr. Chas. Champney is a vocalist of no mean merit; whilst Messrs. Kent and Heyes also appear. Mr. Arthur Sherwin is the efficient pianist.

BARNSTAPLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—On Tuesday and Wednesday Mr. Charles Macdona's talented company attracted large audiences to witness A Chinese Honeymoon on its third visit here. Considerable interest attaches to Miss Kitty Clayton's delightfully clever rendering of Fi Fi, the much-maligned waitress; Mrs. Pineapple was capably handled by Miss Florence Wilton, who certainly deserved the applause extended to her for several popular items; Miss Frances Olgar, though undertaking the part of Princess Soo Soo at short notice, did exceedingly well; Miss May Davis and Miss Louie Love were the Princess's charming maids of honour; and the Misses Dulcie Greatwich and Sybil Ross ably enacted the coquettish bridesmaids. Miss Alma Bolton excelled as the ubiquitous and domineering official mother-in-law; Mr. James Wilson has a fine voice, and gave a creditable portryal of the mighty Emperor; Mr. Lindsay Harman as Pineapple created plenty of fun, eliciting applause for his rendering of the "Happy Land"; Mr. Edwyn Sykes worked hard as the quaint Chinese Admiral; and Mr. Louis Ashmeade as the relentless Lord Chancellor and Mr. C. P. Howard as Tom Hatherton satisfactorily undertook their respective parts.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Monte Cristo is being presented here. Mr. Junius Booth plays the mysterious Count with all the necessary force and intensity; Miss Claire Elstob is winning and graceful as Mercedes; the M. Noirtier of Mr. E. H. Templeton and the Baron Danglars of Mr. Bert Elvin are both well done; Mr. C. W. Crowe plays strongly as General Fernand Mondego; and the M. Villeport of Mr. Walter Huron is capital. Miss Emma Robberds as La Carconte is particularly good, and Mr. Leonard Marshall is an acceptable Lieut. Albert de Morcerf.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Howard Cochran is here this week with The Marriage of Kitty company. He himself, as Sir Reginald Belsize, Bart., is extremely good and versatile, and in the title-rôle Miss Aida Jenoure secures an artistic triumph; Mr. Cecil Wilford is capital as John Travers, and Mme. de Semiano is cleverly portrayed by Miss Betty Castle. A curtain-raiser, A Proposal, sustained by Miss Gladys Dare and Mr. Colet Dare, precedes the above.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—The McConnell Trio gave a funny musical sketch entitled A Musical Mistake; Harry Conlin has a capital budget of songs; Frank Maura does some clever tricks; Bert Woodward is an expert at cycling feats; Eily Adair proves a clever dancer, as also does Rosie Coleman; Miss Cura, in a trapeze act, and Vernon's Bioscope complete the programme.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—The regular autumn season commenced on Monday with a capital all-round representation of Two Little Vagabonds. Miss Jessie Yatman and Miss Violet Bazalgette as Dick and Wally each score in their respective rôles; Marion Thornton is enacted with care and no little power by Miss Valerie Crespin; Mr. John Macfarlane fulfils all requirements as George Thornton; Capt. Darville is well impersonated by Mr. Edward McLean; and Bill and Biddy Mullins find a couple of typical representatives in Mr. Lionel Ellis and Miss Violet Vivian.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schubert.—Certainly one of the best and most amusing musical comedy acts is that given by Tom and Marie Motramo, who are scoring a big success here this week; Zaro and Arno are applauded in their clever and funny bar act; Tod Lowan is a comedian who gains hearty applause; Playfair and Nikola, papierographists, present an uncommon interlude; Madie Scott, comedienne, wins her way quickly into the hearts of the audience; Lambert and Glover's farcical dialogue goes well; Beattie and Blanche, duettists and dancers, are another pair of performers that add to the pleasure of the house; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux are interesting.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Robert Courtneige's company opened here on Monday in The Blue Moon. No greater success could have been achieved than that gained by Miss Florence Smithson—a delightful actress—who furnished an exceedingly charming impersonation of Chandra Nil, the Burmese singing girl. Mr. Bert Gilbert was simply inimitable as Private Charles Taylor, and as the Indian juggler, Moolraj, Mr. Edward Lewis was decidedly amusing, creating roars of laughter. As the gallant Major Vivian Callabone, Mr. Leslie Gaze was thoroughly convincing; and Mr. Herbert Clayton made a manly Captain Jack Ormsby. Miss Lulu Valli must be congratulated on her vivacious interpretation of Millicent Leroy; and a dainty and graceful impersonation of Evelyn Ormsby was furnished by Miss Daisy Revell; Miss Mabel Lorrell was an excellent Lady Brabasham and Mr. Thos. Holding a dignified Prince Badahur. Mr. George Mudie, jun., as Bobbie Scott sang well.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The chief feature of this week's bill is the production of the pantomime-sketch, The Sioux, by Mr. Arthur Conquest and his sketch combination. Mr. Conquest's impersonation of Chadi, the ape, is undoubtedly the most realistic impersonation of an animal ever seen here. Another feature is the performance of Lockhart's elephants, introduced by Captain Taylor. The Three Zaracs appear to advantage in their comedy triple bar act; and Mr. Barney Armstrong's comic songs have been hugely enjoyed. The Ludderites appear in their astounding performance; and others appearing are Massina, a clever juggler; the Sisters Dixon, duettists; Miss Lena Brunton, comedienne and mimic, and the Palace pictures.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Mr. Mark Melford, supported by a most capable company, heads the bill here with Only a Wedding. Mr. James H. Jee performs some difficult feats on the wire; Mr. Albert Le Fre is a droll comedian and agile dancer; the extraordinary feats of Mr. G. H. Unthan, the armless wonder, occasion vast surprise; and much praise is due to Sanford and Lyons, expert dancers. The Sisters Rosedale are charming duettists and dancers; and Miss Irene Rose is aptly described as a clever dancer. The bill is completed by Stuart and Stuart, comedy artists.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Douns.—Under the personal direction of Mr. M. Montgomery, jun., this week the Alhambra Dramatic Company present the funny farcical sketch The Barber, which on Monday drew good houses at each performance. Miss Nina Blake-Adams, a clever actress, furnished an exceedingly charming impersonation of Marion Fancourt; and Mr. Herbert Cecil as the young lover, Arthur Parr, was decidedly successful; Mr. W. G. Wesley kept the fun going merrily with his impersonation of Henry Horner, being ably assisted by Miss Effie Macintosh, who furnished a vivacious interpretation of Harriette. Mr. Horace Denton must be commended for his clever impersonation of Francois Peroli; and Mr. J. F. Pearce was the Irishman Jack O'Brien to the life; Mr. Cyril Grier and Mr. H. Arnold Allen were admirable as Mr. Carter and Tommy. Mr. Herbert Cecil was responsible for the admirable stage management.

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—This week Mr. Charles Verney's company is presenting The Coal King here. Mr. Angus Alexander is powerful as Walter Harford, and Mr. Alec Alexander makes a capital Tom Roberts. The Grace Shirley of Miss Olive Lloyd is a highly commendable piece of work. Miss Florence Mitchell proves very successful as Mad Ann, and Mr. Tod Squires is amusing as Jem Williams.

AL-FRESCO PAVILION. — Proprietor, Mr. H. Battersby; Musical-Director, Mr. Bertram Brennan.—This week sees the close of the season at the Pavilion. A capital programme is provided by the Imperial Pierrots and the Imperial Quartette.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. Monillot's company opened here on Monday in the ever popular musical comedy The Geisha. A crowded house witnessed an excellent representation, in which Miss Lydia Bland was prominent with a charming rendering of O. Mimosa

San; Miss Edith Adeson was a bewitching Molly Seymour; the French interpreter was admirably played by Miss Doris Langdon; and Miss Winifred Knightly gave a fine portrayal of Lady Constance Knightly gave a fine portrayal of Lady Constance Wynn; Mr. Edward Kipling's performance of Wun Hi was irresistibly funny; Mr. J. H. Booth was an unexceptionable Marquis Imari, and Messrs. Wilfred Heath, F. Pollard, William Strong, and Squire were efficient as the four naval officers. Miss Emily Lovell was a good Tom Stanley, and remaining parts were in adequate hands. For Friday A Greek Slave was billed.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Mr. George Bastow, the popular comedian, is a leading attraction. The Eight Lancashire Lads sing and dance themselves into favour, and Donaldson Brothers and Ardel make a success in A Zoological Comedy. Mr. Austin Rudd, an excellent comedian, is renewing previous success, and a capital company also includes Haig and Wovel, comedians and acrobats; Professor Vox, ventriloquist; Miss Nora Emerald, soubrette; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Huntley.—The boards here this week are occupied by Mr. Hilliard Vox and company in the latest American success, Alaska, a play which is receiving good patronage. Mr. Hilliard Vox as Skookum Jim is seen to great advantage, his acting being very warmly applauded. As Ned Larson Mr. C. D. Pitt is admirably placed, whilst Mr. Bevan Penton gives a capable rendering of Father Bernard; Mr. M. Crimson's interpretation of Baptiste, the half-breed, is also worthy of mention. The sympathy and appreciation of the audience is early won by Miss Ethel Rainforth as Jess Dalton, and Miss G. Hastings Walton is warmly received in her efforts as Alaska. Merriment is caused by Mr. Albert Rogers as Pompey Cæsar. The juveniles, Miss E. Clarke as Topsy and little Baby Rosie as the Widow's Mite, do exceedingly well, and contribute in no small measure towards the success of the production.

BLACKBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Leah Kleschna is here. Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh have a strong company. Miss Bessie Rignold plays Leah with great power, and Mr. W. F. Grant, an Australian actor, acts finely in the part of Sylvaine. Kleschna is in the hands of Mr. Paul Belmore, whose portrayal of this difficult part is excellent, and as Raoul Berton, Mr. Hamilton Deane is excellent.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Mr. John B. Shinton's company in The Price of Her Soul is proving a powerful attraction here. Chief amongst a capital company may be mentioned Mr. Shinton himself, who, in the part of Lord Rolfe Mandeville, V.C., is admirable, and Miss Ada Ryder, who gives a powerful representation of the Countess Mary Steinmetz.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—The extended engagement over the present week of the musical Savonas and the cycling Elliotts has given much satisfaction to the patrons of this house. Excellent performers also in the company are Will Vay's juveniles; the Athlones, society athletes; Will Johnson, who is known as "the lively comedian"; Baroux and Bion, eccentric acrobats; Tom Yorke, comedian; Daisy Martell, dancer; and Mark Leslie, coon artist. Raymond's biograph is still showing excellent pictures.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. Fred Terry and Miss Julia Neilson have commenced their autumn tour here with Dorothy o' the Hall. Miss Neilson's performance affords the audience great delight; Mr. Fred Terry is a gallant Sir John Manners, and Mr. J. Carter-Edwards works hard and successfully as Sir George Vernon; Mr. Horace Hodges contributes an excellent portrayal of Perkin; Sir Malcolm Vernon is made sufficiently repulsive by Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw; Mr. Frederick Groves carefully embodies the Earl of Rutland; Mr. D. J. Williams acquits himself satisfactorily as Lord Burleigh; and the part of Sir Wiliam St. Loe is in the experienced and able hands of Mr. Malcolm Cherry. Both Miss Miriam Lewes (Queen Elizabeth) and Miss Lilias Waldegrave (Queen Mary) give proofs of histrionic skill; and Misses Claire Pauncefort, Mary Mackenzie, and Marion Sterling are good in small parts. The staging and dresses are admirable.

GRAND THEATRE. — Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—The Girl from Kay's, as enacted by Mr. George Dance's company, is paying us a return visit here this week. A capital Max Hoggenheimer is Mr. Arthur Stigant, whose topical songs are loudly encored; Harry Gordon has a capable exponent in Mr. Herbert Franklyn, and Mr. Tom Shelford hits off exactly the inanity of Percy Fitzthistle. Miss Nancy Hervyn sings and dances well as Winnie Harborough; and Miss Amy Grey, who possesses a charming voice, is a dainty and winsome Norah Chalmers. The other parts are in efficient hands, and the strong and tuneful chorus is under the direction of Mr. Basil Horsfall. Mr. T. Hopcutt is the business manager of the company.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Yukio Tani, the wrestler, continues to top the bill here; Miss S. Whallen, a diverting extempore vocalist, is retained from last week; the newcomers are Hermon Melot, French conjurer; Will Walton, comedian; Morris Cronin, with his wonderful troupe of modern jugglers; Mlle. Haydee, with her miniature vaudeville theatre; the Martelli Troupe of lady acrobats; the Quartos, in their sketch The Morning Mail; the Dumonds, in a musical act; the McNulty Sisters, singers and dancers; and Richard Corbin, with his performing dogs. Vernon's Bioscope is still here.

HIPPODROME. — Lessees, Messrs. Whitehead and Ramsden; General Manager, Mr. T. P. Duignan.—J. W. Hall, who makes a welcome reappearance here this week and occupies the place of honour on the programme; Ike Scott and Son, comedians; and F. V. St. Clair, up-to-date vocalist, are retained from last week. Harry Weldon, the "swell" comedian, scores a great success; the contributions of the Camerons in the sketch The Plough Boy and the Lady Guide; Lillian Warren, vocalist; Gus Merriman, eccentric musician; Sisters Wingrove, duettists and dancers; H. Pawson, illusionist; the Cheshire Sketch company; Rita and Roma, speciality artists; and the Miniature Florry are also cordially received.

WINTER GARDENS PAVILION. — General Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The wonderfully successful ballet, In Sunny Spain, has been performed here twice daily for several weeks, and is now more popular than ever. The variety programme still remains unchanged.

TOWER CIRCUS.—General Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop.—The new arrivals include Morasso, American jockey; the Joskarys, comedy acrobats; the Larails, gymnasts; the Lecussons, with fine expositions of horsemanship; the Four Holloways, acrobatic wire artists; and Lotto, Lilo, and Otto, famous trick cyclists. Besides these are the Kellinos, acrobats; the Musical Johnstons; the Novellos, in their spectacular equilibristic act; August and September, comedians; and the Famous Finneys, expert swimmers, all of whom are favourites.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. C. Moody.—Mr. Douglas Wentworth's company has been presenting here The Bauble Shop. Mr. Frederick Annerley undertook the part of Lord Olivebrook, and gave a fine portrayal; Mr. John Cecil as Mr. Stoack, M.P., was seen to advantage; and the Earl of Sarum, in the hands of Mr. J. K. Henson, was a successful performance; Miss Lily Bertram as Jessie scored a pronounced success.

TUDOR'S CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Mr. George E. Good continues in possession, and submits a fine series of pictures, together with good variety turns, which are drawing good houses. The new arrivals this week are Vere and Royall, comedy artists; Sylverto, juggler; and Fred Weston, character comedian.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—This week Mr. Samuel James's company is presenting the drama As Good as Gold to large audiences. Of the principal characters, Miss Gertrude Bonser gives a delightful rendering of the part of the heroine, Nora Williams, making the most of many exacting situations; Lieut. Jack Stanton is finely portrayed by Mr. Wm. Heilbroun; Mr. Eric Hudson renders the difficult part of Sir Richard Wharncliffe (the villain) with much effect; and Miss Marie McAuley is successful as Kate D'Arville.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Tina Clementa tops the bill here with her highly trained horse and greyhounds. Other turns are Bijou Russell, a sprightly coon singer and sand dancer; Herbert La Martine, eccentric dancer and bâton manipulator; Thos. E. Finglass, coon singer; Gus Harris, with his vocal scena, The Synagogue; Lily Black, a charming comedienne; Lily Vane, descriptive vocalist; Yorkshire Tom, animal mimic; Warden Reed and Co. in a laughable sketch, Married or Photographed; Chas. F. Best in an original comedy act, MacBunker, the Mountebank; Terry and Bentley, and the Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE.—MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—The boards are occupied this week by Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company in the Hindoo drama A Traitor Prince. The play is full of stirring incidents, and the part of Lala Vane is sweetly portrayed by Miss Rose Routledge. The bulk of the work falls on Mr. G. M. Montanini as Prince Rao, who sustains the character with great energy throughout, and is ably assisted by Miss Nesta Sandford as Vashti. Mr. Edmond O'Grady makes an amusing Billy Bright; and Miss Kitty Thomas is a vivacious Pansy Blossom. Mr. Victor Rae is seen to advantage in the character of Cara, playing the part with calm deliberation. Other characters in the piece are well placed.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME.—Joint proprietors, Messrs. Frederick Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Ball.—Eugene Stratton, in his delightful coon imitations and dancing, is heading the bill here this week. The Gotham Comedy Quartette give their contribution in a most attractive manner; the Bensons are great favourites in their vocal efforts; an amusing musical comedy sketch, entitled On the Links, is given by the Four Burnells; the Sisters Terry, baby mimics and comediennes; and Allis and Casatti win much applause; as does Little Dando, comedian in miniature; and the Calcotts, musical entertainers. The Hippodrome pictures conclude a good bill of fare.

BOSTON.—PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. Saphrini.—At the top of the bill here we have Le Diabelo, who loops the devil's wheel; Billy Ross and Co. in their Irish comedy act, The Hot Member, makes the audience roar with laughter. Zavan is well received in his contortion act; Maisey Adair is very good with her piccaninnies, and Marie de Pasco, lightning clay modeller, and the Dewars (Rena and Rex) conclude an excellent show.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. D. Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—A second return visit is being paid this week by Mr. George Dance's company in The Duchess of Dantzic. The part of Catherine is played by Miss May Glen with vivacity, and she sings admirably; Mr. Steve Fitzgerald as Papillon gives a humorous representation; the Lefebre of Mr. Ernest Torrence is capital; and the Napoleon of Mr. Gilbert Yorke is a clever character sketch. All the other parts are capably filled.

SHAFTESBURY HALL.—Mr. J. T. West's animated picture exhibition continues to attract crowded houses nightly. Numerous additions are being added this week, including "Our Ice Supply" and "The Prospectors," which are very popular. Interludes are supplied by Miss Jessie Mayell, a clever reciter, and Mme. Aunette, whose singing gains loud applause.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—The Dairymaids has paid us its first visit. The scenic effects are charming, the costumes are dainty, and there is little doubt of the success of Mr. Robert Courtneidge's venture in the provinces. Miss Edith Blanche fills the part of Lady Brudenell finely, and Sam and Lieut. Frank are well played by Messrs. E. S. Staples and Geo. Desmond. They contribute immensely to the uproarious fun of the piece. Mr. Frank Greene is very good as Captain Fred Leverton; as Dr. O'Bryné Mr. Clarence Blakiston is humorous; Mr. Harry Dent's funny performance of Joe Mivens adds greatly to his reputation; Miss Violet Lloyd is charming as Peggy; and her sister Winifred is represented brightly and smartly by Miss Rhoda Gordon. There is much grace in Miss Beryl Vaudrey's assumption of Hélène, and she scores in the pretty "Wild-rose" song. Miss Madge Avery's Miss Penelope Pyechase is a capital character-study, and Miss Nellie Beryl's Eliza is full of humour. The Farm Hands, Dairymaids, and Academy Girls are a bevy of very charming young ladies, and their work in the pretty gymnasium scene in conjunction with the attractive Sandow-Gibson Girls is a great feature of the production.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. Lester Collingwood is presenting here the sensational drama When London Sleeps. It is realistically staged. Mr. C. P. Wentworth in forcible and telling style portrays Captain Rodney Haynes, and Miss Mabel Scudamore as Queenie Carruthers acts with much power. Mr. Sam Arthur is effective as David Engleheart; Miss Maud York fills the part of Hilda Carode with much ability; Mr. C. E. Sutton as Mr. Furnaby Fuller and Mr. H. Barham as Mark Blackwood are both good. The comedy element is well supplied by Mr D'Arcy Kelway as Sammy Blyth, Mr. Frank Howard as the Hon. Bertie Broomhead, and Miss Bessie Frank as Carrie Jones. The character of Bob Jones fits Mr. F. E. Thomas well, and Mrs. Edgar Colona as Bob's Missus is good.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Ltd.—Resident Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Miss Vesta Tilley is here on a return visit, as bright and popular as ever; Millie Payne's turn is distinctly entertaining; and Jas. A. Wilson with his quaint dog Towser again affords much amusement. With their comedy juggling the Seddons once more provide an enjoyable turn; Boy Glenn with his good voice and funny stories is on a return visit; Ryder Slone in his "Policeman and Burglar" song scena introduces novel features; as the Noiseless Burglars Conn and Conrad are very amusing; Helen Ford's ballads are daintily rendered; and some fine pictures are shown by the American Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—A feature of the entertainment here this week is the re-appearance of that strange and weird mechanical novelty, "Dronza," the talking head, which is perplexing in the extreme; the Franks' Midgets furnish a novelty in conjuring; Wat Tyler provides a good vocal character turn; some very clever and wonderfully rapid picture painting is accomplished by Vandinoff; Beatrice Bonnie, comedienne, does an acceptable turn; Stylo's hoop manipulating is clever; Oakley and James provide a funny turn; James F. B. Fayme is to the fore with his excellent comedy; Gracie Grahame, a charming comedienne, too, is again winning golden opinions; and the pictures shown by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux afford keen enjoyment.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—Manager, Mr. S. Carter.—The New Century Company's Animated Pictures continue very attractive here, and the vocalism of Miss Ducie Saunderson affords additional satisfaction.

AL FRESCO PAVILION.—Additional features in the way of clever equilibristic work by Le Brun and juggling by Irene add to the usual attractions of this well patronised resort.

BRIDLINGTON.—SPA THEATRE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Henry Hague.—Mr. Arthur Law's new comedy Three Blind Mice was the attraction the first half of the week, and was performed by an excellent company. Mr. Wilfred Draycott as Julian Scheckburgh gave a fine exposition of the character of the middle-aged, but lovable, godfather; Mr. Compton Coutts was very amusing as Lavender; and so was Mr. Fredk. Lloyd as Mr. Guest; Mr. Max Leeds as the "knowing" Ricketts was admirable; and Mr. Duncan Bruce made a fine footman. Miss May Palfrey was a charming Marjorie Lovel, and was warmly applauded for her sweetly innocent rendering of the part of the young maiden with too many lovers; Miss Granville gave just the right tone to Lady Marrable; and Miss Mary Barton was equally good as the lackadaisical Lady Clarisforder. Miss Annie Hill was very effective as the governess, Miss Tippings; and Miss Dorothy Edwards as Jessop, Miss Florence Harwood as Miss Jolliffe, and Miss Sheba Brozel as Polly were all good. The curtain-raiser was Mr. Weedon Grossmith's What an Escape, effectively played by Miss Annie Hill as Mrs. Raldon, Miss Florence Harwood as Drage, and Mr. Fredk. Lloyd as Mr. Spowling.

ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—The patrons of the Grand Pavilion have had a great treat in the engagement of the native choir from Jamaica, a company of coloured ladies and gentlemen who have been giving concerts, consisting of native songs and plantation choruses, in which they show remarkable talent as vocalists and entertainers. Each member of the combination is a thorough artist, and the beautifully harmonised choruses as well as the various solos have delighted large audiences. In the Floral Pavilion Herr Sigmund Wintermitz and his Royal Viennese Orchestra continue their excellent promenade concerts, and on Wednesday Herr Winternitz was accorded a benefit, when there was an illuminated gala performance, and a host of talent assisted in honouring the popular conductor.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Henry Hague.—This week the vocalist at Herr Simon Wurm's promenade concerts is Miss Marie Stiven, a fine contralto, whose songs are always re-demanded. The Strolling Players still continue a great attraction, the humorous duets of Miss Madeline Rossiter and Mr. Johnson are cleverly done, and their dances are very smart. Mr. Helmsley, a new addition to the troupe, is a capital imitator of juvenile voices, and his patter is smart. The Players took their benefit on Saturday, when they gave a good programme before a large audience. Monday was a grand gala night, the grounds being finely illuminated, and a special firework display by Messrs. Pain and Sons attracted some thousands of visitors.

THE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. A. Hubner.—The marvellous Howards, in their wonderful mind-reading entertainment, are the stars this week. Gray and Weston play some smart sketches; Miss Clarice Raynor, a lady with a remarkable voice, sings excellent songs; Miss Lilian Swado gives a clever gymnastic turn; and Harry Lead is a good comedian. J. W. Delmar, conjuror and ventriloquist, is well received; and Mr. Hubner's animated pictures are always good.

SUMMER GARDENS. — Lessees, Messrs. Beanland, Bath, and Danton; Manager, Mr. Charles Beanland.—Friday night, the 24th ult., was set apart for the benefit of Mr. Charles Danton, when a special programme was provided, and this popular artist was rewarded with a big audience to testify to the esteem in which he is held. This week the Waterloo Pierrots give some new programmes. Thursday night was set apart for the benefit of that popular comedian, Mr. Geo. Hyan.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. Mouillot's company opened here on Monday with The Toreador. Mr. Harry Buss gave a highly amusing impersonation of Sammy Gigg; Mr. Fred Fowler achieved great success as Pettifer, and was warmly applauded for his dancing; Mr. Howard Cridland's Sir Archibald Slackett was a humorous impersonation; Miss Katie May made a delightful Dora Selby; Miss Rose was highly effective as Nancy Staunton; Miss Zoe Gilfillan was an attractive Mrs. Malton Hoppings; Miss Vera Vallis made a vivacious Susan; Miss Florence Burdett acquitted herself admirably as Donna Teresa; Mr. H. M. White was well suited as Carajolo; and the remaining characters were ably sustained. The choruses were well sung, and Mr. George Saker carried out the duties of musical director.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Mr. Augustine Knight and company are here this week with The Assassin. Mr. Knight gives a masterly portrayal of Prince Demetri; Miss Ella Vane as the Countess Wanda displays powerful acting; Mr. Edward E. Ashby is an admirable Ivan Spanoff; Miss Francis Waring makes an excellent Lita; Mr. Theo Balfour is convincing as Duke Karl; Mr. Cecil H. Raymond is an entertaining Baron Alphonse; Mr. Tom Taylor affords much amusement as Peter; and Miss Georgina Hamilton acts with great charm as Connie Jonathan.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—Marie Lloyd is the great attraction here this week, and wins enthusiastic applause with her latest successes; Max Milian is very amusing in his pot-pourri act; the Silvertons are accomplished coloured vocalists and dancers; Ella Lane is a charming comedienne and graceful dancer; Clemart gives a capital ventriloquial entertainment; Jack Foley is a pleasing comedian; Cruikshank is well received; Louie Hurman, comedienne and burlesque actress, wins hearty applause; Burke and McVoy appear in an amusing acrobatic act; Percival and Morley are excellent in a comedy duologue, Turtle Doves; Luis Hardt performs astonishing feats of strength; and the Alhambrascope pictures are interesting.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A capital company is here this week. Clarisse Heney and company are highly successful in the sketch Counsel's Opinion; Tiny Arnold is warmly applauded for her songs and dancing; Haley's Juveniles, including Dot and Spot, tiny vocalists, are well received in their carnival scena; Rosina Casselli and her highly trained troupe of Mexican dogs submit a capital turn; the Sisters Hall are refined vocalists; Fioretti and Elly are skilful speciality jumpers; Tom E. Hughes is a clever character comedian; Hayman and Franklin, Hebrew impersonators, are effective in A Matrimonial Agency; Foreman and Fannan, the "millionaires," are entertaining; and the Barrascope pictures are amusing.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company are here this week with Public Opinion; or, Pansy's Breach of Promise Case! Miss Nancy Beresford gives a charming impersonation of Pansy Bligh; Miss Emma Hutchison achieves great success as Lady Diana Caldershaw; Mr. Charles Harley is artistic as Spencer Traughton, C.B.; Mr. Percy Marshall's Horace Wibley, Mr. Fred Lewis's Hon. Mr. Justice Mulley, and Mr. Douglas Hamilton's Sir Babington Mulley are capitally played; and Miss Connie Dene as Phyllis Dagenham and Miss Violet Harley as Charlotte also merit praise.

NEW PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company are here this week with In the King's Name. Mr. Mark Blow gives a masterly portrayal of Wild Darrell; Mr. Wellesley Draper submits a clever enactment of the Earl of Rockingham; Mr. Arthur Elwyn is highly successful as Gerald Winter; Miss Mary Thorne is a graceful and winsome Lady Alice Vernon; Miss Mabel Mannering sustains the part of the Countess very effectively; and the remaining characters are satisfactorily represented. The play is admirably staged.

AQUARIUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. J. Sallmayer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry de Groot.—Mr. Harry Ward's variety company contributes the bill-of-fare here this week. Miss Nellie Atherton is an accomplished vocalist; Mr. Jock McKay, the original Scotch comedian, evokes hearty laughter; Mlle. Dora's oboe solos are warmly appreciated; and Mr. Alf Cawthorn, eccentric comedian and speciality dancer, achieves much success.

HOVE TOWN HALL.—An excellent series of interesting and amusing pictures is given here this week by Mr. W. F. Jury's Imperial Bioscope. Musical Ritter and Mr. Arthur Lonsdale submit pleasing vocal contributions.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—A full house was attracted on Monday by Mr. Edward Marris's company in The Dandy Doctor. The amusing play is staged with liberality, and the company is a competent one all round. Miss Florence Smithers presents a clever and amusing study of Jane, the general servant, scoring, with Mr. Marris, in a burlesque drama; Mr. Marris is decidedly smart as Melchisadeck Brown (a tinned meat millionaire); Mr. Herbert Pease as Colonel Pendred makes the most of his opportunities, and obtains considerable applause for his singing; Mr. Ion Maxwell is well placed as Arthur Vandyke, a smart young doctor; Mr. Leslie Martin is amusing as Bertie Bollingbroke; Miss Elfie Vincent is decidedly pleasing as Ivy Pendred; Miss Dolly Payne makes a smart Henson, the doctor's Buttons; and other parts are taken commendably by Mr. Dalton Dane, Mr. John Birtles, Miss Ethel Dunker, Miss Belle Hamilton, Miss Rosie Chandler, and Miss Marie Gerrard. A clever dance is introduced by Miss Rosie Chandler, and pleasing specialities of song and dance are given by the Dandy Belles, the Dutch Girls, and the Yeoman Male Voice Quartette. The chorus is tuneful, and the augmented orchestra is ably conducted by Mr. George Jenkinson.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—The successful drama The Spider and the Fly is attracting good houses here, the play being well staged and excellently played by Messrs. Ernest Carpenter and Sidney Cooper's company. Miss Amy Venimore and Miss Nina Vaughton both present very effective expositions of the contrasting parts of Stella Gray and Edith McAllister; Mr. Stanley S. Gordon acts in excellent style as Cyril Girdlestone; Mr. Ellis I. Preston is deserving of much credit for his impersonation of Willy Girdlestone; Mr. H. C. Lanceley makes a lovable clergyman of the Rev. Mr. McAllister; Mr. Frederick Ross is manly and convincing as David Strong; and the two Roes are capitally played by Mr. Fred Terriss and Mr. Charles A. Preece. The comic part of Molly Blake is made both amusing and interesting by Miss Lucy Murray; Miss Ada Palmer scores with a clever character study of Jane Ellen Scriven; and Miss Marjorie May is sufficiently pathetic as the boy Flipps. The mechanical scenes of the secret cells in the old moat house are cleverly arranged, and the police motor-boat scene on the Thames is effective.

NEW PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. V. Welchman.—Mr. John Lawson heads the bill with his celebrated sketch Humanity, and, as usual, it is warmly applauded. Grey and Parry amuse with their comedy burlesque Acrobats Past and Present; the Sisters Bartholomew are pleasing duettists and dancers; Martin Conway, comedian, obtains applause; Lilian Lowe, an exceptionally clever vocalist, presents a pleasing turn; Rohda Brothers score with their gymnastic act; Miss Florence, Dutch impersonator and mimic, is highly successful; and an effective display of animated pictures concludes the entertainment.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Arthur Rigby, comedian, heads the programme, and obtains considerable appreciation; Colie Grant and Mamie Grant, American octoroons, amuse all parts of the house with their sketch A Georgia Flirtation; H. E. High does some smart roller skating; Blanch Albini is a pleasing burlesque artist; Francis and Melli, musical acrobatic comedians, obtain appreciation; My Fancy is much applauded for her clever sand dancing; Milner Verren is successful as a tenor vocalist; the Mahomed Ben Mahomed troupe of Arabs (eight in number) do a smart acrobatic and bounding act; and the performance concludes with some new animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company, under the general management of Mr. Cecil Edgar, are playing East Lynne here. Miss Julie Kennard is very successful as Lady Isabel. The Captain Levison of Mr. Erie Mayne stands out as a clever piece of work. Archibald Carlyle is played with much power, and fine comedy business is done by Mr. Alfred Tate as P.C. Bullock, Mr. C. C. Grattan as Justice Hare, and Mr. Cyril Hayward as Lawyer Dill. Miss Ethel Hardacre makes an excellent Cornelia Carlyle, and Barbara Hare is well represented by Miss Ethel Saville. Remaining parts are capably sustained by Mr. Spencer Goodwin as Lord Mountsevern, Mr. E. Massingham as Richard Hare, Miss Katherine Bryan as Lady Mountsevern, Miss Ida Heron as Joyce, and Miss Jessie Bayes as Little Willie doing good work.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Good houses are here being entertained by the Theatroscope and Vaudeville company. Interesting and up-to-date pictures are shown, interspersed with variety turns of no mean order, including Superba, who gives a series of remarkable quick-changes; the Alberta troupe of acrobats are highly appreciated; Higgins and Murlone ably sing duets; Chris Martin is a good character comedian; and Flo Warner, comedienne, is cordially received.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—An exceptionally good bill is provided here this week, and much appreciation is gained. Miss Addie Dorina, a clever actress, in her quick-change performance How It Was Done, ably assisted by Mr. Pat Waddock, fairly brings down the house. Mr. Charles Diamond and Miss Beatrice give a clever performance on the harp and saxophone; and Ruby Lorton pleases with her sweet voice. Lucia and Viata are smart on the tight wire; Collins and Rice are very fine as comedy artists; and W. B. Raby is encored for his song "Angeline." La Belle Nello give a pleasing and graceful contortionist and posing performance; and the performing parrots, cockatoos, and macaws of Albertine Melich are received with rounds of applause.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Miss Bouwin Carlton's company is paying a return visit with The Plucky Nipper. In the name part Miss Bouwin Carlton appears with much success. She is well assisted by Mr. Douglas Campbell (in the humorous situations) as Tommy Atkins; Mr. Edward Stream finds a congenial rôle as Captain Frank Leslie; and Mr. Fred Rivers as Richard Vanbrugh, by his realisation of stage villainy, rouses the anger of the audience; Mr. Charles Cameron and Mr. Claud Kingston do well as Col. Fenwick and Henry Paget respectively; a fine piece of character work is given by Mr. Edward Surrey as Bill Burgess; Miss Evelyn Derwent is pleasing and effective as Ina Fenwick, the heroine; and Miss Kitty Maynard gives a pathetic representation of Daisy Paget.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford. — Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush is here with Mr. Tom Mollison's company. Mr. Mollison is at the head of the cast with his clever portrayal of the dour old Scot Lachlan Campbell; Mr. Alec F. Thompson is particularly amusing in his capital impersonation of the "posty"; Mr. John Clyde invests the character of John Maclure with many fine touches; Mr. Durward Lely makes the rôle of the Rev. Mr. Carmichael a conspicuous success; and as Tammas Mitchell Mr. Kendal Chalmers most creditably acquits himself of the difficulties of this part. Miss Evelyn McNay as Flora presents a charming and unaffected delineation; and Miss Alice Frances as Kate Carnegie quite captivates the audience by her sweet and unassuming interpretation.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Duncan.—The Temptress is the drama at this house, and is presented most creditably by Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company. The appearance in the piece of Miss Lydia Donovan as Stella, the temptress, makes its popularity assured, as Miss Donovan's clever portrayals are always appreciated by Cardiffians. Mr. Weldon Atherstone as Lucas Denbigh works extremely hard; Philip Welford has a reliable exponent in Mr. Wallace Campbell; and Miss Gracie Jones as Marion is particularly suited to the part. The comedy is chiefly supplied by Mr. W. P. Sheen as Bob Tanner.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—The one and only George Robey is delighting the Empire audiences this week with his clever comedy. The charming vocalist, Ethel Haydon, is a most delightful turn; Stelling and Nevell prove a couple of daring comedians on the bar; the Bros. Lang are most diverting in their knockabout business; and Colley and May provide a novel performance as the ventriloquist and the doll. Other capital turns are rendered by Hanvarr and Lee, a remarkably smart couple of jugglers; Billy Tucker, the champion ball puncher; the Three Albions, novelty musicians; Bouverie Pleydell, comedienne; and the amusing American Bioscope.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Trustees of R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—Mr. Norman Macowan's company is here in Monsieur Beaucaire. Mr. Macowan, who appeared in the title-rôle, acted throughout with grace and skill, and his fine presence added considerably to the effect of his performance. As Lady Mary Carlisle Miss Violet Sterne created a most favourable impression, her charming style and skilful handling of the part gaining the sympathy and applause of the house. The Duke of Winterset had a forcible and clever representative in Mr. Murray Hathorn. Mr. F. Ramsay Forman contributed a capital bit of acting as Captain Badger, and Miss Emile Leslie made a delightful Lucy Rollerton. The remaining characters were all in safe hands.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Mr. Hy. Masterman.—A first visit of Messrs. E. H. Knight and G. Denham's company with The Grip of Iron is giving unqualified satisfaction. Mr. Fred Powell's delineation of the brutal Simmonet is full of histrionic ability; Mr. Wallace Curnock as Paul Blanchard is excellent, and Loustalot, the amusing Smiler, could not be better depicted than by Mr. George Denham; Robert de Belfort is played by Mr. Norman Tracey, while the old and new school detectives, Dodot and Cocone, find versatile representatives in Mr. T. Renaud Lockwood and Mr. John Brittain; Mr. A. G. Polson-Turner merits praise for his careful impersonation of Lorentz de Ridos; Miss Muriel Inglis is charmingly impressive in the part of Sophie Blanchard, and Miss Rosabel Dodd is an excellent Cora Simonet; Miss Violet Ingram ably sustains the part of Marie Guerin, and Miss Cissie Mayes is good as Barbette.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Mattinson; Business-Manager, Mr. Seth Smalley.—The chief item on the programme here this week is the Five Musical Palmers, who give a most enjoyable performance; Cinizelli is very amusing as The Silent Jester; Daisy Almers sings and dances well; Mark Lane is a clever comedian; the Two Roses are good singers; Spring and Spring Barrel Jumpers are well received; Vesta Fay impersonates with good effect some entertaining male characters; Brooke's Bioscope proves of interest to the audience, and Gracie Logan, Nellie Duval, and Mons. Alvo do well in their respective turns.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—Enthusiastic audiences are this week enjoying The Female Swindler, an exciting drama by Walter Melville, which is staged in admirable style by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company. Miss Grace E. Leslie in the title-rôle is excellent; Mr. Joseph Millane gives a powerful representation of John Coulson, whose ambitious assistant, Billy Binks, is played in lively fashion by Mr. Henry Wright; Mr. Wilford Cheetham is sufficiently villainous as Geoffrey Warden, alias Captain Stanton; Mr. A. Kenyon Gray is a natural James Oliver; and Miss Florrie Kelsey a pleasing May Andrews.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank E. Donne.—Paul Martinetti and his pantomime company continue from last week, and for over half an hour keep the audience in one roar of laughter by their representation of A Terrible Night. Walter King proves himself one of the most amusing patter comedians heard here for some time past; Nellie Gannon still knows how to sing an Irish song; Peggy Fame, the girl in grey without a smile, scores with "Nobody there but me"; Minnie Wren and Dick Graham are well liked; and Harry Wright's topical song, "Items of the Day," goes better than ever.

Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Henry Carlton and company remain here, their contribution to this week's programme being the military absurdity, Obliging a Lady. Cissie Astbury is a neat dancer, and Billy French a clever one. Raynor and COATBRIDGE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Coatbridge Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Commins.—Messrs. Beaudyn, Livesey, and Hardy's company opened here on Monday with The Days of Cromwell, and the house was crowded in all parts. Mr. Henry Belding proves a master-hand in the rôle of Ironhand, the avenger; Mr. Robertson Foulis capably delineates the character of Sir Marsden Mardyke; Mr. Howard Hardy proves an excellent exponent of Matthew Mardyke; and Shadrack Shadwell is cleverly undertaken by Mr. T. R. White. Miss Gertrude Gilman shows great capabilities as Ruby Avondale; Miss Annie Clunn humorously enacts Betsy; and Mrs. Shadwell has a good representative in Miss May Bracey. Mr. R. A. P. Williams's company appear on the last three days of this week in Les Cloches de Corneville.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. F. R. Benson's (North) company came here on Monday for three nights, opening with The Merry Wives of Windsor. Mr. Henry Herbert played Falstaff with an ease which was delightful to watch, and his make-up was extremely good. Mr. Reginald Davis displayed wonderful aptitude in the rôle of Dr. Caius; and Mr. Ross Shore was conspicuous in the rather minor part of the host of the Garter Inn. Mr. E. Spencer Geach played the extravagantly jealous Ford to perfection; and prominent among the other male artists may be mentioned Mr. Charles Francis, Mr. Gerald Ames, Mr. Phillip Merivale, Mr. Esmé Filmer, Mr. Henry Morrell, Mr. Mark Draper, Mr. Hodgkins, Mr. Gerald, and Mr. Lionel Bevans. Miss Rosa Burgess was distinctly clever as Mistress Quickly; Miss Dorothy Green and Miss Mary Webb were particularly vivacious as "the wives"; whilst Miss Louise Graeme was both pretty and graceful as Sweet Anne Page. She Stoops to Conquer was given on Tuesday, Macbeth on Wednesday, and for the matinée As You Like It. The last half of the week was devoted to The Eternal City, as presented by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company.

HIPPODROME. — Joint-Proprietors, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot and Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Ben de Frece.—This week's bill is headed by the Morton Trio, who are given a big reception. Alice Maydue naturally catches the audience with her droll patter; and Thornbury displays a great aptitude for lightning sketches. Ella and Dacio Hope, who this week make their début on any stage in a professional capacity, showed unmistakably that they are possessed of real talent; the former is an admirable mimic, and will undoubtedly shine as a low comedy artist, whilst the latter is a soprano with a capital range, and sings in a cultured style which brought down the house on her opening night. Carson Hicks dances cleverly; and May Pritchard is a popular comedienne. The pictures are extremely good this week.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—This theatre was opened for the season on Monday evening last, when a house crowded from floor to ceiling greeted Mr. Arnold Bell and his répertoire company in Ben-My-Chree. Mr. Bell's Dan Mylrea was an exceptionally clever performance, and as Ewan Mylrea Mr. Guy Morville was well placed; Mr. W. G. Gregory as the Deemster was entirely satisfactory, and Mr. Cuthbert Imrie gave a careful rendering of the Bishop of Man. Miss L. Earle was the recipient of well-deserved applause for her able portrayal of Mona Mylrea, and the remaining characters were well filled by the other members of the company. Ben-My-Chree was repeated on Wednesday and Saturday, and Called Back was billed for Tuesday night.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 company occupies the boards here this week in the musical comedy, Florodora. Miss Kate Leicester as Lady Holyrood was capital, singing her songs in a humorous and taking manner; as Dolores, Miss Josephine O'Sullivan, who possesses a powerful and sweet voice, was most successful; Mr. A. E. Passmore was very funny in the part of Anthony Tweedlepunch, his jokes and fooling being heartily relished; Mr. Allen Morris as Frank Abercoed pleased all; Miss Lily Gullick as Angeld Gilfain scored a success in her songs; and Mr. H. St. John as Captain Arthur Donegal was quite satisfactory. The chorus was very good. The staging was excellent, and the orchestra, under J. C. Hahn, worked well.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—A large house gathered on Monday to witness Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's No. 1 company in Proof. Keen interest is evinced throughout, especially in Scene 3. Mr. Gerald Kennedy gives a manly rendering of Pierre Lorance; Mr. W. J. Butler submits a capital piece of acting as Lazare; Mr. Wilfred Bailey keeps the audience amused as Chamboran; Miss Beatrice Shirley is seen to advantage in the dual rôle of Madeline and Adrienne.

THE HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—Very prominent in a capital programme this week appear the Ten Dixey Girls in a charming vocal scena, The Silver Moon; the various solos are capitally rendered, backed up by a strong chorus and some excellent dancing; Horace Whitley delights the audience as a comedian in some enjoyable Irish songs; the Four Watsons as accomplished vocalists and instrumentalists give some capital renderings; Anthony entirely mystifies his audience in some exceedingly clever tricks; May Bass is a clever comedienne and dancer; Percival is a splendid pianist; and Ryan and Hall are speciality artists; the usual set of animated pictures concluding the performance.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Mr. Allan Wilkie's dramatic company is drawing capital houses here this week. On Monday Hamlet was played to an enthusiastic house. Mr. Allan Wilkie was seen to advantage in the title-rôle, acting with much dramatic power. Miss Ine Cameron gave a finished rendering of Ophelia; Miss Eily O'Dempsey acted with stateliness and dignity the rôle of the Queen of Denmark; and Miss Ruth Nightingale was suitably placed as the Player Queen. Mr. G. Alexander Marsh submitted an excellent representation of Laertes; Mr. Aubrey Mather's portrayal of Claudius was good; Mr. T. Coleman gave a capable rendition of Polonius; and Mr. Wilton Ross as Horatio sustained his part in a thoroughly capable manner. Mr. Ian Fleming as Rosencrantz, Mr. Ernest Digges as Guilderstern, and Mr. Gordon Wingate as Osric did well. The Lady of Lyons, David Garrick, The Bells, Romeo and Juliet, The Corsican Brothers, Robert Macaire, and The Ticket-of-Leave Man are also in the répertoire.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Mr. G. Edwardes is presenting Mr. Alexander Loftus and company in The New Barmaid at the Grand. Mr. Charles Adeson's efforts are rightly directed in the rôle of Bertie White; Mr. Alexander Loftus is in his glory as the whimsical William White; Mr. Leslie Austin wins approbation in the part of Captain Lovebury; Mr. James Grant is well placed as Colonel Claymore; Mr. W. E. Chewd is clever as M. Bonsor; and minor rôles are admirably sustained by Messrs. G. Roslyn, M. Neville, John Cole, and F. Collins. Miss Grafton deserves praise for her rendering of Braddy; Miss Winifred Preston is a brilliant Lady Moulton; Miss Violet Osmund makes a pleasing Dora Heather; Miss Maude Nichols is seen to advantage as Brenda Louth; and Miss Amy Preston is a bright and charming Ethel Joy. The dances by the Star Trio are cordially applauded. Mr. Lawson Lambert is winning golden opinions by his able management.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is here in Her Fatal Past. Mr. George M. Newall gives a scholarly performance as Mark Desmond; Mr. Victor Rowland is commendable as Leonard Fernside; Mr. Wilson Coleman carefully handles the rôle of Gilbert Fernside; and Mr. Claude Paget is quaint as Reuben Treadaway. It would be difficult to find more suitable representatives of Dickey Bird and Jonathan Buckstone Nobbs than Mr. Edward Sydney and Mr. T. Edward Ward. The latter is never at a loss, and Mr. Sydney keeps the house in hearty merriment. Miss Ward proves herself a capable emotional actress as Honor Symes; Miss Adeline Raby is good in the dual rôles of Ruth Fernside and Bella de Lara; Miss Gertie Reid is a lively Kitty; and Miss Audrey Sutherland makes a favourable impression as Leonard.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace H. Jay.—The Three Prestons bring down the house here in their amusing sketch, The Liftman's Rise; Rosy Revel is a droll comedienne; the Roma troupe of lady jugglers submit an interesting turn; Daisy Davidson, New Zealand soprano, gains applause; George Ridgwell is an admirable character vocalist; Oswald Williams, American illusionist, contributes a turn which is full of mystery; Belle Braham, pictorial songstress, is successful in her latest items; Cosgrove and Burns are entertaining comedy artists; Herbert Shelley makes a sensational hit in his one-act quick-change drama, Dan, the Outlaw; and the sketch, Our Curate, is enacted with dramatic effect by Fred Eustace and company.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Variety is the order of the week here, Will Rain and company head the bill with their novelty, Motor Maniac, which is illustrated by the Bellograph; the Continental "stilt-walkers" are very amusing; Arthur Stacey, comedian, adds pleasure to the entertainment; Miss Louise Hall sings illustrated songs with great effect; the Bros. Onda give a funny nautical act; Wallau the boy juggler is a wonder; some fine sand-dancing is supplied by Stevens and Rennior; the Pender Troupe perform a clever sketch, Hands Up; and the Bellograph shows some of the latest pictures.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Mr. Dickie Clare and company occupy the boards here this week in a farcical absurdity, Lucky Liza. Mr. Clare, a comedian of exceptional ability, is heard to advantage as Silas Slim; Mr. Leonard Maitland, in his portrayal of a "dude" part, causes roars of laughter; Mr. T. W. Benson as Peter Pettitoe is excellent; Mr. Dan Ryan shows ability as Biffins; Messrs. A. W. Thompson, George Minto, James Quinn, and Bert Collins, in the minor parts, are worthy of commendation. Miss Madge Bourne as Lucky Liza deserves all praise, singing and dancing with good taste. Another good interpretation is that of Miss Vesta Browne as Virgina Blatherwick; whilst Miss Belle Russell as Marie Pettitoe fills the part adequately. A pleasing feature is the dainty dancing and singing of the Astor Trio.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton. — Mr George Alexander's company is here in His House in Order. The Nina of Miss Jean Sterling MacKinley is a finely finished assumption; the Hilary Jesson of Mr. Stanley T. Ewart is an outstanding feature, being thoroughly sound and effective; Mr. J. Howard Pearce is Filmer Jesson is in every sense successful; and Mr. Lloyd Lowndes is entirely satisfactory as Major Maurewarde. Geraldine is capably depicted by Miss Elaine Steddall; and the parts of Sir Daniel and Lady Ridgeley and Pryce Ridgeley receive ample justice at the hands of Mr. George Fitzgerald, Miss Augusta Haviland, and Mr. E. R. Hollway. Mr. R. Besant and Mr. J. Douglas Campbell as Harding and Forsham are very good; and Mr. Luke Forster is to be heartily congratulated upon his portrayal of Dr. Dilnott. The Derek of Miss Moyna Bill deserves special mention; and the French governess is vivaciously played by Mlle. Eva Grand.

PALACE.—Lessee and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Taylor.—A pantomimical sketch by Chas. Vandyke and company, entitled Sensations, causes much amusement here, and cannot fail to please; Strong and Mainze are very entertaining in their Continental cannon act; Billy Farrell is a capital coon comedian, and creates much hearty laughter; Tony is a very acceptable whistler; Adderley Bros. are clever instrumental mimics; Johnny Worman, comedian, is entertaining; Madge Daly is a pleasing comedienne; and the Palace Bioscope is, as usual, well to the fore.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—The world-famed Yamamoto and Koyoshi, said to be the most wonderful performers Japan has yet produced, head the programme here, and the nature and quality of their entertainment evoke the utmost enthusiasm. Bosanquet presents a musical scena, in which he introduces the singing violin and his wonderful Bosanquephone, affording to the hearers considerable delight, which finds reflection in the applause accorded. Unquestionably out of the ordinary is Mlle. de Rose, the lady baritone vocalist; the Three Whirligigs prove diverting to the last degree in their Fun in a Kitchen; J. H. Hawtrey shows his capabilities as an actor-vocalist; and a humourist of considerable excellence is present in Chas. R. Whittle; Carl Lynn justifies his nomenclature of the King of Animal Mimics; and the Walfords do astonishing work as equilibrists.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. George Weldon.—Trick and Trixie prove sufficiently entertaining with a mixture of humorous dialogue, knockabout and acrobatic tricks, singing, instrumental music, and clever dancing; juggling, varied and skilful, is supplied by Chas. Lestree; Madeline and Fedora Kay may be commended for their merits as vaudeville artists, and also for their admirable scena, The Nightingale; charming Pollo Jerome acquits herself on the trapeze in a fashion highly creditable; Hector and Sultan evinced excellence as acrobats and grotesque comedians; Renson and Waite (comedy duettists), Miss Sadie Simpson (comedienne and coon artist), Denby and Dent (in a novel up-to-date comedy act), and the Bioscope complete the programme.

DONCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Chapman.—Rogues of the Turf proved a powerful attraction on Monday. Miss Mabelle F. Barlow is most effective in the rôle of Marion; Miss Hilda Shirley is meritorious as Nellie Flaxman; a pretty song is acceptably rendered by Miss Madge Palmer, a chic Phyllis; Mr. Conrad Heywood is well chosen to represent Sir Gerald Heathcote; and Mr. Dan F. Roe is equal to the demands made upon him as Arthur Somerton. The Captain Dudley Clifton of Mr. George Harvard is vigorous; and Mr. H. Marco is well placed as Moses Solomons. Mr. Harry Custins and Mr. F. Rawson Buckley are both smart in their respective assumptions of Sam and Joe Flaxman.

DOUGLAS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Grand Theatre Company, Ltd; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Hemming; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. R. Wood.—Mr. Alfred Hemming is presenting The Spring Chicken here this week. The audiences have been large and enthusiastic. Miss Chrissie Leonard was very successful as Rosalie; Mr. J. S. Durant made much entertainment out of Gustave Babori; Mr. Harry Averill was artistically funny as Boniface; and Mr. George Dance's company is generally most efficient.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Gray.—The Prodigal Son, from Old Drury, finely played by Mr. Arthur Collins's company, and produced under the personal direction of the author, has crowded the Gaiety. Miss Lily Hall Caine's beautiful impersonation of Thora was thoroughly appreciated; Miss Alma Murray, with the genius of heredity, did complete justice to her part; Miss Cecil Cromwell was dramatically imposing as Helga; Mr. Henry George gave a powerful performance of Stephen; Mr. Norman Partridge was most artistic as Oscar; and Mr. Henry Renouf, as Magnus, was forceful. The scenery was beautiful.

THE PALACE. — Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.—Mr. Ernest Shand appears for one week more, and crowds welcome his performance; the Violas, white Mahatmas; Vivians, the dancing girl; and Ben Albert, the comedian, are worth witnessing. Their work is sincere and novel. Vernon's Bioscope, which is a feature here, is quite up to date. The other attractions are dance carnivals and fancy dress competitions, for which valuable prizes are offered.

DERBY CASTLE.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Kelly.—For the pleasure of countless thousands Miss Florrie Forde remains another week at this popular place of amusement. The new turns are Mr. Percy Honri, who manipulates the concertina so as to make it a power in the world of melody. Craig, Rose, and Craig, gymnastic experts, make a welcome appearance. Other pleasing turns are the Marion Sisters, Miss Maud Edwardes, and the Castle Bioscope, also dancing in the magnificent ball room to the strains of Mr. Harry Wood's orchestra.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Managing-Director, Mr. F. J. Connor.—The new turns include Hoppit, Tony, and Terry, the nucleus of a coster circus, who are really clever; Herr Adeson's performing fox terriers make for success; Miss Victoria Dagmar gives a fine exhibition on the horizontal bar, and the clowns are funny.

DOVER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—An exceedingly clever representation of Cousin Kate was given on Monday by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's principal company. To that talented actress, Miss Lilias Earle, in the title-rôle, was sweet and lovable. Mr. Hutchison made a delightful Heath Desmonde; the unpleasant qualities of the Rev. James Bartlett were quietly emphasised by the clever acting of Mr. Ernest Cox, and Mr. S. Irwin Barrett was natural, if not quite boyish enough, as Bobby Spencer; Mrs. Spencer received admirable treatment at the hands of Miss Amy Coleman, and Miss Margaret Marshall did the little she had to do as Jane excellently; Miss Hilda Honiss played the part of Amy Spencer with charming demureness. On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings the same company presented the new comedy, On the Love Path, and on Thursday The Orchid was staged by Mr. George Dance's company.

THE PAVILION, PROMENADE PIER.—Lessees, the Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—High-class variety is attracting much patronage this week. Aileen and Doris Woods, New Zealand twins, win much popularity; Miss Alice Braunstein has a charming voice and a most pleasing style; Mr. Alf Daniels is an expert banjoist; Miss Maud Fitz-Stubbs an undoubtedly clever pianist; Mr. Fred Daniels has humorous songs; and Mr. F. C. Hennequin must be highly complimented on his dramatic recitals and character sketches.

DUBLIN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The Catch of the Season, which entered on its second week here on Monday night, continues to attract large and appreciative audiences. The welcome accorded Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Ellaline Terriss must be most gratifying to these popular artists; and the other members of this excellent company repeat their success of last week.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Chas. Hyland.—Mr. George Edwardes' company is appearing here this week in A Girl on the Stage, which is enthusiastically received by large audiences. Mr. Lennox Pawle has ample scope to display his versatile abilities, and is irresistibly funny as Lord Sanctobury. Miss Queenie Leighton gives a delightful presentment of Miss Molly Montrose, rendering her vocal numbers in a manner which wins for her unstinted applause. The part of Algernon Southdown is played with much humour by Mr. Arthur Longley; and the Misses Fanny Dango and Valli Valli are exceedingly good as the Ladies Isabel and Dorothy Congress. Broad comedy is provided by Mr. John Humphries as Shingle; and Miss Hazel Saqui is admirable in the rôle of Letty. Alderman Briggs has a capital exponent in Mr. Colin Coop, and Miss Julita Dumas as Lady Agness and Miss Nellie Johnston as Lady Rose are both successful in their respective rôles. The smaller parts are all in good hands, and the play is staged with taste and liberality.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; Acting-Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson.—A series of military amateur performances, in conjunction with the Irish Theatrical Club, is taking place here this week on behalf of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association, and on Monday night Mr. Hubert Henry Davies' play, Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace was presented before a large audience.

EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh. — The management of this establishment have catered well for their patrons here this week, the principal attraction being the ever-welcome Harriett Vernon, who is vociferously applauded for her admirably rendered songs. Orpheus is an accomplished musician, and achieves conspicuous success; and Spry and Austin are as diverting as ever. Walton and Lester, "World's Worst Wizards," are responsible for a laughable turn; and Dot Harvey, a clever low comedy artist, wins warm applause. Vernando scores heavily as a ventriloquist; and Georgina Leonard is a comedienne of more than ordinary merit. Edith Courtney's excellent voice is heard to advantage in several ballads; and Pat Connolly, champion wrestler; and the Empire Pictures, complete the bill.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—An excellent all-round company is headed by an old Dublin favourite in the person of J. W. Rowley, who admirably sustains his reputation as a comedian, and is encored nightly. Another highly successful artist is Ormond Penstone, conjurer and illusionist, whose smart turn elicits applause. The Dean Tribune company's sketch, Applicants, creates hearty laughter; and Mlle. Renée plays a number of musical instruments to perfection. The Henriques are clever and amusing in a comedy acrobatic act; and Ailsa Douglas delights all with her vocalism. Walter Stanley is a capital comedian, and scores successfully; Rose Gené is a pleasing ballad vocalist; and the Bioscope pictures are, as usual, a capital series.

PAVILION, KINGSTOWN.—Manager, Mr. C. Irvine Bacon.—At this pleasant resort "the Smart Set" entertainers are once more drawing large crowds. The vocalists for the week are Miss Lena Hutchings, soprano; Mr. Lionel Atwill, bass; Miss Hilda Light, soprano; Mr. Arthur Court, tenor; and their songs and duets are highly appreciated. Miss Georgie Martin, comedienne, is as charming as ever; and Mr. Walter George is a genial humorist and mimic, who seems never to tire of responding to the demands of the delighted audience; the Bioscope pictures are also interesting.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The artists appearing here include Alice Ashworth, soprano vocalist; Rex and Graham, living marionettes; Little Dandy, character comedian; Louie Rex, serio and dancer; and Rex Graham, comedian and dancer.

SAMUELS' EXHIBITION PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels.—Walter Davison, ventriloquist; Will Victor, versatile comedian; Sisters Du Barrie, duettists and dancers; Marion Wilson, comedienne; Kitty Seymour, coon vocalist and dancer; and Daisy Reddy, vocalist, are appearing here.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—A Rogue's Daughter, now paying a first visit here, is well received. Mr. Roy Gordon gave a characteristic rendering of Sir George Mynard; Miss Gertrude Sterroll as Lady Mynard played a difficult part gracefully; Mr. Frank V. Fenn as Frank Tyler fetched the popular parts of the house with his telling style; Mr. Richard Ferris acted the cool, calculating villain Colonel Foster in an excellent manner; Mr. E. Hall Eldon as Ebenezer Dunnem and Miss Beckie Elliston as Priscilla Jenkins supplied the comedy element to everybody's satisfaction; and Miss Madge Devereux was sufficiently sympathetic as the much wronged Letty Grey. Miss Florence Gomer being successful as the waif Dicky.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson.—Mlle. Von Etta, a lady illusionist and quick change artist, takes premier honours this week. Edna Latonne is a singer of sensible songs; Wragge and Wragge are military athletes of the first order; Mulvey and Miriam in a comedy act, In the Studio, are a most engaging turn; the Sisters Daventry, coon vocalists; the Two Neros, tumblers; and the Empire Pictures all help to make up a good bill.

DUMFRIES.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. E. Potts; Manager, Payne Seddon, Esq.—For six nights Mr. George Stephenson is presenting here The Night of the Party. The principal part is sustained by Miss Evelyn Howard, an ideal Lady Hampshire; Miss Lena Graham plays with acceptance as Mrs. Young; Miss Stanley Ronalds is very good as Gipsy Vandeller; and Miss Maud Linden smart as Pauline. Mr. Frank H. Denton is a great success as Mr. Frank Frayne; Mr. Sebastian Smith was very well received as Mr. Crosbie; and Mr. Douglas Munro does full justice to the part of Mr. Flambert.

DUNDEE. — HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—A large and appreciative audience welcomed the reproduction of the delightfully breezy comedy, Beauty and the Barge, on Monday evening. Mr. Blake Adams again appeared as the amorous Captain Barley; his make-up, actions, and gait being excellent. Miss May Fairclough made a vivacious Ethel Smedley; Miss Mary Pemberton was a bright Lucy Dallas, and Miss Ruby Wyndham was excellent as Mrs. Baldwin. Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite as Mrs. Porter played with much humour and tact; Mr. Walter Pemberton impersonated the peppery Major Smedley to perfection; Mr. Charles White was a capital John Dibbs; Mr. Fred Knight a most comical Tom Codd, and Mr. Thomas Pauncefort exceedingly effective as Augustus the "third hand." The parts of Lieut. Seton Boyne, R.N., and Herbert Manners were nicely played by Mr. Edward Coventry and Mr. Aubrey Maillalieu respectively. The pretty playlet, Jerry and a Sunbeam, preceded, Mr. Maillalieu and Miss Pemberton appearing effectively in the title rôles. A very effective and pretty new act drop, painted by Mr. H. Fowler Hogg, was shown for the first time this week, and was much admired.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—Mr. Charles Majilton and his able company again hold the boards here, and submit The Plumber and The Trippers to large houses. The Plumber was given on Monday evening, and for genuine fun it would be hard to beat. Mr. Charles Majilton as Doctor Felix Syrup simply revelled in the part, while as Benjamin Butterant, the Plumber, Mr. Jim Bond could not be improved upon. Miss Maddie Majilton as Daisy, the maid slavey, made a big hit, and all the other parts were in excellent keeping. Several songs of an appropriate nature are introduced, and the entertainment from start to finish is very enjoyable.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. R. J. Dexter.—The Gondolier Glee Singers are topliners, and their harmonious singing of a number of songs is very pleasing. Brady and Johnson present a very amusing sketch, the scene of which is laid in Paris. Little Vio-Lette is a juvenile marvel possessed of a strong and sweet voice. A capital turn is that of Cyril Carle, actor-vocalist, who gives a dramatic rendering of "Dreams." The Cavalottis present a pleasing musical act, in which they introduce a great number of instruments. Ross and Gordon, duettists; Daisy Ray, coon impersonator; the Falcons, acrobats; May Fallowfield, a dainty comedienne; and the Bioscope complete a varied and attractive programme.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Miss Grace Warner's company is appearing here in The Scarlet Clue. The drama is adequately staged, and the company is a very strong one. Miss Warner plays the principal part of Sal Scarlet, of Houndsditch, very powerfully, her delineation of the drunken, dissolute, and revengeful creature being a work of art. Mr. George Gordon as Michael Stanton, the villain, gives a good performance; Mr. Reginald Brown as Jack Esmond, the hero, is successful; and Miss Violet Palfrey as little Polly acts very prettily.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen Triggs.—Mr. George Dance's principal company appeared here for the first three evenings of the week in the Orchid. Miss Gladys Ward is a graceful and charming Josephine Zaccary, singing and dancing in a most artistic manner; Miss Dorothy Firmin, a dainty and pretty Lady Violet; Miss Emily Stevens invested the part of Caroline Vokins with a rich humour, some popular numbers also falling to her lot; Miss Ethel Holdsworth, of pretty face and handsome figure, made a dignified and appropriate Countess Anstruther; Miss Florence Wakeman a very effective Zelie; and Miss Constance Hamilton a satisfactory Thisbe. Mr. Colin Campbell as Meakin was excellent; Mr. Sinclair Holden and Mr. H. Bullock-Webster did capital work in their respective parts, Guy and Dr. Faussett; Mr. Richard Nainby was a brisk animated Comte Raoul; Mr. J. R. Val a clever dancer and a good Zaccary; and Mr. Stenton Liddard a quietly effective Mr. Chesterton. M. Jean Desormes was the able conductor. Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company completes the week here with performances of The Country Mouse and A Bit of Old Chelsea, with Miss Annie Hughes in the cast.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Mouillot's company appeared here for three nights in San Toy. Miss Bessie Allayne sings well, and was attractive in the title-rôle; to Miss Lottie Sergeant must be given unstinted praise for an interesting and pleasing performance as Miss Dudley; Miss Irene Lavington made a good Poppy; Miss Maud Rundell as Rose Tucker contributed an agile dance; Miss Winifred Howard was a commanding Ko-Fan; and Miss Grace Rosaire a pretty Tug Sli; and Mr. Bert Edwards as Li provided much amusement. Fine work is contributed by Mr. Hugh Webb, a distinct, polished, and pleasing Yen How; Mr. Arthur Cartwright made a captivating Capt. Bobby; Mr. Percy Stevens an amusing Emperor; Mr. James Williamson a capable Fo Hop; Mr. Robert Rivers an energetic Sir Bingo; Mr. F. Taylor a satisfactory Lieutenant Tucker; and smaller parts were in good hands. The orchestra was under the direction of Mr. H. Sullivan-Brooke. Mr. E. Lockwood's company appeared here on Thursday in Sergeant Brue.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—At the top of the bill here is Peter Gotz, a young and powerful wrestler; Miss Ivey Roze and Mr. Frank Calvert contribute a popular and amusing turn; Messrs. Barret and Knowles are a couple of clever comedians who keep the house in excellent humour; Miss Marie Blythe is a favourite as a contralto vocalist; Kisbey has very funny patter; Miss Adey Spencer possesses a pretty voice, and dances neatly; Hughes and Elliot are sprightly sand dancers; and the pictures complete the bill.

THE FLORAL HALL.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen Triggs.—The fête of Saturday evening last was an unqualified success here. Mr. Norfolk Megone's grand orchestra carried out a very interesting programme. Miss Eleanor Felix achieved great success as a vocalist, and a capital display of fireworks by Messrs. Pain and Son concluded the programme.

ECCLES.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Wardle and Potasch; Manager, Mr. P. Potasch.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company is playing in The Drama of Life here this week. Mr. Edward M. Hamilton interprets the part of Harry Beech in capital style, being most ably assisted by Miss Kate Hallam as "Sylvia"; the acting of Mr. John J. Hooker as Walter Beech, the villain, is deserving of great praise; Mr. Harwood Roberts as Sir Dobson Wilde and Miss Florence French as Lady Wilde are clever in their comedy work; and little Miss Elsie May as Master Robert Beech is intelligent.

EDINBURGH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—A very enjoyable performance of Mr. Thomas Raceward's romantic play Sunday, an idyll of the Far West, is given here this week by a well-selected company under the direction of Mr. Louis Calvert. Miss Emelie Polini appears in the title-part, which she renders with delightful freshness, creating a most favourable impression. Towzer, Davy, Lively, and Jack have able representatives in Messrs. W. Lockhart, Sidney Rennef, Cecil Yapp, and Arthur Vezin. Miss Muriel Pope is quite realistic as the Nun; and Miss McAimee Murray is decidedly good as Mrs. Naresby. Mr. Leonard Pagden plays the part of Colonel Brinthorpe in spirited fashion; an excellent portrait of Tom Oxley is presented by Mr. Ernest A. Douglas; and Mr. G. Wallace Johnston characterises his impersonation of Arthur Brinthorpe cleverly.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General Manager Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—The popularity of La Poupée is again shown this week, crowded audiences having been attracted to the Lyceum to see Audran's opera represented by Mr. C. P. Levilly's company. Miss Stella Gastelle, so long associated with the part of Alesia, plays with undiminished charm and vivacity, and sings with cultured taste. Mr. W. H. Powell, as the toy-maker, creates abundant fun. His impersonation is humorous and effective, and the audience applaud his efforts in unstinted fashion. The Lancelot of Mr. Manfred Russell is bright and amusing, and he uses his fine tenor to advantage; Mr. Frederick Hobbs is a stately Father Maxime, and his singing gives great pleasure. His masterly rendering of "A Jovial Monk am I" receives the deserved tribute of a triple recall. The Balthazar of Mr. Vernon Reed, the Baron Chanterelle of Mr. William Griffin, and the truly comic Loremois of Mr. Fred Seymour are alike admirable. Miss Avis Grahame is an agreeable Madame Hilarius, and Miss Kitty Cavendish is chic as Henri. The chorus-singing is firm and vigorous, a quartet party being particularly good. Miss Edie Oakes, Miss Adelina Burgon, and Miss Lola Trevor evoke an enthusiastic encore for their pretty dancing, as the three dolls; and the mounting of the piece, with new scenery and dresses, is excellent.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Fischer.—The successful musical comedy, A Trip to the Highlands, is once more here, and the principals, one and all, repeat their former triumph. Mr. Wal Croft as The McMutchin and Mr. Joseph B. Montague as Timmins keep the fun going with great zest and humour; Mr. Frank Barclay, Mr. Gus Wheatman, Mr. Arthur Poole, and Mr. W. Smith also score again in their respective parts; and among the ladies Miss Millie Engler, Miss Maisie Ellinger, Miss Millie Durdette, and Miss Kitty Clinton sustain the leading feminine rôles with charm and success. The chorus, the dancing, and the mise-en-scène are irreproachable.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—A noteworthy feature of the programme here this week is the sketch by two young performers, Eadie and Ramsden. The lady is graceful and pretety, and sings with marked taste, and the gentleman is a nimble dancer and acrobat, and a very capable pianist. The reception of the artists is enthusiastic. Miss Ethel Walker, in an unconventional musical act, demonstrates her ability as singer and player; Miss Ruby Dahl, assisted by her "merry manikins," gives a clever sketch; Mr. Steve McCarthy's dancing secures for him a hearty recall; Mr. Johnny Gilmour amuses with song and patter; Rita Stella's coon songs and charming dancing are received with delight; Lord Murray and Lord display their proficiency in the handling of Indian clubs and in boxing; Mr. Frank Lynne causes roars of laughter by his entertaining rendering of droll songs; Miss Marie Kendall's forceful style appeals strongly to the audience, who recall her again and again; the Boisset Troupe, exhilarating as ever in their time-honoured sketch, The Bricklayers, evoke shouts of laughter; and the American Bioscope completes an admirable bill of fare.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. Mouillot's chief company is here this week in The Geisha, and is again drawing crowded and appreciative audiences. Miss Louie Collier as O Mimosa San is very sweet, and her singing gains constant recalls; Miss Florrie Saunders, who plays the part of Molly Seymour, with verve and vivacity, was in excellent voice, and was repeatedly encored; Miss Violet Kenyon as O-Juliette Diamante, and Miss Aubrey Ashton

Under the Russian Flag, presented by Mr. Jack Haddon's company, forms the attraction at this house. Mr. Haddon presents a very striking picture of Capt. Demetrius; Mr. Chas. Liddon's depiction of Wolf Marischka is vivid and powerful; a very amusing figure is Peter Poluski, as portrayed by Mr. Hal Forde; Mr. Fred Haming as Alexis also causes much laughter; Mr. Edward Avinal as the villain Michael Romanoff does justice to the rôle; and Mr. Cecil Melton plays the part of Ivan Romanoff with much dramatic skill. Miss Marie Rayner is to be commended for a capital representation of Luko Marischka; Miss Elaine Vanbrugh impersonates Vera Vassiloff cleverly; and Miss Violet Lytton is successful as Ogarita.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Glasgow theatregoers are this week having their first opportunity of seeing Mr. Stephen Phillips' beautiful play Paolo and Francesca, and as the cast includes Mr. H. B. Irving and Miss Dorothea Baird, the warm welcome accorded the play and the players is fully justified. As Giovanni Malatesta Mr. H. B. Irving has a part that affords him the fullest scope for that intense and powerful acting of which he has so often proved himself a master, and the many and varying moods of the part are shown with a power that enthrals the audience. Mr. E. Harcourt as the youthful Paolo is excellent, and his love scenes are particularly fine. Miss Dorothea Baird ably depicts the growing love of Francesca, and her acting reaches a high point in the poetic love scene in the garden. Miss Maud Milton makes a striking figure as the jealous Lucrezia, and Miss Ada Mellon's fine voice is impressive in the prophecies of Angela. Miss Elaine Inescourt as Nita and Miss Nannie Bennett as Tessa are of much value. A feature of the performance is the appearance of several of Sir Henry Irving's supporters, notably Mr. Chas. Dodsworth, Mr. Frank Tyars, and Mr. J. Archer. The play is magnificently staged. On Thursday Mr. H. B. Irving was seen in the dual rôle in The Lyons Mail, so long associated with his father's name and fame.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company in that favourite old farcical comedy, The Private Secretary is occupying the boards here this week. Although now on its twenty-second year's tour, the piece has lost none of its old merriment and spirited animation. The Rev. Robert Spalding is in the able hands of Mr. Donald Price-Evans, who is untiring in his efforts to amuse, and who plays the part to excellent advantage. As Mr. Cattermole, Mr. W. Hargreaves succeeds in keeping the audience in a continual ripple of mirth from rise till fall of curtain. Douglas Cattermole (the masquerader) is ably delivered by Mr. Randolph Reade; Mr. Jas. P. Hussey makes an admirable Harry Marsland; Mr. W. T. Elworthy as his father is also above the average; while that amusing personage Mr. Sidney Gibson is left to Mr. Vivian Gilbert, whose talent is highly appreciated by the audience. The feminine parts are excellently filled. The acting of Miss Dora Gray as Edith Marsland is much admired, while as Eva Webster Miss Beth Elliott makes a decided hit. The spiritualistic Miss Ashford is capably portrayed by Mrs. Alfred Davis, while the part of Mrs. Stead could not be in better hands than those of Miss Cecily Wade. The other parts are ably filled. The piece is preceded by a one-act farce of Mr. Jas. Street's, entitled My American Admirer, in which the Misses Elliott and Wade and Messrs. Elworthy and Hussey receive the unstinted applause of large audiences.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Mr. George Edwardes' company is here in Faust Up-to-Date, and is securing good audiences. To most patrons the burlesque is entirely new. Praise is due to Mr. Herbert Sparling for his clever rendering of Mephistopheles. He was suffering from severe hoarseness on the opening night, and the strain was very heavy, yet his songs, dances, and "business" were distinctly enjoyed. As Valentine, Mr. Fred Winn was very successful, carrying off the boisterous fun of the part with much go, and excelling in eccentric dancing. Mr. Vivian Aubrey as Old Faust made much of the little work he had to do in the opening scene, and the Lord Chancellor of Mr. Stephen Adeson once again demonstrated that artist's cleverness. Miss Marie Shields was very clever in the rôle of Martha, and was at once a favourite. The Faust of Miss Moyra Sackville was a dashing impersonation. Her solos were beautifully sung. As Marguerite, Miss Eda Mardy vocalised charmingly, and in the "Jewel Song" her rich soprano delighted everyone. Encores were frequent and well deserved, and her acting was of a high order. The Siebel, Wagner, and Vivandiere of Miss Luna Love, Miss Iris Roy, and Miss Beryl Ford were good both in acting and singing. As Elsa, Miss Amy Payne charmed the house by her finished dancing, and was recalled. The other characters were all well performed, the chorus and orchestra and the scenery and staging being bright and effective.

GRAND, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—The Beast and the Beauty is being presented here. Mr. Milton Rosmer portrays Jack Barrymore with versatile talent; Miss Alice Bowes acts charmingly as Violet; the Henry Denver of Mr. Bernard Mervyn is a finished performance, and the splendid physique of Mr. George Harvard is well suited to the depiction of Ned Samson; Delilah Vane is handsomely represented by Miss Daisy Gwynne; Mr. William C. Passmore gives a decided touch of character to the rôle of the Carl of Loman; the Tom Chicken of Mr. Harry Talbot is an amusing study; and the Dick Soams of Mr. Harry Wimpenny is excellent, the parts of Mr. Sharp and Father Paul being well filled by Messrs. George Belmore and Stanley Vivian. Misses Mollie Williams and Mamie Rendle are smart as the Housemaids, and in the boxing scene Messrs. Bill Ruggles, Tom Franks, James Neal, Will Costa, and Ben Howard take part with credit.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—A Beautiful Fiend is being presented here this week by Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company with admirable results. Miss V. St. Lawrance as Wanda Lubinoff acts with well-sustained effort; and Tom Robertson as Count Haratiff makes an able second in villainy. Mr. Montague Beaudyn is a manly Ivan Paulovich, Sergious Strogoff, and Nadine Haratiff are sympathetically played by Mr. Abbert Wray and Miss Irene Munro. Malachi is ably enacted by Tommy Byron. Mr. Harry Oates as Christopher Crackles and Miss Blanche Hill as Patty Woodlands supply agreeable comedy relief.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Mr. Horace Stanley and his company are here this week with The 10.30 Down Express, in which Mr. Stanley sustains the part of Sam Wagstaffe with great success; ably assisted in by Miss Kate Kilpack as Peggy Potts. Mr. Charles Burdon as James Juderwick, gives a vigorous rendering. Mr. George Beverly as Jack O'Malley makes a manly hero, and Miss Elsie Capell as Bessie Leigh is a pleasing heroine. Mr. Alaric Burton as Cuthbert Leigh acts with dignity, and Miss Evelyn M. Walton as Letitia Leigh depicts an elderly spinster with comical effectiveness. Miss Josephine Lee combines tragedy and comedy in her representation of the deserted wife. Mr. Tom Roydan as Seth Coombs is forcible. Mr. Edwin Clark as the detective is natural.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Miss Annie Bell and company in Sapho, after a successful week at the Royal Princess's, have moved down here and are introducing this striking play to Govan playgoers.

NEW GAIETY.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong.—The management here have contrived to successfully condense The Shaughraun, and a very creditable performance is given by the Gaiety stock company. Mr. T. C. Conover is a clever and entertaining Conn, and Miss Mattie Crawfurd makes a handsome Moya. Miss Laurie A. Pardy and Miss Marie de Roos are seen as Arte O'Neill and Celaine Ffolliot, and Robert Ffolliot is ably acted by Mr. Horace Booth. Mr. A. D. Adams is first-rate as Captain Molyneux. The genial parish priest is well played by Mr. H. Hesselgrave. Mr. Wilton Reed is an effective Corry Kinchella, and Harvey Duff is enacted with grim effect by Mr. A. H. Clarke. Miss Jenny McIntyre is humorous as Conn's mother.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Mussett.—Miss Lil Hawthorne is again the star here, and her melodious songs are highly popular, the gipsy scena being specially attractive. Alexandre and Hughes are a couple of comedy musicians who always have a warm welcome here, and their business is smart and up to date. Annie Abbott, the Georgia magnet, displays her curious skill. Alburtus and Bartram are exceedingly expert in club swinging. Chas. J. Johnson, coloured comedian and cake walker, is a favourite. Ludwig Amann's life-like imitations of famous men evoke hearty applause. The Darktown Entertainers, George Reeves, and Leonard and Francis complete a good company.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Alexander and Hughes give an amusing and clever musical turn here and meet with great success. Rosie Bartlett with her songs has a hearty recall. Harrigan and Holt are a smart pair of comedians who dance exceptionally well. Regene and Robini are as comical as ever; and Paulinetti and Piquo supply a smart performance on the Horizontal bar. Poole and Poole, comedy duo, Burke, Andrus, and Frisco in a humorous sketch, Returning from the Ball; Frank Darwen, actor vocalist; and Gertrude Bradshaw, a pleasing singer, ably assisted a successful performance. "The Globe of Life" has also been shown here, and the daring cycling performance of Wizard and Irene Stone was heartily applauded.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Miss Lily Burnand comes provided with several very good songs, which she renders admirably. Alma, Abdullah, and Superbe do their wonderful electrical turn, which is specially well received. Gilbert Girard's imitations are life-like, and he made a distinct hit. The Bros. Webb are musicians of ability, and their turn is very enjoyable. Hallam and Stanton appear in the musical comedietta, A Broken Journey, a smart and attractive item. Mdlle. Thelma, clay modeller; Les Rubens, operatic vocalists; Annie Laurie, dainty comedienne and dancer; Nat Watkins and Sam Dalton in their respective turns; and Lilian Travelli, comedienne, complete a first-rate company.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Dr. Walford Bodie heads the bill here this week. His performance is as big a draw as ever, judging from the crowded house which greeted him on Monday evening. After going through some amusing electrical experiments with members of the audience as subjects, he completes his turns by treating paralytic children discharged from the local hospital as incurable. Judging from the way his patients are able to walk off the stage, his treatment is highly successful. James Mooney and Ida Holbein are an exceedingly clever and humorous pair. Josh Dixon is a comedian of outstanding merit. Goodfellow and Gregson give a highly amusing sketch, entitled Watch the Chalk; Violi is a clever lady instrumentalist and singer; Atray, juggler and hoop manipulator; Arthur Kenny, sensational cyclist; and Alice Blandford, New Zealand Nightingale, all win well-merited applause.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Mr. Johnny Danvers, comedian and dancer, tops the bill here and justifies the selection, his humorous songs being thoroughly appreciated. Harry Brown, coloured comedian, makes a good impression, his eccentricities evoking great laughter. Another notable item is provided by Albert Wyndham and company in the Shakespearian sketch, Prince Arthur, in which Miss Ivy Millais is seen to advantage. The company includes the Three Sisters Silcott, vocalists and dancers; Mephisto, contortionist; Halma, juggler; Mdlle. Kloct, in picturesque poses; Ronald Bayne and Evelyn Hope, in the historical duologue, The Emperor's Divorce; Tom Davies and company, sketch artists; and the Bioscope with a fine set of pictures.

QUEEN'S.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Tom Edmonds, boxer, tops the bill here, meeting all local aspirants in the "noble art." He is well received, his boxing being decidedly smart. A clever turn is done by Russell Car, military ventriloquist; and Kendrick and Laura are expert society entertainers; John Ross, double-voiced vocalist, is heard to advantage in up-to-date songs. Other members of the company are Mabel Kessler, soprano, and post-born soloist; Kanlo Bros. in sketch, A Scotsman's Dilemma in Hyde Park; and Lukos, man monkey. The Queen's Bioscope shows some new and interesting pictures.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mlle. Florence and a company of excellent artists are drawing large houses here this week. Polly Adula greatly pleases with her abilities as a vocalist and dancer; Bros. Arnold are exceedingly clever as illusionists; and Dale and D'Argan appear with success as comedy acrobatic conjurers. Mlle. Florence gives a fine performance on the rolling globe and bottles, and wins applause with her sensational feat of descending a staircase 15ft. high on the rolling globe; the Dana Girls are pleasing duettists and dancers; Harry Keeble scores as an eccentric comedian; the Bendons do well in their impersonations of "That's how they say good-night"; Hoozee provides a good turn as ventriloquist; and Alvar is smart as a gymnast. Abex shows marvellous strength, lifting a motor car and four passengers with comparative ease.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. Rea.—The company is this week headed by George French, comedian; and the next important turn is Rebla the tramp juggler; Edney and Wade are good vocalists and dancers; Sheila McNeil is entertaining as a Scotch comedienne; Lack and Ford present a clever comedy acrobatic performance; J. F. Sterling is a neat comedian and dancer; Linton gives a good equilibristic act; the Cashens are champion step dancers; Mr. Frank Wood has a sweet tenor voice; and the Bioscope is again a feature of the performances.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—Mr. John V. Gordon's company occupies the boards here for three nights with The Best Woman in the World. The play is well-staged, and Mr. Gordon has selected a competent company. Mr. Arthur Curzon submits a sound representation of Capt. Sir Arthur Langley. Mr. Basil Mitchell figures prominently as the villain Capt. Dudley Stewart. Mr. Wilson Roberts is a capital Hon. Herbert FitzHerbert, and his singing earned well-deserved encores. Mr. John V. Gordon keeps the house in hearty laughter by his humorous portrayal of Solomon Isaacs. Mr. Henry Deane is an excellent Rev. John Wilson, and Mr. Joseph W. Boyling is successful as Richard Thorp. Miss Lily Annesley in the trying rôle of Muriel Clifford acts with cleverness. Miss Phyllis Elton is a fascinating Frixie McKinby. Miss Lelia Drummond plays charmingly the part of Grace Beale and Miss Maggie French is a clever Mary. For the latter part of the week "Geoffrey Stirling" was announced.

GRAVESEND.—GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD. — General Manager, Mr. David Hart. — Les Voces, operatic soloists and duettists, have been specially engaged for the week, and have done well; Will Farrell is a favourite express comedian, and May Terriss a charming burlesque actress; Fred Collins is a good Scotch character-comedian, Maudie Ford a dainty comedienne and dancer, the Two Jays are unique comedians, and Harry and May Kent, the clever comedy artists, score highly in their amusing comedy absurdity, The Grass Widower.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Popple (of Ippleton) has been introduced to Yarmouth audiences this week by Mr. Charles Macdona's excellent company. In the title-rôle Mr. G. P. Huntley is inimitable, depicting the simple, good-natured Freddy Popple with a quiet gravity which is irresistibly comic, and winning hearty applause for his effectively sung songs. Miss Millie Legarde is excellent as La Bolero, her singing of the many good numbers incidental to the part being animated and expressive, and many encores reward her efforts. Platt and Louise are in the capable hands of Mr. C. M. Daly and Miss Nellie Hodson, the two working excellently together in both song and dance. Mr. Sydney Young as George Hennay, and Mr. James Stevenson as Henry Doring, are most amusing; and their wives are capitally contrasted by Miss Kate Forster and Miss Ella Daincourt. Norman Popple is well played by Mr. Basil S. Foster; and Jaques Kenyon finds an able representative in Mr. Arthur Grover. Violet Brinton is charmingly represented by Miss Eva Kelly, who quickly sings and dances her way into favour. The choruses are spiritedly sung, and the scenery and dresses are excellent.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. V. Leveaux's company is here with the successful play. The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt. Mr. Reginald Dance depicts the suave, satirical Mr. Vanderveldt most successfully; and Miss Gladys Mason is light, airy, and fascinating as Lady Clarice Howland. Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton is earnest and manly as Colonel Rayner; Mr. Edward Coutts is excellent as Lord Woolham; and the Rev. Hubert Langston is admirably depicted by Mr. George Percy. Aggie Coles is charmingly played by Miss Eve Titheradge; and Miss Mary Weigall is an austere Marchioness. Other parts are well filled.

BRITANNIA PIER PAVILION. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—The famous comedian Mr. Charles Collette is here this week, and presents his humorous monologue, Hard Luck. He also joins with Miss Joan Derby in a bright little sketch, Tea for Two. A long programme also includes Ford and Hanson, musical millionaires; Hal Brough, antipodean comedian; Marco, boy magician; Mlle. Lumière, kaleidoscopic dancer; Busie and Hurst, in The Wrong Flat; Rosie Loader, the slavey at the piano; the Lilewellyns, operatic vocalists; Mme. H. E. Angless' Ladies' Pompadour Band, and the Britanniscope.

WELLINGTON PIER PAVILION. — Proprietors, Great Yarmouth Corporation; Manager, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—The Four Athos give an exceedingly clever show as head acrobats and ball manipulators; Harry Sims amuses as a comedian; Kloof and Ramsay give an original musical burlesque scena; George Brown, the Yorkshire comedian, submits an enjoyable turn; the Clayton Twins, Harriet Wood and Annine Willis, take part in a screamingly funny sketch, Pepper and Salt; Norah Donne sings prettily and dances gracefully; Helen Charles contributes a pleasing drawing-room entertainment; and Emlyn Jones and ladies' quartette are most successful in their international vocal scena.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—The great attraction for the week is the appearance of the "Pygmies," who excite an enormous amount of wonder and interest. The Frantz troupe of acrobats supply a remarkably clever show, and are recalled each evening. Other artists appearing are Carr Bros., comedians; Edie Gray and her white coons; John Gelding, equestrian; Edgar Budden, roller skate dancer; Babusio Bros., equilibrists; J. H. Culeen, champion boy rider; Miss Ioni Gillett, equestrienne; and Hinton and Wooton, in a football match on bicycles. The Walrus Hunt still continues its amusing course; Rabbit causes roars of laughter as clown; and fresh pictures are shown on the bioscope.

CHAPPELL'S CONCERT COMPANY.—The newcomers are Mlle. Sylvesto, who gives an exceedingly good turn as a contortionist; and Carl Howard, who glories in the title of the crazy conjurer. Other artists appearing are J. H. Crew, eccentric; Clyo and Rochelle, comedian and soubrette; Brothers Hannaway, cross-talkers and dancers; Minnie Leverents, ballad vocalist; Bernard and Weston, the argumentative gents; Harry Barker, versatile artist; the Nettas, harmony duo; the Sisters Hula, vocalists and dancers; Fred Dice, descriptive vocalist; Amy Allnutt, comedienne; Leslie Reed, comedian; Ada Victor, vocalist and dancer; and Will Netta, baritone vocalist.

GREENOCK. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. William Greet's company is here this week with The Sign of the Cross. Mr. Frank E. Petley makes a convincing Marcus Superbus; Mr. C. Yorke is an excellent exponent of Nero; and other parts are well filled by Mr. Charles Aldred, Mr. J. Wetherall, Mr. Frank Wood, Mr. Harry Jones, Mr. Thurston Harris, Mr. Roy Cushing, and Mr. E. Yaldwin. Miss Marie Leonhard is all that could be desired as Mercia; and the other characters are in safe hands. The singing of the chorus is very good, and the scenery and dresses are beautiful.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—The bill here is headed by Taro Myaki, the Japanese ju-jitsu wrestler, and his turn, which is very clever, is much appreciated. The Jackley Trio, acrobats; Ernest Montefiore and company, with a sketch, The Little Colonel; the Davenports, lightning magicians and illusionists; W. J. Ashcroft, comedian; J. H. Bowman, Transatlantic speciality performer; and J. C. Scatler, comedian and dancer, are also in the bill, and provide first-class entertainment.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Lessees, The Greenock Pavilion, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—The principal turn here this week is given by Billie Barlow, the clever comedienne. Other good turns are provided by Mr. Will Sergeant, Anglo-American comedian; Mlle. Zelda, musical performer; Maud Esmond, burlesque artist; Sisters Slater, banjoists and dancers; Chummie La Mara, comedienne; Angeline, juggler; and Janet Howard Reynolds, vocalist.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—This has been the annual opera week, and the programme has been provided by Mr. J. W. Turner's Opera Company. The week opened with the favourite Maritana, with Mr. Turner himself as Don Cæsar. He was accorded a great ovation, and his singing was admired as much as ever. An altogether charming Maritana was Miss Kitty Brownless, a soprano of considerable power and excellent expression. The Don Jose of Mr. Tom Griffiths, a baritone possessing wonderful evenness of tone and exceptional range, was also greatly appreciated. Mr. Sidney Clifford was as popular as ever as the King; and Miss Jessie Dennis represented Lazarillo. Other operas performed during the week were The Lily of Killarney, The Bohemian Girl, The Waterman (preceded by the fourth act of Il Trovatore), and Faust. Besides those already mentioned the following took prominent parts: Miss Addington, Miss Beatrice Hill, Miss Ethel Locker, Mr. F. J. Hargreave, Mr. R. Cummings, and Mr. John Ridding, who is a great favourite here.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Miss Ada Fawn has fully sustained her popularity here in her latest songs and old favourites. Professor Fuller's illusion, in which he causes his lady partner, Astarte, to float in the air, greatly puzzles the audience; a smart cycle act is given by the Marsumas; Vincent performs a novel table act; a capital vocal turn is given by Merton and Rydon; and an abundance of comedy is provided by Maxford and Niell, George Raper, and Will Daniels.

THE EMPIRE, CLEETHORPES.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Carter-White; Manager, Mr. W. M. Baker.—The Donatos, described as one-legged comedians, give a novel act, their jumping and dancing being really wonderful. A musical entertainment of a refined character is given by the Cecilias, their post-horn and cornet solos being especially admired. May and Theresa prove a couple of expert protean artists; Phinas and Aida give a clever gymnastic exhibition; and the programme also includes Charles Chard, comedian; Molly Woolstenholme, operatic balladist; and Annie Casey, comedienne.

HALIFAX.—THE GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Mr. Bert Coote's company is paying a welcome return visit here this week with The Fatal Wedding, which is drawing large and enthusiastic houses. Mr. Ernest Owtrim delights by the dramatic excellence of his portrayal of Mr. Wilson; the character of Robert Curtis is still in the safe-keeping of Mr. Herbert Humber, who gives a forcible representation of the mischief-maker; a worthy exponent of O'Reilly is found in Mr. Geo. Waring; and Mr. C. H. Hughes is quite at home as Toto. Miss Marjorie Lawrence is delightfully natural as Jessie, the "Little Mother," her assumption of maternal affection being very pleasing. A formidable Cora Williams is found in Miss Gertrude Harrison; while Miss Madge Haines is a discriminating Mabel Wilson. The specialities introduced by the "kiddies" are particularly good.

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Carl Hertz (the mystifier) is the principal attraction here this week, with his new illusion, a full account of which appears on another page. Another leading turn is provided by Frank Danby and company in a musical comedy sketch Chauffeur, in which an admirably trained bevy of pretty girls sing finely, while the fun goes merrily with Mr. Danby in the centre. Bros. Dean are gifted dancers and are vociferously received. Mlle. Eldee, George Edney, Harry Wenburn, The Paolis, and Burg, Haug and Wise participate in a capital bill.

HANLEY.—ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Human Hearts is the attraction this week. The piece is presented by a capable company, and has a hearty reception. Mr. George Rowlands as Tom Logan contributes a manly portrayal; Mr. L. Williams is well placed as Fred Armsdale; as the nigger, Morse, Mr. Arthur Estcourt is seen to advantage; Mr. Edwin Palmer as Richard Markham plays in a creditable manner; as Deputy Western, Mr. Frith Leicester is all that could be desired; Jim Mason finds a capital representative in Mr. Sydney Sarl; Mr. Ben McDale is good as James Shaw, and Mike Corrigan is in the capable hands of Mr. Wynne Hammond. Miss Minnie Silvestre gives a smart interpretation; Jennie Logan is cleverly enacted by Miss V. Fordyce; Miss Bessie Palmer scores as Mrs. Sam Logan; little Freda Green, a clever child actress, is excellent as Gracie, and Miss Barbara Bateman gives an impressive impersonation of Jimmy Logan.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—Alf Gibson heads the bill here, and is, as usual, successful. Florrie Gallimore sings her songs capitally, and is well received; the Waldrons in their comedy act, The Silly Burglar, are funny; the Tally Ho Trio have a hearty reception in their vocal efforts; Vermotte and Dionne contribute a thrilling turn on the triple bars; the Sisters Brand dance cleverly, and the Bros. Brooks are a capital pair of comedians. The animated pictures are, as usual, excellent.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Fielding-Smith.—On Monday Mr. Martin Harvey appeared here in Boy O'Carroll. He had an enthusiastic reception, and was, as usual, excellent, and gave a very fine performnace. He had good support from a capable company. Miss Mary Rorke was very well placed as Lady Honoria Vere, and won golden opinions. Miss N. de Silva was amusing as the boy Paudheen, and Major Yarrington had an able exponent in Mr. C. J. Cameron. Mr. Vincent Sternroyd was good as Captain Hebblethwaite. Miss Bessie Elder is to be specially congratulated on her clever acting of Tabitha. The rest of the characters were well filled, and the mounting of the piece was greatly admired.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns. — Houses packed with appreciative audiences are the result of the bookings for this week. The Bros. O'Brien, who head the list, are vociferously encored for their clever and sensational bar performance. The Cullane Trio are old favourites, and in their comedy act, The Ladies' School, fairly bring down the house. Harry Nelson, another favourite, is as popular as ever. Cavalli, a Tyneside ventriloquist, is one of the most expert artists in that line that has visited here. Alfred and Son, balancers and tumblers, present a clever and neatly worked turn; Hicks' Clerks in their comedy and refined entertainment are on a return visit, and are to be congratulated upon the success attained, and Clarence Fenwick, a pleasing baritone, and some new films, are also attractive items.

HASTINGS. — GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Mr. George Dance's company in Lady Madcap was here for the first half of the week, and a good house assembled on Monday and greatly enjoyed the joyous abandon of this merry piece. Mr. Bay Russell, who filled the rôle of Bill Stratford, danced with much agility, and with Mr. James Graydon as Posh Jenkins, sang greatly to the satisfaction of the audience. Mr. Harold Parkes was very amusing as Oroya Brown. Mr. George Whillis was very alert as Corporal Ham, and as the Count M. Jules Charmette's singing was greatly liked. Miss Isabelle Dillon was a sprightly and roguish Lady Betty, and her songs and dancing won much well-deserved favour; Miss Ethel Beech was an excellent Susan, and danced some sprightly measures; Miss Elsa D'Usez made a charming Gwenny Holden, and Miss Gabrielle Leighton did well as Mrs. Layton. The ladies of the chorus sang and danced well, and were pleasingly dressed. The orchestra was directed by Mr. Leonard Leslie, and Mr. O. Marshall stage-managed as well as appeared in the cast as Lord Framlington. For the second part of the week, Mr. Fred Mouillot's company in San Toy paid a return visit.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Mathams.—Miss Mollie Nolan, an attractive comedian, opens an excellent programme. Mons. Lozelle scores a success as a sensational gymnast; Miss Patty Yole is a refined vocalist and elegrant dancer; Edward E. Ford is a remarkably facial expert with a fund of original humour; a talented couple are found in Lytton and Bland, who introduce a very pretty little sketch; Leo. Dryden possesses an excellent voice; and the acrobatic performances of the Four Aces prove them comedians of exceptional ability; Sam Mitchello, comedian, receives a warm welcome. The Australian prima donna, Madam Ada Colley, submits delightful renderings of her songs, which are followed with great applause. An interesting comedy act is successfully gone through by George Regan and Fred Ryan; an Australian after-piece, The Indian, given by a troupe of comedians, is delightfully piquant and amusing. One of the most attractive items in the programme is the Hippodrome bioscope.

BEACH CONCERT PAVILION. — Manager, Mr. Geo. Blackmore.—The bright entertainment provided by the Wallis Arthur company has made it a firm favourite, and good business results. Mr. Chas. Marston hits the taste of his audience in the songs he submits, and Mr. George Blackmore deservedly keeps premier favourite. Miss Ada Gaskill is happy in her choice of ballads, and Miss Harbor scores a success with her songs. The choruses by the company are a very enlivening feature.

PIER PAVILION.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Interesting variety characterises the programme here this week. Miss Amy Atkins, a local lady vocalist, sings with much sweetness; some original juggling is shown by Primavesi; Mr. J. D. Hunter introduces some popular character songs, as well as taking the principal part in the amusing farce, A Kiss in the Dark. In this he is associated with Mr. Charles Hawker, and those excellent comediennes Miss Eva and Miss Blanche Bayley. Madame Marie Michele's ballads, rendered in a rich contralto voice, are very pleasing; a marionette circus is cleverly manipulated by the Sisters Petram; Mr. Fred Malburn gives a remarkable exhibition on novel musical instruments; and Miss Ruby Bijou is a graceful and artistic dancer.

ST. LEONARDS PAVILION THEATRE.—Pier-Master and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—The Follies are holding the stage here this week. They amuse their audiences in a delightful manner. Mr. H. G. Pellissier contributes some clever and amusing selections on the piano; others of this little company who are equally successful are Mr. Lewis Sydney, Mr. Dan Everard, and the Misses Napier, Ethel Allandale, and Gwennie Mars.

ALEXANDRA PARK.—The Corporation Amusements Committee carried out an evening carnival and fancy dress dance on Wednesday. Prizes were given for the best costumes and the most original dresses. A variety company gave a performance on a special platform. The Sisters Russell rendered duets, Miss Murray sang and danced, Mr. Bert Forss gave a recital of comic pieces, and the Imperial Quartet sang glees and catches. There was a display of fireworks by Mr. W. F. Jury, and music was supplied by handbell ringers and a concertina band.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Between Two Women is being played here by Mr. Frederick Melville's company, which includes Mr. Watkin Wynne as the Earl of Millard, Mr. Stephen Langton as his wayward son Harry, and Mr. Godfrey Tearle a manly Philip Carton. Mr. Walter Thornton as Durwood, and Mr. Roland Yorke as Strangeways, make a pretty pair of villains, and their principal victim is sympathetically played by Miss Molly Malone as Violet. Miss Winifred Pearson is seen to advantage in the part of Carmen de Savereaux, and a deeply pathetic rendering of the rôle of the blind boy is supplied by Miss Lulu Bowes. Miss Lilian Earle as Polly, and Mr. Fred Danvers as Jack provide much humour.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The following artists are appearing here:—Hill and Whitaker, in a delightfully refreshing musical interlude; Miss Frances Haskoll with an attractive illustrated song turn; Boden and Bell, a couple of clever youngsters; Mlle. Olive, an accomplished lady juggler; Harding and Ah Sid, a pair of fine acrobats and burlesque jugglers, and Cribb and Cribb, grotesque acrobats. Some good pictures are shown on the Biograph.

HULL. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Hall Caine's fine play, The Manxman, is paying us a return visit with Mr. Alfred B. Cross in the part of Pete. He gives a fine study of the character. Miss Minnie Watersford sustains the rôle of Kate acceptably, and Mr. J. Dillon's Cesar Cregeen is a very creditable performance.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Austin Melford's company in The Silver King is engaging the attention of the audience at this house. Mr. Herbert Ford gives a fine performance as Wilfrid Denver. The Jaikes is Mr. Tom Paulton, who meets with warm favour. The Spider is represented by Mr. Chas. Baird very commendably. Miss Victoria Addison is quite successful as Nellie Denver. The staging was adequate, and all the familiar episodes were well received.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mortons, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company in The Midnight Mail has proved very acceptable to the Alexandra audiences, who each evening have received the efforts of the company with applause. Miss Phyllis Dailly as Lady Eustace won the sympathy of the house. Mr. Fred G. Evison proved himself a comedian of much resource. Mr. Alfred Goddard was excellent as Harry Steyne. Miss Ada Oakley invested her performance as Mary Steyne with many delicate feminine characteristics, and was well received. The play went well from start to finish.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Miss Millie Hylton, a big Hull panto favourite, makes a welcome reappearance in some excellent songs, in which she is ably assisted by Miss Decima Brooke. Zeta Gray and company appear in a musical comedietta entitled The Lancashire Lass, and other artists include Beatrice Worth, Sam Shipley, Sisters Desmond, Frank Leslie, Harry Luck, and Kroney Bros.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.—Chirgwin tops the bill here; Barton and Ashley are very smart in a comic interlude, Canal Boat Sue; the Picquays give a sensational "upside down" dance; Sybil St. Elmo is a delightful soprano; and other artists include George Adams, Will Cornish, and R. H. Douglas.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Miss Lilian Beszant's company is delighting large audiences here this week with An Actor's Romance. The rôle of Harold Davenport is portrayed with earnestness and conviction by Mr. E. Eardley Howard. The unscrupulous nature of Florence Hastings is cleverly depicted by Miss Florence Nelson, and the shady side of humanity is also excellently drawn by Mr. Cecil Fowler as Robert Livingstone; Mr. Harry Agar-Lyons renders a good account of himself as Jack Woodford, and Mr. Percy Warlow submits a capital character sketch as Ikey Isaacs. Miss Beatrice Hove makes a graceful

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—After the Ball is here this week, played by Mr. Charles Carey's company, which includes Mr. Percy Baverstock, who works hard and successfully as Colonel Joseph Menit. The part of Halliwell Menit is ably undertaken by Mr. Algernon W. Lee, his singing being a special feature. Mr. Buckstone Clair is well placed as the manservant Martin; and Mr. Norman Bowyer cleverly represents Dick Seymour. Miss Queenie Finnis puts plenty of brightness into her impersonation of Nellie Mather, and sings nicely; Miss Eva Ellis is pleasing as Ruth Gray; Miss Nellie James, who plays Kitty, is a capital dancer; and the rôle of Nancy is well depicted by Miss M. Sadie. The chorus is good, and the Gibson Girls add much to the success of the performance.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—At the head of the bill here are Florence and Lillian in a clever musical act. Charles Bignell brings down the house; Little Rose Pink is an exceptional singer; Harry Bickley knows how to amuse his audience; and the Carls in a scene, Fun in a Café, do some smart acrobatic work. Gertie Gitana sings and dances nicely; and Zetta, lady wire-walker, is exceedingly smart. Walter Payne's animated pictures still prove an attraction.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—A cordial and demonstrative welcome was accorded Mr. Lewis Waller and Miss Evelyn Millard on Monday by a crowded and distinguished audience, whose verdict on the new romantic comedy, Brigadier Gerard, was an entirely favourable one, calling forth a fervent message of thanks from the popular actor-manager at the close of the performance. His assumption of the title-rôle is artistic and convincing, every phase of a many-sided character being depicted with consummate finish. The Countess of Miss Evelyn Millard is a most charming and accomplished effort. As Napoleon Mr. A. E. George is very effective; Mr. Edward O'Neill gives an excellent presentation of the diplomat Talleyrand; Mr. Shiel Barry and Mr. Frank Cochrane do good service as agents in Talleyrand's employ; and amongst a group of striking military figures, Mr. J. H. Irvine, Mr. Eric Scott, Mr. Owen Roughwood, and Mr. Frank Woolfe merit special mention. A dramatic monologue, Fortune's Fool, in which Mr. Waller's abilities in a more serious vein are demonstrated, acts as curtain raiser. For three evenings and one matinée, Monsieur Beaucaire is the attraction, and has been enthusiastically received.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—An abridged version of the much-talked-of Sapho is being played here to good houses twice a night by Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's company. Miss Ada Abbott has the important part of Fanny Legrand, and displays conspicuous ability; Jean Gaussin, the peasant-lover, is most effectively presented by Mr. E. R. Abbott; a clever and amusing sketch of the voluble old rake, Uncle Cesaire, is to be credited to Mr. Douglas C. Phelps; Mr. W. H. Garbois is well-suited with his part of Déchelette; Mr. Edward Tring as Flamant depicts the felon with conviction; and other parts are played by Miss Louise Gilmore, Miss Kathleen Stewart, and Miss Marjory Tennant.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—In Sight of St. Paul's is the title of an acceptable drama which is being capitally presented here by Mr. Arthur Carlton's company. Mr. Ernest R. Allen plays the part of the wronged man Harcourt in able manner, his efforts being ably seconded by Miss Cissy Bellamy in a charming portrayal of the heroine. Mr. Arthur Armfield is particularly strong and effective as the evil-doer. A strong vein of humour runs through the story, and in this connection Mr. Wilton Bedford and Miss Amy Randolph make the most of numerous opportunities. Other leading parts are well and carefully acted by Mr. Robert Grant and Miss Amy Nettleton.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley.—There is no more popular merriment merchant than Mark Sheridan, and the breezy comedian is having another week of huge success; a remarkably fine example of canine intelligence is to be seen in Duncan's Dogs, the interesting turn at the bottom of the bill; the Scottish Meisters are here again, combining vocal ability and humorous interludes; an amusing comedy speciality is enacted by Alburtus and Jessie Millar; Woodhouse and Wells, with amusing talk and smart dancing, win much appreciation; the fine songs of Ian Colquhoun are much admired; that charming vocalist, Flo Esdaile, is again delighting her numerous admirers; the usual knockabout speciality is done by Marba and Verity; and the Three Sisters Sprightly again prove popular in song and dance.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Claude Shayler and Mr. Chas. Weldon.—Radford and Valentine, the smart and amusing comedy jugglers, are a big line in the week's bill here, and their efforts generally are provocative of much merriment; there is a flying trapeze act, cleverly done by the Three Rainats; and Harry Thurston is clever in various impersonations. Comedians are numerous this week, and very entertaining. Ted Cowan, J. P. Dane, Fred Land, Sidney Dolf, and Joe Lloyd being particular favourites. Emil Amiel is a contortionist of remarkable flexibility; a performing dog show, engineered by J. Reichen, proves an interesting turn; and Rita Bell, the Dutch girl, makes a big hit.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred W Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—Two clever juveniles, Ford and Barras, are making a big hit in a turn which includes singing, dancing, and bone solos; the Seven Zerbinis, excellent musicians, give an enjoyable turn; Helen Martin is to the fore with excellent vocal contributions; Billy Williams, the Australian comedian, is having a good time; Johnson and Pelham with their comedy act are vastly entertaining, as also are Welda and Wynne as comic jugglers. Forrest's Comedy Sketch Company provides ten minutes of uproarious merriment; that clever pair, Starr and Jerome, are pleasing with their vocal speciality; and Ida Ross is also a notable success.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren are successfully reviving Claudian here. To the play full justice is done by an excellent company, and the great earthquake scene is depicted in most realistic style. In the title-rôle Mr. Wm. Maclaren is seen at his best, his whole performance being conspicuously successful. He is well seconded by Miss Lily C. Bandmann (Mrs. Maclaren), who creates an excellent impression in the part of Almida; Mr. F. Owen Chambers gives a clever rendering of the part of Thariogalus; Mr. Laurence Kingsley is good as Agazil, and both Mr. Chal. T. Chaloner as Belos, and Miss Maud Garth as Edessa give capital impersonations; Mr. S. Brisco Farbridge, as the Holy Clement, pronounces the curse in the prologue with telling effect.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The attraction provided here this week is Mr. Lingford Carson's company in The Power of the Cross. As Baron Woulfe Curzote Mr. Hartwell J. Kirby is very effective; Miss Cissie St. Elmo is excellent as Rita Lascelles; Miss Stanley Burt does well as Margaret Seaton; Mr. Harry C. Rutland is capital as Gerald Fairfax; as is also Mr. Royce Carleton as Dr. Fairfax; Mr. A. J. Murray shines as the banker, David Kingsley; Miss May Grayce as Blanche Kingsley is meritorious; and Miss Etta Turner is good as Dolly Gray. The drama is well mounted.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Andrews.—The leading feature in this week's programme is the Harmony Four, who are meeting with well-deserved success; Carlton is a remarkably smart card manipulator and quaint jester; O'Gust, the French mimic, is always sure of a hearty reception here; The Coon's Revelry, presented by Barnard's Mannikins, is an entertaining feature; the Brothers Durant are mirth-provoking in their comedy novelty act; the Olive Trio of girl singers and dancers are smart; Fred Lincoln is a versatile comic singer; Professor Therese an amusing comedy hypnotist; Joseph Adelmann a brilliant xylophonist; and the American Bioscope is depicting in ten scenes "Black Beauty."

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—Miss Jessie Elvin and company are the premier attraction here, and are presenting in good style the romantic sketch A Gipsy's Revenge and the burlesque comedy sketch The Master, the Maid, and the Men. The variety portion is contributed by Letine, who is the best female impersonator seen here; Kavados, a clever juggler; Zasma, a gymnast of ability; Leah Arden, an excellent ballad vocalist; Flo Melvile, a popular buresque artist; and Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope, with the usual entertaining films.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—A good acting company, specially selected by the author, is presenting here Mr. Frederick Melville's strong play, Her Forbidden Marriage, not inaptly designated a whirlwind drama of surprises. The hero, George Madiston, is well represented by Mr. Henry Lonsdale; and the part of heroine is sympathetically played by Miss Nellie Bouser. Aided by the funny man, Timothy and his sweetheart Patty (respectively impersonated in a most amusing manner by Mr. Fred De Vere and Miss Denny Fitzherbert), the long-suffering lovers effectually circumvent the machinations of a whole quartette of villains, to wit, Charles Devereux, Sir George and Lady Lucretia Lancaster, and Geoffrey Broughton. This wicked syndicate is individually portrayed with full measure of success by Mr. Louis Hector, Mr. Kenneth Black, Miss Octavia Noel, and Mr. Leonard Maxwell. The small part of an aged rustic becomes a clever farcical sketch in the hands of Mr. Philip Renouf; and other minor rôles in a long cast are adequately filled; while Miss Barbara Gott fairly carries away her audience by an artistic and impressive rendering of the part of Mother Superior.

LEVEN.—TOWN HALL.—On Saturday night Mr. W. T. Rushbury's company produced Uncle Tom's Cabin, and a well-filled house testified to the continued popularity of the drama. As Topsy, Miss Nellie Shannon scored a decided success; Miss Mabel Durham displayed considerable versatility and power in doubling the parts of Eliza and Cassy; Miss Lillian Murray was a sufficiently prim Ophelia; Miss Addie Burrows was effective as Mrs. Shelby; and Miss Midge Van de Peer made a very sweet and dainty little Eva. Uncle Tom was played to the life by Mr. C. H. Chivers; Mr. T. B. Brabazon was good as Phineas Fletcher and Simon Legree; Mr. W. A. Warren made an amusing Marks; Messrs. Edward Vivian and Fred Luard were successful as George Harris and George Shelby; and excellent support was given by the remaining members of the numerous company.—Mr. Jack Hamilton, manager of the Beach Concert Company, took a well-deserved benefit on Monday evening in the Town Hall. On Tuesday night the Hall was occupied by Mr. Mackenzie Murdoch's Merrymakers, who are always sure of a welcome here.

LLANDUDNO. — GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. A. G. Pugh.—The Elder Miss Blossom, by Ernest Hendrie and Metcalfe Wood, was presented here on Monday by the Kendals, the co-authors appearing as Christopher Blossom and Withers respectively, both fully sustaining their parts in capital style. Mr. Bassett Roe as Major Twenty-man did well; Miss Dorothy Moor Lane as Sophia Blossom was excellent; Mr. Kendal as Andrew Quick, and Mrs. Kendal as Dorothy Blossom, were, of course, excellent.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. R. Chaplin.—Mr. Dance's company has presented The Girl from Kay's for three nights this week. As Max Hoggenheimer Mr. J. W. Hopper was distinctly good, his up-to-date political songs being encored time after time; Mr. J. Hart as Frank was well placed; Joseph was safe in the hands of Mr. Claude Dampier; Miss Jessie Fraser as the girl from Kay's was very charming, her songs being well received; as Norah Chalmers Miss Marie Greenhouse was good; and Miss Irene Vere as Ellen showed skill and ability in her dancing. On Thursday Facing the Music was presented.

PIER PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. S. Hughes, jun.—The Royal American Bioscope continues to appeal to young and old alike. Upwards of 10,000 pictures are shown nightly, and with an entire change of programme weekly, this bijou theatre is a favourite rendezvous.

MESSRS PERRY'S HAPPY VALLEY MINSTRELS are fully retaining their reputation, and with Sam Atherton, Billy Richardson, M.P., and A. Stern as the star artists, give a thorough minstrel entertainment and that without a shadow of vulgarity. Mr. G. W. Codman, the pedestral dancer, has been added to the troupe.

EGYPTIAN HALL.—Proprietor, Prof. W. Beaumont; Manager, Mr. W. F. Holt.—Mr. Holt as ventriloquist is good. The Mysterious Merry Magician and Hyam Long complete a good programme.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Mr. Ian Maclaren and his talented company are doing very well here this week in a round of Shakespearean and classical plays. On Monday evening Hamlet was staged, with Mr. Ian Maclaren in the title-rôle, in which he scored a very great success. Miss Edith Coleman was good as the Queen of Denmark, and Miss Gertrude Gilbert made a capital Ophelia; the parts of Polonius, Laertes, and Horatio were all well taken by Messrs. Gordon Phillott, Whitford Kane, and Alfred Grey respectively. Mr. Phillip Gordon was a good King of Denmark. David Garrick, Twelfth Night, As You Like it, Merchant of Venice, and Othello were also in the bill.

LOWESTOFT. — MARINA. — Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Mr. George Dance's talented company are proving a strong attraction in a welcome return visit in Veronique. Mr. Douglas Phillips makes an impressive appearance as Florestan de Vallancourt, and Mr. Tom Seymour deserves praise for his enactment as the bailiff, Mons. Loustot. Seraphin finds a capable exponent in Mr. Scott Cullen, and a careful interpretation of Mons. Coquenard is submitted by Mr. Ellis Holland. Miss Agnes Tandy gives a pleasing rendering as Mdme. Coquenard, and the name part is delightfully performed by Miss Nellie Wigley, who is heard to distinct advantage in the several musical numbers allotted to her. The Countess de Champ d'Azur is suitably portrayed by Miss Edith Devonshire; Miss Maude Leonard leaves nothing to be desired as Aunt Benoit; and Miss Neste Laurel plays the part of Denice with marked ability. For the latter part of the week we have A Country Girl.

THE HIPPODROME.—Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—This week's bill includes Max Gruber and his performing elephant, horse, and pony; Raymond Trio, musical act; the Harnels, equestrians; Miss Lucretia, burlesque actress; the Bristons, comedy cyclists; Billy, the horse with the human brain; Little Bishop, and Shadow.

OLYMPIA GARDENS AND SPARROW-NEST PARK.—Mr. Paul Mills' entertainers, including J. G. Taylor, are attracting large audiences. Mr. Mills took his thirteenth annual benefit on Wednesday, the grounds being illuminated and special attractions provided for the occasion.

MAIDENHEAD.—TOWN HALL.—Secretary, the Town Clerk.—Miss Maggie Morton paid us a welcome return visit on Tuesday last with Two Little Drummer Boys, and succeeded again in delighting a crowded house. Miss Mabel Stevenson and Miss Marjory Armstrong were good in the title-rôles; and Mr. Walter Watts gave a meritorious study of the small part of Jim Barker. Messrs. Arthur Temple and F. Morton Wright with Miss Marie Angus, supply the comedy; and Mr. Walter Wray is capital as Captain Carsdale. Miss C. Clutterbuck and Miss Enid French are particularly good as Alma Kingsley and Margaret Rivers; and Mr. Ivor Langton deserves special commendation for his strong presentment of Captain George Darrell. Miss Inez Howard's company in Tommy Atkins was billed for Friday.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The Zaros, high-class acrobatic and tumbling artists, are giving a very fine exhibition here this week; the Sisters Transfield (Tina, Florrie, and Cissie), who are well known in the town, have a very hearty reception in their new musical act, being encored again and again; the three Sisters Kilner (Lily, Rose, and Violet), vocalists and acrobatic dancers, give a refined turn; Serpentello, the renowned contortionist and neck dislocater, and Dan Conroy, comedian, both get good receptions; Bertha Duckett, comedienne and dancer, is good; and Paul Pelham does well. Fresh films are shown on the bioscope.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Exclusive-Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austin-Leigh.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company were here for three nights, commencing on Monday, with The Freedom of Suzanne, in which Miss Mabel Love appeared with pronounced success as Suzanne Trevor, gaining well-won encomiums by her bewitching performance. Mr. Templer Powell was admirable as her husband, Charles Trevor, cleverly emphasising all the points of an effective part. Miss Annie Stalman made a particularly good Lady Charlotte Trevor, the mother-in-law, and Mr. F. G. Thurstans was intensely amusing as Fitzroy Harding, Suzanne's uncle. Some good work was put in by Mr. Patrick Quill as Sir Horace Hatton, the family solicitor; and Miss Charlotte Mead as Miss Fanny Mincing, the heroine's companion, and Miss Violet Ley as Lady Isabel Bury, her friend, were excellent in their respective parts. The other characters in the cast were all satisfactorily filled. The comedy was preceded each evening by the one-act play Mary's Secret. For the remainder of the week there was a return visit of The Walls of Jericho.

THE HIPPODROME.—Joint Sole Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Mr. Arthur Roberts and his company take the leading place on the week's programme in the sketch, The Importance of being Another Man's Wife. The piece has caused roars of laughter, Mr. Arthur Roberts in the rôle of Fitzawful Smith being extremely funny. Capable support is given by Miss Lorna Treherne, Miss Topsy Sherlock, Miss Ruby Celeste, Miss Jessie Burgutz, and Mr. George P. Polson. Miss Rosie Lloyd, Mr. Charles Deane, and Miss Ella Retford help to make the programme a pleasing one, and Mr. Mark Henton is also on the list. Clown Barker and Miss Rozsitca have a wonderfully clever troupe of dogs, cats, monkeys, ponies, and donkeys, a small animal circus all remarkably well trained. Interesting pictures are shown by the Biograph.

HALL-BY-THE-SEA.—Sole Proprietor, "Lord" George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. Evans.—Gus Garrick, comedian, with his music hall titbits, heads the list this week, and is most amusing. Simosa San, in her juggling and balancing speciality, together with her performing pigeons, supplies a good turn; the Casino Girls, instrumentalists, are filling a second week's engagement, and the Itranes, gymnasts, acrobats, jugglers, and equilibrists, are clever; Cullen and Carthy, comedians, with Little Cluley, are amusing; Gladys Witton, contralto, sings well, and a capital show is given by Zanfretta and Napio, the musical eccentrics. Mr. Charles Evans, the manager, takes his annual benefit on Wednesday.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Smithson.—Dare Devil Dorothy opened here on Monday to a large and appreciative audience. Miss Dorothy Desmonde in the title-rôle is very pleasing, while Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith and Mr. Arthur Verne as Silas Crump are excellent in their respective parts. Mr. Walter Ashley must be commended for his earnestness and success as George Fielding; and Mr. Henry C. Ward makes the most of the part of Captain Dudley; Miss Marie Vere renders valuable assistance as Ruth Montrose; and the dancing of Misses Lillie and Mabel Blake is greatly admired.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE. —Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Messrs. Beaudyn and Crowe's company is this week playing here in The Way of the World. Mr. Herbert Skardon gives a highly capable interpretation of Cecil Montagu; Mr. Victor Gordon is sufficiently villainous to earn the execrations of the "gods." Mr. Clarence Temple gives a thoughtful rendering of Matthew Malyon. Miss Marie Fontaine is graceful and pleasing in the rôle of Kate Montague; as the adventuress, Adele de la Roche, Miss Sidney Crowe plays with great skill; Miss Laurie Deering is a charming Marion Fanshawe. The comedy element is cleverly provided by Mr. Augustus Hammond (Horatio Bluff) and Mr. Frank Stanley (Ned Montague), and they are ably assisted by Miss Violette Vivienne (Polly Bell).

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Mr. F. Marriot-Watson's company is appearing here this week in the new drama A False Wife. The cast is an exceptionally strong one, and Miss Florence E. Florence is a decided success in the title-part of Estelle de Luscan. Mr. George Langham as Sir Conlin has a thorough grasp of the rôle, and his assumption is entirely satisfactory; Miss Flo Morgan is good as Old Sal; and a clever representative of Bessie is found in Miss Minnie Leslie. Mr. F. Marriot-Watson is as good as ever as the French adventurer; and the part assigned to Mr. James Chippendale is sustained in a way that leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Annie Hylton as Agnes and Mr. Howard Barlow as George Mansfield supply excellent impersonations. The weird mystery From Life to Death is performed each evening, and the scenery and mechanical effects are all that could be desired.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—Her Lost Self is powerfully presented here this week by Miss Frances Delaval and company, and large audiences fully appreciate the performance. Miss Florence Delaval is exceedingly good in the rôle of Philipine Marcel, as are also Mr. Cecil Gray as Wilfred Daventry, Mr. G. Osmond Tearle as Normand Esmond, and Mr. Geo. Lyttelton, jun., as Paul Kimberley. Mr. Fred Lillywhite does well as Victor; and Master Johnnie Johnson is exceedingly good as Snooks, a newspaper urchin. Other leading parts are ably taken by Mr. L. W. Halfpenny as "Moses," Mr. Horace Buckley as Tom, Mr. Tom Otley as the Masher, Miss Nell Ingram as Bridget, and Miss Min Johnson as Dorothy Daventry. Specialities are contributed during the performance by Tiny Carrie Johnson, who is claimed to be the smallest comedienne in the world.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—An interesting and varied programme is submitted here this week, and good houses are the rule. The star turn is Dick Turpin, in which Mr. R. A. Roberts plays five distinct characters and displays his undoubted talent as an actor. Dick Turpin was twice repeated, and the new sketch entitled Ringing the Changes was billed for the latter part of the week. The Tupps create roars of laughter in their comedy acrobatic act; and Fred Poplar proves a favourite as a comedian. Beatrice Willey provides some excellent singing; and Bob Hunt, comedian, does well. The other turns are provided by Belle Harcourt, vocalist; Kitty Wager, comedienne; Sisters St. Julien; and the bioscope.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Alf. Graham.—Paulton and Darley head the bill here this week, and give a remarkable display of trick cycling; Geoffreys and Benson cause roars of laughter in their sketch entitled Spoofed; as does Laurence Barclay with his songs and antics. Maude Mortimer, a dainty singer of catchy choruses, does well; and Walter Wade is an excellent vocalist. Arthur Briggs is a popular favourite; and Agnes and Arthur Lynch are clever singers. The other turns are provided by Raglas and bioscope.

MIDDLETON.—PARDOE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pardoe and Turner.—Mr. Charles Carte is playing here in A Noble Brother, and plays the rôle of Jerry the tramp, in which he has now appeared with unvarying success for more than 2,000 times, in his usual capital fashion. Miss Doris Brookes is charming as Nana Leigh; and Mr. A. A. Tomblin faithfully realises the character of Jack Elsworth. Miss Alice Ballard, Mr. Howard Thorne, and others make up a first-class list of artists.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Mr. R. A. P. Williams' company is this week appearing in Les Cloches de Corneville. Mr. Percy Watson gives a capable rendering as the Marquis; Mr. Michael Kemble is equally good as Garford; Mr. Richard Martin is well suited to the part of the Bailie, Gobo being also cleverly played by Mr. G. E. Hall; and Mr. Percy Martin sings well in the rôle of Grenichaux. As Germaine, Miss Kathleen Emmett tunefully renders her various numbers; Miss Adela Harvey also sings well as Serpolette. On Thursday Messrs. Beaudyn, Livesey, and Hardy's company appeared in The Days of Cromwell.

NEW BRIGHTON.—TOWER THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—The company this week includes Hilder Pagget, expert top boot dancer; C. W. Wolram, eccentric comedian; Miss Nellie Adrienne, a smart burlesque actress and whistler; Leon and Leoni, in a clever and attractive musical act entitled Mirth and Music; Lillie Le Breton, a graceful and daring trapeze artist; Marlow and Manton, in a novel and interesting sketch, Other People's Babies; Ada Clare, comedienne and dancer; and the Izons, in a lively comedy act, Captain and Mate.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—The Rinaldo Trio contribuate a clever and comical equilibrist act here. Their tricks, which are distinctly novel, are executed with precision and neatness, and the comedian of the party creates roars of laughter. The Great Northern Troupe do some national dances with skill and effect; the Two Errolls are popular in a comedy leaping act; Mr. Hesketh Meade is a capital baritone, and Miss Lily Currie sings well; Fred Dunstone's parodies on popular songs are amusing, and meet with well-deserved success; a sketch entitled A Game for Two, is performed by the Custances; and the ever-popular Pepiscope, with new pictures, concludes a most enjoyable entertainment.

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. F. C. Sutcliffe.—A visit is paid to this popular house this week by Mr. Wentworth Cooke's company in Hall Caine's powerful play The Christian. Glory Quayle is played with fine intelligence and dramatic power by Miss Grace Chalmers, a young and promising Scottish actress. A good study is given by Mr. Frank Tennant of John Storm; and skilfully treated are the characters of Lord Robert Ure and Horatio Drake by Mr. George R. Montford and Mr. Jackson Wilcox respectively. The Father Lamplugh of Mr. Edwin Ling and the Archdeacon Wealthy of Mr. Charles E. Dering in no small way tend to the success of the drama, which is well staged and received each evening with frequent applause from large audiences. Other parts excellently acted are Parson Quayle by Mr. Charles Hill, Polly Love by Miss Vashti Wellborne, and Mrs. Callendar by Miss Molly Hayden.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director Mr. Robert Arthur; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—A popular attraction at this house this week is Our Boys, a delightfully human comedy, excellently played by Mr. Thomas Thorne and a well-chosen company. For nearly fourteen hundred nights now has Mr. Thorne filled the part of Perkin Middlewick, and with wonderful freshness and rare humour is the character-sketch of the butterman done. Very natural is the acting of Mr. Norman Clark as Sir Geoffrey Champneys, and Clarissa is played by Miss Rachel de Travers with charming grace. Mr. James Geldard as Charles, Mr. Horace Pollock as Talbot, and Miss Ida Phillips and Miss Madge Flynn as an heiress and a poor cousin respectively, all effectively aid in the success. A Happy Pair precedes.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clarke.—The initial visit to the city of Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. F. C. Somerfield's company in Geoffrey Langdon's Wife was well received on Monday evening by a large and appreciative audience. As Elinor D'Arville Miss Marie Dagmar made the hit of the evening by her strenuous impersonation; Mr. F. C. Somerfield as Will Maynard was a decided success; and Mr. Roy Fortescue in the dual rôle of Cyril and Geoffrey Langdon was very realistic. The company as a whole was well balanced.

GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—The realistic drama The Conscript, with Mr. F. Wybert Clive's company, proved on Monday that it was as popular as ever, despite its frequent visits. In the title-rôle Mr. Harry Cullenford acted with good effect; and Miss Lilian Ross gained much sympathy. The play was well staged.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Moss Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton.—The premier position in this week's programme is worthily assigned to Harry Randall, whose entertainment, always bright and refreshing, has been received with hearty approval. Those merry musicians, Binns and Binns, are popular; Grais' Baboons perform wonders on the tight wire; Jean Seul is a successful magician. The Stella troupe of dancers, Nettie Starr (vocalist and dancer), the Monte-Myro troupe (sketch artists), Flo D'Orville (versatile comedienne), Charles Leonard Fletcher (actor), and Smithson's comedy company in The Lie Alarm make up a good programme.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Miss Alice Pierce's impressions of famous artists and characters have been carefully studied. Three of a Kind, a capital sketch, provokes much laughter; the Columbia Trio are a good musical turn; Mons. Hartley gives a clever juggling act; Fred Fuller and company are successful in the musical song "The Shoeblack's Dream"; the Narow Brothers, comic cyclists, are a great success; and L. B. Athol (comedian), Mabel Hurd (character comedienne), Will Godwin (actor vocalist), and George Prince make up an attractive programme

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and L. Maitland's company is producing The Coal King, which to this particular district is extremely interesting. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland as Tom Roberts gives a faithful interpretation of a characteristic part; Miss Gertrude Valentine is a great favourite in the part of Grace Shirley; and Mr. Lionel Thompson does well as the Coal King; whilst Mr. Escott Robson wins hearty applause in the part of Walter Harford. Mr. Frank Dalton as Shirley and Miss Sinna St. Clair as Mad Ann are both exceptionally good; and plenty of fun is caused by Jim Williams and his sweetheart Aramanta Green, the characters being admirably sustained by Miss Sybil Coughlan and Mr. Alfred Terris. The piece is appropriately mounted, and proves very attractive.

EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Miss Florence St. John and company in My Milliner's Bill provide first-class entertainment here; Nipper Lupino Lane sings and dances cleverly, and wins an encore; Billy Hobbs, coon singer, is warmly received; and J. P. Ling in a mimetic monologue is very amusing. Beppo's monkeys perform some feats that show clever training; Cabaret's dogs contribute original tricks; and Fox and Melville give acceptable illustrated songs. Chas. Pastor, an eccentric comedian, is well received; and the Lupino Brothers provide an entertaining turn.

NORTHAMPTON. — OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—Messrs. Chas. and Fred Renad's famous pantomimical artists are here again in The Swiss Express, which is still running with unabated success. Mr. Charles Renad and Mr. Frederick Renad are as comical and agile as ever as the eccentric servants of Dr. Gull, a part which is now in the hands of Mr. Johnny McElroy, who is exceedingly amusing. Miss Ida Ernest is a bright and sprightly representative of Virginia, the bride, and receives an encore for her coon song and dance, in which she is assisted by the Edene quartette of vocalists and dancers, who also furnish some agreeable items.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson.—Jack and Evelyn, "the Elite Entertainers," are two young artists who supply a very clever and high-class morceau, full of merriment and genuine fun, which gains great applause. The Three Sisters Geronde are an exceedingly attractive vocal trio, and their dancing is highly applauded; The Brothers Newport give a clever performance on the rings. Salida and Vone, Creole artists, please with song and dance. Dick's Comedy Five appear with success in a comedietta, Happy School Times. Frank Boyce, character comedian, is well received on his second visit this year. The Whitworth Cycling Girls give a racing display with specially geared machines. R. A. Speedwell produces paintings of well-known men with great fidelity and rapidity. Interesting subjects are well depicted in the Palace Pictures.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Bulmer's company, with Sentenced for Life, has proved a capital attraction here this week. As Percy M'Gentle, Mr. James A. Firth proves himself an excellent comedian, keeping the audience in a merry mood; Messrs. Arthur Keand and Reg. Oldroyd also make a great hit as the Two Convicts; Mr. Edward E. Louis gives a clever impersonation of Lieutenant Roy Stillwell; Mr. E. Brancepeth Nevill ably sustains the part of Sir Wallace Stillwell; Mr. Ernest Vaughan capably undertakes the character of Captain Paul Derrick; and Mr. Morris Maud makes the most of the Rev. Martin Orris. As Adele Gray Miss Madge Douglas is worthy of the highest praise; Miss May Nelson is good as Kate Rennell; and Miss Mary Dalby gives a satisfactory rendering of Lady Stillwell.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The bill here includes Akimoto's Royal Yedo Japanese Troupe of equilibrists and balancers, who perform some marvellous feats; Picitt and Lizette, in The Crazy Cook, are highly successful; and the Brothers Zampah, the one-legged marvels, are very smart. Mr. Smiler Lee, comedian, has made a great hit; Miss Ada Kingsley, coon vocalist, is popular; Mr. Dan Noble, comedian, goes well; and the Bio-Photoscope is still a prominent itme on the bill of fare

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Thomas McKenzie's company in Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace is here this week. Capt. Mowbray has a capable exponent in Mr. Yorke Stephens; Miss Frances Vine is admirable as Mrs. Gorringe; Mr. Maitland Dicker is admirable as Colonel Jardine; and Miss Ethel Royal is excellent as Mrs. Jardine; Mr. W. Brisco Owen is successful as David Cairn; Miss May Straker is good as Isabel Kirk; and Miss Mabel Melba is efficient as Vickey Jardine. Miss Isobel Fladgate as Miss Potts, Mr. Reginald Walter as Jernigan, and Charles by Mr. Lawrence J. White gave excellent support. The curtain-raiser was Uncle Joseph, in which the characters were capitally rendered by Mr. Lawrence J. White, Mr. Edgar Steverson, and Miss Isobel Fladgate.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—The Andos Japanese Troupe give an astonishing performance here. Mr. Frank Elliston and company pay a return visit in their amusing sketch, Aunt Matilda; the Folkestons are very comical in Swimming the Channel; Edwin Brett and Emmeline Orford appear in a pleasing sketch, Love Birds; George Antill is a whimsical comedian; and the Two Bees are good on Hiawatha Wedded. Dan Thomas is a successful comedian; and Jessie Burnett, comedienne and dancer, is well received. The Hippo Bio shows some interesting pictures.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Robt. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Sweet Girl was produced here on Monday. A detailed report will be found in another column.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Chas. P. Cooke.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company in the drama An Abandoned Woman occupies the stage this week. Miss Georgette Thierry, in the name-part, is quite successful, being ably assisted by Mr. Bernard J. Liell as the masculine accomplice in her villainy. Mr. Wolston Foster makes a capital naval officer; Mr. George White realises to the full the character of Robert Saunders; Mr. J. George Gormly proves his capability as Sir Marmaduke Seaton; and Miss May Richardson, in her portrayal of Eleanor, is quite satisfactory. The comedy parts are well looked after by Messrs. Dan Gibbons and Will Glaze, and Miss Lily Beverley

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—Scotch comedians are very popular just now, and Neil Kenyon can hold his own with any of them. His quaint style and dry humour command for him a good reception at every performance, and large audiences testify to their thorough enjoyment of his efforts. A turn that is always welcome at this house is Big Ben Brown and Little George Le Clerq in the evergreen sketch Black Justice, and on the present occasion the acknowledgments of their auditors are as hearty as ever. Glenroy troupe of international dancers present an entertainment that is both graceful and pretty, and earn deserved encomiums from everybody; while Spot amuses with his exaggerated travesty of the cake-walk craze in his monologue The Enchanted Coon. In a very tasteful and charming performance as Cinderella Edie King demonstrates that she is a thorough artist; and Helene and Emilon give a performance in gymnastics that is both novel and of excellent quality. Techow's cats evidence the most skilful training, and provide a show that is very amusing and diverting; while Simms and Simms produce a first-class mixture of melody and gag and Herbert Lloyd is as skilful as ever in his well-known medley. The programme is completed by the Bioscope, upon which some excellent films are shown.

NUNEATON. — PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Prince of Wales Theatre and Entertainments Co., Ltd. — Managing Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mrs. Morton Powell's company is here with When It Was Dark. Mr. Cyril Austin Lee gives a capital impersonation of the Rev. Basil Gaitre; Mr. George Pitt as Constantine Schwabe is highly successful; Mr. Bryce Methven's conception of Sir Robert Llewellyn and Mr. Francis Cairns as Lucifer both meet with appreciation. In the rôle of Gertrude Hunt, Miss Laura Walker is a decided success. Mrs. Morton Powell makes a sympathetic Helena Byars; and Miss Bessie Ellis does well as Gracie. The remaining parts are well accounted for. The piece is well staged and dressed.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—A large audience was present on Monday to witness Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company in The Village Blacksmith. Mr. Sam Livesey in the title-rôle gave a fine interpretation; Miss Maggie Edwards was charming and sympathetic as Kate; Mr. Joseph Carter played Capt. Leo in a forcible manner; and Lucas Marlow was well presented by Mr. Edwin Maydew. Miss Cassie Le Grande made an excellent Ruth Parkins; Miss Bertha Hanbury a capital Harry Strong; and Mr. George V. Campbell a humorous Billy Twigg. Jeremiah Parkins and Sal were capably delineated by Mr. Thos. E. Marshall and Mrs. T. C. Livesey respectively.

COLOSSEUM.—General Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—The attraction here this week is The French Spy, played by Mr. Fred Benton and his powerful company. Mr. Richard Fulton is excellent as the gallant Capt. Sommers; Mr. Max Coutts represents the revengeful Count Romanoff in a capable manner; Miss Gertrude Evans as the Countess Andre gives a highly appreciated rendering; Miss A. Harrison Tate is good as Olga; and Miss Margaret Seymour effective as Julie.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—After being closed for decoration the theatre was opened on Monday evening with a programme of ten turns, at the head of which stand Newhouse and Ward, billed as the funniest cyclists ever seen. They provide a capital entertainment. At the other end comes Sable Fern, who sings her songs in fine style. Franco Piper is a marvellous trick banjoist, and the Schaffers are a good trio of athletes. Harry Rogerson keeps the house in good humour with his refined comedy act; Ferris and Farnley are a good pair of comedians; and Bonnettie and Corrie provide some eccentric juggling; Evelyn Lola, comedienne, sings and dances nicely; and Gus Arthur and Co. appear in a vocal scena, Good-bye. The Royal Dottoscope depicts England's naval nursery on the screen.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—Tom and Neil give a capital exhibition of boxing, wrestling, and club swinging; Lillian, trick cyclist, is a smart performer on the wheel; the Fimans have a capital comedy creation, In the Fire Station; and Carney and Armstrong submit a good sketch. Minnie Halford is a dainty comedienne; Cissy Maude an attractive burlesque artist; and Dawson Dewick a popular entertainer. The Dottoscope is showing excellent pictures.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Staged here this week is The Blind Foundling, the company being that of Messrs. Charles H. Phelps and Harry Tilbury. Miss Belle Tilbury gives a sound and powerful impersonation of Isabel Dalton; a sweet and sympathetic assumption is submitted by Miss Amy Dalby as Viola Waterford. Miss Mabel Hall, a youthful actress, is to be complimented on her clever assumption of the rôle of Fairy, the blind foundling; and Miss Millie Doris scores by her vivacious and humorous portrayal of Winnie Dobbins. Mr. Charles H. Phelps makes a sterling Gerald Dalton; Parson Ray is well accounted for by Mr. Frank Harvey; Mr. Alfred G. Fry enacts Mark Redman powerfully; Jasper Waterford is made an interesting study by Mr. Bernard Webb; Mr. H. Tilbury is humorous and entertaining in his depiction of Dick Dobbins; and Mr. John Byron gives a capital interpretation of Algy Fitzcholomondly.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. T. Arthur Jones and company, including Miss Marie Daventry, are here this week in Life's Sweetest Sins. Mr. Jones's clever impersonation of Captain Harold Marston is replete with stirring interest, and Mr. Oswald Douglas imparts all the requisite force and daring to the part of the unscrupulous Doctor Colbrooke, whose confederates are successfully placed in Mr. Robert Swain as Kimberley Coutts and Mr. Clem Horlock as Rev. Edward Grey. Mr. Edgar Morgan's amusing impersonation of Bob Tanner is thoroughly enjoyed, and his several encounters with Mr. Bertram Lee as Martin effect an agreeable diversion from the dramatic element. Mr. Ernest Dare is also suitably placed as Ernie Wodstone. Miss Mary Ainslie cleverly depicts the kindly interest of Fay Colbrooke for her friend. Miss Elsie Walton's lively Bess Brayson is hailed with approbation throughout, and Miss Marie Daventry's clever portrayal of Doreen Rivers marks her exceptional ability with pronounced effect.

PETERBOROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—At Duty's Call is well presented by Mr. John Gerant and company. Mr. Gerant acts the rôle of Harold Allison with marked ability; as Captain George Allison Mr. Harry Scott gives an effective rendering; the General Gordon of Mr. Ernest St. John, and the Terry O'Halloran of Mr. Harry Ugar are delineations which deserve warm praise; Mrs. Tilly Crammonde is well suited to the part of Dora Drummond; and Miss Beatrice Western is seen to advantage as Salema.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The Prince of Pilsen is the attraction here. Mr. Martin Adeson as Hans Wagner is very funny, and makes a great hit; Mr. Villiers Arnold's Lieutenant Tom Wagner is a typical seafaring man; Mr. J. B. Fox, as Otto, Prince of Pilsen, carries himself with courtly grace and dignity, and Mr. Lawrence Wensley as the Earl of Shrimpton is good. Miss Millicent Marsden occupies a prominent position as Madison Crocker; Miss Neil Emerald as Sodonie has a song of the "Sammy" type which "catches on" immensely; Miss Stella West makes a dignified Gibson girl, and Miss Eva Howard, who is undertaking Miss Isa Bowman's part as Nellie Wagner—the latter lady being indisposed—is deserving of hearty congratulation for her effective performance.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Man's Enemy is being presented this week. Mr. Edward Lloyd as Harry Stanton gives a striking representation of the terrible effects of excessive drinking; Mr. Alfred Brandon as Tom Drake makes a most polished villain; Miss Beatrice Whitney as Drake's helpmate is very acceptable, and Miss Ethel Kay as Grace Lisle is heartily applauded.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Mitchell.—The Mysteries of the Thames is here played by a capital company, in which Mr. F. Brook-Warren undertakes the part of Capt. Denbigh in commendable fashion; Miss Gwynne Warren fills a dual rôle requiring distinctive treatment most acceptably; Mr. Andrew Money enacts Richard Brandon most capably, and Mr. L. Montgomery is good as Bill Boser.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager Mr. Jack Field.—The Four Madcaps do some very smart dancing here; the Clarkes perform some clever selections on the banjo; the Musical Jees are loudly applauded in their sketch, The Musical Smithy; Vi Carlyle has an attractive little scena, introducing her song, "My Mountain Maid"; Muir and Bartlett are seen in a humorous sketch, entitled A Clerical Complication, and the Sages are a funny pair of burlesque artists. Others contributing to the entertainment are Frank Coyle, comedian, and Elsie Earle. Vernon's pictures are much admired.

PROMENADE PIER AND PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. J. Higson.—Mr. Sydney James's Royal Strolling Players are engaged here this week. Mr. James himself is an artist of rare talent and ability, and wins hearty applause; Mr. Alfred Wootton, an excellent tenor singer, is deservedly encored; Mr. G. W. Desmond is a capable singer and clog dancer; Miss Seymour James sings and dances exceedingly well, and Miss Clarice May is a finished accompanist.

PORTH. — THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Bynorth.—Heading the bill this week we have the famous Revell Troupe of acrobats, in their pantomime absurdity, Mischief, who give a creditable performance, and are enthusiastically received. Max Merlin, the human crocodile, deserves special mention for his admirable performance, and meets with a cordial reception; Will Souls, comedian, scores a distinct success, and richly merits the applause he receives; J. H. MacCann, as a comedian and roller skate dancer, is greatly appreciated; Parker and Parr, in their vocal comedy act, Taffy and the Taff, make a hit; Winnie Cottrell, refined comedienne and male impersonator, possesses an admirable voice, and is much appreciated; the Sisters Volbecque, clever comedy duettists, are entertaining, and are greeted with rounds of applause; Les Louberts, comedy acrobats, are really smart; the pictures shown on the new Bioscope are really good.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J.W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Miss Lena Ashwell in The Shulamite is proving a powerful attraction here this week. Miss Ashwell plays her original part of Deborah Krillet with an intensity that held the audience spellbound, her portrayal of the unfortunate Deborah in the trying second and third acts being admirably sustained. Mr. Charles Weir as the bigoted Boer farmer, Simeon Krillet, gives a rugged and telling impersonation. Robert Waring is ably taken by Mr. W. T. Lovell, who in his part with all the needed vacillation. Mr. Reynolds Dennison does very well as the manly young farmer, Ian Vanderberg; Tante Anna Vanderberg is cleverly and convincingly enacted by Miss Mary Griffiths; and the Kaffir girl, Memke, is satisfactorily depicted by Miss Beryl Mercer. The drama is preceded by the curtain raiser, The Widow Woos, in which Mr. Charles Weir, Mr. Reynolds Dennison, Miss Mary Griffiths, and Miss Marcella Hudson appear to advantage.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—The absorbing drama, The Ugliest Woman on Earth, is being presented here this week to full houses. Miss Beatrice Homer has a fine stage appearance, and her excellent impersonation of the title-rôle gains her much applause. Mr. Phillip Darien as Jack Merriman plays vigorously and well; the part of the heartless and callous Hubert Gold is acted by Mr. Seyton Cancellor with distinct success; Antonio Luchesi is ably taken by Mr. Charles Barrett. Miss Nell Oliver is convincing as the scheming Rose Courtenay, and Miss Margaret Watson powerfully portrays Morita. The comedy relief is well sustained by Mr. Tubby Edlin as Tubby Herrick, and Miss Nellie Jackson as Aggie Brown, both working in the interests of fun.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—A company of all-round excellence is here this week. George Gilbey, a popular favourite at this hall, is well to the fore with his droll songs. Marie Weston, vocalist and speciality dancer, gains liberal applause for her really good step-dancing; Richard Williams is a banjoist of undoubted ability, and has quite an ovation for his agreeable selections; Harry Taft, whistling comedian, does an excellent turn, which is greatly appreciated; the Sisters Casselli, duettists and dancers, are a smart pair; Fyne and Hurley, speciality artists, are very diverting, and another capable turn is Verno and Voyce, popular singing comedians, with their latest successes. Tom Fancourt and Rubie worked hard in comedy act Out of Barracks, and the Two Madges, a praiseworthy pair of juvenile artists, and Payne's Pictures also appear.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Miss Alice Chapin's company is presenting A Knight Errant here this week, and a good reception has been accorded. Mr. Frederick Park gives a droll impersonation of the Duke of Cabreau; and Marguerite, his daughter, has an attractive representative in Miss Eirene Douglas. Mr. Harold Chapin acquits himself well as Count de Lantier; Miss Alice Chapin's embodiment of Helen Ferrier is pleasing and appropriately humorous; Mr. Harry Welchman in the rôle of Captain Perdue, causes much laughter, and gains a hearty encore for his excellent vocalism; Colonel D'Aubeterre is creditably delineated by Mr. Malcolm J. Cumming; Miss Paula Fernau capably fills the part of Madame Flaubert; and Miss Elsie Chapin is seen to advantage as Fanchette. The same artists also sustain the leading rôles in A Pantomime Rehearsal, which fully retains its power to amuse.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company is performing The Girl Who Lost her Character here this week. Miss Evelyn Clyde as Molly Vernon wins the entire sympathy of the house; Mr. Edwin J. Collins gives a powerful impersonation of the Rev. Robert Everton; and Miss Ethel Bracewell makes a charming Rose Seymour. Mr. Frank Adair is to be congratulated on his conception of the difficult part of Capt. Geoffrey Caversham. Miss Lydia Mannington ably sustains the rôle of Marian Franklyn; Mr. George Mitchell well deserves the applause accorded for his delineation of James Sutton; and some delightful and refreshing comedy is supplied by Miss Daisy Maynard as Isabella Jones, and Mr. Geo. H. Asquin as Dick Punch. Mr. Clifford Rean is a smart detective; and Mr. C. W. Standing shows great dramatic ability as Jack England.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—A capital programme here this week includes Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery, who provide the chief attraction with their genuinely amusing sketch, The Would-be Actors, which evokes hearty laughter. Carl Mysto astonishes the audience by his wonderful skill in escaping from handcuffs and manacles; Espinosa and Edwards appear in a new and very pleasing musical comedy and dancing act, The Coon's Holiday; the Elgars gain well-deserved applause for their operatic duets; Anna Kenwick, American comedienne and dancer, is received with favour; Will Freedo submits a clever display of dancing; the Sisters Russell are popular exponents of burlesque and low comedy; the Bonanzas give a daring acrobatic and hand-balancing performance; and the Zano Bros. supply a diverting turn on the horizontal bars. Saved by Rover is depicted on the bioscope.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—Mrs. R. A. Cuthbert and company are paying a welcome return visit with The Black Bishop. The dual rôle of the twin sisters, Kate Marleigh and Marian Strathcoat, is admirably undertaken by Miss Jeannie Marquise; Miss Norah Caronne as Ruth Oldbury displays both grace and skill; Miss Grace Garside successfully infuses the lighter element into the part of Hannah Bruttlebut; and Little Dolly Collingham as Little Ruth also deserves a word of praise. Mrs. Alf. Collingham is a distinct success as Simeon Strathcoat; Mr. J. W. Ryder is a typical and amusing Capt. Keilcrift; and the important rôle of the Black Bishop is taken by Mr. J. Kingsley Roydan, who is painstaking.

RAMSGATE.—SANGER'S AMPHITHEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Large audiences assembled at this place of entertainment on the first three evenings of the week, when the attraction was The Duchess of Dantzic, presented in excellent style by Mr. George Dance's company. The feature of the play was the impersonation of Mme. Sans-Gêne by Miss Mary Young, whose clever acting and sweet singing won all hearts. Mr. Frank Bradley made a fine Napoleon; and Mr. C. B. Williams was in all respects admirable as Marechal Lefebvre, afterwards Duke of Dantzic. Mr. G. H. Curzon sustained the rôle of the Vicomte de Bethune in a manner which called for distinct praise; Mr. F. Attree was a delightful Papillon; Miss Gilpsy Dale was a pretty Renée de St. Mezard; and other parts were in capable hands. The singing, dancing, and staging were of a high standard of excellence. On Thursday Mr. Percy Hutchison and company appeared in the Haymarket comedy On The Love Path, and for Friday Cousin Kate was in the bill, with a repetition of the first-named play for Saturday.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE AND PAVILION.—"Funnier than fifty pantomimes" is what is claimed for the musical pantomimical farce His Majesty's Guests, which Mr. Fred Karno's company has been staging here this week to big business. There is a good deal in the claim, for the audience at the "Pav." have been led to "larf consumedly" at the funniosities of Mr. George Hestor as Sergeant Lightning, and no wonder, for Mr. Hestor is exceedingly droll. The other members of the company perform their allotted parts in capable style. Mr. Frank Morton (Lord Easem) sings in splendid voice; and Miss Leonora Castelle is excellent as Lady Maud Easem; Messrs C. Usher (Miffin), C. Sewell (Mr. Minks), H. Howe (Bunker), and T. Manardo (acrobatic Selina) add much to the attractiveness of the show; Miss Sara Dudley is a charming Dolly; and Miss Kitty Brunton impersonates skilfully the character of the new woman, Miss Manley. The musical numbers are rendered with capital effect, and the knockabout business is decidedly smart and clever.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr. Reginald Taylor.—Mr. Herbert Ralland is presenting the popular comic opera, La Poupée, this week with great success. The opera is elaborately mounted and produced in excellent style. Mr. Harry Brayne is highly diverting as Hilarius; Mr. Arthur Cozens plays and sings effectively as Lancelot; Mr. Walter Balfour acts well as Father Maxime, and gains great applause for the ever-popular "Jovial Monk's" song; Miss Mysle Devine is an artistic Alesia; Miss Doris Dickens is a good Henri; Miss Edith Hunter is an amusing Madame Hilarius; and Mr. A. Dennis as Loremois, Mr. Fuller Allen as Baron Chanterelle, and Mr. E. Mooney as Balthazar do well.

RHYL.—QUEEN'S PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Howard Lees.—The Six Brothers Luck appear in their mirth-provoking sketch The Demon of the Cellar, and the large audience is kept in shrieks of merriment. The Vichel troupe are admirable Risley artists, whose tricks are performed with neatness and finish; Harry Vardon presents a clever ventriloquial sketch; Edith St. Clair sings popular chorus songs; Winnie Scott, a pleasing comedienne, pays a return visit; Mattie Cheshire gives an excellent mimetic sketch; and Lottie Herod, soprano, contributes some well-known ballads. Sacco appeared on Monday evening after concluding a twenty-one days' fast, and was presented by the management with a gold medal.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. Jack Macdermott.—An excellent programme is presented this week. Alec Kendal is a highly entertaining comedian and dancer; Harry Herbert's comic songs meet with well-deserved encores; Arthur Aldridge is a tenor vocalist of considerable range and power; and Ferris Carlton, comedian, and Forshaw Kershaw, accompanist, complete. On Wednesday evening a complimentary benefit was accorded to Mr. Jack Macdermott, and a large audience testified their appreciation of his efforts as manager during the season. In addition to the programme for the week, the following assisted:—Edwin Adeler, W. S. Sutton, Arthur Sutcliffe (who met with a hearty reception), Charley Harvey, Mattie Cheshire, and Lottie Herod.

ROCHDALE. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—The Midnight Wedding is in possession of the boards here this week. Mr. Alfred Paumier is conspicuous with an impassioned portrayal of Paul Valmar; Mr. Ulick Burke submits a clever impersonation of Lieut. Eugene Von Strelsburg; Mr. Clinton Baddeley is prominent with a powerful embodiment of Captain Rudolph Von Scarsbruck; and the humorous element is safely entrusted to Mr. James E. Page as Sergeant Max. Mr. Percy Compton as Corporal Otto, and Mr. Algie Spalding as Private Bobo. Miss Ada Champion deserves praise as the light-hearted Kathie; Miss Florence Hunt cleverly enacts the part of Satanella; and Miss Annie Saker delights audiences as Princess Astrea on Strelsburg and Second Lieut. Karl Helsburg.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Smith and Lee.—The reopening here was welcomed by large houses, a capital programme being submitted by the management. The Royal Tokio Troupe of "Japanese" performers are smart balancers and acrobats; and Miss Babs Lloyd as the "Baby Coon" had a hearty ovation. Bob Hartley, comedian and dancer; Joe Hennessey, club manipulator and juggler; Miss Doris Dene, descriptive comedienne; the Three Pirmans, in a pantomime act; the Royal Victorian Boys, dancers; Fred Hallam, comedian; and Vernon's Bioscope, complete a lengthy and enjoyable programme.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thos. Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Atlas and Vulcana, with Gwen and Maud Atlas, give a remarkable exhibition of muscular strength; Miss Vulcana also poses with effect. Others turns include Joe Conway, the pocket comedian; Violet Morgan, speciality mimic; Gerald Mount, society entertainer; Mark Merry, in mirthful melancholy; Monto, in musical sketch; Harwood's Juveniles in a scene, Christmas Eve; and the Empire Bioscope.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—M. Auguste Van Biene and his company are occupying the boards here in The Broken Melody. M. Auguste Van Biene as Paul Borinski is the great attraction, and his "selections" are listened to with attention and delight. Mr. Henry Ludlow is a smart General Ivanoff, and Mr. Charles A. Morgan is seen to advantage as Dickson. Mr. T. P. Haynes scores heavily as Mortimer, and Mr. Lawrence Grove is deserving of mention as Beaujoir. Mr. Archie Selwyn as the Hon Richard Spinnaker and Mr. W. Thomson as Dr. Magrath are effective. Miss Rosemary Rees gives a strong portrayal of the Duchesse de Verviers; and Miss Rosie Lewis is a capable Mrs. Dickson. Miss Marguerita Gordon is very smart as Hon. Mrs. Spinnaker; and Miss Lena Burnleigh as Mabel gives a soul-stirring portrayal.

RUGBY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Drew Mackintosh. — Messrs. F. J. Webb and Wilson Benge's company is paying a return visit this week with The Two Hussars. Mr. Wilson Benge as Harry Halford repeats his former success, and is ably seconded by Mr. Fred Webb as Paul Villiers. Mr. Louis Nanton as Robert Gunn is very amusing; and as Sergeant McFinnie Mr. C. Paradise displays ability. Miss M. Danyers Smith is an excellent actress of charming presence; and as Molly Cutts Miss Lallah Rice is admirable.

RYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.—Ryde has this week been indebted to Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's company for capital representations of Bluebell in Fairyland, which has been given to good houses. Miss Lily Eyton in the title-rôle quickly won all hearts; Mr. Lawrence Emery effectively impersonated Dicky; Miss Nell Raymond sang, and Miss Haidee Fitch danced excellently; Messrs. Herbert Clark and Will L. Clement were prominent with their funny business; and Mr. Frank Lennard submitted characteristic portrayals of Mr. Joplin and the Sleepy King. Especially good, too, was the singing of Master Albert Mack.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. J. Herbert Jay; Manager, Mr. F. T. Studd.—The Scarlet Mr. E.'s have been here during the week, their entertainments meeting with excellent support. Miss Agnes Beckwith, whose exhibitions of swimming have delighted a great many throughout the summer, took her farewell benefit on Saturday.

TOWN HALL.—The Dandies, from the Coliseum, London, appeared here on Monday and Tuesday, their bright and entertaining programme meeting with evident appreciation. Miss Queenie Essex, Miss K. Augusta Davies, Miss Lucy Caine, and Messrs. Harry Russon and Henry J. Corner all appeared to advantage.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—The favourite detective drama, £1,000 Reward, drew a good house on Monday evening, when it commenced a week's engagement. Vincent Rainsworth, the up-to-day detective, was well-played by Mr. Charles Halling. Mr. John Murray forcibly portrayed Gilbert Lisle, and Fighting Jeffs was in the capable hands of Mr. Edward de Vere. The trying part of Madame Sanson is cleverly sustained by Miss Daisy Halling, and Miss Lynn Darlington as Meg is a great favourite, and gives much pleasure with her singing. Mr. Frank Dallas as Inspector Gilbert is very droll, and Mr. Frank J. Pitt and Mr. J. Newton Cowling, Mr. Charles Rogers, jun., and Miss C. Francis carefully sustain their various parts.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Miss Hetty King is here, and receives unbounded applause for her male impersonations; Sterling and Love (Leo and Addie) make their sketch, A Domestic Musical Squabble, most amusing; and a clever juggling novelty by Francisco is much applauded. Other turns include May Moodie, piccolo soloist; Joe Harwood, quaint comedian; Dan Filmer, eccentric comedian; Cotton Blossom, quartette, in drawing-room entertainment; Jessie Albini, comedienne; and Arley's Combination in clever gymnastic pot-pourri with smart dogs.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Wm. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—The Cumberlands are very smart in their acrobatic cycling act. The Belle of Barcelano is the title of a musical-comedy sketch by Jack McKensie and company, introducing some very expert dancing. The programme also contains turns by Fredrica and her toy terriers and pony Dot; King Lea, funny ventriloquist; Rushworths, in illustrated song scenes; Maude Kaye, coon vocalist and smart dancer; Earle and Melville, patterers and dancers; and Howards (Ralph and Nellie), in comedy and melody.

SALISBURY.—VICTORIA PARK.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. F. D'Alton Tebby; Manageress, Miss Jessie D'Alton.—Crowded audiences are patronising this popular place, great credit being due to the management for the liberal and refined entertainment that is provided. A good reception awaits Miss Beattie Witham, who provides several fine turns; Miss Ramsdale appeared again in one of her smartly executed dances; Miss Flora Macdonald, who possesses a powerful voice, secures several encores; Mr. Skidmore keeps the audience in a merry mood, his comic songs being enthusiastically received; Mr. Tom Walton provides an amusing song in "How to Love"; and Mr. William Dyar, Miss Searle, and Mr. Whitehouse (pianist) complete the company. A good set of local films on the Bioscope brings the evening to a close.

SCARBOROUGH.—LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Waddington and Son; Manager, Mr. J. T. Carpenter.—This week Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company is here in The Blue Moon, of which the Indian dresses are a special feature. Miss Clarice Lockstone ably fills the title-rôle, singing her many songs very sweetly; as Moolraj Mr. Alfred Beers is particularly funny in his juggling scene; the part of Private Taylor is ably filled by Mr. Reginald Switz, and nothing could exceed the energetic fashion in which he engages in a series of amusing antics; Mr. Arthur Soames acts most gracefully as the Prince; as Millicent Leroy Miss Florence Imeson is dainty; Miss Louie Lochner as Oma is quite native in her style; Mr. Alec Fraser as Captain Jack Ormsby meets with success; and Mr. Alfred Clarke is admirably suited for the part of Major Callabone. Mr. Carlton Mason ably wields the baton.

SPA THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Cliff Bridge Co.; Manager, Mr. Fras. Goodricke. — The season's programme at this exceedingly popular place of amusement would hardly be complete were Mr. Edward Terry not to make his annual appearance. This week his company is here with The Magistrate. As Posket, Mr. Terry delighted the audience, who showed their appreciation of his efforts in a marked manner; Miss Agnes Knight as Agatha Posket was very clever; and Miss F. Glossop Harris ably sustained the part of Agatha's sister. Mr. Allan Pollock as Capt. Horace Vale was capital; Mr. J. Stansfield ably represented the hôtel proprietor; and Mr. R. Francis as Isadore the waiter, was all that could be desired. During the week Sweet Lavender and Liberty Hall were also given.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs. Hy. Mayhew; Manager, Mr. F. P. Morgan.—This week Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company is here in Death or Glory Boys. Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson has a part that suits him exactly; Mr. Jerold Ord makes an irate Colonel; Mr. Fred Emery and Mr. Lancelot Usher act well in their respective parts; and Miss Violet Carlyle scores a distinct success as the charming heroine.

PEOPLE'S PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—The vocalists for the week are Miss Sara Spense, soprano, and Mr. H. Bradshaw, tenor, who both sing in first rate style; the Three Seymons are quite original in their juggling act; the Gelders also give a fine display of juggling; Miss Ivy Dene executes some capital movements in her dances; the Rizarelis on the double trapeze are very smart; Cyrus and Maude give an up-to-date musical turn with their performing donkey; Miss Lily Andrews's coon songs go well; the Recars are excellent acrobats; Percy Victor has a troupe of well-trained dog minstrels; Nelson Hardy gives a classical ventriloquial show with some life-like figures; and the Vernon Bioscope, Curtis Leo, juggler, Miss Ada Webb and her troupe of lady swimmers, and Mlle. Marie Levante's Orchestra of Ladies all contribute to a capital programme.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Geo. Zalva.—Although this building is undergoing complete transformation in accordance with the Licensing Justices' suggestions, yet the alterations do not interfere with the capital programme which Mr. Zalva is submitting weekly to his patrons. Mlle. Chloe Convere, and her performing horse, Kentucky Beau, give a turn that appeals to all lovers of animal training; Slippere, a blind musician, gives well-executed recitals on the piano and the 'cello; the Haverleys are clever song illustrators, and Martino does all that a contortionist can do with a novel scena; the St. John's in their musical turn are most entertaining; Ara, Zebra, and Vora submit a novel act illustrating Indian sports; Mlle. Gatley is a capital equilibrist; Claud Ohmy performs daring equestrian feats with well trained animals, and the Bioscope adds considerable interest to the programme.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Mr. Phil Herman and company are here with Fritz. The title part is enacted with great spirit by Mr. Phil Herman, whose versatility gives keen satisfaction; Mr. Hugh Carmichael is an excellent Colonel Crafton, and Gregory Graham is adequately represented by Mr. Ernest Keand; Mr. Harry F. Cave is satisfactory as Augustus, and Mr. Edward W. Cudd is excellent as Bowery Bill; Mr. J. Roberts is an amusing Judge Jellicoe, the Clerk of the Court being depicted by Mr. F. Littleton, Hans Schneider by Mr. Fred Dyson, and Mr. Jenkins by Mr. A. Johnson. Miss Adeline Zohle is a charming Katrina, her full rich voice being heard to advantage in the vocal numbers. Lena is prettily played by Miss Lou Langley, and Little Schneider has an agreeable exponent in Miss Doris Middleton.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Mr. John Power's company is here this week in For Wife and Home. Ronald St. Pierre is vigorously played by Mr. Francis Everard; Mr. Power appears as Gaspard Lefarge, and effectively displays the villainy of the character; Henri St. Pierre is skilfully treated by Mr. T. A. Ellis. Another good part is the Abbé Latouche, as presented by Mr. A. Denne Mead. The humour of the play is supplied by Mr. George T. Greig as Picard. Rosette le Grand is charmingly played by Miss Clara Reid, and as Celeste le Grand Miss Constance Medwyn is seen to advantage; Miss Edith Leslie is a sprightly Lizette; Miss Clark Andrews does well as Miladi St. Pierre. The scenery is good.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Admirers of the work of Sir Conan Doyle assembled in force on Monday to welcome Brigadier Gerard, presented by Mr. Lewis Waller's company. Mr. Loring Fernie has the title-part, and looks the dashing hussar to the life, admirably depicting the mingled modesty, vanity, sangfroid, and reckless bravery of the character. Miss Beatrice Lindley is alike charming as the fascinating incognita of the inn and as the "grand lady" of the later scenes. A more graceful representative of the Countess de Roquelaire could not be desired. Mr. Arthur Somers is good as the Emperor; and Mr. George Mallett cleverly suggests the physical and mental characteristics of the crafty Talleyrand.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Geo. R. Sims and Wilson Barrett's popular drama, The Golden Ladder, is being played here this week by Miss Mary Austin and Mr. Vivian Edmonds's company. Miss Austin's Lillian Grant is a tender and sympathetic impersonation. Mr. William Clayton acts in a convincing manner as the chivalrous young clergyman, Frank Thornhill; Mr. J. Milne Taylor as Michael Severn, and Mr. Vivian Edmunds as Peranza, are a couple of picturesque scoundrels; and Mr. Fred Acton does well as Joe Dixon. Some good comedy scenes are acted with abundant humour by Mr. Joe Rowland as Sam Peckerby and Miss Nellie Graham, two old Sheffield pantomime favourites.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—A good audience welcomed Miss Ida Millais's company on Monday in the favourite drama, No Man's Land. The leading characters are effectively supported by Miss Ida Millais, Mr. Henry Herne, Mr. Alfred Byron, Mr. Vernon L. Thomas, Mr. Frank Denis, Mrs. Mallalieu, and Miss Nancy Mitchel. The thrilling island and rescue scenes were, as usual, enthusiastically applauded.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The spacious auditorium of the Empire has been crowded twice nightly this week, the pièce de résistance being the brilliantly mounted and brightly performed musical comedy Moses and Sons, produced by the enterprising Mr. Fred Karno. The appearance of such a favourite as Mr. Fred Kitchen as the mirth-provoking caretaker ensures success. Miss Leah Morris, Miss Jenny Reeve, Miss Madge Rockingham, Mr. Herbert Landeck, and a large and well-dressed chorus give excellent support. Mr. Sam Poluski, jun., a diverting comedian; the Bros. Redmond, bar comedians; the Di Pace Brothers, mandolinists; Les Bastiens, acrobats; on securing the services of such eminent artists as Mr. Norman V. Norman and Miss Beatrice Wilson for this week's programme. The Adventures of Lady Ursula, which was presented on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, was thoroughly portrayed and enthusiastically received. Mr. Norman displayed marked ability in the rôle of Sir George Sylvester, his impersonation being faultless; Mr. Dennis Cleugh was good as the Earl of Hassenden; and Mr. Francis Hope gave an excellent characterisation of the Rev. Mr. Blimboe. Mr. Dent found in Mr. Harold West an able interpreter; and Miss Sybil Ruskin was delightful as Dorothy Fenton. Miss Beatrice Wilson gave a really striking and forcible delineation of the difficult rôle of the Lady Ursula Barrington, and gained well-deserved encomiums. Nell Gwyn of Drury Lane was produced on Thursday, and A Scrap of Paper on Friday, David Garrick being presented to-night (Saturday).

ALFRESCO THEATRE OF VARIETIES, ROYAL TERRACE.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Angless; Manager, Professor Vincent.—These excellent concerts are in great demand, providing capital enjoyment for children. Vast crowds patronise the theatre daily, and are well satisfied with every item submitted. Professor Malvern, as a ventriloquist, gives evident delight, and Will Toole, comedian, is well received.

PIER HILL BANDSTAND.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Angless.—The refined and high-class entertainments provided by Mr. Ballard Brown still attract immense and enthusiastic audiences, and excellent business is being done. A capital company of artists all work with vigour, and merit unstinted praise. Thursday evening was set aside for the benefit of Miss Pattie McCarthy, who has proved such a favourite this season.

SOUTHPORT. — OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS. — Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Company, Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—A large audience greeted Mr. George Dance's talented company on Monday, when the charming comic opera, The Little Michus, was presented for the second time here, with all the usual completeness of Mr. Dance's productions. Miss Alice Coverick and Miss Ethel Bryan were charming and vivacious exponents of the "Little Michus"; Mr. Foster Courtenay very cleverly enacted the rôle of General des Ifs, his display of comedy keeping the house in continuous merriment; the part of Gaston Riguad had a capital representative in Mr. William Everard; Mr. Gilbert Childs as Bagnolet, and Mr. R. Harcourt as Aristide Vert were highly humorous and successful; Miss Florence Hylton skilfully portrayed Madame Michu; Mr. Leon Simkin presented a capital study of Pierre Michu; and Mdlle. Marjorie executed some marvellous dances in the rôle of Mdlle. St. Cyr.

ALBERT HALL, WINTER GARDENS. — Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—The following excellent company of variety artistes form the attraction at this popular hall. Nina Gordon, the Scottish mimic and society entertainer, whose versatility and charming vocalism are warmly applauded; McCann's dogs, a famous troupe of performing Irish terriers and champion leaping dogs; Stave, the electric comedy artiste; the Coolvilles (Nancy and Edie), vocalists and dancers; Minnie Mace, comedienne and dancer; Harry Carsdale, farmyard linguist; Wal Robbins, black and white comedian; Calile and Walker, comedy artists; Mezzetti and Mora, in a comedy bar act; and the Bioscope.

PIER PAVILION. — Proprietors, The Southport Pier Co.; Manager, Mr. Charles F. Johnson.—One of the principal items in the good all-round programme presented here this week is supplied by Lady Julia, the ape with a human brain. Another good turn is provided by Henri Bekker, conjuror, assisted by Mdlle. Maie. The programme includes Akbar, expert silver ring artist; Bella Leaburn, comedienne; the Brothers Obo, patter comedians; Jack Martin, actor-vocalist; Dolly Moore, juveile male impersonator; O'Connor and Brady in an eccentric absurdity; and the Bio-Tableaux.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—The Prince of Pilsen made its first appearance here on Monday. It is presented by Baron H. Harris's company. Mr. Harry Kilburn is very entertaining as Hans Wagner, the Cincinnati brewer, his never-failing humour always proving effective. The part of Mrs. Maddison Crocker is well sustained by Miss Sophie Harriss; and F. Crimp is popular as Carl Otto, the Prince of Pilsen. The Earl of Shrimpton of Mr. Bernard Russell is a creditable performance, and Nellie Wagner is ably enacted by Miss D. Grasdorff; the Lieut. Tom Wagner of Mr. R. Sydney is excellent, and Miss Florence Beech scores as Edith Adams; Miss Connie Leon does well as Sidonie; the Françoise of Mr. Ernest Gifford is laughable; Miss Mollie Wynne gives a good rendering of Jimmie; and Mr. G. W. Hulme appears to advantage as Sergeant Brie. The well-balanced chorus and augmented orchestra are under the able conductorship of Mr. Albert Vernon, and the scenery and costumes are magnificent.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Thompson.—The top of the bill is occupied by a new musical comedy entitled The Duchess of Tooting, written and composed by Mr. George Sheldon; Datas, the living encyclopædia, is still popular; a novel ventriloquial act is given by Eric; Terry and Lambert are seen to advantage in a series of character-sketches; a good dancing, singing, and change act is contributed by Pierce and Maizee; and Lottie Lonsdale, juvenile comedienne, and the Bioscope complete the bill.

ST. HELENS. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, The St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—After a long absence we have this week a reappearance of the new drama The Span of Life, carefully and well enacted by a company under the direction of Mr. Arthur Carlton. As the hero Richard Blunt, Mr. Kyburn Dellar gives an excellent portrayal or the rôle; while the part of the villain Dunstan Leech loses nothing in the hands of Mr. Sanderson Moffat. Miss Kitty Russell makes an efficient Shrove Tuesday. Miss Ella Wilmer pleases all with her natural enactment as Kate Heathcote. Cecil Gelf has a capable exponent in Miss Mary Moffat; and Mr. Walter Dale has a congenial rôle as Nutty Brown. The Almo trio work the human bridge scene cleverly and well merit the applause they receive.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Will Sley, and Fred Wilmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—The most popular turn here this week is that submitted by the Bogganny's, whose clever acrobatic feats and comedy in the Lunatic Bakers is provocative of much hilarity. Doody and Wright are also very funny as Australian comiques. Mr. Walter Emmerson repeats his former success as a comedian. The Society Quartette are encored at every performance for their vocalism and smart dancing. Miss Rose Waller is a pleasing comedienne. Mr. G. W. Foster proves to be an excellent racouteur; and Mr. Charles Serra presents an original statuary act.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The appearance here of Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche and their company in What the Butler Saw, has attracted crowded audiences, who have been heartily amused and delighted with the representations. Mr. Lionel Rignold as Pink is exceedingly funny and caused abundant laughter. As Jack Barrington Mr. Charles Fawcett acts admirably, and Sir Charles Foden has an able representative in Mr. Raddick Anderson. Mr. Roy Byford impersonates the character of Professor Shale with much ability, and Miss Marie Dalton acts the part of Miss Foden with pleasing effect, whilst Miss Ada Blanche as Mrs. Barrington performs with a delightful charm that captivates everybody.

EMPIRE. — Proprietors, the Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—A popular artiste here is Cissie Carlitte, whose delightful vocalism and clever mimicry have been a source of much pleasure to large audiences. The trunk mystery introduced by Cussac-Talma, assisted by Yeonne de Forge, is a most remarkable one. David Poole is highly amusing in his ventriloquial entertainment; Gray and Welford are mirth provoking in their display of comic boxing; Frank Newbury, the whistling comedian, is cordially greeted; the Three Missouris, burlesque acrobats and wrestlers, are distinctly funny; and Hector and Paulus, comedy acrobats, Myra Love, Australian comedienne, and Mignon "La Belle Musicienne, are received with gratifying approval.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—The Four Cattaneous head the bill in their wonderful acrobatic performance, which is truly wonderful; Johnny Walker, a comedian of much merit, is successful; Sibb and Sibb are trapezists of well-known ability; Cris is successful in a capital turn; Emma Don and her piccaninnies are seen in a most interesting turn; Fred Horsfall jodels cleverly, and is distinctly successful; Vosper's imitations are wonderful; May Marton sings her two songs admirably; and the pictures prove attractive.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress Miss Marode Lynton.—A Mother's Love is a drama that appeals to local playgoers, and a good audience was present on Monday when Mr. Fred L. Connynghame paid a return visit. Mr. Connynghame is easily the most popular of the cast, his impersonation of Matt Ruddock being of a high-class character. Another gentleman who helps in a large measure towards the success of the performance is Mr. Arthur E. Pringle, who as Geoffrey Mannering pleases the most critical. No one could have wished for a more pleasing performance than that of Winnie Wingate by Miss Rosa Mervyn. Mr. Arthur Mervyn in the clerical rôle of Paul Wingate found favour with his audience, and the rest of the cast prove their ability.

SUNDERLAND. — AVENUE THEATRE.—Director and Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—Mr. William Greet's company, The Earl and the Girl, is paying us a welcome return visit here. As Jim Cheese, Mr. William Stephens is excellent, and causes constant roars of laughter by his witticisms; Mr. Arthur Harrold, a vocalist of considerable ability, does effective work as Dick Wargrave; and as the Hon. Crewe Boodle Mr. Percy E. Wright makes a decided hit; Miss Francis Earle introduces a great amount of vim into her performance as Elphin Haye, and her vocal efforts are worthy of special praise, and the bright acting of Miss Beatrice Anderson as Mrs. Shimmering Black is very noticeable; the part of Liza Shoddam is filled with vivacity by Miss Jennie Richards and Miss Gertrude Melville is a pleasing Daisy Fallowfield; Miss Mary Morison makes the most of her opportunities as Miss Virginia Bliss; Messrs. H. Courtin, Will Hindson, and Greene Taylor all capably fill their respective parts.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Sunderland Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hemingway.—Mr. Geoffrey Fulton's company opened here on Monday in the new play by Mr. David Muskerry, entitled The Dear Old Homeland. A full account will be found in another column.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Browne and Stringer.—Chief honours here this week go to Dinah Morris and company in a versatile scena, entitled The Lost Coon, in which some good dancing and singing are introduced. Wilson and Waring occupy a prominent position with their amusing duo A Bit of Nonsense. Others appearing are A. G. Spry, quaint comedian; Kalm and Khan, magicians; Oliver Conroy, comedian; Ross and Grayson, comedian; Prof. R. Dunning, ventriloquist; Victor Travers, eccentric; and an amusing episode on the Bioscope, entitled "Rough on the Fireman.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners; Musical Director, Mr. Fred Lucas.—Driven from Home, capitally staged, and cleverly performed by Mr. Andrew Melville's company, under the general management of Mr. Fred Sandy, is the attraction here this week, and was welcomed by a well-filled house on Monday. It would be a difficult matter to speak too highly of Miss Frances Ruttledge's effective and touching rendition of the dual rôle Laura Raybrook and the younger Walter, or of Mr. Percy Dawsone's fine study of the outcast Willie. In addition to his managerial duties, Mr. Frederick Sandy is seen to excellent advantage in the heavy part of Geoffrey Waring, and Mr. Felix Pitt must be commended on his work as Anthony Raybrook; while Mr. Clement Wakefield, as Walter Hatherleigh, and Mr. Harry Cornwall as Jabez Thomas, cleverly depict their respective parts. Miss Florence Trevoir is strikingly successful as Barbara Ashdown, and the comedy relief introduced by Mr. A. E. Mann as John Anderson and Miss Evelyn Marrable as Margaret is greatly appreciated.

TORQUAY.—PRINCESS PIER CONCERT HALL.—Proprietors, the Torquay Town Council; Manager, Mr. A. T. Tremlett. This is Regatta week here, and the Motleys are providing good entertainment nightly to large audiences. Miss Lena Vere is a comedienne of ability, and uses it to the best advantage, and Mr. Sidney Leighton also does very well, his ventriloquial sketch being appreciated; Mr. Joseph Holland is a tenor of exceptional talent, and meets with great success, and Mr. Harker Nicholls's instrumental numbers are particularly admired; Mr. Llewellyn Evans has a good voice, and his efforts are frequently applauded.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS. — OPERA HOUSE. — Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey; Manager, Mr. L. J. Gunnell.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company in The White Chrysanthemum has been a great attraction here this week. Mr. W. H. Rawlins has made a hit in the part of the Admiral; and Mr. Horace Mills has been successful as Lieut. Beaumont, while Mr. F. Pope Stamper has done excellent work as Lieut. Hermitage. Mr. O. E. Lennon is responsible for no little amusement as the Chinese cook; and Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., is capital as one of the Royal Marines. Miss Gwladys Elvey is charming in the title-part; Miss Kate Vesey makes a fascinating American heiress; and Miss Daisy Le Hay is an attractive widow. Minor parts are well sustained by the Misses Delia Hunt, Mabel Champion, Florence Craigie, Estelle Vernon, May Daniel, Mary Preston, Ellaline Craigie, Stanley Cooper, R. O'Ferrall, Messrs. Gordon Thomas, E. J. Carlin, Michael Watson, Stanley Williams, Fred Meyers, A. L. Hayter, W. Thompson, R. Norman, H. Smith, and O. McKiernan. Mr. G. W. Lindsay is the manager, and Mr. T. Reynolds the stage-manager.

TYNEMOUTH.—PALACE-BY-THE-SEA. — Proprietor, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager, Mr. Lindon Travers.—Miss Dolly Elsworthy's company is here in The Orange Girl. As Nell Gwyn Miss Dolly Elsworthy leaves little to be desired, and is ably assisted by Mr. C. Robinson (Charles II.); Mr. C. V. Percy (Duke of Buckingham); Mr. A. Howard (Dick Harraden); Miss A. Schrier (Lady Castlemaine); and Miss O. Rivers (Mother Gwyn). Mr. W. G. Webber, basso-profundo, is heartily appreciated; Mr. Arthur Croxon, a versatile entertainer, provides a most amusing turn; Stanley's Giant Fairy Fountain is as much a success as ever; and the Casino Orchestra under the baton of Mr. Henry Sprake please by their well-rendered selections.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—At the head of the bill here this week is Ancillotti and his thought-reading dog Pilu, who gives a marvellous performance; Claude Feldman's Beau-Ideal Troupe of clever juveniles in their vaudeville act are loudly applauded; Prof. Bernar's Fantoches are well received; the Melba Sisters prove popular; Sammy Shields makes a capital Scotch comedian; Rose Finette is decidedly smart; and Ernie Mayne creates roars of laughter; the American Bioscope shows some capital pictures.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—Alma Obrey is the star turn, and charms all with her vocalisation; Fred Curran is a quaint comedian and Minnie d'Aubyn a charming burlesque actress. Conan and Doyle are expert patterers and Bob Baxter a finished comedian; Hill and Lane are here with several specialities and Burley and Burley are clever comedy acrobats. Harry Cliff has a good voice; and the Royal Bioscope pictures are again a smart collection.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—The depiction of the Britt-Nelson fight in animated pictures is proving an excellent attraction here. Kid Gwynn, American ball puncher, evokes loud applause; Mr. Cresswell Bernard in his character sketches from Dickens proves a big success; and the 'Frisco Girls in their songs and dances make a very favourable impression.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore.—Kennedy's Komiks are on a return visit, and Little Hatch, Lenner and Wright, Street and Round, Sisters Dudley, and Harry Plowden all submit excellent turns. A most amusing sketch is providing—Tate's Fishing—and a specially excellent item is that presented by Yorick and Yorick, who display great ability; Mr. Fred Jones and Mr. Harry Smart give a clever display of wrestling; and a fine selection of animated pictures is given by the electric Theatrograph.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. M. Sylvester; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Player.—The attraction here this week consists of Messrs. Brown and Kelly's combination in The Butler Knows, a laughable sketch, which went well. A good turn was submitted by the Herald Comedy Four, who rendered some songs in fine style, gaining a well-deserved encore; and the audience laugh heartily at the knockabout absurdity of the Elves Comedy Trio. Spencer and Marks provide a good show; Miss Blanche Holt proves a success as the Dutch vocalist; Mr. Sid Bandon creates several encores with his character songs; Miss Marie Elsie gives an admirable turn; and the Hippodrome pictures are well up to the standard.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—Mr. Frank Bertram this week presents The Breed of the Treshams here this week, with Mr. H. Tripp Edgar in the rôle of Reresby the Rat, a character which has an interpretation that is entirely satisfactory. Great skill is shown by Miss Celestine Bertram as Batty. Miss Florence Thressillian as the Hon. Margaret Hungerford renders the part with good taste and natural treatment. Mr. Cecil C. Klier is successful as the Hon. Francis Tresham, and Mr. Richard H. Greene gives effect to the character of Colonel Hungerford.

PALACE. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Francis, the cannon ball King, is once more here astonishing all, and he is assisted by "his satelite" Alfred, whose comedy eye play is irresistably funny. The simultaneous dancing by Moon and Morris is wonderfully clever and neatly done. The Wynford Brothers' display of jumping is marvellous; Mr. Fred Earle gains a flattering reception; and Alice Ormonde, comedienne, provides an attractive number. The banjo and vocal selections given by the Sisters Chester are pleasing; Raymond's Biotableaux are, as usual, good and attractive; Taking songs are rendered by A. E. Clifford, versatile vocalist; and the dancing by Chic. Ada Parker is exceptionally neat.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. George Dance's company paid a return visit here on Monday in The Orchid. Miss Poppy Wilkinson made a delightful Lady Violet Anstruther; Miss Trilby Collier was charming as Josephine Zaccary; Miss Clara Beck gave an artistic representation of Thisbe; Zelie Rumbert found a clever exponent in Miss Sissie Brand; Miss Hilda Vining was praiseworthy as Caroline Vokins; and so, too, was Miss Kitty Smythe as the Countess Anstruther. Mr. Harry Walsh was the life and soul of the piece as Meakin; Mr. Clifford Bing was extremely ludicrous as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour; Mr. Frank Manger made an excellent Dr. Ronald Faussett; Mr. Charles Seymour's interpretation of Mr. Aubrey Chesterton was decidedly good; Mr. Len Neville's portrayal of the Comte Raoul de Cassignat was entitled to the highest commendation; and Mr. Geoffery Berwick made quite a hit as Zaccary. The Cingalee company occupied the boards for the last three nights of the week.

GRAND PIER PAVILION.—The Æolian Opera Singers are here once more, and scoring a big success. Miss Jennie Johns is applauded to the echo for her singing of "Mother"; Miss Florence Kay is loudly encored for her rendering of Tosti's "Goodbye"; Miss Rose Alderman's exceptional voice is heard to advantage in "Angel of my dreams"; Mr. Vivian Munro's song, "The world ruled by girls," is rendered most artistically; Mr. Charles Parker's singing of "Country, King, and Girl" meets with approbation; and as a mimic and ventriloquist, Mr. Richardson Taylor is a huge success. Mr. Frank Lens delights with some excellent pictures on the Bioscope.

WEST STANLEY.—VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; Responsible Manager, Mr. Tully.—This theatre opened on Monday under new management, with Mr. Reginald H. Adair's company in The Luck of Life. Mr. Harry Lloyd, Mr. Henry Loraine, and Mr. Ch. Belcliffe, as the three Nihilists, Michael Bazilovitz, Count Petroff, and Ivan Polowski, were responsible for some exceedingly good acting; Mr. Wilton Marsh as George Stanhope, a solicitor, was everything desirable; Mr. Harry T. Butler as Simon Stanley, Stanhope's clerk, is a refined and clever comedian; Miss Nita Langford plays well as Renée Bazilovitz; Mlle. de Beaudyn is capitally presented by Miss Kate Perowne; and Miss Marie Clavering as Countess Vlame, Miss Olive Brook as Vivienne, and Miss Dora Huggett as Laura North played their respective rôles effectively.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Stanley Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. Chas. Watson Mills is here this week with A Wrecker of Men. Risca Mallison is forcibly presented by Miss Dora Price; Mr. Milner Noble as Pharosophus, an Egyptian, does every credit to the rôle; Mr. Frederick Biron makes a decided hit as Jim Morley; Mr. Millar Anderson's Railton is a capital piece of acting; the part of Guise Strange was ably presented by Mr. Stanley Champion; Mr. William A. Armour makes a fine Reggie Verincourt, a plucky Johnnie; Mr. John Soden ably fills the dual rôle of Ezekiel Isaacs and Karnaphus; and Mr. Thompson Carruthers does well in the part of Eric Melville. Miss Cissy Podmore shows to advantage as Doris Melville; Miss Beatrice Reynolds creates some amusement by her funny portrayal of Vavasole Slopper; and the part of Marion Isaacs is well handled by Miss Gwendoline Talbot.

WEXFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. E. P. Ronan.—Mr. Joseph Poole's myriorama and variety company was the attraction secured for the reopening of the theatre on Monday. The entertainment, which is of a first-class character, was thoroughly enjoyed by the crowded audience. The myrioramic tableaux realistically depicted life in different parts of the world, the views of the Assouan Dam, the Bombardment of Port Arthur, and Venice being especially fine. Mr. Nat Abatt proved a very capable guide and raconteur. A capital variety company also formed part of the entertainment. Mlle. Juanita de Oliviera, with her performing cockatoos, gained much applause; the Veronas, in their songs and dances, were very pleasing; McAskell, comic conjurer, kept the audience in good humour; Miss May Finch in her song-scena was much admired; Felix Somers gave some striking facial impersonations of past and present celebrities; Silly Selby, the eccentric musical clown, was good; and the Paulasto Troupe in their novel creation, Frolics in a Café Garden, gave a clever acrobatic performance.

WHITBY.—THE SPA THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. Payne Seddon; Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of last week, Mr. Edward Terry and company appeared at this theatre in Sweet Lavender, The Magistrate, and Liberty Hall. Since the Spa has been leased by Mr. W. P. Seddon, as manager, the place has been extremely popular. There have been musical entertainments every day by first-class artists, besides other forms of entertainment. The Native Choir from Jamaica have proved a great success this week, their performances being full of charm and interest. For the first three nights of the week Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company in the successful play The Walls of Jericho, appeared at this theatre. Mr. A. E. Anson acts with great power as Jack Frobisher; Miss May Tavener makes a charming Lady Alethea; Mr. Alfred Barber as Hanky Bannister; Mr. Leslie Rea as Lord Drayton; and Mr. Cecil Warde as the Marquis of Steventon are excellent. Miss Marguerite Cellier as Lady Westerby; Miss Nona Wynne as Lady Lucy Derenham, and Miss Lillian Rogers as Miss Mornington were also equally pleasing. There were large audiences present on each occasion.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Clark.—This theatre opened for the season on the 24th ult. with Mr. Chas. Macdona's company in a two night's engagement, with The Country Girl. This week we are having a return visit of Mr. Harry Starr and company in the play Carl the Clockmaker. Mr. Starr again appears as Carl, and his performance is enjoyed as much as ever. Mr. Edwin Firth is well cast as Maurice Helmore, and Mr. Fred Graham is very humorous as Arthur Attwood. Mr. W. Hee works hard as Count Neiklevitch, and Mr. W. Miller is good as Norkey Nabbs. Miss Kate Norris is pleasing as Lena, and Madge Blundell enacts the part of Madge Ryder in a careful manner.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—Messrs. E. Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg's company is here this week with the remarkable drama, The Traitor. A large house assembled on Monday evening, and was deeply impressed by the powerful story unfolded by a capable company. Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson is a fine figure as Prince Rudolph, and repeatedly wins the plaudits of the house; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan as the Chief of Police and "the traitor" of the title-rôle acts brilliantly in an arduous rôle; Mr. P. W. Hurst as Captain Ross of England reveals himself as a capable artist; and Miss Isabel Hunt plays with success the emotional part of the young Lieutenant Nicholas. Messrs. Arthur McCullogh, Edward Lowrie, and Frank Sutherland are responsible for the comedy element, and made the most of the chances afforded them; Miss Maude Stuart renders much help to the lighter side of the piece by her delineation of Cen Cen, a Japanese girl; the handling of the part of Zula by Miss Ruth Shepherd is excellent and artistically restrained; Miss Rosalind Scott Watson is admirable in the part of the mysterious Countess Zicka; and Miss Katherine Vere plays prettily as a clever Parisienne who acts as a detective. The staging of The Traitor is exceptionally good, and the uniforms and dresses are elaborate.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Worswick.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company is presenting The Silver King. The part of Wilfred Denver is powerfully represented by Mr. Fred D. Daviss; Mr. Edw. J. George capably expounds the part of Daniel Jaikes; Mr. L. St. George Lowther is admirable as "the Spider," and Mr. Arthur Wright capably represents the character of Elijah Combe. Nellie Denver is sympathetically portrayed by Miss Daisy Scudamore, and Miss Flossie Hale Daviss gives a natural interpretation of the part of Cissy. Miss Dorothy Radford does well as Olive Skinner; Miss Louie Hale is amusing as Tabitha Durden; and Miss Bessie Wright and Miss Mary Simpson are good as Susie and Mrs. Gamage respectively.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick.—The Clement Trio, aerial comedy gymnasts, give a remarkably skilful performance; Musical Silvo produces music from glasses, silvo chimes, &c.; Charles Mildare is a clever whistler; and Mystery Gauze, a Canadian Indian artist, represents a female vocalist so faithfully as to totally deceive his audience. Other excellent turns are H. O. Wills, comedian; Takio, Japanese mimic; Harry Edson and well-trained dogs; the Sisters Cora, vocalists; the Brothers De Wynne, smart hand-balancers, &c.; and Horace Sade, speciality artist.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—After a long spell of variety entertainment, a week's visit from Mr. George Alexander's company in His House in Order is proving highly acceptable, and Mr. Carlton's enterprise is finding generous acknowledgment at the hands of his numerous patrons. Mr. Frank Fenton and Miss Auriol Lee are the stars in a carefully-selected company, and the comedy receives adequate representation. As the wayward Nina, Miss Auriol Lee plays with delightful freedom, yet exercises a degree of restraint in the more emotional passages which serves to accentuate their force. The part of Hilary Jesson is sustained by Mr. Frank Fenton with complete success; Mr. Cyril Harcourt is well suited as the somewhat priggish politician Filmer Jesson; and Miss Carmen Woods is entertaining as the precocious Derek Jesson. Mr. Adam Alexander, Mrs. Kemmis, Miss Audrey Campbell, and Mr. George Silver make an interesting quartette of "Ridgeleys"; Mlle. Juliette Milo is a fascinating French governess; and Mr. Charles Tyrel justifies his selection for the part of the false friend, Major Maurewarde. The minor rôles are satisfactorily filled, and the comedy is superbly staged.

WORKINGTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Large audiences have assembled to witness The Throne of Terror, which is effectively mounted. As Robespierre, Mr. William J. Miller plays with force and vigour; Mr. Roy Milton as the hero is quite successful; Mr. F. Fuller is excellent as the Comte; Miss K. Maude Davies is sympathetic as the heroine, and Miss Ethel Lanyan-Maude forms a fine contrast as the villainess. The entire cast is satisfactory.

WORTHING. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. Bannister Howard's company appeared here for the first three nights of this week with The Silver King, and money was turned away nightly. Mr. Horace E. Herbert gives a fine rendering of Wilfred Denver; Mr. Oswald Cray as the Spider is excellent; Miss B. Doyle gives a finished and pathetic delineation of Nellie Denver; little Madge Gillard and little Mildred Warde do beautifully as Cissie and Ned; Mr. Percy Foster could not be improved upon as Daniel Jaikes; Mr. A. Begbe is a typical detective as Baxter, and the remaining characters are suitably placed. On Thursday Mr. George Dance's company appeared in The Duchess of Dantzic.

WREXHAM. — EMPIRE MUSIC HALL. — Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls. — This week good houses have been attracted by Mr. E. W. Selman, character comedian; Rene and Smith (Nell and Jim), American speciality artists; Miss Nellie Dunbar, comedienne and dancer; Bush and Le Roy, in a comedy duologue, entitled A Day Out; Miss Sadie Bushell, contralto; and the pictures.

YORK.—ROYAL.—Lessee, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. S. Dacre.—The Earl and the Girl has proved a strong attraction for the race week, and large audiences have been the rule. Miss May Yates secured hosts of admirers by her impersonation of Elphin Haye, which was at once natural and delightful. Mr. Thomas Kennard as Dick Wargrave was in every way a distinct success, giving a racy, humorous, and thoroughly enjoyable rendition of a popular rôle. Mr. Alfred Donohoe as Jim Cheese had ample opportunities to display his undoubted talents as a comedian of the first rank, and he lost no opportunity to cause amusement; Mr. Leslie Owen was satisfactory as Crewe Boodle, and Mr. Sam Lysons as Mr. Falk was infinitely amusing. Miss Kathleen Gerrard was a handsome Mrs. Shimmering Black, and much amusement was caused by Mr. Greville Hayes as A. Bunker Bliss.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—The Max Wesseley Troupe of jugglers are the great attraction this week, and are well received. Boyd and Gilfain are as clever as ever in their musical items, which are thoroughly appreciated. Tom Leamore causes amusement, and Bert Bowden is aptly styled a quaint comedian. The dancing of Lorna Doone is a special feature, and Will Letters has some smart stories. Evelyn Taylor's songs are well received, and Gena Manon is a favourite. The Empire Bioscope is still an attraction.

PRESENTATION.—On Friday of last week, at the Woolpack Hotel, Moor-street, Birmingham, Mr. P. D. Elbourne, resident-manager of Barrasford's Hippodrome, Birmingham, was the recipient of an illuminated address and a handsome cheque on the occasion of his marriage. Mr. A. W. Matcham (of the Empire) presided, and was supported by Messrs. Phil Rodway (of the Theatre Royal), E. Foster (of the Bordesley Palace), Newby (of Yarmouth), Bert Wilson, Wallis, Parkes (hon. treasurer), and T. H. O'Rorke (hon. secretary). Letters of apology and good wishes were read from Messrs. Lester Collingwood (of the Alexandra), J. F. Graham (of the Prince of Wales's), Joe Hubbard, Dr. Bodie, &c. The chairman, in a neat speech, voiced the feeling not alone of Mr. Elbourne's brother managers in the city, but of a large circle of friends, in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Elbourne many years of happiness. Mr. Elbourne suitably replied, and thanked one and all for the beautiful address and their kind wishes on behalf of his wife and himself.

EDISCOPE AND BARNUM'S PICTURES opened at the Grand Theatre, Rawtenstall, on Monday to a large audience. The variety turns included the Cedrics, clever jugglers; Lulu, the lady instrumentalist, with a very fine garden set; Queenie Vane, a good clog dancer; Vic. Verney, whistling comedian; Jessie Harper, the singing mill girl; Stilvo, on the stilts; the Ver Vains, duettists and dancers; Mons. Vela, on the wire; and Madeline Corlettie, in illustrated songs.

THE popular proprietors of the Queen's Theatre, Keighley, invited the French workmen who are on a visit to the town to witness the performance of The Little Bread Winner on Tuesday evening. The greatest enthusiasm prevailed, and the theatre was crowded in every part.

DRAMATIC REVIVAL AT RICHMOND.

The theatrical star of Richmond has risen once again, and the historic town which for more than a year has languished without the drama came into possession of its own on Monday, when Mr. Bannister Howard reopened the Castle Assembly Rooms as a theatre. The house, which is hallowed by many theatrical traditions, was in years past a favourite resort, numerous stage celebrities, including no less a personage than Edmund Kean, having graced its boards. The Castle was succeeded by the new Richmond Theatre, which was some time since given over to variety, leaving the town unprovided with a temple of the drama. If a possibility exists of restoring the palmy days of the playhouse, Mr. Howard, who is a veritable prince among touring managers, and has at his command some of the finest productions travelling, is manifestly the man to do it. The theatre is within five minutes of the South Western station, whence a good service of trains connect it with neighbouring suburbs, whilst the District Railway is also within easy reach. It boasts a commodious balcony, fauteuils, stalls, and pit, and the seating capacity is laid out to the best advantage. Electric light has been installed, the stage enlarged, and many other improvements effected, and a feature of the house is an elegantly appointed ladies' lounge—not, however, entirely closed to members of the sterner sex—where refreshments are served throughout the evening. In order, as it were, to feel the pulse of the public, Mr. Howard proposes to open the theatre after next week on Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, with a matinée on the Saturday.

A large and enthusiastic audience, representative of the best people in the town, assisted at the opening on Monday, when the attraction was Sergeant Brue, the quaintly amusing comedy by Owen Hall, with music by Liza Lehmann and lyrics by J. Hickory Wood, which set all London laughing so long and loudly after its production at the Strand in the summer of 1904.

Prolonged applause greeted the fall of the curtain on the first act, and when Mr. Bannister Howard stepped forward he was heartily greeted. "Allow me," he said, "personally to thank you for attending here on this very hot evening in such large numbers to give a send-off to my new venture. The question is, I think, Does Richmond require a theatre? It is wonderful that the town has been for such a long time without a playhouse, especially when one remembers what a very old theatrical town it is. I could tell some of my friends of the younger generation that in the year 1833 Edmund Kean made his last appearance at this little theatre. Some time since I was approached by an influential gentleman in this town, who asked me to come here and give the town a trial, so I have taken a temporary lease this autumn, and intend to give it a good chance. All I want is the goodwill and support of the public in my determination to present clean plays and good plays. I have prepared a satisfactory list for the coming autumn, including Oliver Twist and The Eternal City, by arrangement with Mr. Beerbohm Tree. Then there will be A Country Mouse, with Miss Annie Hughes, and afterwards will follow The Earl and the Girl, The Silver King, Florodora, Bluebell in Fairyland, The Belle of New York, Public Opinion, The Christian, Charley's Aunt, and many other first-class attractions. If I only succeed in getting your support, I have a promise from the Moody-Manners Opera Company to come in the spring. I have an option on the theatre for next year, and if I am supported I shall go ahead and try to revive again the successful days of the past. Although most of the leading stars

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

The play-going inhabitants of Holloway have had refreshingly light and bright fare this week at the Marlborough Theatre in The Gay Parisienne. The sprightly merry doings of that young lady and her confrères in the play never seem to pall upon one even with repetition, and goodly audiences—all things considered—have assembled nightly at the theatre mentioned. In this sultry weather people prefer that their entertainments should not be of the kind that harrow the feelings or are so "heavy" that their weight, figuratively speaking, makes one draw long breaths. Therefore, a lightsome piece like The Gay Parisienne is made especially welcome at this tropical season of the year, and its varying incidents, involving no great mental strain in their interpretation, and yet being pleasing to the eye, the ear, and the understanding. This musical comedy has been before the footlights for some considerable time, and there is not much doubt that it will hold the stage for a long period yet. The work of the company under review is adequate in every respect. There is a delightfully winsome and engaging Julie in Miss Evelyn Hughes, whose vivacity and light-heartedness in her acting and dancing cannot fail to disperse the gloom from the most morbid soul. As to the sober-minded and stern Mrs. Honeycomb, that very correct person is admirably portrayed by Miss Holford Berringer, while it is a very pretty and sweet Miss Honeycomb that we get from Miss Madge Soutter. Mr. T. Gideon Warren is to be commended for his representation of the short-tempered Major, whose irritableness and jerky fits are the cause of so much amusement. Mr. William Harman is seen in the rôle of that wonderful genius, Ebenezer, and the way in which Mr. Harman brings out the absurdity of the character and its ludicrous qualities is extremely diverting. A capital study of the German landlord, Hans, is furnished by Mr. J. Fitzjames, and Mr. Dutton Nicholls is effective as an American dude. Miss Ethel Ivimey is lively and comical as Ruth; and Mr. Bloomfield Jones, in the part of the German waiter, commands one's admiration for his smart dancing. The staging and mounting is, as one might suppose, on a scale of magnificence, there is a splendid chorus, aided by the Imperial Glee Singers, and the whole production goes with a merry swing from start to finish.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
the Play, by Charles Klein, entitled
"THE LION AND THE MOUSE."

One of the most acceptable and interesting of the plays sent us from America, it will always remain somewhat of a mystery to us that the piece did not attain the success it deserved at the Duke of York's Theatre. It was unanimously approved by the London Press, but the public did not respond in sufficiently paying numbers. It is probable that the English cannot believe or understand the immense power wielded, for good or evil, by magnates in the U.S.A., and the change of locality to England does not, in our opinion, add to the probability of the subject. The atmosphere of the play is frankly American, and American it should remain. An undeniably able company has been provided by Mr. Walter Maxwell, under whose auspices the play is being presented, and on Monday evening The Lion and the Mouse met with an enthusiastic reception from a well satisfied house. Mr. Leslie Carter represents the millionaire, John Burkett Ryder, in capital fashion, his domineering manner being absolutely suited to the part. His son, Jefferson Ryder, is most pleasantly rendered by Mr. Stephen Wentworth, making him deservedly a favourite. An amusing picture of the Hon. Fitzroy Bagley, the confidential secretary, is given by Mr. J. W. Mackie, and Mr. Herbert Chowne is good as the Rev. Pontifex Deetle. Mr. George Lyttleton plays pathetically as the ruined Mr. Rossmore; and Mr. Richard Norton is a spirited Mr. Stoll. Mr. John Wheatman is a praiseworthy Mr. Roberts, and Jorkins is well played by Mr. Arthur B. Murray. As Shirley Rossmore (the mouse), Miss Christine Silver, a young actress of great merit, creates an immense impression in the powerful scenes wherein she attacks John Burkett Ryde, and the audience readily recognise her undoubted ability. Miss Elspeth Dudgeon exactly grasps the part of the millionaire's timorous wife, and Miss Maude Townsend plays Mrs. Rossmore delicately. Miss Dorrie Roberts is a charming Kate Roberts, and Miss Marjorie Murray is a pert and chatty Vera Nesbitt. Miss Amy Boundaries is a prim Jane Deetle, and the Eudoxia of Miss Ethel Gordon is delightful. The scenery transferred from the Duke of York's Theatre is, of course, of the highest class.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, August 27, the play, in Five Acts, adapted by J. Comyns Carr, from Dickens's novel, entitled
"OLIVER TWIST."

A most successful visit is being paid by Mr. Bannister Howard's company in Oliver Twist. The company is a thoroughly capable one, and constant applause punctuated the performance during the evening. Mr. Stanley Drewitt is to be highly complimented on his performance of Fagin, of whom he draws a grim and realistic picture, showing the old Jew in all his varying phases. The Bill Sykes of Mr. James Shea is another capital performance. His fine physique suits the character admirably, and he portrays the housebreaker with all the necessary brutality and harshness. Mr. Fred Penley as Mr. Brownlow makes an ideal old gentleman; Mr. W. Rotherham must be congratulated upon his really fine interpretation of Monks and Mr. Grimwig, the contrast between the cowardly and cunning Monks and the good-natured and gouty Mr. Grimwig being strongly marked. Mr. Paige Lawrence is a handsome and manly Harry Maylie; Miss Dorothy Marsden scores as Oliver, playing the character with irresistible sweetness and charm; Miss N. Lingham is well placed as Mrs. Maylie; and Miss Dorothy Mayhew is a graceful and sympathetic Rose Maylie. The Nancy of Miss Edith Anton Laing is a clever performance, bringing out all the good points in the character. The Artful Dodger, Charlie Bates, Tom Chitling, and Barney are skilfully and artistically played by Mr. Charles Clark, Mr. R. C. Hunter, Mr. J. Johns, and Mr. Arthur Klion. The smaller rôles are in safe hands. A word of praise must be given to the mounting of the play, the scene of London Bridge being a remarkably fine set. Mr. Aubrey Hall is the courteous representative of Mr. Howard, and Mr. W. H. Rotherham is stage-manager.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
"ALICE SIT-BY-THE-FIRE."

Miss Russ Whytal and her company are appearing in Mr. J. M. Barrie's fanciful comedy of errors at the Coronet this week. This quaint yet sapient reflection on the difficulties which beset Anglo-Indians, who are perforce separated from their children, and compelled to meet them almost as strangers, is very cleverly interpreted by a most capable company, headed by Miss Russ Whytal in Miss Ellen Terry's part of Alice. Miss Whytal will be best remembered by the excellent service which she rendered under Mr. E. S. Willard's management as Effie in The Professor's Love Story, The Cardinal, and The Middleman. As Alice Grey, Miss Whytal makes a particularly sweet and attractive character of the impulsive, flyaway creature who is suddenly called upon to cope with the most difficult situations imaginable, by reason of her scant acquaintance with her children and her utter ignorance of their highly strung, sensitive, and imaginative natures. Her sweet, womanly way is admirably suited to the part, and her brief flashes of spirited animation are delightfully natural and effective. Mr. J. J. Bartlett is admirable as the bluff, kind-hearted old warrior Colonel Grey, who finds the nursery with his own baby the best club in London. Miss Beatrice Bramah essays the difficult part of the thoughtful, dreamy, unsophisticated, intensely earnest, self-absorbed Amy Grey with a great measure of success, and makes the most of some intensely-amusing situations. Mr. A. W. Bascomb is highly diverting as the young naval cadet who is highly diverting as the young naval cadet who so strongly objects to being kissed by his father, or anything in the nature of "bad form," but is affectionate and honest at heart. Mr. Claude King comes out of the ordeal of portraying the character of Stephen Rollo with flying colours, and presents a very pleasing and convincing portraiture of the part. Miss Lucie Verrier is well-suited as the strong-minded school-girl Leonora Dunbar; and Miss Ada Mavius as the self-assertive nurse and Miss Lilian Locke as Fanny, the lodging-house "slavey" (quite a little character-study in its way), are well in the picture. Messrs. Arthur Hardy and Fred Pemberton are the managers of the company, and Mr. H. R. Cooke undertakes the duties of stage-management.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
the Play by Sheikewitch, entitled
"REPENTANCE."

On Monday evening a large audience followed with undivided interest a representation of Sheikewitch's popular play, Repentance. The performance was complete and commendable in every detail. The talent displayed by the members of the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company was of a high order of excellence, and every opportunity the piece afforded was taken full advantage of by these clever artists. The exacting rôle of Samuel Reinholtz was ably filled by Mr. Goldsmith, who gave a powerful reading of the character, being particularly good in the last act. Mr. Streng illustrated the part of Moses Schpigelman with his usual capability; and Mr. Schilling, who possesses considerable humorous powers, and is a great favourite here, was very happy in his conception of Chazkel. Mr. Gusofsky made a manly and handsome Refoel Winegloss, and played with earnestness and effect; and Mr. Rosenfeld put in some good work as Reb Jacob. Much fervour and dramatic intensity was shown by Mme. R. Waxman in her superb personation of Rozalie; and Mme. Goldstein met with a favourable reception as Dveire. An admirable Maule was presented by Mme. J. Kayzer, who gave a very fine performance of the part. During the week, The House of Jerusalem, Myer Josefovitch, Gabriel, and Hyman in America, have been played with great success.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
the Play, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled
"A GIRL'S CROSS ROADS."

The bill at the Fulham Theatre this week is filled by that highly moral drama, A Girl's Cross Roads. There are some clever artists in the company, and they give of their best. The most striking performance is undoubtedly that of Miss Beaumont Collins as Barbara Wade. It is a grim and realistic portrayal of the gradual fall of a woman, through drink, from happiness and prosperity to the very depths of degradation. Unpleasant as the subject matter is, one cannot stint praise for the extraordinarily powerful and moving impersonation of Miss Collins. Miss Nannie Meade plays the part of Nellie Meadows with all the needful abandon; and Miss Jessica Black provides an admirable contrast as Constance Cornell. A most attractive performance is that of Mr. Charles Franmore as the old farmer John Meadows, which is full of rich humour and real pathos. Mr. Wilson Gunning does well as Jack Livingstone; and Mr. Gerald Jordan makes a capable villain as Cuthbert Lumley. Messrs. Fred Withers and Charles Kean play well as Luke Ramsden and Dr. Weston. The comic relief is provided by Mr. Fred Ingram as Toby Turvey and Miss Lena Delphine as Tilly Vane, and their efforts never fail to provoke laughter.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Aug. 27, the Drama, by the late Sir Augustus Harris, Cecil Raleigh, and Henry Hamilton, entitled
"THE DERBY WINNER."

The above popular Drury Lane drama is being played here this week with great success. Mr. Roy Redgrave, a great favourite with the folks of Rotherhithe, makes a capital Earl of Desborough, and his impassioned style and dramatic acting earn for him considerable applause. Little Miss Florrie Green acts with much pathos, and gives a capital rendering of the part of Harold Viscount Fernside. Colonel Donnelly is well played by Mr. Henry C. Cooper; Mr. J. C. Aubrey gives an excellent impersonation of Madge Mostyn; Rupert Leigh, the dupe of Vivien Darville, is well rendered by Mr. Wingold Lawrence; and Mr. Jack Denton scores as the good-hearted army surgeon Captain Cyprian Streatfield, and extracts much fun out of the part. Mr. Frank Lister deserves praise for his spirited performance in the character of Joe Aylmer; Miss Olga Audre, who is a great favourite here, is well fitted for the part of Vivien Darville, and plays with her customary excellence. Miss Eva Dare makes a charming Maria Duchess of Milford, and is highly acceptable in the rôle. Miss Marion Turner is a pretty and pathetic Mary Aylmer; and Miss Hilda Franklin makes the best of the part of Muriel Countess of Desborough. The scenery and effects are excellent.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
a Drama, in Four Acts, by Mary Stafford Smith, entitled
"HER LOVE FOR HIM."

Richard Marsh .....Mr. Fred Morgan
George Hardy .....Mr. Arthur Bawtree
Jim Daw .....Mr. J. P. Dryden
Billie .....Miss Mary Stafford Smith
Fred Baxter .....Mr. Bert Morley
Zeke White .....Mr. Ashton Winslow
Bob Race .....Mr. J. E. Manning
Seth Rawlings .....Mr. Fred Ashton
Lord Robert Carrisbrook .....Mr. A. P. Kaye
Dr. Anson .....Mr. John Ward
Detective Scott .....Mr. David Reeve
Lola Denville .....Miss Minnie Grey
Maisie Bainbridge .....Miss May Seton
Carrie West .....Miss Nellie Fletcher

This play, which was produced here on Monday before a crowded house, is well written, and abounds with striking situations, that ending the second act being particularly effective. The first scene is a mining camp in California. Richard Marsh, a miner, has induced another named Fred Baxter to invest in a useless claim. Baxter, finding the claim not what it was represented to be, remonstrates. In the subsequent struggle he is stabbed, the result being that Marsh and his associate Jim Daw have to fly. At the Miner's Rest they meet George Hardy and his boy companion, Billy. Hardy is only too pleased to meet a countryman, and tells Marsh that he (Hardy) is en route for England to claim some estates to which he has succeeded. Jim Daw, having drawn off Billy, Marsh surprises and overcomes Hardy, renders him insensible, and robs him of his papers, the curtain falling on Marsh's escape, and Billy's discovery of foul play. Three years pass, and in the second act we find Marsh, with Daw as factotum, in possession of Hardy's estates, and ward to a charming girl, Lola Denville. Her coming-of-age is at hand, and, having squandered most of the property, Marsh conceives the idea of marrying Lola, who rejects the proposal with scorn. A steward has been advertised for, and the boy Billy applies on behalf of Hardy, who, of course, is known as Richard Marsh. As a result of the outrage perpetrated on him three years ago, Hardy is quite blind, and his memory a blank. Eventually, he and Billy are engaged, the latter as assistant steward. Then the false heir is introduced to the man he believed dead—a strong situation. In Act III. a love affair springs up between Lola and the steward. Other complications arise, but eventually things are straightened out through Billy's instrumentality. A successful operation is performed on Hardy, and all ends happily. The part of Billie is excellently portrayed by the authoress. She has several difficult scenes to handle, but succeeds admirably on each occasion; Mr. Arthur Bawtree, as the real Sir George Hardy, has a gentlemanly bearing, and is especially good in the scenes where he is supposed to be suffering from blindness. Lola Denville is sympathetically played by Miss Minnie Grey; Mr. Fred Morgan is effectively sardonic in the rôle of Richard Marsh; and Jim Daw has a humorous representative in Mr. J. P. Dryden. As Lord Carrisbrook Mr. A. P. Kaye is very amusing, and successfully resists any temptation to exaggerate. Miss May Seton has not much to do as the girlish Maisie Bainbridge, but contrives, nevertheless, to remain in the picture. Mr. Bert Morley and Mr. Ashton Winslow are commendable in smaller parts; and the other characters are in good hands. The play is picturesquely staged, and the incidental music is both pretty and appropriate.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
the Play, in Four Acts, entitled
"LUCKY DURHAM."

West Londoners have enjoyed a veritable dramatic treat this week by reason of the all-round excellence of Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company in Wilson Barrett's last successful play Lucky Durham. In the title-rôle Mr. Edmund Kennedy has a part that stands out prominently, and its many possibilities were taken the fullest advantage of by that sterling actor. Alert, well groomed, and with a finely modulated voice, he instantly got a grip on the house, which seemed to increase with each successive act. Mr. Bailey's patrons are always lavish with their applause when merited, and in Mr. Kennedy's case it was quite justified. Mr. Robert Forsyth is duly reserved and dignified as Lord Mountfallon; Mr. A. E. Walker is quietly impressive as Mr. Vallerton; the Ben Verstein of Mr. W. F. Clitherow is a clever character study; Mr. W. V. Simmons-Lynn plays carefully as Arthur Walcome; and Mr. Arthur Leigh's portrayal of the Hon. Reginald Steighton is a well-nigh perfect one, by reason of his easy, confident bearing and natural aptitude for impersonation of this kind. As Mrs. Durham that experienced actress Miss Louisa Gourlay gives a display of womanly tenderness and motherly affection that is very touching; Miss Frances Wolviston is well suited as Lady Mountfallon; Miss Florence Dulhunty is easy and natural as the matter-of-fact Hon. Margaret Steighton; and Miss Alice Esther Belmore sustains the rôle of Helen Vallerton with much charm of manner. The play is staged and mounted in faultless style, the scenery, which is carried by the company, providing a succession of elaborate sets.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
the Play by Geo. R. Sims and Arthur Shirley, entitled
"TWO LITTLE VAGABONDS."

Hardie and Von Leer's original company are presenting the above popular piece this week at the Dalston Theatre, and that full justice is done to the fine drama is proved by the rapt attention of the onlookers. The little vagabonds are represented by Miss May Hart as Dick and Miss Margaret Nybloc as Wally, the delicate nature of the latter being as well portrayed as the hearty health of the former. Mr. William Fazan as George Thornton, Miss Laura Hansen as his trouble-haunted wife, and Miss F. Russell Spiers as Barbara Scarth, his sister, help to maintain the interest of the piece, while Mr. Henry Watson as Captain Darville and Mr. Edmund Cuthbert as John Scarth add their quota to the more solid element of the production. Mr. John F. Traynor is entitled to special mention for an admirable character-sketch as Bill Mullins, the "gaffer" of a gang of thieves, among whom are Dido Bunce, represented by Mr. Ernest K. Nelson, and the Cough Drop, enacted with many touches of humour by Mr. Fred Archer. Miss Marie Pritchard is excellent as Biddy Mullins. Mr. Hugh Holliman raises a laugh or two as Joe Gargoyle, a sexton, and the cast also includes Mr. Jack Royal, Mr. Marston Moor, Mr. T. Blakeman, Mr. H. Buckland, Mr. J. Storm, Miss Muriel Clay, and Miss G. Bormond.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
the Musical Comedy,
"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

A warm welcome was extended by an excellent audience on Monday to Mr. William Greet's company, which is appearing in the above-named popular musical comedy. The company is a thoroughly good one from all points of view, and the chorus is both tuneful and energetic. Miss Gertrude Simpson revels in the part of Elphin Haye, her bright acting and clever singing soon making her a firm favourite. Miss Florence Wix scores an undoubted success as 'Liza Shoddam, playing the character with decided individuality and singing with good expression. Miss Eva Bevington is a dashing Daisy Fallowfield, and makes a hit with her "photograph" song. Miss Helen Langton is a distinguished Virginia Bliss; and Miss Nellie Grant an awe-inspiring strong lady. In the rôle of Jim Cheese, the dog-trainer, Mr. William Cromwell finds full scope for his talent as a comedian, his clever facial play and whimsical gestures giving point to the most ordinary remarks, and his sayings and doings are accompanied by continuous laughter. Mr. Robert Hyett is responsible for a thoroughly good rendering of Dick Wargrave, acting naturally, and singing several favourite numbers with excellent effect. Mr. A. E. Coleby is sufficiently ferocious as Bunker Bliss; Mr. Frank Cane is amusingly loquacious as Downham; Mr. Stanley Harrison makes a typical English gentleman of the Hon. Crewe Boodle; Mr. Arthur Cassidy causes considerable laughter as the Hebraic solicitor; and Mr. Fred W. Patrick makes the small part of the host of the Fallowfield Arms stand out as a clever character-study. The piece is well mounted and prettily dressed, and the lighting and general effects are good. A much appreciated item of the performance was the energetic and graceful dancing of Miss Nellie Lawrence.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
the Drama, in Four Acts,
by Ben Landeck and Arthur Shirley, entitled
"WOMAN AND WINE."

Mr. Melville must have been highly gratified on Monday last at the enthusiastic reception accorded the excellent interpretation of the above drama, given by his talented stock company. As Dick Seymour, Mr. Ashley Page is deserving of high praise. He acts without exaggeration, and throughout the drama his forcible presentment is greatly appreciated. Mr. Tom Taylor supplies a pathetic portrayal of the old blind artist, Hugh Seymour, and meets with every success; and Mr. Alfred Harding gives great satisfaction as Alfonse Beaudet. Mr. John Sargent contributes a fine study of character as the "blood-thirsty" custodian of the flower-market, Caliban; Mr. C. A. Chandler is a droll Professor Sawter; and Mr. Johnny Chippendale plays with considerable humour as Charles Sawter. Mr. Frank Woodville is well placed as Phineas Collins; Mr. D. J. Hennessey does all that is possible with the part of Mark Parkins; and the Duc D'Arnac is well sustained by Mr. F. L. Lawrence. Miss Georgie de Lara gives a skilful rendering of Marcel Rigadout, ably depicting the deceitful nature of the wicked woman. Miss Mattie Everett is seen to advantage as Janet Marlow; Mme. Perinet is safe in the hands of Miss Maggie Lindsay; and Miss East Robertson, an old East-end favourite, enacts the part of La Colombe with considerable power. Too much cannot be said of the excellence of Miss Marion Denvil, who, as Mary Andrews, speaks her lines with heartfelt earnestness, and never fails to make a deep impression upon all. The minor characters are ably represented, and the scenic effects are admirable.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
the Drama, in Five Acts, by Theo Kremer, entitled
"THE FATAL WEDDING."

Poplar has received The Fatal Wedding with much enthusiasm, and it is undoubtedly one of the finest productions of its kind that America has sent us. Mr. Bert Coote's company is a clever one, and all work with a will. As Howard Wilson Mr. Wilson Howard presents a faithful picture of the New York clubman, and his performance of the part leaves nothing to be desired. The Robert Curtis of Mr. Guy Hastings is just sufficiently wicked to tinge the character with the necessary villainy. Mr. Edward Morgan, as Toto, the French butler, causes much amusement, being ably seconded by Miss Blanche Stanley as Bridget. Mr. Jack Waring looks and acts well as O'Reilly, the jovial policeman; and Mr. Arthur Law Raynor is effective as the Rev. Dr. Lanceford. Mr. Walter Westwood, as the Janitor, Peter Schwartz, is quite successful; and Master Freddie Hockling as Frank, could scarcely be bettered. As the long-suffering wife, Mabel Wilson, Miss Katherine Clarke is excellent, speaking her lines with great clearness and deliberation; Miss Leah Marlborough does very well as Cora Williams, making an attractive adventuress; and Miss Madge McCalla as Jessie, "the little mother," gives a charming study of child character, and, in addition, brightens the piece with her songs. Master Walter Aubrey dances well; Miss Ivy Westaby has a powerful voice for a youngster; and Miss Winnie Crisp is a neat toe-dancer. The whole production is excellent, and is admirably staged.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by James Willard, entitled
"A WOMAN'S PLUCK."

The return visit to Stratford of Mr. James Willard's company, in A Woman's Pluck, is proving a strong attraction at the Theatre Royal this week. The piece is elaborately mounted, and a well-balanced cast has been engaged for its interpretation. Chief honours are carried off by Miss Grace Lester, who plays most consistently as the pugilistic Grace Dermont, and whose victorious bout with the gloves with the villainous Dick Darrell is highly relished by the "gods." Dick Darrell is portrayed with all the necessary suavity and cynicism by Mr. Austin Mortimer; and Mr. Harry T. Wood contributes a vigorous embodiment of Winston Dale. Mr. Fred Norburn exhibits much resource and ability in the dual rôle of Mark Scanlon and Jim Daremont; Mr. Frank Etheridge plays appropriately as Sir Noel Fordyce; and Mr. Harry Emmerson contributes a clever character-sketch of Matthew Pope. Mr. John Campling does well as Sir Roger Daredevil; and Mr. Dicky Bird is an entertaining Roger Pippin. Miss Violet Carr makes a very charming and tender Jessie Pope; Miss Elsie Maitland is excellent as Mrs. Pope; and Miss Helen Elmar plays with natural dignity as the conventional Lady Daredevil. Miss Nellie Freeland makes the most of her opportunities as Ophelia Pippin; and Miss Tina Shaw is very amusing as the precocious Bertie Daredevil. Remaining parts in a long cast are all in capable hands.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
the Drama, in Five Acts, by Geo. R. Sims, entitled
"THE LIGHTS O' LONDON."

The above drama is capitally acted here by the members of Mr. Herbert Hollister's company. Mr. Hollister gives a fine, powerful rendering of the difficult part of Seth Preene; Miss Jeannie Burgoyne's interpretation of Bess is a most attractive one; Miss Burgoyne has the advantage of a most pleasing personality, and this, combined with sympathetic acting, made her a warm favourite with the large audience assembled to witness the performance. Mr. G. Montague Lane is a manly and convincing Harold Armitage; Mr. Raymond Thomas as Clifford Armitage is clever and incisive; Mr. Herbert Lewis is a capital Jarvis; and is ably seconded by Miss Violet Temple and Miss Renee Douglas, a bright and amusing Shakspeare Jarvis. Mr. Sydney N. Hallows is an impressive Squire Armitage; Miss Constance Davey makes a charming Hetty Preene; Miss W. Eves is good as Sal; and the same may be said of Miss Mary Rose as Janet and Miss Hilda Wollard as Annie. The remaining members of the long cast are all well placed, especially Mr. George Wallace as Philosopher Jack, Mr. F. H. Waters as Percy de Vere, Mr. E. H. Dolby as Trotter, and little Rita Wallace, who gives a very natural rendering of Joe.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 27, the Musical Comedy, by Owen Hall, Composed by Leslie Stuart, with Lyrics by Boyd Jones and Paul Rubens, entitled
"FLORODORA."

The ever-welcome Florodora is given here this week with the greatest success by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 Company. This theatre is one of the most magnificent and richly-decorated on the South side of the Thames, and, under the management of Mr. Robert Arthur, is in a flourishing condition. The piece is handsomely dressed, and the exhilarating choruses are admirably rendered. Among the principal characters, that of Antony Tweedlepunch, is made agreeably prominent by Mr. Daley Cooper, whose eccentricities keep the merriment alive throughout the evening. His grotesque appearance and resourceful by-play are irresistible, and set the house constantly ringing with laughter. Mr. Jas. R. Tate is admirably suited with the part of Cyrus W. Gilfain, whose appearance on the scene is always welcome. Mr. R. Courtier Dutton as his manager, Frank Abercoed, sings with excellent expression, his cultured tenor voice being heard with especial pleasure in the tuneful "Dolores." Lady Holyrood has a captivating exponent in Miss Edith Housley, who renders her songs with admirable point, the popular "Tact" being replenished by many up-to-date topical verses. Miss Nellie Bowman acts charmingly as Angela Gilfain, and displaying her skill in dancing to the greatest advantage, and Miss Violet Gratzia uses her strong and cultivated voice with excellent effect as Dolores. Mr. Edwin Oxley makes a most impressive personage of Leandro; and Captain Arthur Donegal is gracefully presented at the hands of Mr. Harold Perry. Gilfain's clerks and their sweethearts render various choruses tunefully, the famous double sextet, "Tell me, pretty maiden," being vociferously cheered. Beauty and talent combine in the representation of the other parts and assist in the presentation of an entertainment which is delightful both to the eye and the ear.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
the Musical Comedy, in Three Acts,
Written and Composed by Paul A. Rubens, entitled
"MR. POPPLE (OF IPPLETON)."

Mr. Davey, the enterprising manager of the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, has, amongst other capital bookings for the autumn, secured this tuneful and amusing production for a week's stay in the riverside town, and there was a numerous audience in the cosy little playhouse at the first performance on Monday evening. The play, which is tastefully mounted, received a most hearty reception, all the parts having been carefully filled by Mr. Chas. Macdona, by whom the company is controlled. Chief amongst the players is Mr. Morris Harvey, who appears in the title-rôle, and achieves a distinct success in it. Miss Mamie Brickwell makes a charming La Bolero, her singing being not the least pleasing feature of an admirable impersonation. Miss Claire Pridelle, who appears as Violet Brinton, is also successful in her musical efforts. Commendable notice is also deserved by Miss Stella St. Audrie as La Bolero's maid; and by Miss Louie René as Mrs. Doring. A successful impersonation of Norman Popple is given by Mr. Herbert Dickeson; and Mr. Tom Hay acquits himself well as Platt, the manservant. There is an augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. H. R. Matthews, and a strong and carefully-trained chorus, each of which contributed materially to an undoubted success.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
the Drama, by E. Hill-Mitchelson, entitled
"THE TRAITOR."

Playgoers at Peckham this week are favoured with a visit from that exciting drama The Traitor. The piece is full of bomb-throwing, Anarchists' plots and assassinations, combined with the weird doings of secret societies. It thoroughly interests the audience, who give the production a hearty reception. Mr. Albert Ward, who is an old favourite at this house, supplies a fine rendering of the rôle of the reckless young Crown Prince Rudolph, and soon makes himself a great favourite. Mr. Horace Hunter shows to advantage as the grim and unscrupulous Chief of Police; Mr. Harry Gribben is a comical General Hertz, and in company with Mr. Brian Daly as Zoff materially contributes to the fun of the piece; Mr. Teddy Coleman is a jolly Jack Boult, and little Cen-Cen is nicely and captivatingly played by Miss Agnes Paulton. Mr. Raymond Wood is a bluff and hearty Captain Ross; Mr. C. Grose is good as Lieutenant Nicholas; Miss Kathleen Russell looks charming and plays with much feeling as Zula; Miss Florrie Harcourt is a dainty Elsie Dupree; and Miss Daisy Murch distinguishes herself as the adventuress Countess Zicka; Mr. E. Boddy is duly impressive as the Speaker of the Hidden Council.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Aug. 27,
the Comic Opera, in Three Acts,
"THE LITTLE MICHUS."

Of the many brilliant autumn bookings made by Mr. Fred Fredericks for the elaborately redecorated Borough Theatre, the first visit to Stratford of Mr. George Edwardes's company in The Little Michus will rank among the foremost. The mounting and dressing of the piece is lavish and artistic, and the capable cast includes Mr. George Graves in his original part of General des Ifs. No more diverting performance than his could be desired, his gags and witticisms provoking one continual ripple of mirth. As the little Michus, Blanche Marie and Marie Blanche, Miss Iris Hoey and Miss Thelma Raye are two sweetly pretty and graceful young ladies, their duet singing is delightful, and Miss Raye's vocal and violin contribution in the third act is vociferously encored. Mr. Leonard Mackay acts and sings in manly and pleasing style as Aristide Vert; and Mr. W. Talleur Andrews makes a gallant and soldierly Gaston Rigaud, besides winning much applause for his excellent vocalism. Mr. Jack Cannot works indefatigably and is always amusing as the General's servant, Bagnolet; Mr. George Miller as the stolid Pierre Michu contributes a decidedly clever performance; the marketing rustic is capitally played by Mr. Willie Warde, jun.; and Mr. Alec Worcester ably enacts a footman. Miss Florence Parfrey is most successful in her delineation of Mme. Michu; Miss Alice Oppitz scores heavily as Mme. Herpin; and the dances contributed by Miss V. Talleur as Mlle. St. Cyr are rapturously received. Minor parts are all carefully played, and the large and very competent chorus and augmented orchestra are skilfully directed by Mr. Harold Vicars. Mr. H. Adair Nelson is Mr. George Edwardes's courteous general-manager.

ACTORS' DAY.

In addition to those whose names have already been published, the following have promised their support on Actors' Day: Abrahams, Morris; Annerley, Frederick; Arleystan, Kitty; Arthur, F. Anderson; Ashwynne, Muriel; Ayrtoun, Margaret; Balleine, Cyril; Barrington, Rutland; Bellamy, Cissie; Beresford, Edmund; Beresford, Frank; Bond, Stephen; Bourne, Adeline; Brandrom, George A.; Broadley, Edward; Canninge, George; Canninge, Susanna; Carlton, Dorothy; Cassy, Alexander; Cavaliero, Blanche; Cavania, Margaret; Cavenagh, Lillie; Charles, Beckville; Clarens, Elise; Clark, Norman; Clay, Muriel; Clitherow, W. As it is, unfortunately, impossible to communicate directly with all who are interested in Actors' Day, the committee ask for the co-operation of all who are willing to assist in the work of organisation. Copies of the appeal, and forms for signature, will be sent to those who will be kind enough to write for them.

If one member in each company playing, and residents in different parts of the country, would do this, and endeavour to obtain promises of help from their friends, they would be rendering excellent service.

All communications should be addressed to the Actors' Day Organising Committee, 10, King-street, Covent Garden, W.C.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Aug. 30.—The Sunday Closing Act, which is creating so much stir among Paris tradesmen, will also seriously affect the theatres. The delegates of the various syndicates (musicians, music-hall singers, actors, &c.) held a meeting a few days ago, wherein they expressed their satisfaction that by the new law they will have one day's rest every week. This satisfaction is not shared by the theatrical managers and music-hall proprietors, who have convened a meeting for Sept. 24 to discuss the matter. It should be remembered that, although the new law is commonly called "the Sunday Closing Act," establishments need not close on that day. In fact, they can keep open week days and Sundays, provided they give their employees a holiday once a week, replacing them, if they like, by others. It is this last clause which rouses the ire of the theatrical managers. "Our legislators," they say, "are talking nonsense. What do they mean by 'replacing'? How can one replace an actor? It is all very well for insignificant parts; but what about the 'stars'? They will never allow anyone else to play their rôles, if only for one night, and, what is worse, they will refuse to take a holiday and lose a night's pay. And then the public, too, is to be considered. Imagine the Paris theatres having to play one evening a week without either Gémier, Sarah Bernhardt, Mounet Sully, Guitry, Mlle. Brandès, &c. The modus of 'replacing,' therefore, is too silly to be carried out; and there remains no other way but to close the Paris houses on Monday nights, when the takings generally are least. But that would be a ruinous proceeding, for it would cost us about one-eighth of our receipts. No Paris house could stand this, burdened as we are with 10 per cent. poor tax. And what about the artists, especially the small ones? A man earning, say, £12 per month, can he afford to lose fifty-two nights' pay?" Thus speak the managers; and it will be interesting to see what attitude they will take up in respect to the new law, which, in a measure, will prove a hardship to them.

"TERRE D'ÉPOUVANTE" is the title of a three-act drama by MM. André de Lorde and Eugène Morel, to be produced at Antoine's this season. The scene of the work is laid in Martinique, at the time of the recent volcanic eruption.

THE Nouveautés will be the first house to reopen, and will revive Florette et Patapon. The first novelty there will be N'avez vous rien à déclarer? an amusing farce by MM. Pierre Véber and Maurice Hennequin.

CLUNY announces for Sept. 4 the première of Mes oncles s'amusent, a three-act farcical comedy by Hughes Delorme and F. Gally, wherein Mlle. Daveny will impersonate Paille de Riz.

IN the theatrical world here the fate that befell M. Henri Lavedan's play, Le Lit, in Nuremberg, has caused no little amusement. The work, under the title Das Bett, was brought out in that city, when the performances were stopped by the Censor. But the curious part of the story is that the piece had already been played five times before the authorities intervened. The public had never once protested during these representations, nor had there been any hostile comment in the press. It, therefore, had taken the Censor five nights before he discovered something objectionable in a piece which, probably, he never understood. No wonder French actors, who have been touring in Germany, invariably complain that in the Fatherland people are slow of comprehension.

IT is more than probable that M. Miranne will succeed to the post of chef d'orchestre at the Opera Comique, left vacant by M. Luigini's death. M. Miranne has for many years conducted the orchestra at the Marseille Opera, and the fact that he tendered his resignation a few days ago tends to confirm that he has been engaged by M. Carré.

M. ANDRE MESSAGER is putting the finishing touches to Le Chandelier, wherein—almost needless to say—Miss Mary Garden will sing the chief rôle. This is the second time Alfred de Musset's famous comedy has inspired a musician. Offenbach wrote a charming operette, founded on that story, which, under the name La Chanson de Fortunio, had a tremendous success in England. Englishmen of the last generation will remember the pretty melody to the words, "Si vous croyez que je vais dire Qui j'ose aimer," a melody of which the public grow so fond that it was transformed into a march, and, strange as it may seem, even into a waltz.

AMONG the pieces received at the Opera Comique are Leone, by the late Samuel Rousseau; and Chiquito, le Joueur de Flute, a lyric play in four acts, by M. Henri Cain, set to music by M. Jean Nauguès.

HAUPTMANN'S fine, but uncanny, play, L'Assomption d'Hannele Mattern, has tempted the composer, M. Camille Erlanger. MM. Thorel and de Gramont have condensed the story into a libretto in two parts and six tableaux, and the work will be ready for production next season. Erlanger does not seem quite the right sort of composer for such a mystic play, as, although he is a sound musician, he has scarcely the necessary temperament to translate Hauptmann into music. It requires a greater man to deal with such a work as Hannele.

AT the Comédie Française, July and August are delightful months for the juvenile members of the house. Most of the stars are on tour, or enjoying their holidays, and the young element has an opportunity of appearing in rôles which, at other times, are jealously held by Messieurs and Mesdames les Sociétaires. Thus, we had the pleasure of applauding Mlle. Francine Clary as Lisette in Le Jeu de l'amour et du Lasard; M. Croué impersonated Sganarelle in Le Médecin malgré lui, and Mlle. Mitzy-Dalti appeared as Fanny in M. Berr de Turigue's Le Rez-de-chaussée. They all acquitted themselves well of their task, and the not over-critical summer public found no fault with the performance.

IN order to prove that most operatic singers are of humble origin, a gentleman has taken the trouble of diving into the past of many well-known artists, and this is what he discovered: Villaret, who created L'Africaine, started life as a mechanic; Bosquin, to whom Massenet assigned the chief rôle in his Marie-Magdeleine, had been a cobbler; Faure, the great Faure, who retired with an immense fortune, and owns one of the finest art collections in France, held the post of organ blower at Notre Dame at a salary of £8 per month; Poullier was a cooper's assistant; Renard a blacksmith; Gueymard a ploughman; and Obin a notary's clerk. M. Alvarez's musical career began as second conductor in a military band; and M. Fugère eked out a slender living in a sculptor's studio.

THE new theatre, Cardiff, is rapidly approaching completion, and will be opened at the beginning of December.

AMUSEMENTS IN LIVERPOOL.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—A return visit of Mr. George Edwardes's company with The Spring Chicken has been welcomed here. The Girdle of Mr. George Gregory forces from the audience continuous laughter, his topical songs and ready gags being hugely enjoyed. Miss Gertrude Glyn is the Rosalie, delightful and vivacious; Mr. John Brabourne, as the lively Gustave Babori, helps largely with the fun, along with Mr. Henry Adnes in the rôle of Felix. A charming Dulcie Babori comes from Miss Gertrude Gilliam; and the sprightly niece, Emmy Lou, presented by Miss Nellie Lonnen, proves highly satisfactory. An excellent Baroness Papouche is found in Miss Nancy Langtyre; the singing of Miss Irene Verona, as Mrs. Girdle, gains loud applause; Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., comes in for a good share of the honours on account of his admirable dances and songs; and Mr. William Spray is a capital Stephen Henry.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—A Royal Divorce, staged here this week, has paid forty-seven visits to Liverpool, but that it still proves a remarkable attraction is shown by the crowded audiences that have witnessed it on the present occasion. As usual, Miss Edith Cole has a cordial reception for her Josephine; Mr. Frederick Victor handles the part of Napoleon with his well-known skill; a capital Talleyrand is submitted by Mr. F. Joynson Powell; Miss Agnes Imlay ably sustains the part of Marie Louise; and as Stephanie Miss Clara Russell is charming; Mr. Graham Woods well deserves recognition for his Marquis de Beaumont; the character of General Augereau is done full justice to by Mr. Thomas Barry; Mr. Dennis Bryan makes the most of the innkeeper, Grimaud; and Miss Doris Invatis pleases as the little King of Rome.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Two Little Sailor Boys, brought by Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company, is the attraction here this week. The title-rôles are pleasingly undertaken by Miss May Day and Miss Ethel Frances Green; Mr. Jerrold Heather makes a manly Commander Noel Tregarthen; Miss Blanche Steele acts with dramatic strength as Lola Grey; Miss Alice Defoe is a sweet Mildred Grey; a well-drawn Lieut. Kedstone comes from Mr. Ellerslie Pyne; every satisfaction is afforded by Mr. W. H. Hallatt as Captain Tom Yorke; and valuable help comes from Mr. Ambrose Horton, Mr. Oscar Power, Mr. Tom E. Sinclair, Mr. J. Court Harvard, and Miss Lizzie Chambers, an exceedingly amusing Lucy Wilson.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Mr. Leonard Dalrymple has this week presented here Mr. Edward Marris's company in As Midnight Chimes. The old favourite, Witty Wattie Walton, is the Tat Spavvin, a comical railway porter, whose antics provokes great laughter; Mr. Dalrymple does credit to himself with his Dave Stannard; Miss Mary Cambell shows much taste and discretion as Mary Stannard; a villainous Luke Dezzard is portrayed by Mr. Julian Preece; as Ezra Gamble Mr. Herbert Belmore's work proves very acceptable; Mr. Percy Maitland makes the most of Nat Wilson; a capital Detective Pollard is seen in Mr. Arthur J. Sanders; Miss Madge Beresford helps greatly with the comedy as Suzette; and Miss Dorothy Lupone shows much intelligence as Little Davy.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—In Holy Russia is delighting audiences at this popular theatre this week as presented by Mr. J. Rico Cassidy's company. As the lively and rollicking Micky Nolan Mr. Cassidy is a host in himself, and at times carries the audience with him. His wife, an actress of high accomplishments, plays Renée with a dramatic intensity which it would be difficult to surpass; Mr. Arthur Stratton, as Colonel Forrest, is a capital type of an English soldier; the Sir Harry of Mr. Frank Copeland finds every acceptance; Mr. Joe Cuthbertson makes his Baron von Pleve stand out with striking prominence; and the Laurice Steragoff of Mr. Carl Rovinelli is handled with much earnestness. A satisfactory Madame Natolski comes from Miss Alice Marsden; and Miss Mavis Lee Anderson makes the most of Catska. Scenery and dresses are particularly fine.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—Charles Baldwin's company of comedians in a sketch, entitled Bank Clerks, top the bill here this week, and cause a continuous roar of laughter. The Bros. Artois are decidedly clever as well as amusing, and their items were loudly applauded. The Three Royal Temples are vocalists of no mean merit; Kioto is a daring and clever equilibrist; and the Bros. Passmore are answerable for much laughter; and other artists who add to the evening's enjoyment are Lilian Rigby, Lambert and Hands, and Lillie Lassah.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Top of the bill here this week are Will. H. Sloan and company with their comical sketch, The Plumber, which arouses great laughter; the artistic work of Miss Fanny Wentworth, society entertainer, proves most acceptable, the popular comedienne being rewarded by hearty applause; the character-sketches of Lillie Soutter find ready acceptance; Marie Wilton is cordially greeted for her popular songs; Tom Moore, as a comedian, shows much ability; some excellent acrobatic work comes from the Baltus Troupe; Mollie Doon proves a dainty comedienne; roars of laughter follow the antics of the Du Gros Trio in their comical aerial act; and Will Lytton, comedian, also appears. The Wednesday matinées here are very popular.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—This cosy little hall continues to enjoy much public patronage. The programme this week is headed by the Crown Trio of speciality vocalists, who make a first appearance here; their singing is of a high order. The Brooklands (Marie and Mabel) are as popular as ever, and afford a deal of satisfaction with their songs and dances; Gracie Bard and Frank Dacre have a taking scena, The Blind Girl; Bert Ware renders several excellent songs; the expert dancing of Andy Fagan meets with every approval; and Alice Hanlon has some neat descriptive songs.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The "Royal" stock company is doing good business here. This week The Law and the Man, a sketch with many good qualities, is presented. Mr. Percy Boucher causes much merriment with his Tom Dabney; Mr. Harry Tresham makes an admirable Will Waring; the Robert Galloway of Mr. Sydney Grant is a capital picture; Mr. Cecil Ravenswood brings his long experience to bear with advantage in the rôle of Inspector Birkett; Mr. Robert Wilton fills with every credit the part of Seth J. Hoskins; Miss Florence Palmer plays carefully as Nellie Laverock; and Miss Beryl Ravenswood, in the character of Cicely Waring, is seen to advantage.

PARK PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Foremost in this week's bill are the Villions, whose work as acrobatic cyclists is particularly clever. Whimisical Walker and company, assisted by the child actress, Frances Maddock, present a well-rendered sketch, entitled Captain Hamilton, V.C.; Bugler J. Carr distinguishes himself as an equilibrist and "musical puzzle"; the Boston Twins, with their patter, stories, and antics, keep everyone in the best of good humour; Molly Manion, a juvenile coon vocalist and dancer, does very well; Percy Hannan, a young baritone, possesses a useful voice; and J. Hegerty has many good points as an eccentric comedian. And the Bioscope shows a number of pleasing pictures.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—The good programmes put on here are well repaying the new management. A novelty is this week at the head of the bill in Creamer and Braun's racing contest between a horse and a cyclist, an item which has proved a strong attraction. A return visit of Jack Camp, the able burlesque comedian, has been welcomed; Tate and Tate, comedy acrobats, go through some excellent work, their fifty back and forward somersaults being followed by loud applause; May Zant and her juveniles provide a neat turn; F. S. Hulme has several catchy songs; and Rose Harris, burlesque artist, also appears.

OLYMPIA, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—Henri Cot, the French giant, and Prince Colibri, the Russian midget, are the big attraction here; Herbert Darnley's company of comedians cause shouts of laughter with their Moving In; an acceptable turn is provided by the Imperial Russian Troupe of singers and dancers; Macdonald's Seven Melody-Makers have a capital act of music and comedy; Mabel Bardine and company submit a neat sketch in Nell of the Halls; Kent and Keith present a smart comedy act; the singing of Brown and Robinson is particularly good; the Norman-Leonard Trio are appreciated in their racy musical sketch, The Itinerant; and Harry Hayton is an able comedian.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—At the top of the bill here this week are the Lilian Bros., who give a pleasing entertainment as society acrobats and electric silver chain experts; Pete and Juno are funny coon vocalists, patterers, and dancers; a smart comedy turn is given by Bishop and Hanlon; Charles Banks, with his trained dog, "Woof," is extremely amusing; Miss Alexander Royal sings some pleasing songs; and Percy O'Reilly, comedian, also appears.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery.—So far gratifying success has followed the establishment of a stock dramatic company here. During the week The Mysteries of London, from the pen of Lewis Gilbert, has been the attraction.

"THE DEAR OLD HOMELAND."

A Melodrama, in Five Acts,
by Mr. David Muskerry,
Produced for the first time at the Theatre Royal, Sunderland, on Monday, Aug. 27.

Roy Trevelyan .....MR. CHARLES O'CONNOR
Duncan Tremaine ....MR. HAROLD C. MACARTNEY
Father Gregory .....MR. A. TRAIL
Judd Harley .....MR. JOHN CULLEN
Rory Burke .....MR. NORMAN HALL
Hart .....MR. A. SPENCER
Gaffer Leyburn .....MR. WM. MYERS
Doreen Trevelyan .....MISS VIOLET HAMMERSLEY
Little Nell Trevelyan ....MISS COWLEY POLHILL
Molly Malone .....MISS CISSIE SUMMERS
Judith Tremaine .....MISS OLIVE FULTON

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Muskerry's new play has plenty of exciting incidents and much effective comedy relief. The story is built round the lives of a young married couple, Roy and Doreen Trevelyan, master and mistress of a fine old baronial home named Trevelyan Towers, in Cornwall. They have for neighbours Duncan Tremaine and his sister Judith. The former is an unprincipled gambler; Judith is a woman without shame. Both are jealous of the Trevelyans, Duncan having been an unsuccessful wooer of Doreen's, and Judith scheming to secure the love of Roy. They induce him to gamble and drink to such an extent that he soon squanders all his possessions. An old friend of Roy's, Father Gregory, on a visit from Australia, appears, and finally persuades the Trevelyans to accompany him on his return to the Antipodes and commence life afresh.

The second act finds Roy and Doreen out in Australia, where Roy, who has talent as a painter, sells a picture for £200. It is left on an easel in a garden, and Tremaine threatens to spoil Roy's great work by slashing it with a knife unless Doreen will kiss him. She rushes to save the picture, when Roy suddenly returns and sees her in Tremaine's arms. Doreen's position being misinterpreted by Roy, he casts his wife off.

In Act III. Roy is back again in his old ancestral home, downhearted and miserable. He intends to divorce his wife, and marry Judith for the sake of an heir to the estates. His old friend Father Gregory now pleads Doreen's cause. Roy sets off to to find his wife and make reparation. He is followed by Duncan and his sister, and in Act IV. we find Doreen's daughter sitting in an Australian farm singing of "The Dear Homeland." Roy, passing, stays to listen, and, overcome with emotion, enters and kneels by his daughter's side. On the conclusion of the song he embraces his child, telling her that he has come to take her mother and herself home again. Tremaine turns up at the farm bent on mischief, tells her of her husband's quest, and threatens that sooner than lose her he will murder her. A struggle takes place, but Roy comes to the help of his wife, to the total discomfiture of the villain.

The locale of the fifth and final act is at Trevelyan Towers. Judith decides to poison Doreen on her arrival, and places a deadly potion in a tea-cup. Duncan manages to change the position of the cups, and when Doreen's arrival is announced tea is offered to her by Judith, who takes the fatal cup herself and dies.

A capable company, under the direction of Mr. Geoffrey Fulton, works most assiduously to attain success. Mr. Charles O'Conner, who is entrusted with the part of Roy Trevelyan, plays with refined incisiveness and keen effect. The heavier rôle of Duncan Tremaine is judiciously dealt with by Mr. Harold C. Macartney in a painstaking and natural manner; a fine study of the rôle of Father Gregory is given by Mr. A. Trail; Mr. John Cullen's representation of Judd Harley is full of power and unction; Mr. Norman Hall as the rollicking Irish servant is highly amusing; Miss Violet Hammersley's portrayal of Doreen Trevelyan is pleasing and charming, in admirable taste, and leaves little to be desired; Miss Olive Fulton has a strong rôle to sustain as Judith Tremaine; her conception is admirable, and she comes through the ordeal with success, giving conclusive evidence of histrionic ability. Miss Cissie Summers, in the soubrette part of Molly Malone, adds a fair quota to the lighter comedy; Miss Cowley Polhill sustains the juvenile part of little Nell Trevelyan, singing "The Dear Homeland" very nicely; Mr. A. Spencer does all that is necessary as Hart; and Mr. Wm. Myers is successful as Gaffer Leyburn.

THE Deutsches Theatre, Berlin, announces some interesting novelties and revivals for the coming season. Among them are Leo Greiner's Herzöge von Genua, Katherina von Armagnac, by Vollmoeller, and Ein Halber Held (half a hero), by Dr. Herbert Eulenburg. Hugo von Hofmannsthal is also busy finishing a new drama which will be produced at this theatre some time in November. Neither the date nor the title is as yet decided upon.

MR. ALLAN WILKIE paid his third visit in twelve months to Workington last week with his well-known répertoire company, when he had the satisfaction of beating all his previous records. In fact, despite the hot weather, he is doing excellent business everywhere, and is booking return dates at each theatre he visits. He has now made another important addition to his cast in Miss Carrie Baillie, who will commence active work in a few weeks time.

AMUSEMENTS IN BIRMINGHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The attraction this week is provided by Mr. George Stephenson's company in Kitty Grey. Miss Hilda Guiver, a favourite representeative of the rôle here, sings the songs and acts the part of the matchless Kitty in irreproachable form; and Miss Marie West plays daintily as Lady Binfield. Mr. Lauri Lisle is appreciated for his quaint style as the King of Illyria; Mr. J. Knox-Orde presents a fine-looking and expressive Sir John Binfield; Mr. Leslie Steward embellishes the rôle of Lord Plantagenet with many rare comicalities; Miss Nelly Lauraine gives a smart sketch of the dresser, Mrs. Bright; and Miss Gertrude Page realises her chances cleverly as Sadie de Poulson.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Sergeant Brue is stationed here with Messrs. E. Lockwood and R. Crossman's company. Mr. Arthur Reynolds essays the title-rôle, and laughter at the indefatigable sergeant's efforts to secure position and fortune is general throughout the performance. Mr. Charles McLagan contributes largely to the fun as the grimy and oleaginous Scrubbs; Mr. Cecil Burt adds his quota to the absurdity of the situations as Mr. Crank, the magistrate; Mr. Percy Rogers brings the rôle of Michael Brue into distinguished prominence; Miss Mary Hay is blithe and musical and always successful as Aurora Brue; Miss Hebe Bliss makes the most of her opportunities for distinction as Lady Bickenhall; and Miss Mabel Keith as Mabel, Miss Marion Hargrave as Daisy, Mr. Ernest Mozar as Gerald Treherne, Mr. Cecil Hood as Inspector Gorringe, and Mr. Harry Soutar as Matthew Habisham shine in this well-equipped production.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chris Felton.—A Modern Adventuress is starred here with Mr. Lingford Carson's répertoire company. Mr. Draycott scores in his powerful and engrossing portrayal of the sculptor, Donelli, which the audience highly appraise; Mr. Morley Carroll represents the banker, William Delby, in an even, polished style; Mr. Sydney C. Cranston, as the son and the hero of the piece, Harry Delby, furnishes the audience with many excellent reasons for the applause which is showered on him without stint; Mr. Ernest J. Fare stirs the most phlegmatic with his clever embodiment of the nephew, Wallace Danton; and Mr. Arthur Byron presents an engaging type of Yorkshireman, John Crompton to wit. Miss Muriel Thompson scores in a powerful and vivid manner as the guilty woman Violet Meredith; Miss Marie Robson presents a pathetic portrayal of Vivette Delby; and Miss Daisy Norman wins admiration for her vivacity as Sally Hodges. The Ticket-of-Leave Man was announced on Friday for the benefit of Mr. Charles Draycott, who was billed as Bob Brierley.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Sin of Her Childhood, played by Mr. J. A. Campbell's company, is winning excellent patronage. Miss Florence Creagh, as the penitent Mary Haysel, provides a rich display of emotional acting; while in the prologue little Ivy Rochfort does justice to the rôle, acting later, and with pleasing intelligence, as Eric Dugdale. Miss Jennie Douglas Hicks acts as the dipsomaniac, Maria Haysel, with distinction and discretion; Mr. Austin Milroy portrays the callous nature of Stephen Haysel with much success; Mr. E. E. Clive acts as the noble-hearted Rev. Alan Grey in manly and impressive style; and Mr. Waller Spinner, who also acts as stage-manager, and Mr. Fredk. Loyd, who manages the front of the house for Mr. Campbell, are successful as Farmer Haysel and Captain Thornton respectively. Mr. Hugh Brady supplies the comic element as O'Reilly, supported by Miss Nellie Hook as Eliza Muggins; and little Dot Moss in the rôle of the "staunch little friend" captivates the audience.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Miss Winifred Chalmers' company are attracting full houses nightly in A Woman's Revenge. Miss Chalmers sustains the part of Mary Lonsdale with much grace, and to the manifest satisfaction of the audience; Mr. Henry L. Osmond as Frank Drummond secures the heartiest of receptions; Miss Kate Blair plays the adventuress, Mabel Wentworth, in fine style; little Mabel Ronald gains favour as the child Mary; Mr. Alexander Haviland proves his excellent ability as Robert Overstone; and Mr. W. P. Warburton as John Overstone, Mr. Harry Cooke as Dick Chilton, Mr. Dunlop Stewart as Jeptha Grimwade secure well-deserved approbation.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—No Wedding Bells For Her proves an irresistible attraction here. It is performed by Mr. Frank Bateman's company, Mr. Bateman himself being most effective in his portraiture of the detective, Dick Denver. Miss Lizzie Montague in the central rôle, Lola Delaspierre, holds the audience completely in thrall; and Miss Louie Adair gives a winsome embodiment of Doris Fane. Miss Alice Mattin, Mr. Stuart Lomath, Mr. Louis Garton, Mr. Albert Guyon, Mr. Edward E. Lewis, Mr. Frank Davies, and Mr. Will Skelton all impress the audience.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—An excellent programme is submitted this week, the prominent item being Fred Ginnett and company in the dramatic episode Dick Turpin, which is well played and mounted. The Poluski Bros. and Harry Freeman keep the audience laughing, and are well encored; a return visit is paid by Ted and May Hopkins, whose Welsh humour is novel and entertaining; Lilian Lea is heard to advantage in her ballads; May Mars and Lottie Govell are charming comediennes; Jacques Inandi is a marvellous calculator; and Pit and Cute have a clever acrobatic display.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—The Bloomsbury Burglars, in which Lew Lake appears as Nobbler, is entertaining large houses this week; the original Karnos also shine in their sketch The Travellers' Rest. The San Remo Girls are well applauded, as also are Curtis and Vanity for their dancing speciality. The Brothers Ethairien are eccentric comedians; Keith and Merson have a sketch, The Meet; and De Vere and Venwick, with their song pictures; Florence Schuberth, burlesque artist; George Rapley, and the Gaiety pictures complete the programme.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The big attraction here is a new operetta, The Romany King, produced by Messrs. Lempriere Pringle and J. C. Piddock and company. Mr. Pringle sings and acts the part of Lanetta, the Gipsy King, with success; Mr. Piddock gives a powerful performance of Count Castillian; Mr. M. Lloyd appears as Reuben; and Miss Beatrice Edwards is responsible for some good acting in the part of Cynthia. Dandy George and his dog Rosie are entertaining; Prince Kuroki is a smart Japanese magician; and other excellent turns are Lily Lena, Mountford and Walsh, Tony Iveson, B. Troba, Frank Cass, The Lombartos, Just and Wise, Evelyn Taylor, and Martine and Son.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Captain Cupid, an exceedingly smart comedy sketch, presented by G. C. Doughty and company, is highly appreciated; as also are Lady Mansel's Juveniles, who are on a return visit. Starr and Leslie are an amusing pair; Ruby and Laws have a smart quick-change sketch; Ned Grayton is an eccentric musician; Tom Parker is encored for his quaint songs and dances; and O. K. Gato, a comedy juggler, and Jose Collins, whose songs are loudly applauded, add to the success of the bill.

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

"WENN DIE BOMBE PLATZT,"
Musical Farce, in Three Acts, by MM. Kren and Lippschitz, produced at the Thalia, Aug. 25, 1906.

Von Westphal .....HERR SONDERMANN
Frau von Westphal .....FRAU JUNKER-SCHATZ
Elly .....FRAULEIN BALLOT
Fritz Francke .....HERR THIELSCHER
Meiske .....HERR JUNKERMANN
Belfast .....HERR RIECK
Kitty .....FRAULEIN WEISE
Maud .....FRAULEIN HEIM
John .....HERR GRAHMUNG
James .....HERR DONATH
Minna .....FRAULEIN WARMOVINS
Kletike .....HERR HERMANN
Schutzmann .....HERR HAASE

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, AUGUST 30.—This piece has added another to Herr Thielscher's long list of triumphs, and it is not too much to say that without this clever comedian's efforts such a success would hardly have been possible. As it is, a long run is a safe prediction; the house was crowded with enthusiastic admirers of Herr Thielscher, and encores were demanded and accorded, while a quantity of flowers were handed up for him and his supporters. "When the bomb bursts" may be translated by "when the cat is out of the bag"; the significance is the same. Fritz Francke has married the daughter of Forstrat von Westphal, and has successfully managed to hide his profession from both Elly, his wife, and her aristocratic family. He travels about with her, finally settling down in Berlin, but one circumstance remains the same everywhere. Fritz is absent from his home every evening from ten to twelve. Naturally enough such a fact is calculated to breed suspicion and connubial dissonances, and the Benedict is forced into all sorts of holes and corners in the attempt to keep his secret. His mother-in-law, who has been reading detective stories, comes to the conclusion that Fritz is a burglar, one of the swell mob, or even a murderer, and she determines to track him down. How she does this must be seen to be appreciated; it would lose in the telling. Suffice to say that after having tried every available subterfuge, Fritz has no longer any lie ready, and the bomb bursts. He is a clown by profession—a clown of fame and attraction, belonging to Jonathan Belfast's Grand Troupe, and his affection for the life was too great to renounce it on his marriage. Fritz, moreover, is regarded in the troupe as the affianced husband of pretty little Kitty, a soubrette; his heart is as elastic as his muscles, and it seems he had flirted with Kitty as far as he could go. But all comes right in the end, and everyone is appeased. The music is particularly bright and melodious; it is the work of Herr Paul Lincke—one versed in such matters—and the couplets, which are topical and amusing, have been supplied by another experienced hand, Alfred Schoenfeld. That Herr Thielscher carries the piece on his shoulders has been already mentioned, but to Fräulein Weise (who sang and acted charmingly), Frau Junker-Schatz, Fräulein Ballot, Herren Junkermann, and Rieck must be accorded a large measure of commendation.

THE Royal Schauspielhaus has reopened, a number of classical dramas having already been given. Lessing's fine play, Nathan der Weise, Shakespeare's Richard the Third, and Kleist's Prinz Friedrich von Homburg are in the bill for this week, as well as the comedies, Die Journalisten and Wie die Alten Sungen. No novelties of importance are announced at either of our Royal theatres as yet. Herr von Woikowski, the composer of an operatic work, Der lange Kerl—already described in your columns—has just composed a two-act opera, entitled Das Nothemd, which will be given at the Royal Opera in the course of the season.

AT the Deutsch-American Theatre a new spectacular piece by the actor-manager, Herr Adolf Philipp, was produced last week with favourable results. The title is Im Wilden Westen, and the scene changes from the Prairies to Berlin and back again with fine impartiality. Herr Philipp plays with his customary humour the part of a cowboy, and is adequately supported. It is a potpourri of fun with touches of pathos sandwiched in, and the audience applauded everything in turn.

THE Kleines has gone back to its old repertory, including Gorki's Kinder der Sonne, Hille Bobbe, and Oscar Wilde's Ein Idealer Gatte. Bernard Shaw's satirical comedy, You Never Can Tell, is to be produced at this theatre before many weeks are past. Its German title is Der Verlorne Vater (the lost father).

NEWS comes from Vienna of an enthusiastic reception accorded at the Lustspiel Theatre to a new farce by MM. Stobitzer and Neal. It is in three acts, and bears the title of Das Feigenblatt. The authors were called after each act and loudly applauded.

THE Lessing Theatre—which reopened last week—is not announcing any new plays for the present, but contenting itself with old favourites, such as Hauptmann's Pippa Tanzt, Der Biberpelz, Rosenmontag, and Ibsen's Volksfeind. The Ibsen cycle will commence next month. Traumulus was revived on Sunday evening with a young Viennese actor, Karl Waldschütz, in the important rôle of the senior boy, Kurt von Nedlitz. He is an artist of much talent, and his sympathetic impersonation of the unfortunate hero gained him genuine applause. The other rôles were faultlessly rendered by Fräuleins Schiff and Eberty, and Herren Bassermann, Patry, Grunwald, and Marr.

HERR MAX REINHARDT'S new undertaking, the Intimes Theatre, is to open at the beginning of October. As its name implies, the theatre is small and bijou; it contains a Court box, and its prices will be high for Berlin. The plays to be given are in keeping with the character of the theatre, in a word, intime. Herr Reinhardt continues, of course, his management of the Deutsches at the same time.

THE Luisen reopened on Saturday under new management, with Ganghofer's romantic play, Die Hochzeit von Valeni. It is a piece that requires good acting to make it go, and the company at this enterprising little volk's theatre is a capital one all round. Every justice was done to the piece, and its reception was extremely cordial. The house was well filled with a "stamm" audience (habitués), who singled out old favourites such as Fräulein Albano, Herr Bach, and Herr Ruff for special applause, while the new manager, Herr Fischer, came in for his share also.

NOTWITHSTANDING all rumours to the contrary, Signora Duse is actively engaged in preparations for the coming season. A new company has been got together by her, in which a youthful actress, Clelia Zucchina by name, will prove a great acquisition, having quite unusual talent. The Duse company will go on tour through Italy, after that through Germany, but the Berlin theatre which will be honoured by the famous actress has yet to be made known. Signora Duse's repertory is to consist of only six plays, among them being a new one, entitled The Pledged Word, which was specially written for her by MM. Marco Praga and Grésac.

BJORNSON has just completed a new drama—a sequel to Neber Unsere Kraft, which had so long a run here a few seasons back. The title is Knut-Herre, and the plot is said to be satirical and almost malicious in its attack upon orthodoxy.

EUGEN GURA, King of Song, died at his villa on the Starnberg Lake, Bavaria, on Sunday last, after a long and painful illness. He was only sixty-three, but had not sung in public for some time. Herr Gura was engaged at the Court Opera at Munich, but it was as a lieder singer that he was best known. As an exponent of Carl Loewe's ballads he has never had an equal.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER has decided that in future he will not issue any invitations to the Press for the first week of his productions. We do not therefore give any notice of the production of The Morals of Marcus at the Garrick on Thursday; but some idea of the piece may be gathered from the analysis of the novel which we print in another column.

MR. HALL CAINE, who is spending his days at Drury-lane, has been the guest of Mr. Arthur Collins at his house at Shepperton since the rehearsals of The Bondman began. Many managers and authors would be extremely glad to say goodbye to one another after a long day of hard work upon a production, but the author of The Bondman is an exceptional man, just as the producer at the Lane is an exceptional manager, and the result is mutual pleasure and satisfaction.

"THE WINTER'S TALE," upon which the curtain will rise at His Majesty's Theatre this evening, will make Mr. Tree's twelfth Shakespearean production. At the Haymarket Theatre three Shakespeare plays—The Merry Wives of Windsor, Hamlet, and Henry IV., Part 1—were produced under his management; and at His Majesty's, in addition to revivals of the Haymarket productions, Mr. Tree has already produced Katherine and Petruchio, Garrick's version of The Taming of the Shrew, Julius Cæsar, King John, A Midsummer Night's Dream, Twelfth Night, The Tempest, and Much Ado About Nothing.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY, owing to unforeseen circumstances, has been obliged to alter the arrangement made to produce The Corsican Brothers at Edinburgh. Mr. Harvey's production of the fine old play will first be seen at the Birmingham Theatre Royal on or about Oct. 10.

MR. E. S. WILLARD will sail from Liverpool on Sept. 14 in the Allan Line s.s. Virginian, accompanied by the English members of his company. His season will open in Montreal, Canada, on Oct. 1, with the production of Colonel Newcome, the cast of which will include Mr. William Sauter (Clive Newcome), Mr. Ivan Simpson (Sir Barnes Newcome), Mr. A. S. Homewood (Fred Bayham), Mr. Charles Coombes (Arthur Pendennis), Mr. J. W. Lawrence (James Binney), Mr. Walter Edmunds (Lord Farintosh), Mr. H. Cane (Sir Thomas de Boots), Miss Marie Linden (Mme. de Florac), Miss Joan Blair (Mrs. Mackenzie), and Miss Ruth Barry. Mr. Willard will not confine his work to Colonel Newcome, but will also present David Garrick and The Man Who Was, A Pair of Spectacles, The Professor's Love Story, Tom Pinch, and The Middleman. His tour will take in the chief cities of Canada and the United States, including Toronto, Boston, Providence, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, St. Louis, Chicago, and Detroit, and will extend to the second week in April, 1907.

MRS. LANGTRY appeared at the Britannia Pier Pavilion, Great Yarmouth, on Wednesday evening, in the dramatic sketch Between the Night and the Light, playing with much sympathy and power. A large crowd cheered her, both on her way from the Queen's Hotel, where she was staying, to the pier, and again greeted her after her performance, making a lane through which she had to walk. She afterwards came on to the balcony at the hotel and bowed her acknowledgments.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE has been appointed by the Board of Charity a trustee of the Royal Dramatic College, regulated by a scheme of the Charity Commissioners of March 29, 1878.

MR. FRANK STANMORE, who will be remembered for his capital Artful Dodger in Oliver Twist at His Majesty's, is a Londoner who was educated at Rugby, and walked the hospitals some time before he walked the boards, having been a medical student at Charing Cross, with a leaning towards low comedy, no enthusiasm for the medical profession, and a great deal of superfluous energy. In those days he managed and edited a comic weekly, called "Bob Sawyer's Journal," that ran successfully for a couple of years. This clever actor started his stage career with ten shillings in his pocket, but his very first engagement carried with it a salary of £1 5s. in the contract, but it never "materialised." He was stranded in Lancashire, and still recollects how uncomfortable it is to sleep in a bathing-machine!

ONE of Mr. Stanmore's most amusing experiences was a grand performance that he gave in the Tottenham Court-road, for the edification of theatrical managers and agents. He had only just left Charing Cross Hospital, and his patrons were for the most part medical students. They wept loudly at the pathetic touches in his original plays, and all struck matches, at a given signal, whenever the lights were lowered. Mr. Frank Stanmore generally goes into pantomime, and is the author of a goodly number of "catchy" songs.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD'S company in The Four Just Men, adapted by George Warren from Edgar Wallace's story, will commence its tour at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Oct. 8. Mr. Howard has secured the piece by arrangement with Mr. H. A. Saintsbury. Mr. Saintsbury is responsible for the production, and is playing Geo. Manfred, the leader of the four.

WHEN Mr. George Warren sat down to dramatise The Four Just Men he found himself in a difficulty. Prizes had been offered for a solution of a mystery in the book, and the third act of the play could not be written because nobody knew but the author exactly how the "villain" was killed. But Mr. Wallace had gone to Madrid to see the Royal wedding. When wired to, it was found that he had left for Portugal. Thence he was traced to Norway; and it was only last week that he was run to earth at Cowes, and Mr. Warren was enabled to finish his version.

"MRS. TEMPLE'S TELEGRAM," owing to unavoidable circumstances, will not be delivered at the Waldorf until Monday, Sept. 10. The principal characters in Messrs. Frank Wyatt and William Morris's play will be sustained by Messrs. Allan Aynesworth, William Morris, William Cheesman, Rudge Harding, and Misses Sybil Carlisle, Constance Hyem, Frances Wetherall, and Dido Drake. The farce will be preceded by Liz, a play in one act, by Richard Price and Frederick Fenn, the authors of Op-o-me-Thumb, the cast of which will comprise Misses Janet Adair, Haidee Wright, Dido Drake, May Allestree, and Frances Wetherall, Mr. Rudge Harding, and Master Herbert Holman.

MISS EDITH WYNNE-MATTHISON, who is playing Brangwaine in Tristram and Iseult at the Adelphi, recited as a child, but with no idea then of becoming an actress. She went on the stage about ten years ago, playing good parts from the very beginning of her singularly fortunate career. Mr. Ben Greet saw her act, and, recognising her great possibilities, promptly offered her an engagement in his company. This led, after many parts, to her memorable appearance in Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's Lackey's Carnival, at the Duke of York's Theatre. Miss Wynne-Matthison achieved, more recently, a veritable triumph as Everyman, and won the hearts of American audiences, after her conquest of London, in the old morality play. She is the wife of Mr. C. Rann Kennedy, who comes of the same family of Cambridge scholars as Canon Kennedy and Mr. Justice Kennedy.

MISS ELLEN TERRY is assured of a resounding welcome this evening when she appears as Hermione in the revival at His Majesty's of The Winter's Tale, upon the preparation of which Mr. Tree has expended so much care and skill. Mr. Tree will witness the production, and leave tomorrow for Blackpool, where he will open his tour on the following evening.

MISS LOUIE FREEAR will not be seen in The Prince Chap at the Criterion. Some new scenes written into the part did not meet with Miss Freear's approval, and she consequently tendered her resignation, which was accepted by Mr. A. H. Canby with an expression of regret.

"THE ROYAL FLOWER," an adaptation by "Pem" of Alphonse Daudet's one-act piece, L'Œillet Blanc, was produced at the Coronet Theatre on Wednesday evening. The "period" is that of the French Revolution. A young emigré Marquis, to win favour with an emigrée Countess, risks capture by the Republican authorities by returning to France to fetch a white lily—in the original a carnation—from the garden of his former château. This is now inhabited by a Republican officer and his daughter; and the lily is a gift from the latter's sweetheart. However, touched by the graceful gallantry of the Marquis, she gives him the flower. They are surprised by her father, who yields to his daughter's supplications, and lets the Marquis escape, a too-zealous servant sending after him a bullet, which fortunately misses its mark. Miss Ninon Dudley as the fair Republicaine, Mrs. Russ-Whytal as the Marquis, and Mr. Claude King as the father of all give creditable and artistic performances.

IN connection with this production it is interesting to recal that a version of the same one-act French play by the late Clement Scott was produced at the Kilburn Town Hall in the February of 1886.

MASTER HAROLD TONGE, the youthful actor who is to play Mamillius in the revival of The Winter's Tale at His Majesty's this evening, was duly licensed by the magistrate at Marlborough-street on Saturday. The solicitor who made the application for the permit drew attention to the fact that the part of Mamillius was taken by Miss Ellen Terry fifty years ago, and it was a coincidence, he said, that she would now reappear in the same piece, this time taking the part of Hermione.

WE regret to hear that Miss Nannie Harding, late prima donna with the D'Oyly Carte companies, and well known in the provinces and Australia, was knocked down by a cyclist last week and lies rather badly hurt in the East Dulwich Infirmary.

MR. NORMAN A. OVERTON will produce a new play shortly at one of Mr. James's London theatres. Next year he will tour a well-known successful American play, and is booked at all the best drama houses in Great Britain.

VISITORS to the Crystal Palace, and particularly those living in the immediate neighbourhood of this popular place of entertainment, are fortunate in having so able and energetic a manager at the theatre as Mr. Bannister Howard. Playgoers may be pretty certain that the pieces at the Palace theatre during the season will be the very best that can be obtained, for Mr. Howard knows well that if a good entertainment is provided the people will give it their support. He has proved this by the success of the Cafe Chantant in the North Tower Gardens, and judging by the arrangements already made, the theatre should this year draw enormous audiences. It is well to remind the public that Mr. Howard will open his season on Sept. 17 with the Ben Greet Company in A Midsummer Night's Dream. Besides flying matinées, arrangements have been made for a number of first-class companies to appear during the autumn, including Are You a Mason? The Silver King, The Private Secretary, The Belle of New York, Four Just Men, Norman V. Norman's company, Charley's Aunt, Prince of Pilsen, Mr. Hopkinson, Florodora, and Sergeant Brue. At Christmas the pantomime of Aladdin will be produced.

THE King's Theatre, Hoxton, reopened on Monday evening under the management of the well-known actor, Mr. F. Dudman Bromwich. During the closure the house has been entirely renovated and redecorated, and now presents a bright and pleasing interior. New scenery has been painted, a smart orchestra, under the direction of Mr. F. W. Hatley, engaged, and many improvements effected for the comfort of the patrons. The theatre will be worked on the two-houses-a-night plan, a weekly change of well-known and popular dramas being given by a stock company, including many local favourites. The opening piece was Death or Glory Boys, which was received with great enthusiasm. Mr. Harry Bristow is the stage-manager, and the front of the house is in the hands of Mr. Herbert Cole.

MASKELYNE AND DEVANT'S excellent entertainment at the St. George's Hall is still drawing full houses. M. Gintaro's marvellous juggling arouses abundant enthusiasm; and the Burmese gong's magic sound still performs mysterious changes with consummate ease. Dr. Hardly's Experiment is a new illusion, in which the spectacle of a man taking his own head in his hands is presented. The phenomenon creates great consternation in the mind of a certain butler and servant, who imagine they are responsible for the catastrophe; and a similar effect is exercised in the audience, who experience many a thrill at the sight. C. Tamamoto performs his feats on a perpendicular rope with marvellous ease and grace, and wins loud applause. Mr. J. N. Maskelyne presents The New Page, in which a man, being enclosed, bound and manacled, in a box, manages to turn himself completely upside down. The mystery is nothing short of inexplicable, and baffles all efforts to penetrate. "Mental Magnetism," illustrated by Mr. David Devant, assisted by his sister Dora, is a performance that never fails to hold the audience enthralled, and is extremely popular. Mr. Barclay Gammon keeps the audience in hearty laughter with his humorous musical interlude; and The Mascot Moth concludes an entertainment which obtains the great success it righly deserves. On Monday a new magical play called Daylight Ghosts will be produced.

THE management of the Broadway Theatre have arranged a double bill for next week. The famous native choir of Jamaica is one attraction, and the other is the performance of Our Boys, by Mr. Charles Otley and company.

ANOTHER contributor to the ranks of the English aristocracy from those of the theatrical profession is shortly to be effected by the marriage early next month of Miss Camille Clifford with the Hon. Henry Lyndhurst Bruce, the eldest son of Lord Aberdare. Miss Clifford's chief claim rests upon her perfect embodiment of the idolised "Gibson Girl," and her photograph in that character is familiar to all. She moved London playgoers to enthusiasm two years ago by her beauty and the talent revealed in her performance in The Prince of Pilsen, in which she had previously captivated American audiences. Miss Clifford, whose childhood was spent variously in Antwerp, Christiania, and Nova Scotia, is not an American, her father being of Danish and Irish extraction, and her mother a Norwegian.

A TELEGRAM from New York, referring to the success of The Hypocrites, which was presented on Thursday evening at the Hudson Theatre in that city, says: "Great triumph. Unbounded enthusiasm. Twenty-two calls."

MISS ELLALINE TERRISS, who is appearing with Mr. Seymour Hicks at Dublin this week, presented the prizes at the East of Ireland Lawn Tennis Championship at Kingstown, on the 21st ult. A most enjoyable week of sport was also indulged in by the members of the company. On the Wednesday a cricket match was played against the Richmond Lunatic Asylum, the theatricals, after a most exciting finish, securing a victory by the narrow margin of one run. On the next day a golf match was played against Mr. Lewis Waller's company, in which each party won one match; while the Friday afternoon was set apart for a lawn tennis match.

MR. H. BEERBOHM TREE succeeds the late Mr. J. L. Toole as president of the Dickens Fellowship Dramatic Club. At the next performance of the club, which is fixed for Nov. 3, at the Cripplegate Theatre, a new Dickens play, called The House of Dombey, will be produced.

"ALADDIN" is to be produced at the Gaiety on Sept. 15, when an idealised representation of the Great Metropolis will be afforded. During the absence of Miss Gertie Millar, the title-rôle will be played by Miss Lily Elsie, whose dainty personality will adequately fit the character of the boyish hero. Miss Connie Ediss as the modern Slave of the Lamp will be suited with an effective part, and popular Gaiety favourites will combine to render a delightful account of Mr. George Edwardes' newest departure.

MR. A. CLIFTON ALDERSON, who is entering upon a long tour of Held Apart; or, the Painted Woman, a drama by Frank Adair, has mounted the piece superbly, every detail of the production being attended to with elaborate care. The scenes include those of a gambling saloon at an Australian mining encampment, the passenger deck of a steamship, and several picturesque Highland sets, all of which are represented with remarkable realism. The piece is packed with sensational incidents, and the popular parts of the Shakespeare Theatre, where it was produced this week, have overflowed with excitement, ringing cheers being bestowed on the various striking situations. Mr. Alderson plays the part of a bombastic and heartless miner, and gives a performance which is replete with subtle touches of humour and dramatic skill.

M. AUGUSTE VAN BIENE, during his recent visit to Bradford, received a request for a private interview from an unknown visitor. As he has so many similar requests, he referred the caller to his stage-manager, Mr. Selwyn, who, to his astonishment, found awaiting him a brawny and grimy son of toil, who stated that, having been out of work for eighteen weeks, he thought he would go on the stage, and applied to M. Van Biene for an engagement in The Broken Melody. M. Van Biene had regretfully to decline the profferred services.

A REPORT dealing with the fact that the performances at the Royal Artillery Theatre, Woolwich, were attended by the general public has been issued by the Theatres Committee of the London County Council. It will be remembered that the question was raised a few months ago by the Theatrical Managers' Association, who pointed out that the Artillery Theatre, while being open to the public, was exempt from the Council's regulations. It would seem to be quite clear, the report states, that the Council had no jurisdiction in the matter, and no responsibility for the safety of the public attending the theatre. In the circumstances, the committee do not think the Council should take any further action in the matter. They point out, however, that, although a theatre might be well planned, it was impossible except by frequent inspection while a building was open to the public to ensure that the arrangements for preventing or minimising the danger from fire or panic were properly maintained. As far as they were aware, the Royal Artillery Theatre was the only theatre in London open to the public which was not subject to such inspection.

IN the Bankruptcy Court on Tuesday, before Registrar Linklater, the examination was concluded of Mr. E. G. Saunders, of Garrick-street, Covent Garden. The accounts showed an unsecured indebtedness of £3,626, against assets £25,454, thus leaving an estimated surplus of £20,545. In examination by the Assistant Official Receiver the debtor said he was admitted as a solicitor in 1886, but ceased to practise in 1889, and had since acted as a theatrical manager and proprietor.

PROBATE of the will of Señor Manuel Garcia, who died recently at the great age of 101, was granted on Thursday. The famous singing master left £4,362, and in the will appears the following sentence: "I declare my domicile to be English, and that I intend to live in that country for the remainder of my life."

MR. H. G. DUDLEY BENNETT has arranged for the appearance of Messrs. C. F. Renad's company, in The Swiss Express, for the re-opening of the Alexandra Theatre on Monday. The following week Mr. George Dance's Girl from Kay's company will be the attraction.

A SAD termination to the career of a talented performer was made at Dublin on Wednesday, when Mr. Harry Eversleigh, a member of Mr. Seymour Hicks's Catch of the Season company, was knocked down by a motor-car and fatally injured. Shortly before five o'clock he was crossing a road on his way to the Clontarf Baths, where he was in the habit of bathing during his visit to Dublin, when the car, the approach of which had been hidden by a tramcar, struck him, and dashed him violently to the ground. The Corporation Ambulance was summoned, and Mr. Eversleigh was conveyed to Mercer's Hospital, where it was found that life was extinct. Mr. Eversleigh was a vocalist of high ability, possessing a rich baritone voice, and was much esteemed by the members of the company, to whom the news of his tragic death caused a painful shock.

WE record with deep regret the death of Mr. Arthur Wellesley, which occurred at Brasted, Kent, on Sunday, after a long illness. The deceased was a talented actor, and appeared principally at the Gaiety. He gave up the theatrical profession upon coming into a legacy, and was afterwards associated with concert management, at which he was very successful. His services in connection with charity matinées, of which he organised many, were always readily given.

MR. VICTOR WIDDICOMBE will play the part of the butler, Wigson, in Mrs. Temple's Telegram, to be produced at the Waldorf Theatre on Sept. 10.

MR. O. E. LENNON is a great little comedian, for he can hardly boast of an inch over five feet. He has been on the stage for fifteen years, and is now acting the Chinese cook, Sin Chong, in Mr. Frank Curzon's White Chrysanthemum company on tour. The following story shows that this promising actor started his professional career without any previous knowledge of plays or parts, having only his own talent and energy to thank for being always in work. At the end of his first pantomime engagement, he was told that a certain provincial manager required an experienced actor to "play Spider"—of course, meaning the well-known part of the villain in The Silver King. Mr. Lennon promptly "wrote in." He said that he had just made a hit as a dog in pantomime, and he felt confident, although he had never seen it done, that he would be more than equal to acting a spider in melodrama.

MR. ARTHUR COLLINS, casting superstition with regard to the fateful No. 13 to the winds, has fixed upon Thursday, Sept. 13, for the first performance of The Bondman at Drury Lane. In this respect he is supported by the eminent author's experience of good fortune attached to that number, Mr. Hall Caine having published four of his most successful works each on the 13th of the month, and one of them, which turned out to be his greatest financial success, had the baleful distinction of being brought out on a Friday. The scene of The Bondman alternates in the book between Iceland and the Isle of Man; but partly for the reason that the action of The Prodigal Son was laid in Iceland, one half of the locality of the new play will be changed to Sicily.

THE sheep that caused a mild sensation in last autumn's production will this year be rivalled by some prize Alderney cows, which will be milked on the stage. The milkmaid will be Miss Marjorie Day, a seventeen-year-old maiden, who was brought up in New Zealand. Miss Day milked a cow on a colonial farm when she was no more than eight years old, but she has as yet never performed the operation in public, and the hope she expresses that the animal will be thoroughly domesticated is quite natural under the circumstances.

THE usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday. There were present: Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy-chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Mesdames Carlotta Addison, Beatrice Lamb, and Kate Phillips; Messrs. Cecil Barth, F. Cremlin, M. R. Morand, A. B. Tapping, Spencer Trevor, Fredk. Volpe, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). The hon. solicitors reported that they had advised several members on points submitted. Reference was made to a case which had been referred to arbitration, and it was agreed that if possible arrangements should be made to hold the necessary meeting some time the week after next.

A QUESTION concerning the alleged indebtedness of a member of the Association to certain members of a company lately touring was considered, and ultimately the correspondence was handed to the hon. solicitors, and they were requested to see into the dispute. Matters in difference between three members of the Association were referred to arbitration, and the three arbitrators being appointed, fixed the day for holding their meeting. Miss Ethel Wilson and George F. Reynolds were nominated for election, and Horace Lingard was nominated for reinstatement.

THE Commissioners Committee held a meeting at the offices of the Actors' Association on Monday last, when the chair was occupied by Mr. Cecil Barth, supported by Miss Blanche Stanley, Miss Rose Matthews, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). The secretary read the monthly report of five of the commissioners, and received instructions to carry out certain suggestions made therein and deal with matters arising therefrom. Miss Rose Mathews raised a question as to the qualification of candidates; but hearing that the "Qualification and Registration" scheme was before the Council, desired that her question should remain in abeyance. Miss Georgina Hamilton's suggestion that members of the Council should attend provincial meetings to support the chair was referred to the Council for their consideration.

THE Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday last, when there were present Mr. M. R. Morand (in the chair), Miss Kate Phillips, Mr. A. E. Drinkwater, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). Various questions arising out of the work of the Commissioners were under consideration, and ultimately the secretary received instructions to deal with the matters in connection therewith. The secretary, in answer to queries, supplied the committee with details of the approximate expenditure for the remainder of the current year.

MR. A. WORTLEY DREWITT, the Harry Vereker of Geo. Dance's Cingalee company, is playing Mr. Maurice Farkoa's part of Yen in See See, at the Prince of Wales's.

MISS VIOLET BARTON ASTOR has been engaged by Mr. Lionel Glenister to play Millicent in All-of-a-Sudden Peggy on tour.

MR. GRAHAM HILL, the author of the powerful little drama Between the Night and the Light, in which Mrs. Langtry will appear in New York at the end of this month, took part in a sensational act on Monday night, in which a cab, a runaway horse, and a stone post also figured. Mr. Hill and his sister had been to Harrogate to see a performance of his piece, and arriving late at King's Cross, got into the first disengaged hansom. The horse was no sooner out of the station-yard than he took the bit between his teeth and bolted down the Euston-road at top speed. The traffic scattered right and left; but in endeavouring to turn out of the main thoroughfare the hansom cleared a motor-'bus with something under an inch to spare and crashed into a post at the corner of Ossulston-street. The horse was temporarily stopped by the impact, and secured before he could do further damage. Mr. Hill and his sister got off with nothing worse than a severe shaking; but one side of the hansom was a wreck, the wheel, springs, and lamp being broken, while the vehicle was only saved from utter collapse by the support of the friendly post and the assistance of the obliging crowd.

MISS LOTTIE VENNE has accepted a three-act comedy by Robert Ganthony, the entertainer, entitled The First Mrs. Ridgeway. The comedy has an excellent part for her, and a production is being arranged for at a West End theatre.

THE Moody-Manners Opera Company completed on Saturday last a most successful five weeks' season of grand opera in English at the Lyric Theatre. This week the company is enjoying a vacation, but it is not deserting London just yet, as it will open at the Kennington Theatre on Monday with Tannhäuser. The Kennington visit will be followed by a week at the Coronet and a week at the Camden. As the restrictions of the syndicate do not apply to the suburbs, Mr. Manners will be able to present Carmen, and intends to do so at least once each week. The first performance of the revival of Gounod's Romeo and Juliet will be given at the Coronet. Mlle. Zélie de Lussan will rejoin the company to sing Carmen.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY, Miss N. de Silva, and company have commenced their tour amid the happiest auspices, playing to full houses last week at Buxton and Llandudno, and during this week at Harrogate, where records have been broken at the Opera House by the success of the company.

MR. CYRIL KEIGHTLEY and company will produce on Monday next, at the Cheltenham Opera House, a new play by Harry and Edward Paulton, entitled Miles Carew, Highwayman, under the supervision of Mr. Harry Paulton. Mr. Keightley will be the Sir Miles Carew, and will be assisted by Miss Haidée Gunn, Mr. Harry Crocker, and Miss Ethel Dane.

"THE ERA" penetrates into every civilised and uncivilised portion of the globe. We have just received a cheque of one guinea for the Dot Stephens Fund from a sympathiser at Sierra Leone, West Africa, who read the particulars of Dot Stephens' sad case.

MR. WALTER MAXWELL'S company, playing The Lion and the Mouse, has been very well received at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, this week. It is excellently acted and well staged, for the popular young manager evidently believes in attention being given to every detail. Mr. Leslie Carter makes a strong and characteristic "lion," and Miss Christine Silver is a charming "mouse." Mr. Maxwell—who, by the way, is billed as "introducing" instead of "presenting" Miss Silver—is to be congratulated on his leading lady. She has only been acting for three years, but such parts as Phœbe in Quality Street, Moira in Little Mary, and the title-rôle of Merely Mary Ann, have given exceptional opportunities for the development of her talent. At Christmas she goes to Manchester to play one of the principal parts in the revival of Peter Pan. Last year she was Peter's boy friend, Nibs, at the Duke of York's. Miss Silver, who had just left school when she first went on the stage, has received a great many tributes of admiration and gifts of friendship during the three weeks of the present tour, perhaps the most welcome being an extremely lively Aberdeen terrier, and the latest, an ivory charm in the shape of a mouse, on a thin gold chain. Of her three pretty frocks, quite the prettiest is exactly—this is a subtle touch—the colour of a mouse.

MR. H. CHANCE NEWTON has written for the Free Lance a clever and humorous "skit" about a critics' combine, pleasantly treating Mr. J. T. Grein's idea of a "London Association of Dramatic Critics." Mr. Newton has added to the "Rules" of the Association some burlesque precepts, in which he hits the weaknesses of a certain class of critics very hard indeed, Rule I. being "No dramatic critic to go to a first night proclaiming that he is 'bored' before the play starts; or that it is "awful to have to come to sit out this sort of thing." Nor shall he—unless first giving notice—remark in advance that he supposes "we are in for the usual commonplace rot!"

BOW-STREET Police-court was brightened on Wednesday by the presence of a number of smartly-arrayed girls and eager-looking boys, whose presence was explained by Mr. Harry Wilson, a solicitor, who had been instructed by the management of Drury Lane Theatre to apply for licences for these children from Aug. 30. The usual notice of the application had been given to the police, and the certificates of age were produced. The children would only be wanted on the stage about twenty minutes each evening, and would not be required to stay later than 9.45 p.m.

"HAVE they been on the stage before?" inquired Mr. Marsham. "Many of them have," was the reply. "Your worship is aware that every care is taken of them at the theatre. Dressing-rooms are set apart for them and matrons provided, and their education is looked after." Inspector Fitt intimated that the police had no objection to offer to the granting of the licences asked for, but said there was some question as to whether it was necessary to obtain permits at all for those who were over fourteen years of age. For some performances of an acrobatic character girls had to be licensed up to the age of sixteen, but the Commissioner of Police took the view that that requirement did not apply to children engaged for ordinary theatrical performances.

AFTER some discussion on this point and an examination of the Acts of Parliament, Mr. Marsham said he thought the police view of the matter was the right one. He asked those of the children who were over fourteen to sit down, and they all did so with the exception of seven boys and one girl. The latter said she would be fourteen on Friday. Mr. Marsham: Then you will not want a licence. I don't think a licence is necessary for any of them over fourteen. Inspector Fitt: The police do not ask that they should be licensed. Mr. Wilson said the licences had been applied for by the management in order that if there was any doubt about the law they might be on the safe side, but after what the magistrate had said he would ask for licences only for those under fourteen. Mr. Marsham made the necessary order.

MR. GEORGE SCHAEFFER, who produced The Prince Chap at the Criterion, sails for America on Saturday, when his part of Fritz and his duties as stage-manager will be assumed by Mr. Ivan Berlyn, last seen at this theatre in The Girl from Maxim's.

A COPYRIGHT performance of Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's new play The Hypocrites was given last Thursday at the Grand Theatre, Hull, simultaneously with its first production in New York. The piece was really well played by the members of Messrs. Polini and Melford's Silver King company.

SO successful has been the respective tours of Miss Mabel Love and Miss Annie Hughes in The Freedom of Suzanne and A Country Mouse that Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison have made arrangements for an extension. Miss Mabel Love will finish on Dec. 15 at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, being fully booked up in the meantime; and Miss Annie Hughes will continue right through the autumn until required for Mr. Arthur Law's new play.

MME. CLARA BUTT has happily quite recovered from her recent indisposition, but will not make her reappearance in public until Oct. 13, when, in conjunction with her husband, Mr. Kennerley Rumford, she will give a concert at the Royal Albert Hall. Next year she goes to Australia.

MR. MASAHARU MATSUI, who combines the functions of Japanese playwright, dramatic critic, and editor, is in London studying our theatrical system, with a view to the establishment of a Japanese National Theatre, towards which £120,000 has already been subscribed. What impresses him most in English artists is their versatility. "No actor in Japan," he says, "except possibly the greatest, could successively impersonate such totally different parts as King John and Colonel Newcome, and pass indifferently from a classic to a modern répertoire."

THE drama in Japan, as elsewhere, is in a bad way. Since the death of Danjuro, dramatic art in that country has lost much of its prestige. Actors are divided into two schools—the traditionalists, who follow the precepts of Danjuro, but cannot infuse the mighty spirit and genius of the great actor into their parts; and the realists, of whom the leading apostles are Mme. Sada Yacco and Mr. Kawakami.

IN Japan, it appears, a critic is not considered as one whose duty is merely to comment upon a play. He is, in addition, held by all members of the profession as a friend, philosopher, and guide, as an opportune adviser of actor-managers, who, says Mr. Matsui, sorrowfully, being primarily business men, are often apt to give to art a secondary place in their productions. Some time ago a Japanese manager wished to limit admittance to his theatre to only one dramatic critic for each paper in Tokio. In Japan this was considered as a gross breach of etiquette, for the custom is for each paper to be represented at all performances by two, or even three, critics.

THERE was so much indignation evoked by the managerial attempt to "one paper, one critic," that the manager apologised to the critics, and matters were promptly set right again. As Mr. Matsui says, we manage things differently in England.

"THE SIN OF WILLIAM JACKSON."

The Baroness Orczy and Montagu Barstow have gone to the mean streets of Stepney for the locale and characters of their new play, which deals with the elemental passions as exhibited by people unrefined in speech, unrestrained in expression, and unhampered by what may be called les convenances. The play finds scarcely the right environment at the Lyric; but that it would enchain the interest of a popular audience there cannot be any doubt, and the conduct of its powerful second act is an example of dramatic construction of which even a master playwright would not be ashamed. We do not expect dialogue bristling with epigram from such characters as are chosen by the cultured pair of playwrights responsible for The Sin of William Jackson for the development of their theme; but the conversations and situations show considerable observation of the manners and speech of the lower classes, and though we may take exception to some of the comedy relief in a rather weak third act the play palpitates with interest throughout.

Annie Valentine, the wife of a drunken bookmaker, had, previous to her marriage, loved not wisely but too well William Jackson, a sailor, who, to protect Annie from insult had knocked down and accidentally killed a man. Indicted for the crime of manslaughter, William is sentenced to five years' penal servitude. At the opening of the play he seeks out Annie, who is living with her blackguard of a husband at Jubilee Rents, Stepney Green. As she explains to William, she was destitute, and found a father for their child in Valentine. "Is he kind to you?" earnestly inquires the old lover. Annie's sad face belies her words when she says, "Pretty well." Valentine, like most bullies, is irritated by the meek and silent submission of his wife—easily understandable in the circumstances—and finds metal more attractive in Mrs. Alfieri, the flashy and handsome wife of an Italian proprietor of a low restaurant, who had once been a circus performer. Mrs. Alf, as he calls her, has been invited to tea, and joins the Valentines and Mr. William Jackson. It is evident that her society is not congenial to the long-suffering Annie, who is soundly bullied for her lapses as a hostess by her husband, who is only prevented from striking her by Jackson.

The scene of the second act is Alfieri's restaurant, Heath Street, Stepney. Mrs. Alfieri, we discover, has other admirers besides the bookmaker, and one of them, Mr. Harold Higgins, a draper's assistant, woos her with his stock-in-trade, and succeeds in making arrangements for a nice quiet little supper. Alfievi will be going to Dover that evening, but this fiercely jealous Italian, who has the couple under observation, having seen his wife hand the latchkey to the foolish and infatuated draper, determines to stay and watch the course of events. There is no possibility of Mrs. Alfieri getting out to warn Higgins, but the situation is saved momentarily by William Jackson, who helps her by getting back the latchkey. Placing it on the counter, in her absence, he encounters the drunken Valentine, who had previously overheard Jackson proposing an elopement to Annie. Valentine takes up the latchkey, and informs Annie's old lover of his intention to come back and see Mrs. Alfieri when the restaurant is closed. He does so, and is stabbed to death by Alfieri with a stiletto, the murder taking place "off."

In the last act Annie, after hearing Mrs. Alfieri's account of William Jackson's sin in not warning Valentine of his danger, feels that she cannot accept his offer to go to Singapore, but as he is departing calls him back, and falls into his arms.

Miss Nina Boucicault has but little opportunity as Annie Valentine. It is a part of eloquent silence, but no actress on the stage could express mental torture or dumb grief with such wonderful gesture play as she. Annie is never roused to violent protest. There probably remains in her heart, in spite of a long course of cruelty, some feeling of gratitude to the man who gave her a home and respectability of a sort, brute though he be; and Miss Boucicault undoubtedly suggests this gratefulness by her fine and subtle rendering of a part that might easily become, in inartistic keeping, lurid or vulgar. There are many martyrs of the Annie Valentine type in the lower deeps of London life, and such realisation of gentle resignation is as rare as it is beautiful.

Mrs. Alfieri is in strong contrast to Annie Valentine; and the character of the frivolous, flashy woman, fond of admiration, brings to the forefront Miss Ruth Mackay, an actress who, seizing golden opportunity, as it were, with both hands, makes a most favourable impression. Miss Mackay's impersonation is lifelike, and at once established her reputation as a player of considerable gifts and real culture. Mr. John Tresahar does not flinch from the disagreeable nature of the part of the bullying bookmaker, Harry Valentine, and nothing could be better than his truthful picture of the terribly vulgar brute, whose swagger is so aptly expressed by his continual "That's my way—see!" Mr. Ernest Leicester, as William Jackson, presents a breezy hero of the true melodramatic type—a thought too refined, perhaps, in speech and bearing, but always tender and manly. Mr. Robert Pateman gives the true ring to the raging jealousy of the Italian, Alfieri, and the fierceness of his passion imparts the element of tragedy to the second act, in the success of which this fine actor shares largely. Mr. Hubert Druce, who produces the play, may be complimented on his capital comedy as the vulgar draper, Harold Higgins; and Mr. Harry Parker, as the undertaker, Chipps, may also be congratulated on his restraint in scenes not written in the best of taste. Chipps finds a sympathetic listener in Mrs. Tovey, a genuinely clever impersonation by Miss Minnie Griffen. Mr. Harvey Long's Antonio is effective; and clever thumb-nail sketches of characters of London life are presented by Mr. Archibald M'Lean as Tom; Mr. A. C. Hardie as George; Mr. E. H. Brooke as Jim; Mr. E. S. Patley as Mr. Smith; Mr. Spencer Carpenter as Mr. Montgomery; Miss Ethel Rayner as 'Liza; and Miss Gertrude de Burgh as 'Melia.

PRESENTATION. — After the performance at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Grimsby, on the 24th ult., the staff assembled on the stage for the purpose of making a presentation to Mr. Sidney Tolfree, who has retired from the position of assistant-manager, and also of acting-manager and secretary of the Tivoli, Ltd. The presentation, which took the form of a handsome silver cigar case, was made on behalf of the staff by Mr. J. H. Curry, managing-director, who spoke of the high esteem in which Mr. Tolfree was held, and also of their regret that he was leaving. Mr. Curry further presented Mr. Tolfree with a silver cigarette case and a cheque for a substantial amount, the gift of the management and a number of personal friends.

Mr. Fred Paul presented (by arrangement with Hardie and Von Leer) at the Camden Theatre on Monday evening a new musical comedy entitled The Lord of the Last, which is apparently destined for the provinces. It possesses some semblance of a plot, of which we get streaks now and then sandwiched between musical numbers, sentimental and comic, and variety business. The plot is somewhat incoherent, and the comic business of the most artless description. We are at a loss to understand the presence at Mme. Jenner's seminary in Paris—the garden of which forms the scene of the first act—of Sir Henry Ackerman, M.P., who has attained the position of one of the "upper" ten by making a fortune out of boots. Still, there the old bounder is, having his fling with the sweet girl pupils, and kicking up his heels as if he had no Parliamentary responsibilities whatever. It is the whim of this very frisky old widower to refuse the bestowal of the hand of his daughter Marjorie upon a young lieutenant of the Royal Navy, Arthur Watson, and he also employs some ingenuity in avoiding a matrimonial union with Mrs. Jones Jones, for whom he had evidently shown some partiality in his struggling days in the shop. He has had a passing flirtation with Madge Meredith, who turns up in the first act with a scheme for establishing a society of lady cobblers—a sort of sisterhood of St. Crispin—with Sir Henry as its first president. The gay old gentleman is coerced into acceptance of the position by Madge's threats of exposure of his "goings on"; and in the second act he is crowned with laurel and serenaded by the new guild, with Madge Meredith at its head. Sir Henry's infatuation for her is revived, and the curtain falls on their projected marriage, not, however, before matters have been set right between Marjorie and young Watson, a partner being found for the persistent Mrs. Jones Jones in Jackson, Sir Henry's melancholy valet. A slight underplot is concerned with the wooing of Madge Meredith's younger sister Millie by the Hon. Algy Lasterlin, an impossible member of the aristocracy, who is made to say at every possible opportunity that he "came over with the Percys, dontcherknow."

In the delineation of the part of Sir Henry Ackerman, M.P., who talks of schoolgirls as "little bits of fluff," Mr. H. C. Morton will do well to tone down his gesticulation and to restrain his restlessness. Mr. Scrope-Quentin's singing leaves much to be desired on the score of distinctness and intonation. He was much better, however, in the patriotic solo "A little bit of blue" than in the love song—with a melody of some distinction—which Watson sings to Marjorie in the first act. Mr. Arthur Ricketts evokes laughter by his efforts as the sad-faced valet Jackson with the cork foot, though it would be well for him to revise some of the ancient "wheezes" uttered by "the varlet" in the second act. Mr. Harry Emeric as Pip, a lovelorn page, is responsible for a smart dance in the second act, and in the first for some clever descriptive business, the success of which is shared by Miss Pauline Hague, who sings very sweetly a pretty number of the coon order. Miss Dollie Varden, with a little less susceptibility to posing, will do well as Millie Meredith, her voice being sweet and her dancing effective. Miss Louie Tinsley makes a decided hit as Mrs. Jones Jones—the very embodiment of drollery as a gushing and elderly aspirant for matrimony. Miss Tinsley is responsible for a drily humorous rendering of a really comic song in the second act, and though encores were taken with insufficient excuse on Monday, there was no doubt, in this instance, of the genuineness of the demand for a bis.

STOCKTON THEATRE FIRE.

A fire broke out at the Theatre Royal, Stockton, on Tuesday night, and was not extinguished until the building was entirely destroyed.

The drama, A Life's Story, had been performed by Mr. Stanley Carlton's Company, and at 10.40 the artists and the stage staff left by the stage door. Mr. Fred Granville, the lessee of the theatre, Mr. Berry, the manager, and Miss Dale, the manageress, after finishing their office business, departed by the front entrance at eleven o'clock. Mr. Berry, while on his way home, was overtaken by someone who told him the theatre was on fire. He returned, and upon opening the front pit entrance, saw the flames had got hold of the scenery on the stage. The fire brigade was summoned, but the water supply at the commencement was not very powerful. Within twenty minutes of the discovery of the fire the stage door fell in, and shortly afterwards the flames shot through the roof to a distance of several yards, the fire then passing to the centre of the theatre. At 11.35 the main roof and the gallery fell in, and ten minutes later the circle. Mr. Granville remembered that his valuable bull-dog was chained in one of the store-rooms, and with the assistance of a companion he rescued the animal.

The damage to the theatre premises is estimated at between £10,000 and £12,000. In addition, Mr. Granville had a large quantity of valuable scenery and stock stored in the building, including the whole of the scenery, effects, and dresses for the Forty Thieves pantomime, which he was to produce at the Grand Theatre, Derby, this year. This is valued at £1,000, and was completely destroyed. The losses of the theatre and Mr. Granville's scenery, etc., are largely covered by insurance.

Mr. Stanley Carlton had only had A Life's Story on the road for a few weeks, and he estimates his loss in scenery, costumes, etc., at about £400, totally uninsured.

BARON H. HARRISS and Miss Sophie Harriss, who are presenting The Prince of Pilsen on tour, entertained the principal members of their company to supper on Sunday last at the Royal Hotel, South Shields. Congratulations are forthcoming from all managers on the sumptuous and gorgeous manner in which the successful musical comedy is staged.

THE Brighton Theatre will be one hundred years old on Monday, Sept. 10 next, the first stone of the original house in the New-road being laid by Mr. John Brunton, father of Louise Countess of Craven, Sept. 10, 1806, in the presence of Mr. Hewitt Cobb and Sir Thomas Clarges, the owners. Afterwards a supper was partaken of at the New Inn (now the Clarence Hotel), North-street, Brighton.

Even those who do not sympathise with Mistress Nellie Harborne will admit that her luck in London was scarcely of the pleasantest. But the wonder is, considering the curiously complex character of this not unsophisticated country maiden, that she ever had any luck at all. Certainly, everybody who followed her distressing history will agree that, after all, the Fates were exceedingly good to her. The sad truth is that Nellie strayed from the paths of rectitude. The initial cause of her undoing is to be found in Act I., which is undoubtedly the best and most consistent part of Mr. Charles Darrell's story. Nellie's father, Stephen Harborne, is a tenant farmer whose wife has for years been leading a life of gaiety and wickedness in a vicious West-end atmosphere. Any other father, with half an eye and the fifth part of a brain, would not have acted as Stephen Harborne did—that is, he would not have taunted his daughter with repeated references to her mother's prostitution. Nellie is a pretty and vivacious girl, ever ready for a harmless flirtation, though it does seem that she is of rather a fickle temperament. At one time she engages the attention of the village curate, much to the annoyance of her straight-laced sister Lilian, who herself had designs in that direction; at another time she transfers her affections to the Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor, a young Irishman. Sin comes to the farm in the person of Richard Lenowen, the proprietor of the Hilarity Lounge, Leicester-square, London. He offers to pay off the mortgage on the farm provided that Nellie will come to town with him. The price of her soul is to be £240, which will enable her father to retain possession of his holding. She declines; he presses the money upon her unconditionally; she accepts. He leaves the bank-notes and gold upon a table, along with a note, which proves sufficient to condemn the girl in the eyes of her father, who tells her to leave him for ever; no longer is she a daughter of his. Her protestations of innocence are not believed, and, moreover, they are refuted by Lenowen, who urges the girl to show her independence and go with him to London. Yes, she cries, she will go to that merry playground of the world, but—not with him. She will go alone. Act II. brings us to the aforesaid merry playground, and shows us the Hilarity Lounge, a convenient meeting-place for gilded idiots and what are called on the programme "evening stars." It would be pleasanter far to pass over this scene, and we will content ourselves with mentioning that here are to be found Nellie's mother, who goes by the name of Mme. Gabrielle, and whose identity is not recognised by the daughter; Nellie herself, nicknamed Saucy, and seemingly very much at home in her gay surroundings; the Hon. Fitzgerald; two ex-servants of Harborne's farm; and Lilian Harborne, who comes to reclaim her sister. Nellie and O'Connor quit the place together, and in the following scene, the Riverside Villa at Caversham, we find them a happy married couple. A reconciliation has taken place between Nellie and her father, who is also staying at the villa, as well as the curate, Lilian Harborne, and the two comic servants already referred to. The peacefulness of the little party is disturbed by the appearance of Richard Lenowen and Mme. Gabrielle, who come on a blackmailing expedition. It appears that O'Connor, in spite of his having discovered his wife in the Leicester-square brothel, is not aware that she bears other than a snow-white reputation. Nellie, previous to their marriage, had written a letter to him informing him of her past misdoings, and affording him an opportunity of release. This letter had been intercepted by Mme. Gabrielle (who still doesn't know that the girl is her own daughter), with the intention of using it later on. In the presence of all O'Connor is informed that his wife was formerly the mistress of Lenowen. He refuses at first to believe the statement, but Nellie herself attests to the truth of it. Then she is once more cast off, and, after more trying experiences in a Lambeth lodging-house, and subsequently at another house of infamy kept by Lenowen, the curtain goes down on the arrest of the latter and the reunion of all the lovers.

The play, which, by the way, was originally produced at the Theatre Royal, Castleford, on Jan. 1 of this year, is superbly mounted. As to the acting, Miss Mary Neil stands foremost for her portrayal of that incomprehensible piece of femininity whom the author has christened Nellie Harborne. There are some brilliant touches in Miss Neil's impersonation, and she gives ample evidence of the gift of versatility. Mr. Charles A. Leicester is seen in a praiseworthy study of a sturdy and proud Irishman; and Mr. G. Langdon acts with dramatic forcefulness and a certain degree of subtlety in the rôle of the blackguardly Richard Lenowen. Mr. Tyrone Power is commendable as the burly, short-tempered, and grief-stricken Stephen Harborne; and the Curate of Mr. Douglas Tremayne is presented in adequate fashion. Miss Frances Bruce admirably sustains the religious dignity and cold superiority of the unco guid Lilian Harborne; and Miss Ada Roscoe handles in able manner the part of the abandoned Mme. Gabrielle. The humorous element is well attended to by Mr. Bruce Clapham as a submerged Johnnie; and Mr. J. Telly Dillsen and Miss Florrie Groves as the farm servants.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—With regard to the letter in your last issue from Messrs. Brandon and Nicholson, Mr. Fenn's solicitors, will you kindly allow me space to deny their assertion that I sought the hospitality of your columns for the purpose of alleging that much of the matter in Amasis was plagiarised from a comic opera of my own? I confined myself entirely to drawing attention to some of the more prominent similarities embraced by the long arm of coincidence.

Mr. Fenn's solicitors also stated that they had written to me demanding a retractation of, and an apology for, my "libellous" statements, but they omitted to mention that two clear days prior to the date of their letter to you they were in receipt of my refusal to apologise.—Yours faithfully,

W. GUNN GWENNET,

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

"The Sweet Girl has come to stay." Such was the verdict from many of Monday night's audience, who had gathered to hear the adaptation from the German musical play, Das Süsse Mädel. From the first it was apparent that a new note had been struck in musical comedy. In the present day of musical "jingle" it is refreshing to find something on a higher plane, and this is especially noticeable in the music of Herr Heinrich Rheinhardt. Naturally, it savours of the German modern school. The melodies are bright, tuneful, and effective, some of the numbers being particularly fine. The song, "The Sweet Girl," from which the play takes its name, contains a delightfully haunting refrain, which long remains pleasantly in the memory. The adapters have done their work most efficiently, a continuous plot, with well-sketched characters, and an abundance of wholesome fun being the result of their efforts.

The action takes place first in Vienna, and afterwards in the mountains of the Austrian Tyrol. Mr. Harry Potts and Mr. Cecil E. Hicks's scenery drew forth many expressions of admiration; while the magnificent and picturesque costumes made a delightful feast for the eye.

The story is woven around the love of Lola, an American singer at a Viennese theatre, and Dick Kenyon, an impecunious composer of songs. Count Leibenberg, Dick's uncle, hearing of his nephew's passion for the fair American songstress, has come to Vienna with the intention of compelling him to marry his cousin, the Countess Lizzi. The night before the play commences Lola has, unknown to Dick, made an immense success with one of his songs, "The Sweet Girl." Act I. discovers the roof of Florian's studio, where Dick is staying to escape the unpleasant attentions of a writ-server. A bevy of students sing an opening chorus in spirited style, when they are joined by Lola, who, accedes to their request that she would give them the song with which all Vienna was ringing, and sings "The Sweet Girl." Count Leibenberg then arrives, and complications commence when Lola is introduced as the Baroness von Ebenstreit, a friend and patron, who has considerable influence over Dick. The Count suggests that she and her friends should visit him at his castle near Ischl, and assist in persuading Dick to marry his cousin, an invitation which Lola is not slow in accepting, though with different intentions.

Act II. opens with the arrival of the visitors at the castle. In his young days the Count had married a girl socially beneath him, and there was a child of the marriage whom he had never seen. Amongst the guests is Fritzi, the sweetheart of Florian, and the Count, mistakes her for a singer whom he had heard in Vienna. Fritzi is persuaded by her friends to humour him in this illusion, and all goes well until she is asked to sing the much-talked-of song. Naturally, her attempt is somewhat of a failure; but the scene is dramatically worked up by Lola appearing on the balcony, and giving the song in her own inimitable manner.

Act III. provides further complexities, all of which form a never-failing source of amusement. The writ-server arrives on the track of Dick, bringing with him also a letter to Prosper Plewney, the Count's secretary, informing him of the fact that he is the son of the Count. Lola obtains possession of this document, and by her adroit management of its contents secures the consent of the Count to her marriage with Dick.

Miss Claudia Lasell, who is making her first essay as an actress-manager, has got together an excellent cast. Her interpretation of the rôle of Lola is clever at all points. Gifted with a clear, melodious voice, Miss Lasell sprang at once into favour, and scored a veritable triumph by her rendering of the song, "The Sweet Girl," securing three recalls. Her arch method and crisp style is eminently suited to the part, and a soupçon of Americanism in her voice added a piquancy to an altogether fine performance. Her duet with the Count, called "Strolling in the Evening," and that with Prosper Plewney, descriptive of "A mock lesson in love-making," earned rapturous applause. Mr. Leonard Russell rendered yeoman service as Florian, singing with a vigour and earnestness that was accorded frequent recognition, his cultured voice being capitally suited in the songs "Palette and Brush" and "Ziller-Thaler-Thal." The graceful and artistic dancing of Miss Alice Lethbridge quite brought down the house, as also did a dance she shared with Mr. Algernon Newark. In her embodiment of Fritzi, Miss Lethbridge was the very essence of naïvete and liveliness. Miss Grace Hunter made an attractive and in every way charming Countess Lizzi. The appearance of Mr. Fred Eastman in his grotesque "make-up" as Count Leibenberg was the signal for an outburst of spontaneous merriment. Among the songs allotted to this versatile comedian one especially, entitled "William," a skit on William Tell, William Shakespeare, and the Kaiser, brought him a tremendous ovation. Mr. Lister Morrah essayed Dick Kenyon with conspicuous success. He was an ideal lover, his pleasant voice and easy style winning high encomiums. Mr. Algernon Newark made a palpable hit by his quaint drollery as Anthony Strauss, and his imitations of well-known actors secured appreciative acknowledgment. Mr. George de Lara was all activity and alertness in the part of Prosper Plewney, his topical song, "Make a little note on your cuff," going down with evident relish. Mr. W. H. Page submitted an entertaining sketch of a major-domo; and the art students were capitally represented by Misses Lelia Gordon, Muriel Harding, Ada Wingard, Merza Leiden, Lilian Leslie, and Mr. J. Murray Morris. The choruses were admirably given under the bâton of Mr. K. Ernest Irving, who is responsible for special additional music, and the stage-management was in the skilled hands of Mr. Reginald Rutter. The play was produced under the direction of Mr. Herbert Cottesmore, who is to be congratulated on the success achieved.

"LADY TATTERS," a comedy-opera, by Herbert Leonard, the manager of the New Prince's Theatre, Poplar, with music by Walter Slaughter, was produced for copyright purposes at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway, on the 24th ult.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—Owing to a mistake in the programme you state that Mr. Alec. Bradley played Robert Carlton in Master and Man at the Camden Theatre last week. The name should have been, yours faithfully, RAYMOND WOOD

MARCUS'S MORALS.

It is difficult to decide if the dénouement of Mr. William J. Locke's novel, "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne"—upon which the new piece produced by Mr. Arthur Bourchier at the Garrick Theatre on Thursday evening, is founded—is a "happy" one or not. The two principal characters certainly marry; but whether they are likely to "live happily ever afterwards" is a question hardly to be answered. The tone of the tale is quaintly epicurean; and the sensuous spell cast by a "child of nature" from a Turkish harem over an elderly English literary man seems insufficient to compensate, in actual wedlock, for the emptiness of her mind and her absence of information. The dénouement is the more unsatisfying, as the littérateur, in his burst of sexual infatuation, lets slip the affection of a cultivated woman, who, apparently, would have been a real "mate" for him. But the tale is told with such an agreeable frankness, and such an adroit affectation of quaint bookishness, the incidents are so amusing, and the talk and descriptions are so piquant, that the impression, on the whole, is very agreeable.

The "story" runs as follows:—Sir Marcus Ordeyne, once usher in a private school, has inherited wealth and a baronetcy. He has maintained for years a platonic friendship with a Mrs. Judith Mainwaring, a lady who has been shamefully treated by a rascally husband, from whom she is separated. She lives in a flat in Tottenham Court-road; and Ordeyne, who moralises whimsically on everything, "as if he were a disconnected intelligence outside the universe," is ignorant of the fact that she nourishes a warm affection for him. Ordeyne is satisfied with tepid relations, which leave him full liberty to continue his favourite study of the "Morals of the Renaissance," his household consisting of a perfect valet and a female French cook. Into his life, however, by a chance encounter on a bench in a public garden, comes a young Turkish woman named Carlotta, who has been left "stranded" by an Englishman, who, having reached Southampton with her, has there committed suicide, and has sent her on to London alone. Ordeyne takes her into his home, and very comical are the results of his adoption of the beautiful waif, who, having been brought up in a harem, is absolutely artless, and, besides, is possessed of great beauty and audacity. Propinquity and the innocent freedoms of the lovely child of nature gradually turn the philosopher's head, and he finds himself passionately enamoured of his ward. A young and impulsive Italian named Sebastian Pasquale interferes with the course of affairs by making love to Carlotta. Pasquale tells Carlotta that Ordeyne is in love with Judith; and the latter begs the beautiful Turk to give Marcus up to her. Bewildered and beset, Carlotta runs away to Paris with Pasquale, and returns, after an interval, repentant and enceinte. Before this, however, Judith has confessed to Ordeyne that she has long loved him, and has realised that her passion is hopeless. The scamp who ruined her life now appears on the scene, reformed and repentant. He has become a religious worker in the East-end, and he offers Judith a Christian home with him. In despair, she accepts, and, feeling that he "has need" of her, goes to help him in his good work. Pasquale, who has enlisted, is killed in South Africa; and Ordeyne ultimately marries Carlotta, who "has now got a soul of her own, and means to make the most of it."

THE MOODY-MANNERS OPERA COMPANY.

The season of grand opera in English by the Moody-Manners company ended on Saturday evening last with a performance of Gounod's Faust, the cast including most of the principal artists who by their admirable efforts have rendered the present season memorable. Mme. Fanny Moody again invested the part of Marguerite with much charm and delightful vocalisation, being most ably supported by Mr. Joseph O'Mara as Faust. The talented Irish tenor was in fine voice, and his singing of the famous air "Hail, dwelling pure and holy" made even more than its customary impression. Another favourite singer, Mr. Lewys James, appeared as Valentine, and Miss Mildred Bryan as Siebel; while Miss Baker proved an excellent Martha. Mr. Charles Manners repeated his fine and popular performance of Mephistopheles, a part in which his great vocal ability and dignified bearing are displayed to the greatest advantage. The orchestra and chorus were again excellent, Herr Eckhold conducting with the utmost care and discretion. At the close of the performance, amidst great enthusiasm, and after the principal artists had appeared before the curtain several times, Mr. Manners, in response to repeated calls for a speech, came to the front and said: "I find it very difficult to put into words the great pleasure and satisfaction which it gives me to come before you here this evening and to tell you that, thanks to you, our season has been a great success." Mr. Manners also said: "It is on the public, and the public alone, that we must depend for our livelihood now and in the future." He thanked "the Press for the splendid way in which they have, without exception, done their utmost to encourage and help us." He also remarked that "it may interest you to know that at my first season at Covent Garden I made £450. We thought this a splendid start, and on the strength of it the next season we put between £150 and £200 a week more on our salary list. During the first season the band was very poor, but the second season it was much better, as it was mostly composed of Covent Garden players. Our second season we lost £1,200, and of course these figures do not include anything for the services of my wife or myself, my costumes, and scenery. I therefore arranged a season at Drury Lane, and called it 'National Opera in English.' I supplied all the costumes and scenery free, my wife and I gave our services. At the end of the season accountants went into the whole matter, and found a loss of between £5,000 and £6,000, and we issued a balance-sheet to the public. Two or three months ago I signed with Mr. Tom B. Davis to give a season at this theatre, and the day I signed I should have been pleased to have given the whole season over to anybody who would have taken it in hand, with the free use of my costumes and scenery, and services of my wife and myself; and, in addition to this, would have given him £1,000 to help him on his way. To my astonishment I find now that he would have made about £1,000. My great regret is that I did not spend the £1,000 in strengthening my performances where I know they are weak. But three months ago I should not have been warranted in doing this, as I had to remember that there was almost a certainty, judging from past experience, of losing £1,000 or £1,500; and more than this I could not afford. I have thought of forming the Opera Union. I do not want to form a union for the benefit of my wife or myself or my company. Thanks to our provincial friends we are, I am glad to say, independent. The Union has been brought into existence for the benefit of you who are lovers of opera in your own tongue. It is you who must decide whether it is to be a failure or a success. The matter rests in your hands, and there, with the fullest confidence, I gladly leave it."

PRESENTATION. — After the performance of Between Two Women at the Dalston Theatre on Saturday night, Mr. Moffitt, the stage-carpenter, who was leaving to go to the theatre in Lancashire, was presented by Mr. Sommers, on behalf of the stage hands, with a gold pin and silver pendant.

AMUSEMENTS IN MANCHESTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Theatre Royal.—Lessees, the United Theatres Co., Ltd; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmonstone Shirra.—A big attraction here on Monday was provided by Mr. Forbes-Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott in Hamlet. Mr. Forbes-Robertson's depiction of the title-rôle is undoubtedly a very fine achievement, full of intellect and individuality, and Monday's audience showed its appreciation in hearty style. Miss Gertrude Elliott gave a touching delineation of Ophelia, being particularly successful in the later scenes, and she worthily shared the chief honours of the evening. Mr. Ian Robertson played the King with studious care; Miss Adeline Bourne was a dignified Queen; Mr. Charles Langley as Polonius acted with distinction; and Mr Hylton Allen was quite successful as Horatio; while all the remaining parts were suitably filled. The week's programme is varied by a performance of Mice and Men, and a production of The Merchant of Venice, in which Mr. Forbes-Robertson's appearance as Shylock is a feature of extraordinary interest.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—A delightful performance of Veronique is to be seen here this week, played by George Dance's company. For a bright musical entertainment, packed as it is with fun, Veronique would be hard to beat, and nothing but praise can be expressed for all the principals and their spirited subordinates. Mr. Leslie Holland as Coquenard is extremely comic, his antics at times simply convulsing the house; and Mr. Fred Lyne is quite equal to the humorous possibilities of Leustot, the bailiff. As Veronique Miss Ruth Lincoln is always charming, and her singing is brisk and clear; Miss Ethel Negretti scores a distinct success, vocally and otherwise, as Agatha; and Miss Lena Maitland presents a clever depiction of the Countess, her song, "The Garden of Love," in the last act, being quite a feature of the evening. Mr. Roland Bottomley sings and acts very well as Florestan; and others who do well are Mr. Courtney Comber as Seraphin, Miss Gracie Sinclair as Denise, and Miss May Leslie as Aunt Benoit.

Gaiety Theatre. — Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Mr. Charles Macdona presents here this week the well-known and successful musical play Three Little Maids. A very pleasing performance is given by the company, which includes Miss Cora Lingard, Miss Daisy Sylverton, and Miss Eva Weigh as the pleasing central trio, the last-named being a Manchester actress who has made great progress lately and is particularly successful as Edna Branscombe. Miss Alice Rene makes a stately Lady St. Mallory; Miss Laura Wright is excellent as Gretchen; Mr. Walter Freear provides good fun as Cupid; Mr. Victor Kerr presents a good exposition of Lord Cheyne; and other good parts are well filled by Mr. Guy Williams, Mr. Charles Leverton, and Mr. Eric Barrington.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. Charles F. Cooke's company is here in The Trumpet Call, which was seen last week at the Grand Junction Theatre.

Metropole Theatre. — Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. Little and Darcy's company is here this week in their popular sensational drama The Executioner's Daughter. Mr. W. Ruddle Brown and Miss Nelly Howitt still appear successfully in the heroic parts; while the villainous business of the play is exploited vigorously by Mr. Juan de Alberti and Miss Evelyn Robson. Among others who distinguish themselves are Mr. W. S. Stevenson as Kretch, and Miss Bella Moody as Sally King. The play is altogether successful and well staged.

St. James's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan; Manager, Mr. Gus Flangan.—The Midland Syndicate present here this week the musical comedy-drama Life, a very entertaining performance being given. Mr. Herbert Barrs fills the part of Jack Lockhart, the blacksmith, in manly style; and Miss Oswald presents a careful and sympathetic impersonation of Beatrice Ferrars, the deserted wife. Miss Maudie Vincent gives a clever rendering of Jess, the waif; Mr. A. B. Lyons is lively as Pippit; Mr. Ronald Grahame is sufficiently sinister as Sir Horace Lester; Mr. E. Cheetham presents a good idea of Zac Krabbe; and other parts are well filled by the remaining members of the cast.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—A big attraction is offered here by Hardie and Von Leer's company in For Life—and After, a dramatised version of George R. Sims's recently-published novel of the same name. The play is distinctly powerful, and Monday's audience was highly appreciative of the cleverness of the cast. Mr. Vernon Sansbury is admirable as Richard Grey; and a very fine performance is that of Miss Grace Heywood, an accomplished actress, as Marion, his wife. Mr. Charles Osborne makes a formidable villain as Rube Hexham; and distinctly good performances are added by Mr. Sidney Vautier as O'Neil, the surgeon; Mr. Chris. Mason as Grimper, the showman; Miss Muriel Dean as Dora Grey; Miss Rosslyn Vayne as Loo Hexham; and Miss Edith Barwell as the lively Mrs. Grimper. All the remaining parts are well handled.

Queen's Theatre.—Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Berry.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company is here this week in Walter Melville's success, The Worst Woman in London. Miss Florence Dalton gives a forcible rendering of the title-part, and her efforts are ably supplemented by Mr. George Gaisford as Jack Felton, Mr. Paul Barry Lewers as Vincent Lyle, and Miss Elizabeth Watkins as Ruth Milford. Considerable interest is added by a large variety of subsidiary characters, well rendered by the remainder of the cast. The staging is on an elaborate scale, and entirely effective.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—An exceptionally clever and entertaining turn here this week is that of Frank and Jen Latona, the musical tramp and slavey, who head the bill. Another popular turn is Peggy Pryde, whose comedy character songs are cleverly rendered. Besides these, O'Malley and Brown are a couple of clever knockabouts; the Goltz Trio give a wonderful performance on globes and the slack wire; Minnie Cunningham, comedienne, sings Irish songs very daintily; Picton Roxborough and Fanny Wright are excellent in their sketch entitled Cockie; Clarke and Glenny present their Haunted House sketch with success; Rich and Rich are a smart comic couple; and last, but not least, Elsie Roby gives her well-known comedy sketch The Slavey at the Piano. This excellent programme is supplemented by pictures on the Bioscope.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—The King of the Sahara, a bright, brisk sketch, in three scenes, introducing pretty songs and dances, is staged here this week, and meets with considerable success. The company, which is excellent, includes Mr. Joe Peterman, the well-known creator of humorous Hebrew characters, Messrs. Charles Cleveland, C. Courtney Hylton, C. Thorne Ricketts, J. Learmouth, and the Misses Gladys Ward, Blanche Marian, and many others. Theo. Bouwmeester, the Dutch protean actor, is also here, and impersonates seven distinct characters in his sketch Who is Guilty? in a wonderfully clever manner. Will English, the real coon, manipulates his feet in fine style whilst dancing and burlesquing "walks," and is well received; Clara Walters is a smart and entertaining pianist; and other capital items are contributed by the Haytors, in their laughable oddity Cabby and His Fare; Farley, Rennie, and Farley in acrobatic speciality, Fun in a Railway Station; the Sisters Poole, comediennes and dancers; Edie Rivers, comedienne and dancer; and Phillips and Terry, in humorous playlet, A Wonderful Invention. Pictures complete.

Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—The charming comedienne Miss Winifred Hare heads the bill here this week, and sings several taking songs in a delightful manner; T. E. Dunville is also to the front, and is vastly amusing with funny songs and funnier patter; the Zanettos provide a sensational juggling act; and a capital sketch, entitled A Very Bad Boy, with an eccentric dance introduced, is played well by Hal Godfrey and company. The Ten Genis are wonderful Risley performers, and are deservedly well received; and Drew and Alders are resourceful comedians and very clever dancers. Other excellent items are "The Wreck of the Hesperus," rendered by the choir and orchestra; the Leonards, good dancers; the Pine Sisters; glee by the choir, and a series of entertaining Bioscope pictures.

Tivoli. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Daisy Jerome, a clever comedienne, is the bright particular star here this week, and sings four songs in her usual taking manner; G. W. Hunter amuses with songs and patter; and a musical playlet entitled A Reverie is capitally presented by the Vivians. Excellent turns are also those of Jennie Lynwood, comedienne; Tee and Tee, musical eccentrics; and Edie Tennis and Gertie Launo in vocal scena Chapters from Life. Others who contribute good turns are Mark Tapley, comedian; Agnes Hanson, comedienne and dancer; and Ernest French, comedian. Raymond's Vivagraph completes.

King's, Longsight.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Land-Grabbers, a burlesque parody skit, heads the bill here this week, and is presented in amusing style. Excellent turns are those of Stanley's Urchins, a troupe of good boy singers; the Three Thurbans, clever instrumentalists; the Panamas, acrobats and dancers; Blarney and Kennard, in comedy act, with clever dog; Mlle. Di Roche, soprano; Rappo and Ella; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, vocalists; and Bill Bailey, comedian. "A Message from the Sea" is depicted on the Bioscope.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Leoni Clarke and his remarkably well-trained animals are to the front here this week, and are much appreciated. Lion and Williams create no end of laughter in a very comic act; and the Kimberley Boys are good comedians. The Dancing Gilberts are smart dancers; Polo and Florence are clever acrobats; and Monty Walker is applauded for his mimetic and laughing songs. Mary M. Glenn, Scotch vocalist, sings well; Flo Hilton, male impersonator, is a big success; and Sonny Moss a good female impersonator. The pictures are excellent.

Hippodrome, Hulme.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manger, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Six Brothers Luck, in an absurdity entitled Blazes, are at the head of this week's bill, and cause much merriment. The Boccaccio Trio give a very fine turn, both vocal and instrumental, the mandoline playing of Signor Francia being highly appreciated; Mike Cray is a capital eccentric juggler; Ranjisinji and Valeria mystify with Indian magic; and the Vere Brothers are exceedingly smart gymnasts. Other good turns are given by Ward and Davis, in duologue; George Young, a clever blind instrumentalist; and Wallace Muirhead, vocalist. As usual, some enjoyable animated pictures are shown.

Rusholme Pavilion. — Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles North.—Old favourites are to the front here this week, including Fred Field, humorist; Jim Pullen, comedian; Gertrude Fraser, contralto; Charles North, baritone; Maude Hastings, soprano; Bernard Rowley, tenor; and W. H. Jackson, pianist.

MR. BOURCHIER'S EXPERIMENT.

Several of the leading London managers have been interviewed by the Daily Telegraph with reference to Mr. Arthur Bourchier's "new departure" of excluding the critics from his theatre for the first week of the run of a new piece. Mr. Tree says every manager must be the best judge of what should be done in the interests of his own theatre, and has a perfect right to act accordingly. He thinks that a well-considered article appearing a few days after a first performance would be of greater value as criticism and of greater service to art than one written under the conditions obtaining at the present day. But the public cannot be left out of the reckoning in a matter of this kind; and the public desires always to be kept informed on the news of the day. Mr. Tree is inclined to favour the appearance on the morning following the production of a new play of a brief record of the event—a mere report, indicating the nature of the piece, its effect upon the audience, its reception, and so forth. Then, if the play and its interpretation were deemed worthy of it, a more extended notice might be published a day or two later—an article answering fully to the description of a criticism and representing views duly and seriously considered.

Mr. Cyril Maude, without expressing any opinion as to the wisdom, or otherwise, of Mr. Bourchier's new departure, said that for a long time he had felt that, where comedy, at any rate, was concerned, it would be better if the judgment of the critics were formed a night or two after production. In works of the class in question it is the audience that makes the piece go. If the "laughs" get home, the effect is to stimulate greatly the actors and actresses engaged, and, the chances being that a comedy will go better after the initial nervousness of a first-night has worn off, it follows, in Mr. Maude's opinion, that favourable criticism of the performance is more likely to result.

Mr. George Edwardes would not on any account exclude critics from first nights. But he would like them to come always to one, if not more than one, rehearsal of the piece they are going to notice. Were he a member of the theatre-going public, he would take this view:—"Here was a piece produced last night, say, at the Garrick. Nobody knows whether it is good, bad, or indifferent, and I expect my paper to tell me all, or something, at any rate, about it. If I have to wait a week for that criticism, what happens? Probably this—that in the meantime I have heard remarks about the play from various people who have seen it. Is the management to suppose that these remarks are in every case going to induce me, as a member of the public, to pay my money at the box-office to see their production?" It is the public, Mr. Edwardes says, who have, after all, to be considered principally in a question of this kind. Theatrical managers are in much the same position from this standpoint as the owners and editors of newspapers. Both have to serve the public and give them what they want. Both depend equally upon the public. Mr. Edwardes is not of those who think that if a newspaper is not invited to criticise a piece the critic is not entitled to come to that theatre, by paying in the ordinary way, and afterwards to express his views of the production in print. As long as he behaves himself in the theatre, and writes an account which is not influenced by any personal animus, it would be unreasonable of a manager, in Mr. Edwardes's opinion, to object to criticism published under the circumstances described.

QUEEN'S OUTING.

"Eat, drink, and be merry" was the altogether admirable injunction printed on the programme, and it is safe to say that the fifty or so hearty souls who took part in the annual outing last Sunday of the staff of the Queen's Palace, Poplar, were most energetic in carrying out the said injunction in all its phases. Mr. Lewis Abrahams, a brother of Messrs. Frederick and Michael Abrahams, the proprietors of the Queen's, and Mr. Morris Abrahams, a younger member of the family and the secretary and assistant-manager of the hall, were in charge of the party, who, starting shortly after 9 a.m. from Poplar in a couple of brakes, reached their destination—St. Margaret's, Herts—some four hours later. It was a pleasant drive and a healthful one, and greatly conduced towards the creation of vigorous appetites, which made their influence felt upon an excellent dinner, served in first-rate style at the Pied Bull, Stanstead Abbotts, Ware. It was admitted on all hands that the proprietor of that hostelry, Mr. J. Lyndsell, was an able caterer.

Neither Mr. Michael Abrahams nor Mr. Jack Woolf, the manager, was able to join the company, the former because he was away at the seaside and the latter because of pressure of business. Mr. Lewis Abrahams, who assumed the office of chairman at the dinner tables, gave the usual loyal toasts, and then proceeded with the toast of "The Proprietors, Messrs. F. and M. Abrahams." These gentlemen, he said, always had a kindly thought for the welfare of the staff, and they regarded with keen satisfaction such a function as they were that day engaging in, for they realised that it did much to foster a good feeling between the employees. The toast being heartily honoured by the whole company, the chairman referred in eulogistic terms to Mr. Jack Woolf, the manager, who had, since the reopening of the Queen's, worked with persistent strenuousness for the best interests of all concerned. Mr. Woolf's health was drunk with musical honours.

The toast of "The Queen's Staff" was also proposed by the chairman. He was of opinion that the Messrs. Abrahams were supported in the conduct of their establishment by a very efficient body of men in all departments, and the prosperity of the hall was in itself a tribute to the excellent qualities of the staff. Everybody had shown a desire to loyally help Mr. Woolf and the proprietors, and that spirit of co-operation was of no small significance in the conduct of affairs. The toasts of "The Visitors" and "The Chairman" concluded the speech-making, after which the party separated, some taking steamer trips on the river Lea and others exploring the pretty countryside. A capital tea was partaken of at half-past five, and as the village clocks struck the hour of seven the homeward journey was commenced. Mr. A. H. Dent, the assistant-manager of the refreshment department of the Queen's, controlled the arrangements in connection with the outing—which from beginning to end proved most enjoyable—with the assistance of the stewards, Messrs. S. Barnett, F. Bentley, and E. J. Garritt, and Mr. F. Brown, the hon. secretary. Mr. Jack Abrahams, manager of the refreshment department, and his brothers, Mr. George and Mr. Benjamin Abrahams, also accompanied the beanfeasters.

POPLAR QUEEN'S PALACE OUTING.

PRESENTATION TO A THEATRICAL MANAGER.

A well-deserved tribute was paid on the 24th ult. to Mr. Joseph Potter, who for the past twenty-five years has watched over the destinies of the Royal Court Theatre, Warrington, by the presentation before a crowded house of a beautifully illuminated address, together with an enlarged portrait of the recipient.

The address was as follows:—

"To Joseph Potter, Esq. We, the undersigned, in behalf of a large and influential committee of local gentlemen and theatrical managers formed in Warrington for the purpose, beg to convey to you our heartiest congratulations on the completion of twenty-five years' theatrical management in this town. We desire to express our appreciation of your efforts to promote the welfare of the community by providing an entertainment which has always been of an elevating and healthy moral tone. We also desire to express our admiration of you as a man, and one whose conduct, both public and private, has been beyond reproach, and has earned approbation by all classes, and we earnestly hope that you may long be spared to enjoy the well-earned reward of your many years' work in Warrington.—Signed in behalf of the committee, George Wright (chairman), John Lee (vice-chairman), Fred J. Reece (hon. secretary and treasurer).

An excellent portrait of Mr. Potter appears at the head of the address, and at the foot there are illustrations of the Royal Court and the Royal.

The presentations were made by the Mayor of Warrington (Alderman Bolton) and Mrs. Fred Willmot, the Mayor remarking that he and Mr. Potter had been friends for over forty years. Mr. Browne also spoke in high appreciation, and in reply Mr. Potter thanked the committee for getting up the testimonial. They had all worked very hard, and it was very kind of his friends to give him some return after twenty-five years' experience in the theatrical profession. With his partners he had endeavoured to give satisfaction, and had done the best he could to bring good companies to Warrington. He would bring them better still in future. He thanked them all sincerely. A long programme was gone through, excellent turns being provided by the Warrington Orchestral Society; Mr. F. J. Dell, tenor; the two Sparks, instrumentalists; Mr. H. Hindley Potter, elocutionist; Mr. Fred Willmot; Higgins and Malone; Kioto; the Milton Rays; "Lady Julia," Miss Issa Steel, vocalist; Bishop and Hanlon; Warrington Lyric Quartette; Percy Hannan; Harry Marlowe, and May Manton.

Miss Lottie Venne is likely to be seen shortly in a new part, having accepted a three-act comedy by Robert Ganthony, the entertainer, entitled The First Mrs. Ridgeway. The production at a West-End theatre is now being negotiated

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, July 24.—The Dictator, a farce-comedy melodrama written for Mr. William Collier, the American comedian, by Mr. Richard Harding Davis, followed On the Quiet at Her Majesty's on the 21st, and created hours of uproarious fun. Mr. J. C. Williamson, by arrangement with Mr. Charles Frohman, produced it, and it goes without saying that everything possible was done with it. Mr. Collier and every member of his company fits in with the author's inmost conceits, the result being a very funny story funnily told. Mr. Collier as Brooke Travers brims over with fun and terror, but is never tempted to exaggerate. He is ably assisted by Mr. Charles Jackson as the valet Simpson, whose fear of arrest is convincingly humorous. Miss Helena Collier, handsome and vigorous, is seen in an important part as Juanita; Miss Mabel Taliaferre is the ingénue Lucy Sheridan to the life; Mr. Grant Stewart makes General Campos an imposingly important personage; Mrs. Grace Hadsell and Mr. George Nash were the Mrs. and Colonel Bowie; and Mr. John Dean, Mr. Charles Poore, Mr. John Saville, and Mr. John Barrymore all play parts of more than ordinary importance, and play them capitally. It is a happy family of Thespians, and The Dictator will draw good business until it has to make way for Miss Tittell Brune on Aug. 4.

Mr. Bland Holt is satisfied with the popularity of With Flying Colours, for the play excites intense interest, and it will run until In London Town is ready for staging. Mr. Holt is bestowing especial attention on Mr. G. R. Sims' powerful drama.

The Tivoli welcomed Mr. Howard Hall, a fine baritone, and the Ixion Sisters, double song and dance artists; and cheered Miss Olive Lenton on her return. Mr. Harry Rickards has now a very strong company, embracing Little Cliff, Vasco, Brinn, Alexandra and Bertie, Lilieth Leyton and George Bentley, and others.

Bostock and Wombwell's big show has a novel sensation. Mr. Williams was hypnotised and buried six feet beneath the surface, where he is to remain 120 hours. Observation tubes are provided for a supervising committee.

The Lyceum and Athenæum have moving pictures and concert artists.

The Jubilee Singers are at the Centenary Hall, doing non-playgoers good by means of music and laughter.

Mr. Lewis De Groen is giving Saturday night concerts at the Town Hall, and has engaged Mr. Ernest E. P. Truman as solo organist. The Vice-Regal Band and picked vocalists give a fine entertainment.

Miss Marie Narelle had her northern tour sadly interrupted by the death of her mother on the 17th. Miss Narelle returned to Sydney for the funeral on the 18th, and she has now resumed the tour, leaving Newcastle to be visited on her return.

Messrs. William Holman, the well-known English actor, and Neville Mayman announce a non-scenic production of The Hunchback for the 25th at St. James's Hall.

Mr. J. F. Sheridan is raiding Queensland playgoers with The Earl and the Girl, King Dodo, and Fun on the Bristol.

MELBOURNE, July 17.—Princess's Theatre (Lessees, Messrs. Ward and Willoughby; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Musgrove).—After a most successful run of four weeks, The Man from Mexico will be withdrawn on Friday evening, to make room for the comedy, The Talk of the Town. The Ward-Willoughby season has been a highly-successful one. On Saturday evening, the 28th inst., Mr. R. G. Knowles commences a short season at this theatre, an event which is being looked forward to with a great deal of interest, Mr. Knowles being an old favourite with Melbourne playgoers,

Her Majesty's Theatre (Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. George Tallis).—The Squaw Man is filling this theatre nightly. The powerful story of Western life is admirably told by Mr. Waldron and the capable company supporting him. The play is lavishly mounted. Under existing circumstances The Squaw Man should run for some time to come.

Theatre Royal (Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant). — The exciting drama of Russian military life, The Assassin, evidently suits the palates of frequenters of the Theatre Royal. The house is nightly packed by enthusiastic audiences. Miss Duggan as Princess Wanda has a part which gives her plenty of scope, her acting, especially in the sensational scenes, reaching a high standard. The Assassin will only run for four more nights, Dangerous Women being in active rehearsal.

Opera House (Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon). — "Getting along very nicely, thanks," is the smiling reply of Fred Aydon when questioned as to business at this popular theatre, and certainly the bill of fare provided just now is a particularly tasty one. Homer B. Mason and Marguerite Keeler, in their laughable absurdity, A Hero, still continue the premier attraction; Seymour and Dupré contribute an interesting turn; Blake and Granby appear in a sketch, entitled The Man in Possession; Kelly and Agnes are popular favourites; while Fred Bluett, Nellie Kilburn, Tim Howard, Baby Watson, and a host of others give interesting turns. After a successful season at Geelong, West's Pictures and the Brescians opened for seven nights at Ballarat, where they met with a splendid reception. Mr. T. Lax astonished all with his marvellous performance on the piano, and is quickly becoming a popular favourite.

It must be a matter of satisfaction to the proprietors of Collins's to know that the noble front of their house will never be hidden from view by buildings facing it. By the new Act which deals with the preservation of air spaces, the historic green at Merrie Islington is safe for ever from the interference of the builder.

Miss Nellie Wallace, who will be journeying to New York to fulfil an engagement in February next, has secured some comic novelties from the pens of the foremost writers for the variety stage—notably, A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott. The author of "The 'ouses in between" has also written one for the lady.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A. HITCHCOCK (Poplar).—Yes. The late Mr. Wilson Barrett played The Silver King at the Lyceum during his season there on Nov. 20, 1899. The famous drama was, as you say, originally produced at the Princess's on Nov. 16, 1882. When Mr. Barrett opened the new and enlarged Olympic on Dec. 4, 1890, with The People's Idol, he followed this unsuccessful piece with a revival on Jan. 3, 1891, of The Silver King, which he reproduced also at the Adelphi on Jan. 21, 1902.

A SIMPSON (Bristol).—Yes. A Little Ray of Sunshine was revived by Mr. W. S. Penley for the reopening of the Novelty on May 24, 1900, which he much improved and rechristened Great Queen-street Theatre.

CONSTANT READER.—Most certainly it is necessary to have a licence from the Lord Chamberlain before your burlesque can be produced at a theatre or place licensed for the production of stage plays. The usual charge made by the Lord Chamberlain is two guineas for every stage play of three or more acts, and one guinea for every stage play of less than three acts. We need hardly tell you that your burlesque comes within the category of stage plays.

CHARITY PERFORMANCE.—You might obtain the information you require from the Dramatic Authors' Agency (Mrs. Douglas Cox), 22, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C., or from French's, Southampton-street, Strand.

W. H. F.—We are not in the habit of giving the ages of professional people. To the true tale of years the public usually add largely, forgetting that many performers commence their careers as children. The comedian you mention has been on the stage over twenty-five years.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, & DEATHS.

The charge for inserting in "The Era" an announcement of a Birth or Death or an "In Memoriam" notice, not exceeding twenty-four words, is One Shilling and Sixpence, every additional word One Penny.

The charge for a notice of Marriage, not exceeding forty words, is Two Shillings and Sixpence, every additional word One Penny.

As a guarantee of good faith, the name and address of the sender must accompany each notice.

SAKER.—To the loved and sacred memory of Maria Saker, who passed away Sept. 1, 1902. Mama beloved ever.

SEYMOUR.—In loving memory of Katie Seymour, who fell asleep Sept. 7, 1903. Never forgotten by her friend, Florrie Robina (Mrs. Reed Pinaud).

SEYMOUR.—In memory of Katie Seymour, who died Sept. 7, 1903. Mourned by mother, sister, and brother.

HOW TO KEEP COOL.

We strongly recommend all who suffer from the prevailing heat to add a few drops of Condy's Fluid to the Daily Bath or Foot Bath.

A Condy's Fluid Bath imparts a delightful sensation of Coolness, Freshness, and Purity. It invigorates the body and braces the nerves. The Cooling, Strengthening, and Bracing effects are Simply Magical, they are so very lasting.

Sold by all Chemists. 1/- 3oz., 2oz. 2/- Caution.—Insist on having "Condy's Fluid."

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1906.

JOHNSON AND GARRICK.

Mr. H. B. IRVING, in his third article on "The English Stage in the Eighteenth Century," in the August number of the Fortnightly Review, alludes to the ungrateful and unjust treatment which DAVID GARRICK received from many of his contemporaries.

The facts which Mr. IRVING brings in support of his statements are, in the cases of most of the above persons, conclusive; and they are a distressing disclosure of the base passions by which a successful actor-manager is persecuted and harassed, even in the height of his success. We are inclined to demur, however, to Mr. IRVING'S inclusion of Dr. JOHNSON amongst GARRICK'S enemies. Almost all JOHNSON'S contemporaries appreciated his peculiar character, and forgave him his defects for the sake of his qualities. JOHNSON, indeed, seems to have been allowed in one department much the same licence that was permitted to FOOTE, whom he so much despised, in another. His rudeness was so notorious that things that would have made another man detested were taken, in JOHNSON, as "only pretty Fanny's way." His wit excused all. GARRICK himself said, "JOHNSON shakes the laughter out of you whether you will or no." JOHNSON endured life; GARRICK enjoyed it. JOHNSON was a hypochondriac, who, all his life, combated a habitual melancholy. If he envied the actor anything it was his cheerfulness. "GARRICK," he told BOSWELL, "was a very good man—the most cheerful man of his age." The actor was, by nature, absolutely self-sufficient. JOHNSON was perhaps only happy when in the society of his friends. He understood GARRICK'S character, and appreciated his good qualities. He bore witness to his liberality when all the meaner spirits of the day accused the actor-manager of stinginess. BOSWELL puts down JOHNSON'S prejudice against "players" to his defects of sight and hearing, to the failure of his tragedy, and to the prosperity of his old schoolfellow. But JOHNSON'S whole character and temperament were antipathetic to the drama. He had an analytic rather than a creative genius; he was utterly deficient in humour; and he was a man of books, not of observation. Now the whole art of play-writing and play-acting is based on instinctive intimacy with the world in general. GARRICK said very justly of JOHNSON, "When he lived much with the HERVEYS, and saw a good deal of what was passing in life, he wrote his 'London,' which is lively and easy; when he became more retired he gave us his 'Vanity of Human Wishes,' which is as hard as Greek." It was impossible that such a pair as GARRICK and JOHNSON should not disagree. But, at heart, they were friends. When GARRICK became joint patentee and manager of Drury Lane Theatre, JOHNSON wrote a grand prologue, which GARRICK probably considered laboured and pompous. When the actor-manager offered to produce his old friend's tragedy, Irene, and began to put it into shape by the necessary cuts and alterations, violent disputes took place between him and the author. GARRICK was thus hampered in his work of revision, which would doubtless have mitigated the failure of the play. Then JOHNSON, in his testy, combative way, was ever "saying things" which were reported to GARRICK. The literary labourer was genuinely convinced of the superiority of his own craft to the actor's. And when JOHNSON, with this belief in his own superiority, saw GARRICK flattered fulsomely by the greatest men of the time, he naturally felt annoyed. GARRICK, a poor talker, an inferior littérateur, and a doer rather than a thinker, praised to the top of his bent by such men as Lord MANSFIELD and Lord CHATHAM, was in his heart, perhaps, conscious of deficiencies, and respected in JOHNSON the qualities of depth, earnestness, and wit; and JOHNSON, contemptuous of labours which seemed to him futile and trivial, feeling how little happiness he enjoyed in comparison with GARRICK, was goaded occasionally into a sneer which was really only a symptom of suffering. It always hurt GARRICK that JOHNSON spoke so lightly of him; and when we think how easily GARRICK could have done without JOHNSON altogether, we find in this feeling a strong evidence of affection and respect. Each man seems to have appreciated the other's essential merit remarkably well. GARRICK, moreover, could afford to be generous. He had so many people eager to praise him that he could easily forgive JOHNSON'S splenetic outbursts and bigoted prejudices.

JOHNSON, with all his contempt for "players" as a class, had a warm admiration for GARRICK himself. "Sir," he said to BOSWELL on one occasion, "it is wonderful how little GARRICK assumes. Celebrated men have had their applause at a distance; but GARRICK had it dashed in his face, sounded in his ears, and went home every night with the plaudits of a thousand in his cranium. Then, Sir, GARRICK did not find, but made, his way to the tables and the levées of the great. And he had under him a numerous body of people, who, from fear of his power, hopes of his favour, and admiration of his talents, were constantly submissive to him. He advanced the dignity of his profession, and made a player a higher character. If all this had happened to me I should have had a couple of fellows, with long poles, walking before me to knock down everybody who stood in the way."

GARRICK, wistfully sorry that JOHNSON should speak of him lightly, mimicking him as saying "Davy has some convivial pleasantry about him, but 'tis a futile fellow!": JOHNSON, as Sir JOSHUA REYNOLDS said, looking upon GARRICK as his property, and allowing no one to praise or blame him in his presence—are these not evidences of the genuine regard of each of the pair for the other? GARRICK, of course, comes off best in any comparison. JOHNSON was full of faults; GARRICK was, according to all testimony, remarkably free from failings and weaknesses. But if GARRICK understood and forgave JOHNSON, surely we can.

AT the Royal Court, Warrington, on Monday, Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Elliott's company opened a six nights' engagement with the stirring drama, A City of Sin. Mr. Conrad Heywood acts with dramatic force as Paul Touraine, and Mr. H. W. Hatchman scores well as Mortain; Mr. W. H. Burton is good as Bertrand, and Mr. Charles H. Longden submits a clever sketch of Zep Barzon. Much mirth is caused by Mr. Wilfred Graham and Mr. Val W. Sully as two oppressed married men; Miss Edith Wallis displays histrionic abilities as Alice Bertrand; and the much-wronged Ilma is well-enacted by Miss Jenny Weston. Miss Polly Denville as Zayotte and Miss P. St. John as Chouette are a chic pair of newly-wed damsels. The staging is very effective.

PROMENADE CONCERTS.

At the promenade concert on Thursday, Aug. 23, Dr. R. Vaughan Williams's "Norfolk Rhapsody" was the more important of the two novelties given. Dr. Williams, nephew of Lord Justice Vaughan Williams, was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, and afterwards at the Royal College of Music, where he received his training in composition under Sir Charles Stanford and Sir Hubert Parry; subsequently at Berlin he studied under Max Bruch. The "Norfolk Rhapsody," which is founded on five Norfolk folk-airs, opens with an adagio based on the melody "The Basket of Eggs." The other folk-tunes are "The Captain's Apprentice," remarkable for its melodious freedom; "A bold young sailor, he courted me"; "Ward, the Pirate," a very old naval ballad with a fine, bold air, which is quite in keeping with the subject; and "On Board a 93." On these themes Dr. Williams has produced an appropriate nautical spirit, as well as striking orchestral effects, which were admirably realised by the Queen's Hall band. The audience, greatly pleased with the Rhapsody, gave the composer a most hearty reception when he came on the platform. The other novelty was a Suite in F Major for oboe and strings, by Fini Henriques, of less interest than the former work. The suite contains a prelude, a rather pleasing intermezzo, and a quaint but slightly-written finale. Mr. Henri de Busscher was the soloist, and displayed no little skill and intelligence. The orchestra gave Beethoven's "Egmont" overture, two Hungarian Dances by Brahms, Wagner's Prelude Die Meistersinger, Smetana's symphonic poem "Vitava," and Liszt's Totentanz for piano and orchestra, Mr. Arthur Cooke giving a neat and finished rendering of the solo instrument. Mme. Eve Simony, from the Théâtre de la Monnaie, Brussels, made her first appearance in England. She has a pure and flexible soprano voice, and was heard to great advantage in "Chamant Oiseau," Mr. Fransella playing the flute obbligato. The other vocalist was Mr. John Bardsley, who was well received by the large audience.

An immense audience assembled at Queen's Hall last Saturday, Aug. 25, and enjoyed an excellent and most varied programme, which included a new work by A. Liadoff entitled "Eight Russian Folk-songs" for orchestra. These were named "A Hymn Tune," "Christmas Song," "Lament," "Humorous Song," "Legend of the Birds," "Cradle Song," "Dancing Song," and "Village Dance." The songs were simple in character, with varied orchestral accompaniments, and no particular attempt made in the direction of any serious theme; therefore, there was no special artistic effect beyond the simple melodies. The best of the songs were the "Lament," with a somewhat sad refrain, and a lively dance song. As played by Mr. Wood's fine band, they evidently pleased the audience. Mr. Fransella's flute solos, Allegretto, and Romance, by Godard and Saint-Saëns, were charmingly played; and Miss Eve Simony gained great applause for her remarkable singing of Delibes' "Bell Song" from Lakmé. Mr. Alfred Kastner also was warmly greeted in his harp solos, Serenade and Mazurka-Caprice, of his own composition. In the Toreador Song from Carmen, Mr. William Higley was successful. Among a large number of familiar works, the orchestra admirably rendered J. S. Bach's Toccata in F, Brahms' Two Hungarian Dances, the overture to Zampa, Bizet's suite "L'Arlesienne," and Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance."

A large audience assembled at Queen's Hall on Tuesday evening, as, in addition to a most attractive programme, Mr. Wood introduced a new work by Reinhold Glière, not heard before in this country. The composer was born at Kieff in 1874, and he has studied under Janieff and Hippolitoff Ivanoff at the Conservatoire, Moscow, and the Symphony in E Flat, Op. 8, heard on Tuesday night, was composed in 1899, and first performed at Moscow three years after. The symphony created a most marked impression on the audience at Queen's Hall, not only for its clever orchestration and clear, interesting themes, but also for its bold and striking melodies. There are four movements in the symphony, in which certainly the charming Scherzo takes a prominent position. The Andante also shows evidence of care and finish in its composition; and the dashing Finale concluded a very remarkable work, in which the influence of Tschaikowsky can be observed, but not in mere slavish imitation. The Russian composer's work was admirably played by Mr. Wood's fine orchestra, which also greatly distingush themselves in Smetana's brilliant overture to Die Verkanfte Braut, given at the commencement of the concert. Other good performances by the band were in Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries" (Die Walküre), Auber's overture to Le Cheval de Bronze, and E. German's "Three Dances from Henry VIII." The vocalists were Miss Florence Ballard, who sang "Ah! mon fils," from Le Prophète, with much distinction; and Mr. Henry Turnpenny, who deserved much praise for his able singing of Gounod's fine air "Lend me your aid," from La Reine de Saba. Mr. W. P. Southworth was the solo violoncellist; and Miss Marguerite de Forest-Anderson the solo flautist.

A full measure of sensational scenes is provided in the melodrama Held Apart; or, the Painted Woman, which was originally produced in four acts at the Shakespeare Theatre in the June of 1902. A new act has since been added, the drama starting in the Australian bush, where incidents which were formerly described in the dialogue are now depicted in action, and gives added colour to the play. The plot of the piece is mainly the same as that detailed in our notice of the first production, and many powerful situations are presented in the story of the desperado Jim Douglas, who forces a young girl to marry him in Australia against her will, but is almost immediately arrested for his past crimes, and sent to penal servitude. He is reported to have been killed in an attempt to escape, but turns up at his ancestral home in Scotland temporarily to wreck the happiness of his young wife, who has since married his half-brother. A prominent part in the piece is played by a pet snake, whose aid is successfully invoked in thwarting the villain.

The revised version has now been taken up by Mr. A. Clifton Alderson, who is appearing with his company. Mr. Alderson sustains the rôle of the scheming James Douglas, which he invests with a bombastic air of nonchalance that sits effectively upon him. The actor has a commanding physique, which lends impressiveness to "Captain Jim's" dastardly deeds, and his forcible acting is well combined with a deep and resonant voice and a brutal sneer that provokes the utmost contempt. A principal part in the piece is played by the amateur detective, Hugh Trevor, admirably enacted by Mr. E. G. Batley. The detective has a pleasant habit of assuming the accent and mannerisms of a languid "swell," which are realistically affected by Mr. Batley, whose every appearance is heartily welcomed. Dramatic skill is also displayed in the presentation of the part, and the thrilling lines it contains are delivered in a manner which invariably wins a rousing cheer. Miss Ruby Loncraine makes a prepossessing Sybil Grey, the doubly-wedded wife, whose pink cheeks have gained for her the sobriquet of "the Painted Woman." She gives a touching display of emotion as the young girl of the first act, and plays with confidence and finished skill in the subsequent strenuous scenes. The part of the Countess de Castro is ably played by Miss Ethyle Murray, who effectively portrays the vindictiveness and passion of the jealous-minded Creole, and delivers her lines with venomous emphasis. Mr. John Hood is a fine specimen of vigorous manliness as John Douglas, the Laird of Glenross, his elocution in the part being particularly to be praised; and Mr. A. W. Norman gives a dramatically effective rendering of Captain Ford, of the Australian Mounted Police. A pawky Scotsman is presented in the person of Andrew McPherson, drolly represented by Mr. Robert B. Drysdale, whose Scotch dialect sounds broader still in contrast to the cockney accent which Mr. Thomas Kirkwood as Sergeant Ritchie seems to affect, and the scenes in which these two are associated prove very amusing. Miss Millie Ford makes a matronly housekeeper; Miss Emily Levettez plays with every credit as Lady Grant, and Miss Winifred Love appears as her protegée. A capital performance of a rugged but good-hearted miner is given by Mr. Rupert Mann as Sulky Bill; Messrs. Charles Locke and Lionel Money are alert detectives; and the other parts in a long cast are well embodied. Full advantage is taken of the opportunities for picturesque scenery, several striking sets being revealed.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—The late SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

MR. TREE has recently been the means unconsciously of providing several residents of Wandsworth with unlimited firewood. A railway arch in the busy suburb is utilised for the purpose of storing scenery and stage properties of His Majesty's Theatre when not required for immediate use, and the other day it was discovered that a huge scene representative of Hades was missing. This scene was painted by Mr. Hawes Craven for the production of Ulysses, and to get the gloomy background black velvet was used instead of canvas. This "cloth" cost £300, and was retailed to Wandsworth ladies, by whom the velvet was used for articles of attire. Mr. Tree regards the matter in a very generous spirit. "Fancy," he said, "getting blouses from Hades. One woman, I believe, who had had many bits of carpentry work from that arch, proudly declared that she had not had a bit of firewood for twelve months from anybody but Mr. Tree."

MISS AMY CLEVERE, whose charming taste in dress and refined and piquant style combine to make her the favourite she is, has made a great impression on susceptible Islingtonians by her arch rendering of "Come down Lovers' Lane," by Mills and Scott; and the chorus of her ditty, "I'm sorry, but I can't come out," by Harrington and the late George Le Brunn, has been taken up nightly with great vigour. Both songs are published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MR. "LITTLE THOMAS," the famous corner-man of the disbanded Mohawk-Moore and Burgess Minstrels, has latterly been a source of unalloyed enjoyment to the thousands of visitors who flock to the Happy Valley concerts at Southend-on-Sea. Mr. Chas. Osborne is to be congratulated on the engagement, and Mr. Geo. Chirgwin on his perspicacity in securing the pitch and the services of Mr. Osborne as manager. The success of the venture has been overwhelming.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

MISS DOT STEPHENS' SAD CASE.

Miss Doris Stephens, best known in the professional world as Dot Stephens, a very clever vocalist and dancer, met with a terrible accident late on the Saturday night of June 30. She had fulfilled an engagement at H.M. Theatre of Varieties at Walsall, and left the same night to go to Glasgow, where she was to have appeared the following week. On reaching Wolverhampton she had to wait some time to join the midnight mail on the London and North-Western line, and there met some professional friends. She went to the Hippodrome, Wolverhampton, and was afterwards accompanied to the High Level Station by a gentleman, who secured her a seat in a second-class compartment, and saw that the door on the platform side was properly fastened before the train started. On arrival at Stafford the door on the offside was found to be open and the compartment empty. There was a quantity of luggage on the racks and seats, and as there appeared to have been an accident a light engine was at once despatched up the line to search the track. On reaching Pordhouses, about three miles from Wolverhampton, the unfortunate young lady was found lying in the six foot way in an unconscious state, and terribly injured. She was conveyed to the Wolverhampton station, and thence to the General Hospital. She was found to be seriously lacerated about the head and body. On Sunday afternoon she had recovered consciousness, but had no recollection of how the accident occurred. It is supposed that she was under the impression that she was travelling in a corridor car, and on opening the door fell to the ground. Asked how she could account for the accident, Miss Stephens remarked, "The railway carriage was stuffy, and I went to open the window. After that I recollect nothing more till I regained consciousness in the hospital."

Miss Stephens was a clever vocalist, dancer, and actress, and first appeared with Mr. Bannister Howard as the Salvation Army lass in The Belle of New York, remaining with the company three years. She then joined Mr. George Dance for the part of Mrs. Pineapple in A Chinese Honeymoon and afterwards Mr. C. P. Levilly, understudying Miss Stella Gastelle as Alesia in La Poupée, a part she subsequently played, and was to resume in the autumn in Mr Herbert Ralland's company, lately on tour.

It is intended to purchase an annuity for Miss Stephens, whose terrible misfortune has already excited the greatest commiseration.

All subscriptions will be duly acknowledged in these columns. Subscriptions may be sent to Mr. J. Bannister Howard, Hon. Treasurer, 3, Bedford-street, Strand, W.C.; to the "Dot Stephens Fund," at the Capital and Counties Bank, King-street, Covent Garden; or to the Assistant Hon. Treasurer, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, The Era Office, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

THE BEDFORD.

Mr. B. Pearce Lucas and his trusted lieutenant, Mr. A. F. Lovesy, have been successfully fighting the dog-days, and their programmes at the Camden Town palace of pleasure have drawn most appreciative audiences even with the thermometer at something over 80 deg. in the shade—a real and substantial testimony to the wisdom of liberal catering. In their weekly schemes of amusement the dramatic sketch takes an honoured place, and this item of the two hours' programme always commands the rapt attention of the frequenters, who dearly love a tabloid of melodrama. Such a production is A Woman of the World, presented by that experienced actor, Mr. George M. Marriott, and his popular wife, Miss Edith Finlay; and its story, well seasoned with love and larceny, has the house in its grip from the opening scene of a fancy dress ball until the close, when the villain, Ferdinand Santos, an alien, and his paltry confederate, Richard Seymour, alias Nelson Gwynn, are unmasked. Their machinations against the virtuous Gerald Lyle, a foolish young man seeing life, whom they induce to sign a cheque in his uncle's name, "just for a joke," are told in terse and forcible language, and the whole-hearted devotion of Clara Holmes, the chief villain's step-daughter, so powerfully depicted by Miss Edith Finlay, deeply touches the susceptibilities of gods and pit. Mr. G. M. Marriott plays with the requisite callousness and force the part of Santos; Mr. Sam Rhodes scores as a comic footman; and Mr. C. Wallington is effective as Gerald Lyle.

A duologue of a smart and entertaining kind is presented by the Meymotts, who have evidently come from the theatres. The mere male is one of those dashing, effervescent comedians possessing the true light comedy style as we used to know it in the palmy days of the Criterion, when Charles Wyndham, George Giddens, and W. J. Hill used to evoke peals of laughter by their impersonations in ingenious adaptations from the French. Mr. Meymott—if we may call him so—plays the part of a solicitor, whose study of a case is constantly interrupted by the playing of a piano in the next flat occupied by a young widow, who happens to be, quite unknowingly, of course, one of his clients. The two have a very droll war of words, but both become victims of the tender passion before the close of the duologue, which keeps the house laughing all the time, and winds up with an excellent duet. The lady of the Meymotts, who is, we are given to understand, the daughter of a Lancashire theatrical manager, is a charming actress, and decidedly smart in her comedy. The turn, which is new us, should be quite an acquisition to any music hall programme, the witty dialogue and smart acting making it very acceptable.

Grant and Allen, comedians, exploit some droll business with a pillar-post; Herbert Rule, a singer of the immovable and lugubrious type, has in "I don't know" a song that appeals strongly to the Bedfordians; Frank Seeley's burlesque edition of Cinderella (without the slippers of glass) is whimsical; and Marie Theckla sings acceptably, "All in a garden fair." Miss Nellie Adams, who gives songs at the piano, has some good notes in her voice, but her somewhat peculiar vocal production would be improved by scale practice. Her pianoforte accompaniments would also gain in value if played without a continuous use of the loud pedal. She sings "Idle dreams" with considerable success, and is warmly encored. A musical turn entirely to the tastes of the house is the banjo playing of Stanley and Greenop, who render with much spirit marches by Sousa and the popular melody "Eileen Alannah." Coon songs and dances need no better exponents than the Billy McClain Troupe, including Mdlle. Cordelia. These excellent and alert performers exploit a sketch, entitled The Hottest Coon from Dixie, which is an exceedingly lively example of plantation movement and melody. The Bioscope presents some excellent pictures. Mr. George Hatley directs a capital little band here.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

MR. EDWARD SWANBOROUGH is to be seen on the front almost daily at Hove, where his health has much improved. He is anxious to be in harness again, and to greet his many friends at Chelsea, where he has made himself such a popular figure at the Palace in the King's-road.

MR. FRED BOWYER, the author of The Little Stowaway, was one of the passengers on the motor-'bus that caused severe injuries to several children in the Waterloo-road on Wednesday morning, and is suffering from a nasty wrench of the muscles of the arm, which he has to wear in a sling. He is being attended by Dr. Herbert Edwards, of Balham, and is happily able to see his friends at the Savage Club, of which he is a popular member.

THE London Hippodrome will be presenting on Monday a remarkable entertainment, entitled The Earthquake. In its realisation of a seismic upheaval it promises to far exceed in sensationalism the earthquake in Claudian, which caused many thrills in the "eighties" during the late Mr. Wilson Barrett's season at the Oxford-street house. The spectacle—for so it may be called—opens with "the city square, by morning, noon, and night," in its ordinary aspect, and in the second episode the entire place is seen in flames and succumbing to the devastation which has been so vividly described of late. The "tidal wave" is produced by the rush of thousands of tons of water into the arena, engulfing the city, and the fourth episode is an appalling scene of desolation. The mechanical effects are invented by Frank Parker.

THE cast of The Earthquake, which is written by Alicia Ramsay and Rudolph de Cordovo, includes Mr. Cecil Morton York, an old favourite at the Hippodrome, as Ulysses T. Preston, an American millionaire; Mr. Hal Forde as Frank Preston; Mr. J. Windham Guise as Mick O'Sullivan, a policeman; Mr. Arthur Powell as Li Lung, a Chinese butler; Mr. Scott Craven as Father Dan, a Dominican friar; and Miss Simeta Marsden as Bessie, Frank Preston's sweetheart. The special music has been written by Mr. Clarence Corri.

A CURIOUS coincidence has occurred in connection with the next new production at the London Hippodrome, The Earthquake. Some fifteen months ago it was decided by Sir Edward Moss, Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, and Mr. Frank Parker—the famous producer—to have an earthquake as a successor to a flood. Nature has anticipated that object, and given to the world lurid realism and a terrible disaster. Strangely enough, Mr. Rudolph de Cordova and Mrs. Alicia Ramsay, the joint authors, who have furnished most of the "books" of the Hippodrome productions with extraordinary fidelity, conceived the idea of "the maniac in red," who at Valparaiso rushed through the streets saying that he was the Son of God, and announcing the approaching end of the world. The question of plagiarism, or even adaptation, of a current event is therefore impossible.

THE Harvard and Cambridge crews will be entertained at the Alhambra after the International Boat Race on Saturday next. Mlle. Anne Dancrey, who twelve months ago brought the haunting "Maxixe" from Paris to London, returns to the Alhambra with a budget of chansons aimed at the vanities of the hour. She opens on Monday.

MR. HOUCKE, former manager of the famous old Paris Hippodrome of the Avenue de l'Alma, and who was also for many years manager of the Nouveau-Cirque, has joined forces with Mr. Bostock, and now becomes co-director of the New Hippodrome, Rue Caulaincourt, Paris. Everyone who has been in business relations with Mr. Houcke will be rejoiced to hear the news, for he is certainly one of the most sympathetic, energetic, and go-ahead managers in the circus world. Someone bearing the same name has taken the management of the Nouveau-Cirque. Artists are requested to avoid confusion, and to bear in mind that Mr. Houcke, the present manager of the New Hippodrome, is the original and well-known former manager of the Old Hippodrome and the Nouveau-Cirque.

MR. LESTER BARRETT, looking in the pink of condition after his summer vacation—which was largely spent, we believe, in motoring—was, accompanied by Mrs. Barrett, among those who assembled at Euston shortly before noon on Friday in last week to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. David Day, and Mr. and Mrs. William Francis, on the occasion of their departure for New York. Quite a large gathering of private friends and well-known people connected with the variety stage were there, and the staff was otherwise well represented, there being present, besides Mr. John Smith (the manager), Mr. Charles Wilmott, Mr. William Eyke, Mr. Arthur Francis, Mr. Dan Alger, Mr. Edgar Bateman, and the firm's musical editor, Mr. Henry E. Pether. The "Sixpenny Pops" department was represented by Mr. R. Berridge. Mr. Warwick Williams was also present. Mrs. Day's tiny granddaughter was lifted up to the window to present that lady with a bunch of beautiful roses, and cheers were given for the voyagers as the "American Boat Special," with its two ponderous engines, glided from No. 6 platform.

GREAT transformations, by the way, are taking place in the New Hippodrome. A huge stage, which will be over 40yds. wide and 30yds. deep, is being erected. The electric installation is being completely overhauled. Money is being freely lavished on the improvements, and the re-opening of the Hippodrome will certainly be one of the events of the Paris theatrical season. The place will not be run on purely circus lines, but the greatest attractions will be secured both from America and Europe, and the programme offered to the Parisian public will be worthy of the traditions of the magnificent establishment.

WE very much regret to announce the death of Mrs. Pat Rafferty, the wife of the well-known comedian, which took place at her residence in Clapham-road on Friday of last week. Under the stage name of Emily Lovely the deceased lady was at one time widely known as a singer of Irish melodies. She retired about fourteen years ago, and has since been in an indifferent state of health. The funeral at Tooting Cemetery, on Tuesday, was largely attended. It will be some solace to Mr. Rafferty and his family in their sorrow to know that they have the sympathy not only of the members of the profession, but of a wide circle of friends outside it.

MISS EDITH STEWART was married to Mr. Frank H. France, on Tuesday last, at Fulham Parish Church. The wedding was a quiet one, but the happy couple received many presents and congratulations from friends both in and out of the profession. After a brief honeymoon at Shere, near Guildford, they resume the tour of the successful sketch The 100 to 1 Chance at Rochdale on Sept. 3.

MISS ARABELLA ALLEN'S turn has been going very strong at Hammersmith and Shoreditch this week. The pretty Dickens girl, who has not a vacant date until next April, has the gift of making herself as popular behind the scenes as she is behind the footlights. Without being superstitious, she never forgets to give a quaint bead horseshoe the place of honour on her dressing-table, carrying it with her from hall to hall. Most young actresses make a goodly show of telegrams round their mirrors, especially on the first night. At one time Miss Evie Greene was almost crowded out of her room by her big collection of golliwogs.

DR. WALFORD BODIE finished a highly successful week last Saturday at the Stratford Empire, amidst scenes of unbounded enthusiasm. This week he is repeating his former triumphs at the Coliseum, Glasgow, playing to packed houses nightly. He returns to London, opening at the New Cross Empire.

THE Royal Theatre of Varieties, Oldham, re-opened on Monday with a strong and attractive programme. During the past month this popular hall has been in the hands of the painters and the furnishers, who have effected quite a transformation. The front of the galleries and circle and the ceiling and proscenium are embellished by an artistic blending of ivory white and gold, brightened with a beautiful panel in colours over the proscenium depicting Cupids and the Arts. Against the white and gold the crimson of the new wall covering and the heavy carpet which has been laid over the whole of the circle stands out in effective relief.

AN elaborate system of ventilation and a complete range of heating apparatus have been installed, and a novelty is introduced in the form of an electric light signal for the numbers of the items in place of the old changing cards. Tip-up chairs have been put in all round the circle—an improvement which will be greatly appreciated.

THE Gaiety is a most appropriate name for the new theatre of varieties which was opened in Blyth on Monday. The new house is the old Assembly Room remodelled, the floor being raked and the stage widened. Electric light has been installed, and the interior now looks dainty and bright with its warm colouring. The seating accommodation is about 600. The proprietor is Mr. J. Grantham, and the manager Mr. Snoudeni James.

THE house had a most successful opening on Saturday night, when two performances were given. After a few remarks from the management and the singing of the National Anthem, the various turns were submitted and enthusiastically received. The Comedy Four gave a capital dumb show; Miss Phillis Dagmar was responsible for some pleasing songs; Messrs. Russell and MacFarlane did well; Miss Pattie Chessman proved an accomplished flautist; Arrol, an expert in jugglery, was well received; and the Bioscope pictures projected by the Chrono machine were much appreciated.

MR. JOHN HITCHINS some weeks ago, whilst engaged with a sketch company playing at the Palace, Grimsby, was suddenly seized with illness, which developed into acute pneumonia. He was removed to the Grimsby Hospital, where for some time his life was despaired of, but, thanks to the care and attention of skilful doctors and nurses, the dreadful malady was arrested, and all danger averted. After his discharge from the hospital a few weeks' residence at the Woofindin Convalescent Home at Sheffield completed his recovery, and his many professional and other friends will be pleased to know that he is now fit and well, and ready to resume his part in the duologue Husbands, Beware, for which he has been specially retained by Miss Frances Ferina.

YOUNG FOX, the Blackpool shoeblack (who made a brave but unsuccessful attempt to rescue a boy who had been washed off the steps by a huge wave on the North Shore), has been appearing on the Hippodrome stage this week. F. V. St. Clair, who is appearing at that establishment, wrote a special song-poem on the incident, Mr. Manager Duignan got out special bills, and the little scena has been the talk of Blackpool. The recitation has been printed, and the proceeds will be handed over to the brave lad this (Saturday) evening by Mr. Duignan.

MLLE. KLOET, "the artist's model," whilst playing this week at the Palace, Glasgow, had a very narrow escape of being burnt to death. On Tuesday, at her private apartments, she was suddenly awakened about the middle of the night by the landlady's cries of "Fire!" Immediately leaving her bedchamber, she was greeted with shouts of "Quick, quick, everybody! Fire, fire!" On reaching the landings and steps she found the occupants of the house, amidst smoke and flames, but making successful endeavours to reach the street. When she arrived there in her night attire she found herself amidst firemen, fire-engines, and police. It was some time before she knew what had really happened, but on gaining consciousness she found that some kind soul had taken pity on her, and had wrapped her in a red tablecloth. The fire, which caused much damage, was got under by about 4 a.m. We hope that the shock to her system will not prevent her continuing her engagements. She opens next week with Mr. Barrasford, at Newcastle.

ON Wednesday Mr. Tom Atkinson, general-manager of the Morecambe Winter Gardens, took his first benefit. The first show was at 2.30, and the second at 7.15, which latter continued until one o'clock on Thursday morning. A stupendous programme was submitted, including a fancy dress carnival, in which Fred Karno's comedians and Marie San Toi's company assisted in the fun-making. Mr. Atkinson was the recipient of many congratulations, and he, in his turn, thanked his brother managers for "lending" him the excellent turns they did.

SO popular have become the entertainments at the Gorleston Pavilion, under the direction of Charles West and Tom Carney, that visitors have had great difficulty in getting into the building unless very early at the doors. That the twain have not yet lost their hold over the affections of visitors to the Norfolk coast—and both are old Yarmouth favourites—was evidenced on the occasion of Mr. Carney's benefit on Thursday, the 23rd inst. (and again on the 30th, when a similar function took place in honour of Mr. West), when hundreds upon hundreds of people were turned away.

MISS MILLIE HYLTON started a seventeen weeks' tour last week at the Empire, Leeds, and produced two new songs by Messrs. A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, entitled "Little London Fairy" and "Zuyder Zee," both songs being a tremendous success. The chorus of the latter was sung with great enthusiasm by the audience. Miss Hylton is this week appearing at the Hippodrome, Hull, where she received quite an ovation on Monday night.

THE Winter Gardens, Morecambe, have resounded to the cadences of the sweetest music during the engagement there of the popular Savonas, who have exploited at this popular holiday resort their wonderful combination of harmony and spectacular display, The Palace of Orpheus, in which youth, beauty, and talent combine to take the senses captive.

MR. ARTHUR PRINCE, who is the prince of ventriloquists, started his career as a conjurer and illusionist, having always possessed the gift of "throwing his voice." He never practises, and his single dummy—Jim, the sailor boy—is as well-known in America as he is in London music halls. Mr. Prince has used Jim for twelve years, and makes up his face with real grease paint; but unfortunately, during one of his master's trips across the Atlantic, Jim's carefully-modelled head of papier-maché was crushed flat, and the young ventriloquist had to work for several hours—using his wife's white kid gloves for the repairs—to get it into shape for the first performance in New York. Mr. Arthur Prince, as most of our readers know, is the husband of Miss Ida René.

LE ROY, TALMA, AND BOSCO commence to-night a four weeks' season at the Alhambra, Paris, in which city they enjoy as much popularity as in any in Great Britain. Their recent tour of several home variety theatres has been an enormous success, and already the provinces are eagerly anticipating the mystical play, now being rapidly prepared, and in which will be introduced some entirely new and startling novelties.

EDDIE HARVEY'S is the first death of a member of the Variety Artists' Federation, and the first death levy of 6d. will amount to about £75. This fact in itself would be more than sufficient to justify the existence of this vigorous young association, which is making giant strides in the affections of the people's entertainers.

MR. JAMES DOUGHTY, the oldest clown alive in Great Britain, who has, for nearly thirty years, been a prominent attraction with his highly-trained troupe of dogs on the West Pier, and has had the honour of performing before the late Queen Victoria and his present Majesty, Edward VII., on several occasions, commemorated his eighty-eighth birthday on Tuesday by appearing once more in the motley at his trio of benefit entertainments kindly given by the management of the Pier Company. The veteran jester was almost pelted at the end of each show with showers of silver coins. His kindness in training his animals has won for him the first-class award of the R.S.P.C.A. Jem Doughty was in excellent condition, and at his residence received quite an ovation, which lasted till the shades of night had set in.

TWO notable changes were made in the "Urbanora" animated pictures at the Alhambra on Monday, when the stirring scenes of the bivouac of the London Scottish on the heath-clad hills of Culloden were supplemented by two new films of conspicuous quality. The first, "The Miner's Daughter," depicts all the incidents of a condensed melodrama, expressly arranged for this presentation; the second is the earliest pictorial records to hand of the Wellman Balloon Expedition to the North Pole, and includes the rescue of the passengers of the stranded Danish steamer, the temporary usurpation of the Danish island by Americans, and many other incidents of the seemingly impossible undertaking, only the barest details of which have as yet come over the cable.

ON the application of Mr. Hedderwick, representing the Theatrical Managers' Association, Mr. Marsham, the magistrate sitting at Bow-street, granted a summons on Tuesday against the Holborn Empire in respect of the production there of an alleged stage-play, entitled Moses and Sons.

MESSRS. JOHN P. HARRINGTON and Jas. W. Tate's tuneful, satirical topical song, "Skyland," will have a special production on Monday next in The Belle of Mayfair on tour, and will be rendered by Mr. Charles McNaughton (brother of Tom McNaughton), who plays the principal comedy part, and numerous auxiliaries. "Skyland" forms one of the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s "six-penny successes" series.

MR. BRANSBY WILLIAMS sailed from Liverpool on Tuesday, per the s.s. Caronia, for a season in New York, and through our columns desires to say "au revoir" to his many friends in and out of the profession. He had a hearty send-off from the famous landing stage on the Mersey, and telegraphic messages of good-will came from all parts of the kingdom. Among those who wished him bon voyage and a prosperous time were members of the Blue Pigeon Society, formed during the last Liverpool pantomime season.

THE young actor, who will do homage to the genius of Dickens in America, has received the following flattering acrostic as a tribute to his talents:—

BRANSBY WILLIAMS.
B ill Sikes, Micawber, and Uriah Heep,
R are Daniel Peggotty—these you finely play,
A nd the old Grandfather. Treasured we will keep N ames that are household words. And when, alas! away
S teams the Caronia, for fair winds we'll pray.
B right be the sky as you approach New York,
Y our genius the sole theme of universal talk.

W elcome back home! we cannot spare you long.
I mpatiently your friends pace landing stage,
L ook seawards for the ship so proud and strong,
L ifting you nearer to your rightful stage.
I n truth, our King but voiced the nation's thought
A s he congratulated you in Norfolk home.
M ay triumph upon triumph yet be brought
S afe to your shrine, near London's mighty dome!

—HELEN BRINCKMAN.

MISS CORA CASSELLI has secured a good Spanish number in "Nina mine," from the pens of the two Percys (Percy Edgar and Percy Ashdown).

SIR EDWARD MOSS'S AND MR. FRANK ALLEN'S private secretary, Mr. William Nokes, was presented on Friday, the 24th ult., with wedding gifts, which included a handsome silver epergne, a silver cake basket, and several pieces of fine china by the clerical staff of Moss's Empires and Stoll Companies. The presentation was made in the Publicity Department by Mr. Llewellyn Johns on behalf of his colleagues. Congratulations, however, were general.

MR. WILL CRACKLES deputised for Mr. Wilkie Bard at the Empress last week. The popular comedian was in his best form, and scored a great success.

MLLE. ADELINE GENEE returned on Wednesday to the cast of Coppelia, invigorated by a brief holiday. The popular danseuse twirled and pirouetted through the delightful opening waltz to an accompaniment of applause, and her command of the poetry of motion again enthralled her admirers.

MR. FRANK LYNNE has just sold to Messrs. Francis Day and Hunter a novelty song, entitled "Do, my Honey-dew" (a smoky serenade). It has been made a "free" song, and should be much sought after by artists who like pretty singing numbers.

THE latest quotations of music-hall shares are as follow: Alhambra, 1⅛; Canterbury, 1; Empire (15s. paid), 1⅛; Empire (10s. paid), 1; London Pavilion Ordinary, 3⅛; London Pavilion Preference, 5; London Coliseum, ⅛; Metropolitan, ⅞; Moss' Empires, 4⅞; Moss' Empires 5 per cent. Preference, 3⅛; Oxford, 6⅞; Palace, 11; Tivoli, 6; Variety Consolidated Theatres, 14.

MR. EUGENE STRATTON has been persuaded by Mr. Sydney M. Hymas to present his entertainment at the Hyman halls in South Africa, and will sail for that country about the middle of December. 'Gene studied the nigger and his ways in the States. On the Rand he will not find the black so pleasant or so interesting.

MR. GEORGE ADNEY PAYNE'S letter in another column throws a lurid light on the practice of secret trade and "professional" commissions in the halls. The modern variety theatre, it must be remembered, is the development of the ancient sing-song, and some of the objectionable practices of the older institution still survive. It is Mr. Payne's determination to do his utmost to stamp them out; but his drastic ukase does not refer to the very common and—artists tell us—very necessary custom of "tipping" the staff behind the stage.

THE Camberwell Empire will open its doors to the public on Monday under the managing-directorship of Mr. Jesse Sparrow, who will have as his right-hand man Mr. Harry Bawn. Mr. Frank Hurst has been appointed director of the orchestra, and Mr. W. Nutt will stage-manage.

HACKENSCHMIDT, the young Russian lion, who was announced to appear at the Grand, Clapham, this week, has been indisposed. Mr. Walter Gibbons was fortunate enough to secure the services as a substitute of Mr. Joe Elvin and company, and in Paying the Bill they have kept Claphamites in roars of laughter.

GILLIN, a new humorous ventriloquist, will make his first appearance at the Palace on Oct. 15. The developments of the art of polyphony of late years would astonish its early exponents, such as Love, Woodin, Thurton, and Maccabe, could they revisit Mother Earth, and Gillin is said to be right up to date.

CONGRATULATIONS to Mr. James McCarthy, manager of the Britannia, who has just become engaged to Miss Lily Lassah. This clever young burlesque artist made a decided hit in the Hoxton pantomime last year, and has been engaged by Mr. Bannister Howard to appear as principal boy in the next Crystal Palace annual.

MR. CARTER LIVESEY AND MISS LILIAN ROSEBERY were unable to accept Mr. Alfred Butt's offer to open a week earlier at the Palace. They, however, commence a re-engagement there for three weeks, commencing Sept. 10.

MR. HARRY LAUDER is laid aside by an attack of laryngitis, which has prevented him from appearing at his engagements for the last fortnight.

MISS BILLIE BARLOW, the favourite burlesque actress, when recently appearing with her customary success at the Pavilion, Greenock, discovered that there was only one mere male in the bill. The stage, therefore, was almost an "Adamless Eden."

DON JUAN CAICEDO, who is now spending a pleasant holiday with his family at Bexhill, caused a decided sensation at the great Shrewsbury Fête last week. The King of the Wire performed at a height of 40ft., and the grace, skill, and intrepidity of his feats won for him most enthusiastic applause. He goes to the Manchester Hippodrome on the 10th inst., and has been secured as a star attraction for the Christmas and New Year season at the Agricultural Hall, where he will commence to funambulate on Saturday, Dec. 22.

THE skit on the "Back to the Land" topic, entitled The Land Grabbers, is the latest production of Messrs. Ward and Andrews, who have been complimented by the leader of the movement. There are ample opportunities for fun in such a concoction, and the authors have taken full advantage of them; the comedians do the rest, and the success achieved this week at the King's Theatre, Longsight, is great.

THE Sisters Levey (Adèle and May Lilian) in consequence of their success at the Queen's, Poplar, have been offered further dates by that astute manager, Mr. Jack Woolf, who is making things hum in the neighbourhood of the docks.

MR. REUBEN ADCOCK CUSHMAN, familiarly known thirty years ago—with his partner Dick Dean—in the music-hall profession—as a versatile and popular negro performer, died at his residence, 17, Franklin-road, Portslade, Sussex, on Friday, 24th ult., in his sixty-fourth year. He had for some years retired from the stage, and carried on the occupation of a licensed victualler. Early in life he married a sister of Fred Bullen, a well-known pianist, and commenced his career with the old Snowdrop Minstrels. He fulfilled many engagements at the Canterbury and Oxford, and was a great favourite in London, Brighton, Sheffield, Birmingham, and other towns. His eldest son, Mr. F. W. A. Cushman, a solicitor in Brighton and Portslade, with deceased's widow and daughters, were present at the interment in Portslade Cemetery on Wednesday afternoon. The Vicar of St. Andrew's Church read the Burial Service.

STROLLING during a recent holiday on to the beautifully-situated North Pier at Blackpool, the writer heard merry laughter proceeding from a large crowd seated round the outdoor pavilion, and found that Walter Graham, the human marionette, was exercising his humorous powers. He is just now finishing a three months' tour, and will bring his new scena, King Neptune, to the London Pavilion on Monday.

THAT sweet-voiced singer, Mr. G. H. Elliott, has acquired a song entitled "Maisie, I'm a-waiting; or, you ain't the gal for me," by Charles Wilmott, with music by Kennedy Russell. It has been accepted by Mr. David Day for publication. The last song purchased by Mr. David Day prior to his departure for America was J. F. Lambe's "The Bonnie Brier Bush," music by H. E. Pether.

MR. AUBREY HYMAN, one of the directors of the New Empire, Johannesburg, will arrive in London to-day, and expects to stay in England for about six months.

MR. J. J. FRUIN, secretary of the Music Hall Home, desires to acknowledge the receipt of a cheque value £10 from Mr. Harry Calver, hon. sec. of the Birmingham Charity Sports, this amount being the portion of the proceeds allotted to the Home.

MISS MARIE LLOYD paid a flying visit to the Hastings Pier Pavilion on Tuesday, and gave a selection from her popular songs before a crowded audience.

MENDEL, the blind pianist, is paying another return visit to Bournemouth Winter Gardens this week. On Tuesday evening, at the classical concert, he aroused tremendous enthusiasm, and was personally complimented by Mr. Dan Godfrey for his playing of Weber's "Grand Polonaise," arranged by the Abbé Liszt, accompanied by the full orchestra of about fifty performers, and conducted by Mr. Godfrey.

MR. GODFREY A. YATES, the well-known agent, owing to the big increase in his business, has taken offices in the centre of the city, near the new Tivoli and Central Hall, 29, Newington-chambers, Newington, Liverpool.

MR. HARRY S. HART, speciality and variety agent, has just returned from a Continental holiday, during which he had a most enjoyable time at Ostend, Blankenbergh, Brussels, Liege, and Paris. He spent the last five days amid the gaieties of Margate.

THE Narow Brothers, who possess broad views of their responsibilities in the direction of comedy, are exploiting a very novel act, which has been secured by Mr. Oswald Stoll for a dozen Empires and for the London Hippodrome. They are being pioneered by the up-to-date Will Dalton, of Dalton's Agency, 5, Matlock-avenue, West Didsbury, Manchester.

THE Brewster Troupe, after a run of eight months on the Continent and South America, have again returned to the Continent, and are now fulfilling a return date at the Société Theatre, Bordeaux. They come back to England for pantomime with Messrs. Dottridge and Longden. Miss Kitty Brewster is cast for principal girl.

THE London Pavilion and the Palace cricket teams had a very pleasant game at Tufnell Park on Wednesday, when the former eleven won somewhat easily. There was some trepidation, however, among the friends of the Piccadilly-circus men when three of their best wickets went down for seven, the bowler being Wilson, a Cambridge University man. The tide of misfortune was, however, soon turned, and a victory by a hundred runs scored.

MEIER AND MORA have produced at the Surrey Theatre this week, for the first time in England, their novel ship scena. As the curtain rises there is disclosed to view a representation of the boat-deck and bridge of an ocean liner in a most realistic manner. "I don't know where I'm going, but I'm on my way," is the title of a song introduced by Miss Mora, whose clever acting and dancing brought down the house on Monday, her beautiful costumes being much admired. Mr. Meier's gentlemanly exhibition of athletic skill must also be seen to be appreciated. The show closes with a most striking novelty. The stage is darkened, a focus lime is thrown on Miss Mora, who mounts a pedestal and goes through a peculiar dance, at the same time touching different plates with her toes and playing "Rule Britannia" on the chimes. The show throughout was a genuine success.

THE London Meeting of the International Artists' Lodge was held on Sunday last at the Sovereign, St Martin's-lane, and drew a small attendance. A letter was read from the Batavia Line Steamship Co. informing the meeting that their representative will call and attend next Tuesday's committee meeting for the purpose of putting before it the concessions that the company is prepared to grant. The secretary informed the meeting that two copies of the petition regarding the quarantine for dogs had been sent from Berlin, and that one was to be sent to the Board of Agriculture and one to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. It was agreed that these matters be laid before the Executive Committee on Tuesday next.

A HIGHLY successful Entente Cordiale fête was held in the Victoria College Grounds, Jersey, on Thursday, the 23rd ult., when the band of the 47th Regiment of France visited the island. The grounds were brilliantly illuminated, and an excellent programme was gone through by the French band and that of the 1st East Surrey Regiment. Over 5000 people witnessed the fête, and the management of the Triangle Park closed their entertainment for that evening.

THE entire staff of the Colchester Hippodrome (one of the latest of the de Frece houses), together with the wives of the married men, in all numbering fifty persons, had their summer outing on Sunday last. The party travelled by brakes to Clacton-on-Sea by way of Bentley Golf Links and St. Osyth at an early hour, and did not reach Colchester again until midnight. Dinner and tea were served on the bowling green of the Warwick Castle Hotel. Sailing, boating, and swimming occupied the daylight hours, and with the twilight came music in plenty. Mr. James Hargreaves presided at the piano, in addition to which he rendered several songs of his own composition. Mr. Ben de Frece, the popular manager, showed unmistakably that he had not lost his cunning in the art of conjuring; and Mr. Ted Thomas, of the "Oxford, London," kept the fun at top speed with numerous songs in character, his rendering of "One-and-a-penny a day" sending the whole party into roars of laughter. The arrangements were most admirably carried out by Mr. Ben de Frece, whilst the treasury was administered by the talented conductor, Mr. James Hargreaves.

LES MOLASSO QUARTET, at the Hackney Empire on Monday, hail from Russia. There are two ladies and two gentlemen in the team, and on the Continent their act has caused a sensation, consisting as it does of a series of "cyclonic dances." English variety theatre frequenters are quite used by this time to the ordinary Russian dance. Les Molasso, however, bring with them quite a new order of things, for while their dancing is the fastest in the world their movements are always graceful, and compel admiration by their grace as well as dexterity. It is interesting to learn that Les Molasso have 102 awards in their possession, obtained on the score of their good looks and skill. A beautiful diamond star was the gift of the Czar, the superb bracelets worn by the ladies were a substantial tribute from Kaiser Wilhelm, and King Victor Emanuel of Italy sent Les Molasso a portrait of himself in a gold-mounted frame as a souvenir.

SO great a place have the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s "sixpenny successes" already obtained in the affections of South African music-lovers, that a second large order for many thousands of copies has this week been received by the Berners-street firm through their sole African agents, the "Cape Times, Ltd.," which has been duly executed and dispatched, per Messrs. Ledger and Sons, of St. Mary Axe, to Cape Town this day (Saturday).

MESSRS. A. J. MILLS and Bennett Scott have just supplied the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. with a special new number, with the pretty title "Somebody cares for you." This charming love-song is acknowledged on all hands to be one of the finest compositions that has yet emanated from the gifted pens of Messrs. Mills and Scott, and should certainly be in great demand with principal boys for forthcoming annuals.

THE 478th meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association was held at the offices on Tuesday, when Mr. Fred Neiman occupied the chair. There were also present Messrs. Frank Gerald, J. Alexander, Harry Griff, Fred Herbert, Geo. Preston, Jeff Vendome, C. Douglas Stuart (secretary), and Douglas White (hon. treasurer). Minutes of the previous meeting were read and passed, and matters arising out of them dealt with. Mr. Biderton, of the Prospect Hotel, Douglas, was appointed agent for the Association in that town. A letter was read from Mr. Michael Nolan resigning his position on the committee, he having been elected on the executive of the V.A.F. The resignation was accepted with regret, and the succession to the vacancy of Mr. Harry Coulin was approved. Mr. Robert Marshall, of the Promenade, Douglas, I.O.M., was appointed hon. medical officer to the Association.

A LETTER was read from Mr. Harry Tate giving a satisfactory explanation of his absence from the meetings. With regard to other absentees, who had not acknowledged the secretary's communication, it was resolved that a registered letter be addressed to each, enclosing a copy of Rule 23, and stating that the committee would be glad of an answer, but that no reply would be considered as an indication of his desire to retire. The hon. treasurer presented his monthly financial statement, and the secretary's cash account, showing the addition of eighteen new members, the receipt of £25 3s., and the expenditure of £12 1s. 9½d., was also received.

CORDIAL good wishes will be extended to Mr. Douglas White, the hon. treasurer of the M.H.A.R.A., whose daughter is to be married on Tuesday next. On announcing at the committee meeting of the Association on Tuesday that he would be absent from their next week's deliberations, owing to that happy event, Mr. White was the recipient of many congratulations, and the hope was expressed that his daughter would have as good a husband as she had a father.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE SURREY.

To find thorough enjoyment and appreciation one has only to pay a visit to the Surrey, where an audience eager, responsive, and enthusiastic follows with keen interest each turn on the admirable programme provided by Mr. Frank Macnaghten for their entertainment. Harry Champion delights the house immensely with three of his lightning ditties, the favourite of the trio being "I see you've got the old brown hat on," which, sung in his droll and original style, evokes from his audience bursts of unbounded merriment. His other two, "Keep on, old girl, keep on," and "Father did look funny," score an ovation. Meier and Mora are smart American artists, who appear in a pretty set representing the deck of a yacht. They give an entertainment of rare merit, Mora leading with a tuneful coon song, "I don't know where I'm going, but I'm on my way," with its accompanying cake walk, full of grace, and thrilling in its tireless activity. Meier gives a demonstration of ball punching that raises the enthusiasm of the audience. It reaches a climax at the final combination of ball and bells. Carle Verdo, on bagpipes, sleigh bells, banjo, cornet, concertina, and other musical instruments, gives evidence of having mastered them all, his series of popular airs being chorused with gusto by his delighted hearers. Lizzie Daniels is a bright and merry soubrette; her pretty song, "In the shade," and skilful dancing early in the evening put the house into great good humour. George Brooks is extremely funny in his burlesque fireman's song, "That's what I heard as I sat by the fire," and provokes much mirth with "All Scotch." Rosie Archer, in her mimicry of favourite artists, hits off with marked effect and ability such favourites as Vesta Victoria, Gus Elen, and Harry Lauder. Ernest Rees is a very droll comedian, and in merry patter aptly attacks many of the foibles of the day. His medley recital, in which he names many well-known racehorses, is cleverly compiled, and wins him a hearty encore. The Sivronis, burlesque comedy artists, combine some screamingly funny business with good singing and clever acrobatism. The lady sings well, and is charmingly costumed in a variety of elegant gowns. Her partner is ludicrously funny, first in a bathing suit, and then in a burlesqued Highland costume, in which he evokes shrieks of laughter. An American dramette entitled The Dandy Detective is energetically played by Miss Carlotta De Yonson and her company .This episode of life in the bush tells how Risque Lincoln, the Black Hawk, and his gang are foiled in their attempt to rob the mail by the smartness of Kit Carson and his patrol, who capture some of the gang and follow the trail of the remainder to Mother Brady's drinking saloon, where the Black Hawk is awaiting the return of his followers, with his pretty daughter Tess. Black Hawk hears the troopers coming, and gets ready a poisoned glass of liquor to put an end to Kit Carson. Tess, however, finds that Kit is an "old pal" of her youth, and cleverly frustrates her father's plan. Kit has his suspicions that the gang is hiding in the shanty, and pretends to withdraw his men, leaving his little bugler Patch in hiding. The Hawk then reveals to his lieutenant, Yaller Jack, that Tess is not his daughter, but the child of Morgan, the chief of the detective force, whom he stole out of revenge, to train her as a thief, so that when she was convicted he might reveal her identity to her father. The little bugler overhears this; and, in attempting to escape, is caught by the Hawk, and is only saved from death by the intercession of Tess, who keeps the rascals at bay with her revolver. By clever disguises Kit, first as the meek parson, the Rev. Tobias, and afterwards as the Jew, Ikey Mo, gets into the gang's confidence, and is thus able to capture the whole of them. The Black Hawk, in attempting to escape, is shot by the troopers, and thus love is triumphant and villainy punished. In the title-rôle Mr. C. Douglas Carlile assumes a trio of characters with great versatility, and whether as the Dandy Detective, the Rev. Tobias, or as the sly old Jew, supplies a graphic series of character studies. Miss Carlotta De Yonson brings into vivid prominence the wild carelessness of a nature warped by her rough surroundings, but emphasises in clever fashion the underlying tenderness and devotion of true womanhood. Mr. Charles A. Carlile as the Hawk is remarkably good, and puts in some powerful work in the last scene. Messrs. Lee Gilbert as the bugler, J. Manton as two of the gang, and A. Whittaker as Yaller Jack, handle their parts carefully and well. A mad revel of fun and acrobatism is supplied by the Gregson's Comedy Troupe in their exhilarating act, The Dummy. They keep the ball of fun and frolic rolling merrily all the time, and win a series of well-earned recalls. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux entertain and interest the audience with the splendid picture, "Black Beauty, or Saved by the Intelligence of a Horse," and create much merriment in depicting "Brown's Fishing Excursion."

THE MIDDLESEX.

A distinctly novel act is furnished this week at the Middlesex by Mlle. Cordite and Buffalo. Both are attired in the rough and picturesque dress of the Wild West, and both are exceedingly skilful in the rope-spinning line. Mlle. Cordite, moreover, excels as a lassoo thrower. Her spinning of a rope 54ft. long is, perhaps, her most notable feat, and we are informed that no cowboy has been able to manipulate in like manner a rope longer than 50ft. She jumps backwards and forwards into and from the circles formed by her ropes in an astonishingly smart manner. Then we get imitations of a child's hoop, and the rapid formation of knots, and the changing of bands while the rope is making revolutions. A comedienne who pleases her audience with her refined verses and tuneful singing is Miss Dora Lyric. She has a very pretty number in "Your dada doesn't love you better than mine loves me." Miss Lyric can always rely upon a good reception. The agile Rozel is seen in a gymnastic act, which demonstrates his cleverness and daring; and the Sisters Vincent offer some agreeable duets and dances. "Mr. E." proves himself an entertaining lecturer. A number of magic-lantern pictures are thrown upon the screen, and Mr. E. discourses in irresponsible, though jocular, style, upon a variety of subjects, from Lady Godiva to Grace Darling. Then he relieves himself of a string of limericks, which are neatly and aptly turned.

Bright and sprightly is Miss Queenie Lawrence, gorgeously attired in a dream of a sparkling cream gown. "What makes me love you as I do?" is one of her songs, and when the question is addressed to a member of the orchestra there is a hearty outburst of laughter. On her second appearance she voices in her vivacious way the praises of one Sadie, a very lively girl about town. Mr. Harry Maxam contrives to be extremely amusing with his comedy turn; and Stacey and Williams furnish the house with many moments of merriment. Mr. Dick Cruikshank and company appear in the absurdity, Bridget's Idea, the moral of which is "how to gain the sympathy of your landlord when you are two years in arrears with the rent." The assumption of death on the part of Bridget's husband, and of both of them later, affords opportunities for ridiculous situations, and the humour of these is capitally presented by Mr. Cruikshank and his supporters in the sketch. Phillips and Merritt contribute some whimsical ideas to the evening's amusement, and their coon singing and dancing prove highly acceptable. Exceedingly diverting are the quaintly comical sayings and doings of the Lorrisons, and it would be difficult to find a more hilarious couple. The Five Whiteleys, the well-known Continental speciality artists, win hearty favour for their clever pot-pourri act; and Wyze and Atla are to be recommended as society entertainers.

Much excitement is centred around the wrestling combats of Mr. Arthur Norton, who is described on the programme as the 9-stone Græco-Roman champion of the world, and winner of the International Championship belt. Norton advertises a world challenge to men of his own weight, the conditions being that he will give £25 to any man not exceeding 9 stone who can defeat him in 15 minutes, and £5 to anyone whom he fails to throw in the same space of time; while a valuable silver cup is offered to any amateur not exceeding 9st. 4lb. who can last the number of minutes mentioned. On the evening of our visit to the Middlesex, Norton took on three wrestlers, and triumphed in each case, in spite of the fact that he could not have been as fresh to the work with the last two as he was with the first man. Fine form and great skill were shown by all the contestants, and it says much for Norton's strength and wrestling abilities that he was able to emerge victorious from all the bouts. Mr. Fred G. Brooke and Miss Dora Deane are presenting the sensational sketch, written by themselves, entitled A Lost Woman. Miss Dora Deane as Phyllis brings to her acting strong emotional gifts and tragic power; and Mr. Brooke makes full use of the opportunities of displaying his versatility in the part of Pierre Cousset, the detective. Mr. Hamilton Vaun as the deceived husband of Phyllis, Mr. Wesley Carker as the treacherous Felix Lascelles, Miss Irene Addison as the latter's confederate in crime, and Mr. Richard Weston as an artist fulfil the requirements of their various rôles in able manner. The new and attractive pictures shown by the New Bioscope find many admirers, and the series bearing the title of "The Holidays" is particularly praiseworthy.

EALING HIPPODROME.

Mr. E. W. James has secured an undoubted attraction in Mr. Alfred Lester, who appears here this week in the Scene-Shifter's Lament—a short résumé of which was given in our last week's notice of the Holborn Empire. Mr. Lester's plans for the rehabilitation of the fortunes of the house whose scenes he so deftly (?) shifts are ingenious and amusing. Whether the "grave-digger's" scene in Hamlet could be popularised on the lines he suggests may be open to question; but of one thing there can be no doubt, and that is the success of the little scena. After hearing and seeing the Scene-Shifter, it is easy to imagine that—as he says—a production of Hamlet must have been very different in Shakespearean times to what it is in the present day. Miss Scarisbrick lends valuable assistance in the Lament, which bristles with happy impromptus from commencement to end, and both artists were loudly acclaimed at the fall of the curtain on Monday. A little disappointment was shown in the house on Monday evening when the card of "Deputy" went up in place of the "Ongars," but when the substitute appeared in the charming personality of Miss Daisy Dormer, pleased surprise spread over all faces, and the enchanting soubrette instantly sang and danced herself into popular favour. Her two numbers, "I want a girl" and "Is it you, Mr. Brown?" were rendered with archness and vivacity, and being wedded to tuneful melodies gave immense satisfaction. Miss Dormer's triumph came, however, in her inimitable "Buck Dance," which thoroughly earned the tumult of applause accorded to it. The Ramlos appear in their "Whirl of humorous movements." The happily associated trio, after the "sensational" shooting of a duck, proceed to execute some of the most daring acrobating ever seen upon the stage, while a "Hackenschmidt" catch-as-catch-can wrestling incident upon the horizontal bars is irresistibly comic. The trio of "Squire," "Gamekeeper," and "Carrots" are wonderful gymnasts, and their performance is smart and funny. Miss Ethel Ra-Leslie—who, we are glad to find, has recovered from her recent indisposition, is heard with excellent effect in her two songs, "Will you be my Butterfly?" and Balfe's "I dreamt I dwelt in Marble Halls." The talented artist looks very handsome in her sky-blue costume of the Georgian period, and her reception is most hearty. The Two Walonells, Continental comedy gymnasts, are responsible for some remarkable back-twisting somersaulting executed with precision and without effort.

Miss Kitty Clover's comedy company is presenting the laughable sketch, entitled Mr. There's Heir. A young author, Mr. Charlie There (Mr. R. Courtney) is likely to be involved in a law-suit, owing to his brother disputing his father's will, under which he inherits £50,000. Through lack of funds to fee the lawyers, Charlie's chances of success are somewhat remote. However, without his knowledge, his faithful domestic, Sally Slops, a delightful low comedy character, finely played by Miss Kitty Clover, has purchased two tickets in the great Belgian Lottery, and at the moment when his fortunes appear to be at the lowest ebb, she learns that the lucky number 1035, which she had bought in his name, is the winner of the £500 prize. Sampson Samp (Mr. C. Alister), an eccentric solicitor, has, in the meantime, also seen the announcement, and introducing himself showers congratulations upon the lucky winner, who is, as yet, ignorant of his good fortune, and the fact that he has no recollection of having invested his money in the lottery only adds to his bewilderment. However, explanations follow, and in the end poor Sally Slop's share in the transaction is discovered and gratefully acknowledged by her master. His brother ultimately abandoning his opposition, Charles obtains his £50,000. The sketch is played with spirit and smartness by the little company, and is a decided success.

Mr. Theo Hardeen, "the world's greatest handcuff and trunk mystifier," assisted by Miss Trixy is giving his "Sensation of the Universe." In response to an invitation, on the night of our visit, some half-dozen handcuff experts invaded the stage and proceeded to secure the performer in a manner they each considered the most effective. Four pairs of handcuffs encircled his wrists, and to another pair, attached to his ankles, his hands were coupled. For a few moments Hardeen availed himself of the shelter of his cabinet, but almost instantly all five pairs of manacles were thrown upon the floor. The "experts" seemed considerably surprised, and exhibited genuine astonishment. An even more sensational incident was supplied by the aid of the trunk. Manacled—and sealed in a sack—the performer was placed therein, and securely locked and roped. Miss Trixy then smilingly invited the audience to watch closely. For a moment she disappeared behind the curtained cabinet, but almost instantly the drapery was withdrawn, and Hardeen was himself seen outside the still locked and corded trunk, from which, upon the attachments being severed, Miss Trixy emerged.

Mr. Johnny Dwyer, a favourite London comedian, is comic in his "Keep on havin' 'em," but preference must certainly be given to his second number, "My little wife." Here Mr. Dwyer is at his best, and has to bow to half a dozen recalls. Other turns contributing to a generous programme are Mr. Frank Cumminger, a most expert sand-dancer, who seems to thoroughly enjoy his own particular business, and Miss Gladys Hoxley, who gives her first song, "Baby Dreams," with much tender expression, while her second, "The Devil-may-care Brigade," goes with spirit and dash. The genial acting-manager, Mr. C. M. Lurring, is assiduous in looking after the comforts of the audience, and the excellent band, strongly reinforced, under Mr. W. Neale, renders a fine selection from The Geisha.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

MISS MARGARET ASHTON.

It was in June, 1903, that—fresh from a brilliantly successful South African tour—the American prima donna soprano made her début in London at the Tivoli. How great was her success, and how rapidly she established herself as a popular favourite with the British public, the well-merited encomiums of the Press, the lavish praise of the critics, and the extensive nature of her engagements afforded ample and gratifying proof. Born in far-away Ohio, it was towards the end of the "nineties" that the charming operatic singer, who had studied under a famous Italian master, began her public career by playing many of the leading rôles in the famous and popular light operas of such composers as Audran, Offenbach, and Gilbert and Sullivan.

From light opera to vaudeville was a natural transition, and the winning personality and dramatic talents of the charming and accomplished singer speedily secured for her a foremost place in the vaudeville world. After a lengthy engagement at Koster and Bial's she travelled the Orpheum and other circuits. The combination of a voice of great compass and exquisite timbre, with the charm and culture of an artistic personality, won for her a name and a widespread popularity that time has served only to enhance. To the dramatic talent of the actress is added the natural brilliancy of a refined vocalism, as all who have heard her faultless rendition of Arditi's "L'Incantatrice," or of the exquisite "Jewel Song" from Faust, will readily agree. Her recent successes are too well known to need repetition. At the London Coliseum, the Oxford, and other

MISS MARGARET ASHTON.

West-end halls her well-known song-scenas have been a leading feature, and in her répertoire of famous march songs—so popular in the States—the charming cantatrice has repeatedly scored sensational triumphs. Among the most notable recognition of her talents may be mentioned the invitation to appear last year at the Royal Albert Hall on the occasion of the Nelson Centenary Concert.

So many engagements, entailing necessarily a vast amount of constant study, hard work, and mental strain, are, as every artist knows well, no mere holiday campaign. Sweet indeed are the triumphs and rich the reward which genius, allied with patience and perseverance, may attain; but there is a penalty which exhausted nature relentlessly exacts for efforts beyond the resources of the strongest of constitutions, as the sweet singer herself would be the first to admit. The charming soprano has been reluctantly compelled, by the imperative fiat of her medical advisers, to abandon many of her immediate engagements, and to take a sea voyage and complete rest. She goes—after a long absence—to her home in Denver, in mountainous and picturesque Colorado, whence she hopes to return towards the close of the autumn with renewed strength and health to fulfil her European engagements, and to repeat those innumerable successes which have won for her the esteem of the public and the position of an artist de première qualité.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

An excellent menu is provided by Mr. Kay Draco for his guests this week. The programme, which is ushered in by "The Millennium March," admirably performed by the orchestra, is begun by Mr. Clive Watts, as clever a comedian as he is dancer, who caused quite a mild sensation by his humour. Variety is further secured by the appearance of Charles Ulrick, billed as "the Barrel King," who does some wonderful balancing, and the act is received with enthusiasm. A distinctly excellent turn is the Wakeman Quartette, who produce some harmonious vocal effects. Perhaps the gem of their répertoire was Sullivan's "Lost Chord"—an altogether delightful performance—but "Killarney" and "On the Banks of Allan Water," were both well received. Quite charmingly, too, does Miss Nancy Bruce sing "Annie Laurie"; she possesses a singularly well-trained voice, and was heard to perfection in this selection.

There is a distinct air of novelty about Talbot and Pierce's speciality, The Spider and the Fly, and when it is stated that the Spider is a pert and pretty damsel who vocalises daintily, and the Fly is represented by the genus Man, who allows himself—quite pardonably—to be ensnared in the toils of the former, the plot can easily be grasped. The music of this little piece is quite of a high order. Especial mention may be made of the spirited finale, "Mine for Ever," admirably rendered by Talbot and Pierce. The interval is pleasingly filled by the orchestra's interpretation of "Raymond" (Ambroise Thomas), and Mr. F. R. Kinkee is to be highly complimented. Novelty in ventriloquism is somewhat rare, but Mr. Bert Williams claims this for his merry figures, and deserves it; his irrepressible Eton boy keeps the house in a ripple of merriment. The concluding item of the entertainment, in which a veteran figure sings of the "Village Bells," is capitally done.

Premier honours of the evening went to Miss Marguerite Broadfoote, who was called and recalled no less than seven times; indeed, she might be singing her "Nursery Rhyme" refrain yet, but for the fact that there was a second house waiting. Miss Broadfoote also sang a merry ditty pointing out the utter impossibility of existing without girls, and naïvely adding that but for them Man would be at a loss to dispose of his superfluous money; the audience appeared to agree with the talented artist, and she was cheered to the echo. The Montague Brothers gave a fine performance in The Sculptor's Dream; their show is wonderfully clever, and their classic poses en blanc beyond reproach. Vernon's Bioscope maintains its popularity, and urbane Mr. Kay Draco is "in front of the house"—a guarantee that all is well.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

The continuance of brilliant sunshine and tropical heat out of doors, which usually prove detrimental to indoor amusements, seem to have no appreciable ill-effect on the attendance here, and Mr. Arthur J. Barclay is to be congratulated on "business" that would do credit to the coolest nights and the best theatrical seasons of the year. Indeed, the crowds at every performance have been of record-breaking numbers, while the enthusiasm of the audience is sometimes more suggestive of the "festive season" than of the dog-days. The most substantial item of this week's well-selected programme is the sensational episode The Girl I Love, played by Mr. Fred Maxwell, Miss Lois Du Cane, and their clever company. The little play, in three scenes, is full of dramatic incident, the "period" (to quote the programme) being "about 1840, when convicted criminals were transported and flogged for any breach of discipline," and occasionally, it would seem, without that excuse. The hero, Max Donovan, a private in one of the Highland regiments, is, in the first scene, accused of a murder committed by the villainous Captain Stephen Adair, transported to Australia, and mercilessly pursued by his enemy, who, seeking to compass the death of the man he hates, eventually meets his own. Mr. Frederick Maxwell as Max is a hero of the true Adelphi type so dear yet to the hearts of the less sophisticated playgoer, and he acts with a breezy freshness in the earlier scene that brings out in stronger contrast the misery of his punishment and his final triumph. Mr. Maxwell is cheered to the echo at every point. Miss Lois du Cane as Rose Adair acts with much charm, and, in the later scenes, declaims her more dramatic speeches with considerable power. Mr. Charles Levey is sufficiently villainous to meet the requirements of the "gods," who, while adoring virtue, dearly love to watch a thorough-paced villain at work. A capital character sketch of the old blind Grandad is supplied by Mr. Gerald Blake. Mr. Sam Harcourt appears as two Colonels—Adair and Grant—and plays both with equal effect. Mr. W. Bailey is a picturesque exponent of the convict Hogg, and speaks his lines with admirable point. Miss Louise Biddulph is pathetic and interesting as the hapless Bessie Donovan. Mention should be made of the flogging scene, which is almost painfully realistic. The piece is capitally mounted.

Something quite unique in the way of marionette performances is to be found in those of D'Arc. A perfect stage in miniature, effectively draped with scarlet hangings, illuminated by electric lights, revealed, and the dolls are extremely clever reproductions of well-known variety artists. The manner in which these figures are made to imitate the motions and gestures of such favourites as George Robey, Happy Fanny Fields, Eugène Fougère, George Lashwood, R. G. Knowles, and others, each apparently singing songs associated with these artists, is clever in the extreme. The turn is received with rapturous applause.

Mr. Charles Ridgewell is a quaint comedian with two good songs, the better of which, perhaps, is that dealing with mixed relations, with the refrain, "Who the dickens am I?" Miss Sylvia du Barry, a handsome lady from South America, is the possessor of a light soprano voice with some clear notes. Mr. Frank Harwood, an actor-vocalist, whose appearance and manner strangely suggest Mr. Seymour Hicks, sings in a fine voice "Will you love me in December as you do in May?" and an amusing ditty, "Rowing together," in which the superiority of the river at Hampton Court for "spooning" business is convincingly set forth. A very fine quartette of dancers are the Four American Belles, whose dances may be described as marvellous for dexterity and nimbleness. Another dancer of the evening is Miss Dolly Golden, who fascinates everyone with her widely contrasted styles, all equally good. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope continues to show attractive pictures. The stage-management of the whole evening is safe in the hands of Mr. John Grant.

THE BRITANNIA.

As is usual at this popular resort, the fare presented is excellent. We renew acquaintance with old Britannia stock favourites, like Mr. Algernon Syms and Mr. Fred Lawrence, in a thrilling dramatic sketch, The Clash of Steel. The ovation they receive is enthusiastic, and they are supported by an array of capable actors. The scenery and dresses are "first-class." A strikingly novel turn is presented by the Two Cromwells, comedy jugglers. The young lady gives a fine exhibition of skill, and whirls coats, hats, pots and pans through the air with remarkable accuracy, finishing with a good Indian club act. Mr. Joe Dale is an amusing comedian, who is warmly applauded. Quite a musical treat is given by the Albano troupe; their solos on numerous instruments prove them to be artists of the "first water." Mr. Edna Knollys uses a good voice to advantage in a series of illustrated songs. The Bouncing Dillons give a very clever gymnastic performance; in connection with this act a novel competition is presented, open to amateur "bouncers." Roars of laughter are caused by the amusing antics of the aspirants, who mostly are unable to hold their feet on the spring net, much less perform the seemingly simple tricks suggested. Mr. Herbert Rule, a quaint comedian, causes much laughter with his "diary" song; and the Sprees are a good comedy duo, and gain applause with their scena, "Twickenham Ferry." Mr. George Victor's vocal powers are heartily appreciated, and Miss Carlotta De Yonson and company appear in the great American detective dramette, The Dandy Detective. The piece is heartily applauded. The uniforms and dresses are excellent. Raymond's Bio Tableaux are much enjoyed, and the popularity of Mr. James McCarthy is remarkable. His painstaking efforts have won for him the admiration of all. Mr. Alf Lord directs operations with ability behind the scenes, and the orchestra has the able leadership of Mr. Carl Hamlin.

THE Apollo Theatre in Düsseldorf commences its eighth season under the direction of Mr. Glück to-day with a lightning programme. The house is newly painted, and some of the first rows of the "parquet" are replaced by small tables with chairs around, so that the public can partake of refreshments during the performance.

MESSRS. MELLOR AND LAWRANCE'S enormously popular song "I've built a bamboo bungalow for you" has "caught on" in America, and Messrs. Schubert Weber, and Fields, Col. Savage, and other American managers, are making a special feature of this number in important new Broadway productions with most gratifying results. The song is published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co., whose sole American agents are Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

MISS ALEXANDRA DAGMAR will produce at the Tivoli on Monday a stirring new march song, entitled "When the band played the 'Men of Harlech'," written by Messrs. Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford, and published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.

MISS GLADYS MAVIUS has made an instantaneous and gratifying hit at the Empire, Islington, and her other engagements this week, with Harrington and Tate's "catchy" chorus song "Rosie is waiting."

LES FRASETTIS return to England to-day from the Hague to open on Monday at the pier, Hastings, after having made a great success all through Holland. They return there next year.

MR. HARRY LISTON has been in town this week booking engagements. He and his talented partner, Miss Lord Lumley, are now touring the Isle of Wight again. Their new comedy sketch Cricket has caught on immensely.

"THE BRIDAL CHAMBER."

CARL HERTZ'S NEW ILLUSION.

The new Theatre Royal, Halifax, was packed to suffocation on Monday, when Mr. Carl Hertz, the universal mystifier, presented his new and most masterly illusion, The Bridal Chamber, which met with unprecedented success. It is one of the most perplexing episodes ever given on the stage, and created quite a sensation. A platform about 10ft. square is wheeled on to the stage in full view of the audience, and turned round on all sides to show distinctly that there are no methods of concealment. The platform stands on wooden legs some 2ft. from the stage floor; curtains hang on all sides within reasonable distance of the floor, and to thoroughly convince his patrons that there are no trap-doors, Mr. Hertz passes a big bamboo stick continuously under the platform. Suddenly he pulls down the curtains and reveals a handsomely-equipped bedroom containing a solid wooden 7ft. bed and bedding upon which peacefully reclines a handsome bride, in the person of Miss Emmeline D'Alton. Mr. Hertz and his assistants lift the bedstead and its occupant on to the stage, and the bride, thus rudely awakened, jumps out of bed and hurriedly retires to the wings, leaving the audience in extreme wonderment as to how it was all carried out. The feat is all done in full light, away from any scenery, or without the aid of traps, glasses or mirrors, and the smartness with which it is performed thoroughly sustains Mr. Hertz's reputation as one of the cleverest of magicians. The audience, utterly astounded, remained for a while in silent astonishment and then broke into a tremendous cheer.

Another dexterous feat was "Belchazzar's Blackboard," which consists of an ordinary school-room blackboard covered with a piece of stiff cardboard. Questions are submitted by members of the audience, and are answered not only correctly, but very wittily, uproarious fun being aroused by the replies given to queries regarding local topics. Verily, "wonderful!" as Mr. Hertz ejaculates as he demonstrates beyond doubt that there is no connections between the board and its environment.

The next item was the production of beautiful flowers from an empty bowl which is finally converted into a lantern from which an enormous quantity of tape paper flows. This the performer whirls in the air when two white rabbits appear; he seats the rabbits together and only one remains, this is thrown into the air, the tape paper is placed in another bowl, a pistol shot fired, and three ducks jump out of the bowl.

The subject of another illusion was a large map which hung upon an horizontal bar. Flags of various nationalities are produced by Mr. Hertz, who rolls them up into a ball. He hurls it at the map which bursts open and shows Britannia, admirably impersonated by Miss D'Alton.

For an encore Hertz gave us another astonisher, in which he disguised himself as an Indian Rajah. Displaying to the audience a perfectly round basket and wicker-worked Sedan chair, the famous conjurer packs his painstaking lady-assistant into the basket, covering the whole with a red silk shawl. He then gets into the Sedan chair himself and pulls the door to. A policeman comes on the scene, and having his suspicions rushes to the basket, pulling off the shawl, and to his surprise the basket is empty. Seizing the chair he pulls open the door, and to his amazement finds a pretty principal boy. But the final surprise comes when the policeman, discarding his uniform, proves to be none other than the Indian Rajah (Mr. Hertz). Altogether Mr. Hertz provides such a succession of inexplicable illusions and with such lightning-like rapidity that one is bewildered. Record business may be safely predicted wherever Mr. Hertz may go, for all the week at Halifax has been a repetition of Monday night.

THE TERRIERS' OUTING.

The Terriers and their friends, numbering about seventy, had their second river outing of the season on Sunday last. The party included President Jesse Sparrow, Treasurer Douglas White, Solicitor G. P. R. Burgess, Trustee S. N. Salter, Fred. D. Harris, F. W. Penfold, G. V. O'Connolley, Leo. O'Connolley, Sam Bury, E. F. Moy, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Benn, S. Samuels, E. Martin, Leon and Will Bassett, H. Griff, F. Shelley, Percy Ford, Mr. and Mrs. E. Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neiman, Forest and King, Mrs. Harry Leopold, Harry Kemp, W. S. Hill, Frank Hilbert, Mr. and Mrs. G. Nyman, Mr. and Mrs. Stalman, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Holmes, E. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gage, Charlie Gage, Fred Gage, Mrs. Charlie Jerome, Miss Collins, Jimmy Traynor, W. L. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. J. Moore, Miss Moore, Miss Potter, Fred. W. Millis, W. Jeapes, J. C. Moore, G. Saunders, Miss F. Daly, Miss Schofield, Harry Gait, Herbert Tear, E. C. Webb, Walter Norman, Charles Cornish, and Harry Lester, Secretary.

Journeying down from Waterloo by the 9.10 a.m. train, the party arrived at Hampton Court at 10. Photographs were then taken on board the "La Burgoine," and the merry party set sail on their journey to "Old Windsor," lunch being served en route. On arrival, comedy pictures were taken for the cinematograph by W. Jeapes, and sports were held, with the following results—viz., 100 Yards Running Handicap (for Terriers only), won by W. L. Murray: 1st prize, Massive Silver Cup, presented by Tom Leamore; 2nd, Fred Neiman: prize, a Vest to order, presented by George Nyman. 30 Yards Each Way Running Backwards Ladies' Race, won by Miss Schofield: 1st prize, Gold-plated Belt, presented by Griff; 2nd, Mrs. Nyman: Ladies' Silver-mounted Umbrella, presented by Harry Gage. 50 Yards Threading-the-Needle Race, won by Percy Ford (prize, Biscuit-box, presented by Fred Neiman) and Mrs. Nyman (prize, Silver Butter-dish and Knife, presented by L. and V. Bassett). Relay Race, won by Mrs. Willie Benn, W. L. Murray, and Charlie Gage: prizes—Lady, Silver Brush and Comb, presented by G. P. R. Burgess; Gents, Silver Matchboxes, presented by S. N. Salter and Jimmy Traynor. 50 Yards Ladies' Race, won by Miss Moore: prize, Lady's Gold-mounted Umbrella, presented by Douglas White. Egg-and-Spoon Race, won by Miss Collins: prize, a Splendid Set of China, presented by Jesse Sparrow. Cockfight, won by W. L. Murray: 1st prize, Box 100 Foreign Cigars, presented by E. C. Webb; 2nd, G. P. R. Burgess: prize, Massive Bronze Statue Figure, presented by Harry Bawn.

After a comedy wrestling-match between Griff and an Unknown Old Man with a Donkey-Barrow, the return journey was made, tea being served on board. Hampton Court was reached at 8, train departing 8.40, arriving at Waterloo 9.24. Everybody declared the day's outing to be another record. The musical portion of the programme was in the artistic keeping of Leon and Will Bassett, J. C. Moore, Walter Norman, W. L. Murray, Jimmy Traynor, and several others. The refreshment department was well looked after by W. Norman and C. Cornish, catering being in the excellent hands of Mr. J. Ucelli, of the Hôtel Boulogne, 27, Gerrard Street, W. Harry Lester, Secretary, was highly congratulated on the success of all his arrangements.

MR. FRED KARNO, who was originally a gymnast, is now both a theatrical manager and a variety impresario. He has made his speciality pantomime productions, and has excelled as a producer of the same. Each member of the Karno troupes has been carefully selected, and Mr. Karno's managerial acumen ensures that each sketch shall be carefully rehearsed and everything possible towards success secured.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

The Hon. Chaplain and organiser of the Showmen's Guild (the Rev. T. Horne), finding that he can break away from his parish work this week-end for a few days, will visit the fairs and wakes in the Manchester district. He intends to address a mass meeting of showmen at Gorton wakes ground on Sunday next (to-morrow), Sept. 2. This gathering is for all travellers who work the fair-grounds. Men and women are invited—members and non-members (see advertisement). The object of the meeting is to make members and to fully explain the supreme importance of the work the Van-dwellers' Association is doing. The meeting is for full and frank discussion of the policy and work of the society, and we confidently anticipate that it will result in an enormous rally to the strength of the present trade protection society.

Mr. and Mrs. John Studt and their nephew have just returned from a flying visit to the United States, where they have been for the benefit of Mrs. Studt's health, her physician having recommended a sea voyage. They went out on the fine steamer Oceanic, of the White Star Line, had a pleasant passage, and saw whales, icebergs, and many other things to make the trip agreeable. On landing at New York they were met by Mr. and Mrs. James W. Bostock, who gave them a speedy and pleasant introduction to all things American, showing them the sights of this wonderful city and its surroundings. Genial James, who is a past-master as a guide and entertainer in foreign countries, was slightly handicapped by lameness from gout. Still, he managed to press into the short stay made by Mr. and Mrs. Studt as much sight-seeing as possible, taking them to Niagara Falls (462 miles away) and lots of other places of interest, not forgetting, of course, "the paramount feature for showpeople," Coney Island, where not only the enormous number of attractions, but the style, beauty, and originality of them thoroughly astonished the visitors; and when the whole was illuminated at night John could do nothing but throw up both hands and exclaim: "Well, well! Indeed to goodness, I never dreamt such things could be!" The party returned home on the Hamburg-American Co.'s latest addition, the magnificent steamer Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, greatly benefited by the outing, and have gone back to resume business in South Wales, with a fund of recollections of America that will serve them to think over and talk about for months to come.

Harmston's celebrated Circus of the East continues its triumphant tour of our far-away dependencies. At Singapore enormous houses nightly testified to the great popularity of Harmston's fine show. Diavolo "looping the loop" was the star turn, and his daring exhibition was as well appreciated at Singapore as in London. The Princess quartette of dancers provided an excellent number; the clowns Guillaume and "Baby," in their Spanish bull-fight act, were great favourites, and provoked roars of laughter. Jennie and the Pedro Brothers, Miss Nellie Harmston-Love, the Madelena Sisters, and Paul Rougal with his tigers all helped to make up a programme that was as good as it was lengthy.

Once more at Stradey Park, Llanelly, Messrs. Hy. Studt and Son have given a grand benefit fête and gala in aid of the Llanelly Hospital (of which, by the by, Mr. Studt is a life governor). The fête, which was held on Friday and Saturday of last week, was, as usual, a most successful one, and attended by thousands of people from all parts. There was also a very large array of amusement caterers on the ground, Messrs. Studt having two of their large machines. Messrs. W. Haggar and Sons' ever popular electric bioscope (the genial senior proprietor of which seems to be getting younger every day) and Messrs. Wadbrook's electrograph and variety exhibition were also present; with the shooters, cokernut shies, and Mollies of Messrs. David Boswell, John North, W. Evans, and a host of others, all doing exceedingly good business. On the open-air stage marvellously clever turns were given by the charming Mlle. Bartenelli, the wonderful contortionist, &c. We had seen Mlle. Bartenelli before, but on this occasion she by far excelled anything she had hitherto done. Lieut. Chard's dog circus was a most interesting show also. The Swift Trio of trick cyclists were very good, as were also the Les Louberts, acrobats.

At Kidwelly fair-ground this week and last Testo's very clever exhibition of marionettes and living pictures has been doing very good business. The show is a very clean and highly interesting one.

Shaw wakes this year was quite an average fair. The shows and machines were Layland's marionette theatre; T. Hurst's farmyard racers; Geoghegan's hurdle leapers; John Collins's wheely-whirly; and C. Marshall's motors. There was also a well-equipped crowd of amusement caterers with throwing games and variety stalls.

Drypool Feast (Hull) had a splendid array of machine novelties. Amongst these were Ben Howden and Son's (Aspland's) two sets, the motor-cars and the Japanese airship; W. Shipley's galloping horses; and Corrigan's steam swings. Minor novelties, shooting galleries, hand swings, cokers, and throwing games were provided by Messrs. Payne, Richards, Kelly, Hardy, Burgin, Jameson, Corrigan, and others.

At the Victoria Theatre, Evesham, this week, the following plays have been performed, viz., Nicholas Nickleby, The Dumb Man of Manchester, In the Toils of the Tempter, The Butterfly, Under the British Flag, and Joan of Arc.

At Overbury flower show were Mr. T. Scott's Newmarket galloping horses, from Worcester; park swings, egg and globe shooting, cokernut gardens, and other numerous attractions.

Coming events include sale of cart-horses and colts, &c., at Rock Farm, Inkberrow, Worcester, and the annual show and sale of horses at Stratford-on-Avon, Sept. 21; and a sale of horses at Cheltenham on Sept. 13.

At Pershore Flower Show were Mr. Thomas Scott's grand new set of steam galloping horses, park swings, shooting saloons, bottle battery, cokernut sheets, stalls, &c.

Pleasure fairs: Birmingham Fair, Sept. 27, 28, and 29; Birmingham to King's Norton, 5 miles. King's Norton Fair, Oct. 1; King's Norton to Alvechurch, 5 miles. Alvechurch Fair, Oct. 3; Alvechurch to Evesham, 19 miles. Evesham Mop, Oct. 5; Evesham to Alcester, 10 miles. Alcester Mop, Oct. 9; Alcester to Stratford-on-Avon, 8 miles. Stratford-on-Avon Bullroast, Oct. 12.

At Evesham we have had Mander's Grand Star Menagerie. A large number of people visited the show, owing to the son of the proprietor of the Fleece fair-ground volunteering to enter the cage, which contained two Siberian wolves, a bear, and a laughing hyæna.

Showmen, theatre companies, and all engaged in providing amusements, &c., for the people should make a note of the progressive town of Redditch. A new cycle factory, employing 1,000 hands, will shortly be finished; new streets are to be made shortly. Trade has been very good for some time, and some good first-class entertainments should do well here during the coming winter months.

The benefit performance for the Widows' and Orphans' Fund of the Vanguard disaster at St. Mary's Cray, given by Prof. Alf. Ball, of bioscope exhibition fame, was a big success in every way. The proceeds towards the funds were £10 10s. The gentry of the village, headed by the vicar and party from the vicarage, attended the show. The entertainment consisted of a series of animated pictures, shown by the aid of the cinematograph and electric light. The subjects illustrated were "The American Train-Wreckers," "Two Little Waifs," and some Passion Play pictures. At the conclusion of the afternoon entertainment the Rev. E. Ball thanked the professor on behalf of the committee for his excellent entertainment and for the kindly sympathy which he had shown with the sufferers from the disaster by giving the entertainment on behalf of the fund. Sacred music was played during the passage of the Passion Play pictures.

The vicar of St. Mary Cray, in a letter to Mr. Ball, said:—Dear Mr. Ball,—A few lines to tell you how very pleased my party and myself were with your bioscope entertainment. We thought the views excellent. Those showing some of the scenes in the life of Our Blessed Lord were very realistic. Wishing you and your family every success with your pleasant and instructive entertainment."

Bakewell is in the heart of Derbyshire, and still remains a country town, with its markets and its great event, the annual fair.

This year's carnival was well maintained by Mack's freak exhibition, Twigdon's superb gondolas, Hall's motor-cars, swings, shooters, and cokers. The other amusement caterers were Messrs. Proctor, A. Hall Whiteley, Gaunt, and Peters.

Long Eaton feast, on the same circuit, had Holland's cinematograph, Martin's gondolas, steam horses, swings, big boat, and coker sheets, Cox's gallopers, Armstrong's swings; and shooters, cokers, gem horses, and varieties by Messrs. Chapman, Gaunt, Robinson, West, Bloomfield, Dexter, Ashmore, and others.

The old-established wakes were held at Long Eaton this week, and proved quite as popular as ever. Sunday brought the usual effort by the railwaymen for the Orphan Fund of the society, with parade at the parish church. Mr. Martin and his gondolas and motors. Mr. Holland's cinematograph and other shows, made a big collection of amusements. The movement to change the wakes to Bank Holiday week has proved abortive, showing that the old wakes have a big hold on the public. There was a large influx of visitors, and happily no accidents are recorded.

Several acceptable additions have recently been made to Sedgwick's well-known menagerie, which is now touring South Wales. On the 20th ult., while the menagerie was at Pontardulais, one of the thorough-bred lionesses gave birth to what are described as five "very handsome cubs," and this interesting event was followed by another on the following day, when at Brynamman, one of the leopards presented Messrs. Sedgwick with two "splendid cubs." One of the latter is a male and the other a female, and they are to be christened "Gomer" and "Arianwen" respectively.

The wakes at Oldham were held on the market ground, commencing on Thursday, the 23rd ult. Large numbers of visitors attended from the out districts, but there has been a greater exodus of the natives than ever. A good selection of amusements was provided, roundabouts being well to the fore. Amongst the shows were Capt. Payne's Bioscope, Clarke's classical entertainment, Payne's miniature horses, Clytie in second sight, &c., John Collins's motor cars, whirly-whirly, jumpers, and swing boats, Mitchell's botors and boats. Green's motors, Holland's horses and hurly-burly, and the helter-skelter, which also had a fair share of patronage. Amongst other amusements were cokernut sheets, Aunt Sallies, football practice, shooting galleries, &c.

Brandon Colliery Flower Show.—Roundabouts, Richardson, 60 h.p. motor-cars; G. Pinninger, steam gallopers. Circus, James Biddall, J. Cotterell's coliseum of pictures. Shows, Mrs. G. Payne's living pictures; H. Harris, wonder of wonders; Stewart, assault-at-arms; Reed, working mine models. Galleries, C. Robson, H. Harris, G. Pinninger. Emmas, &c., J. Smith, jun., M. Duggan, J. Veti, L. Deputon, W. Sedgmore, Jas. Millar, R. Mitchinson, R. Hancock. Swings, J. Taylor, G. Pinninger, W. Sedgmore, R. Hancock, and T. Hartshorn. Stalls, &c., too numerous to mention.

Castle Eden Colliery Sports.—Roundabouts, H. Carriss, mountain daisy jumpers; miniature horse, L. Rick. Galleries, J. Robinson, H. Carriss. Stalls, G. Halliday.

Tow Law Flower Show.—Roundabouts, Walker Hoadley, flying motors; G. Gray, juveniles' horses; J. Jackson, dapple jumpers. Shows, Caroll's mystic; W. Storey's wonderland; W. Wilson (late Cooper's). Galleries, Mrs. Kelly, Priestman, &c. Emmas, J. W. Gray, J. Jackson, T. O'Brian, and others.

Oldbury, one of the many busy industrial Black Country towns, is once more agog with the influx of the gaily-painted vans, &c., of the showman world. As I am penning this, there is a continuous stream of vans, machines, &c., all making for the old and usual wakes ground in Bromford-road. I notice there is still one of the old school, one of the many that years ago delighted me and thousands of others in boyhood days—that is Russell's steam circus, still looking as good as ever. Then we have the more elaborate and newer machines of the ever-popular Pat Collins, including farmyard roosters, whirling the whirl, helter-skelter, and many others. Also the famous "big" show and the "good" show, both run under the splendid management of the famous Collins.

By the look of things at present, this year's wake seems as if to surpass all others of previous times. The ground looks well laid out, and by the time The Era is in the hands of our showfolk friends, all will be sparkle and glitter, and I hope the business will be as bright as Mr. Collins' grounds look when lit up.

Application was made in the Dublin Court of Chancery on Tuesday by Mary Jane Keating, of Drumcairn House, Greystones, co. Wicklow, for an interlocutory order restraining Mr. W. Toft from erecting on the foreshore at Greystones any merry-go-round, shooting gallery, or other entertainment and for the immediate removal of same as it now exists, and from causing a nuisance by carrying on the trade or business connected therewith pending the trial of the action. Counsel for the plaintiff stated that the erections were within 15 yards of the plaintiff's house, and characterised the entertainment as an intolerable nuisance.

Defendant's counsel stated that his client was a minor, and that his father, William Toft, had carried on this business for several years. The place was verbally let to the defendant by Mr. Studdart, agent for Messrs. La Touche, and the letting would expire the first week in September. Counsel further stated that the plaintiff's interest in the house would expire on the 31st inst. He produced a document signed by several people in Greystones to the effect that the entertainment in question was satisfactorily and properly carried on, and said that the great majority of the Greystones inhabitants were in favour of the entertainment going on.

His Lordship, in giving judgment, said that those persons representing the Messrs. La Touche, who let the premises, should be the persons proceeded against. Having regard to the brief occupation of each of the parties he did not see his way, at present, to grant an interlocutory injunction. His lordship thought that the responsible persons, resident in the neighbourhood, should be the plaintiffs to such proceedings. He would, at present, make no rule on the motion, and reserved the costs till the trial of the action. His lordship gave liberty to the plaintiff to add other parties as plaintiffs.

Cramlington (Northumberland).—Wal Murphy's 60 h.p. motor-cars, &c.; T. Toogood's gallery, shooter, Emmas; T. Newsome, swings, Emmas, cokernut sheets; H. Millar, cokernut sheets, stalls, &c.

The "World's Fair" at Islington will again be a feature of the Christmas entertainments of London. Mr. T. E. Read (son of the late Theophilus Read) will open the Royal Agricultural Hall on Christmas Eve, for the twenty-eighth consecutive year, with a colossal programme. The up-to-date attractions will embrace a grand free Continental circus, first-class company of star artists, with an entire change of programme weekly. Bostock and Wombwell's gigantic indoor Zoo, sensational aerial artists, and specialists, side-shows of every description, and a great variety of other amusements, will combine to form a unique entertainment at the popular price of sixpence. Spaces for first-class shows are now to be had on application to Mr. Read.

MISS CONSTANCE MOXON

IN "A TOFF FOR TEN MINUTES."

A pleasing musical monologue was seen for the first time at the Chelsea Palace on Monday, when Miss Constance Moxon produced a scena, entitled A Toff for Ten Minutes. The story, which has been written by Mr. Edgar Bateman, is not without interest. A poor chick-weed seller picks up in the street a silver card-case, and on going to an address which it contains, finds himself left alone in a handsome drawing-room, the family having gathered along with their guests in a large marquee in the garden. He looks around him, and admires the furniture, the grand piano, and ornaments, and then, after refreshing himself by a drink from the decanter which lies handy on a table, he sings a song about an unfortunate individual who cracked a crib and did a guy, and if it weren't for that he might have been a gentleman. The verses are sung by Miss Moxon, who makes a fairly satisfactory "man," with character and expression. Our chick-weed seller is tempted by the sight of a silver salver, and for a moment or two places it under his coat. However, his better nature triumphs, and he replaces the article. Then the vendor of bird food turns his attention to the piano, and treats us to what he calls a reminiscence, Constance Moxon, playing the accompaniment to the song, "You loved me once," the lines of which are rendered alternately in baritone and soprano. This vocal effort seems to take the fancy of the audience, who applaud loudly. The poor youth, who had hoped to receive a reward for bringing back the card-case to its rightful owner, leaves the drawing-room, but before doing so pays for his modest sip of wine by giving the pet canary some chick-weed gratis and free of charge.

The little act is an agreeable one of its kind, and affords Miss Moxon an opportunity for displaying that versatility which she undoubtedly possesses. A Toff for Ten Minutes should certainly find favour with variety audiences, especially if both the humour and the pathos of it be a little more intensified. The monologue is, however, well presented.

MR. ALF. BALL.

THE HERO OF MITCHAM FAIR.

We think that the present moment is the right time to tell the life-story of a typical showman—Mr. Ball. Born in 1864, the son of a well-known travelling auctioneer, "Handseller," at eighteen years of age he began in his father's line of business, holding his own licence, and working the markets and fairs on the great Midland and Southern rounds, and at that early age was extremely smart and able at his business.

Like many another showman, on his marriage, he was set up in business by his parents. The venture of Mr. and Mrs. Alf Ball's joint enterprise was a shooting gallery. This, with his wife's assistance, he worked in conjunction with the "handselling" business, and to these he speedily added novelty frames, and throwing games, taking markets as well as fairs. His next venture was the result of a visit he made whilst up in town to a famous academy of boxing. Besides being an athlete of considerable prowess, the doughty Alfred was a boxer of some repute in amateur circles. The "Man from the Midlands" had a friendly scrap with a professional at the boxing tournament, and so astonished the crowd that he was acclaimed as a splendid possibility for the middle-weight championship of England. This honour he ultimately achieved, defeating the holder of the belt, the famous Alf Mitchell, and to finish the tale of his prowess in the ring, he challenged Peter Jackson, the World's Champion, and held up against him for two hours, fighting forty rounds, even though early in the fight he had suffered the handicap of a broken arm.

This fame of his as the middle-weight champion naturally determined the sort of show that he must have, so we find "Prof. Ball and School of Boxers for a goodly number of years at all the great fairs, ranging from North to South."

To the boxing saloon he added another show (then a great draw), the Marvellous Atoms of Humanity, and exhibited them side by side. If not exactly the first to see the possibility of the cinématograph in its very earliest days, he certainly was the second man to introduce it in a show booth at the fair. He saw with the great Randall Williams, all the possibilities of the living picture, and exhibited pictures as an item in the programme of his other shows. For more than ten years past Mr. Ball has been the pioneer of the bioscope in all its tremendous advances and developments, and to-day the Royal Bioscope is the model and standard for all similar shows. But the travelling show does not exhaust all the enterprise of up-to-date Alf Ball. He is the proprietor of the Empire Theatre at Maidenhead, and the Royal Bioscope and Theatre of Varieties — three thousand pounds fit-up — including traction engine and electric light installation, with a company of artists, twelve in number. With Mr. Ball in all his work is closely identified his talented and most capable wife. Not herself a show lassie, she fell in love with the show lad, and the course of true love flowed smoothly; she married him, and has been ever since his right-hand man—the help-meet for him. The daughter of a railway contractor, her father built the line from Mottram to Glossop. Their eldest son, Mr. Wm. Ball, is now with them in the business, and is the lecturer and describer of the show. Having his father's "gift of tongues" we anticipate a brilliant career from the son of such parents. Not only is Alf Ball the Hero of the Fight for the defence of Mitcham Fair, but he is in another way a Mitcham Hero, and a Man of Fame in Lavenderland. Some twelve or more years ago Ball, then as now, visited Mitcham Fair. The show people in those days were allowed to camp on the "Three Kings' Common," in order that at the legal time for drawing on to the Fair Green they might be ready to do so. In those days the Conservators had a kind heart towards the Bohemians of the Road.

The shows and caravans were encamped on the Sunday night before the fair, and our hero had gone to town to visit friends. On his late return—after midnight—as he neared his movable dwelling, he was alarmed by the highly suspicious doings of a man breaking through the hedgeside. Ball watched, and the man seeing that further concealment was useless, came forward. "What's the game?" said Ball. The man made a plunge on the off-chance that the interrogator being a night bird, might also take a hand in the business. "Well, a mate and me hev just cracked a crib, and we thought that if we planted this bit of swag on the tailboard of one of them show vans, it might lead the slops off the scent." He showed Ball a clock. "So you and your pal have been burgling, eh? Which crib, show me?" Alf Ball was a man of quick action, and also of commanding presence. The burglar found that he had made a big mistake, but with the strong grip of the champion middle-weight boxer upon him, he had to do as he was told.

The crestfallen night hawk led Ball to the scene of the burglary (an old mansion that stands to this day), and he made the burglar disclose the hiding-place of the swag. He could not help it, the strong hand of necessity was upon him. "The man who could do" had him in the toils, and your professional bully and sneak has a wholesome dread of a man who can use Nature's weapons with precision and force. The end of the adventure was that Ball took the burglar to the police station and aided in the search for and the capture of burglar No. 2.

He received the warm thanks of the people of the burgled house, the special thanks of the Mitcham police, and more than that, the Chief of Scotland Yard sent for the hero of the adventure, and complimented him highly. Can we wonder that Alf Ball's name is one to conjure with at Mitcham, and that he is better known than the bellman, or that Mitcham Fair without Alf Ball would be as Hamlet without the moody Prince. Mr. Ball's brother, Elijah Ball, is a well-known traveller on the Yorkshire and Northern round. Another brother, Councillor John Ball, J.P., of Hanley, still follows in its settled form auctioneer and valuer, the itinerant craft of the founder of the family—Ball the "Handseller."

All through his life Mr. Alf Ball has been ready to champion (at his own cost and risk most times) the business and trade rights of the people of the fair ground.

He has been a subscriber since its foundation to the Vandweller Protection Society, and is a member of its working committee. Along with the Rev. T. Horne, he has taken infinite pains and given most valuable time in order to preserve the Fair at Mitcham, and at many other places his immediate action has been the means of preserving fairs.

MR. ALFRED BALL AND FAMILY (the Mitcham Hero).

OLDHAM WAKES.

Writing 100 years ago about the wakes at Oldham, "Rowbotham," the local historian, says in his "Annals":—

"August 26th.—Being Oldham Rushbearing Saturday, and a fine day, was very fully attended, and owing to the briskness of the Fustian business there were 8 Rush Carts.

"On Sunday, a fine day, and very throng, and Five Rush Carts, which was a thing uncommon, there was plenty of brewing with Familys which a short time since where very poor, besides notwithstanding the exhorbitant price of Butchers meat there was plenty of Beef and Cabbage, and jcy appeared in every countenance."

Our memory of the fair goes back forty-five years, and we, too, remember the rushbearing carts and the Merrie Morris dancers. We have witnessed the tremendous changes in the life of the people that the last fifty years of national progress have brought about.

The rush cart and the Morris Dancers still survive in certain of the more archaic corners of "Cotton Land," and at all "May Day Festivals" on the grand scale, such as May Day at Knutsford, the rushbearers and the Morris Dancers shod in "their wooden shoon" form an interesting feature.

Oldham has moved ahead since the days of the rush cart, and is to-day the pioneer city of the adventurous cheap tripper. Oldham has made more than one "City of Pleasure and perpetual Fair by the Sea." Oldham is the creator of Blackpool, and the chief benefactor of Douglas, Morecambe, Southport, Llandudno, Rhyl, and a dozen other seaside resorts. When Oldham sends forth its strenuous sons and daughters at the "resting time of the wakes," the hungry soul of a score of pleasure resorts at the sea, inland, and abroad, rejoices and is glad, for the day of their long expectation has come, and all is well with the company, housekeeper, and the caterers of amusement and recreation at the sea.

Think of it! This year (an abounding year of trade prosperity in the cotton-spinning districts) over half-a-million of money has been drawn out of thrift banks, going-off clubs, co-operative societies, and trade societies—not to be wasted, as the cheap-and-nasty critic imagines, in an orgie of pleasure and sensual excess, but to be well and wisely used by the worker. In the first place, for necessary rest and recuperation after fifty full weeks of grinding and exhausting toil; and in the second place for the replenishing of clothing and the necessities of home life.

Think of it, ye carping critics of the people's life! What a sum it looks to the jaundiced eye of the penny wise and pound foolish economist. Half a million of money! Yet, divide it amongst a million and more of people who have the spending and the enjoyment of it, and it remains still a marvel of economic fact and thrifty management.

Well, the heart and centre of "the going-off club movement" is Oldham, and this year from the Oldham district alone £200,000 has been drawn from the hard-won wage fund of the workers. This constitutes a record, and it reflects the highest possible credit upon the people concerned. But for the savings clubs, which are the very essence of thrift, many of them would not be able to secure that change of air and scenery so very necessary to rehabilitate a system enervated by a year's strenuous toil. Various calls would swallow up the small weekly contributions which are made to the funds, and at holiday time many would find themselves without the necessary facilities for a respite. All logical reasoning is opposed to the argument that people who exhibit sufficient thrift to save the whole year round would, in the course of a week, dissipate the fruits of this self-denial. A very cursory examination on the spot would soon dispel the fallacies. Tradesmen can speak of the few days preceding the holiday, when the funds are distributed, as among the most prosperous of the year, for with some of the money distributed articles of personal comfort are purchased or some desire for the improvement of the home gratified. Much of the money, too, is reinvested.

The augmented staff of railway porters who have been drawn from other towns stare open-eyed, and wonder when the exodus is going to cease. The railway companies, dealing as they do with over 100,000 excusionists, have to make their strongest effort to cope with it. Naturally they make big returns during wakes week, and it is to their advantage to compete with each other for business. Keen rivalry exists amongst them, and their special facilities of travelling are billed all over the town. Such demands on railways have inevitably cut the cost of travelling down to a minimum with the maximum of comfort. There is no other town in England perhaps where the population makes such a sudden and tremendous exit as in Oldham. Other towns and cities with larger populations seem to take their holidays at their leisure and go away at various periods during the season; but there are few places that approach Oldham in the number of people who leave on one day. To cope with such a gigantic task is herculean work on the part of the railway companies, but experience of previous years shows that they do their work well, and all is got over in the best possible way.

But the Wakes holiday in Oldham is not confined entirely to the mill operative class, as outsiders so frequently imagine. People from the highest point of the social ladder to the lowest rung will pursue the hunt for pleasure; and perhaps at Blackpool, the Isle of Man, or some other pleasure spot an alderman, magistrate, or councillor will jog elbows with the humblest ratepayer and mill operative. The great leveller has been at work, and class distinction at the seaside are at a discount.

The Lancashire lass, with the throwing off of her shawl and clogs, has forgotten that she hails from "Owdham." Many a hard-earned penny has gone in the laying in of a costume with which to appear smart at the seaside. Of course, she has a perfect right to spend her savings as she desires, and one can trust her that none will be really wasted. Much may go in vain frivolities, and in satisfying idle wishes; but this, it must be remembered, is the only time when she gets her full share of the world's pleasures. It all has an end and a purpose, and contributes to make the holiday a complete success. As a matter of fact, much can be learned by others from the way in which the Lancashire mill operative conducts herself on holiday.

Altogether Lancashire working people on holiday are a delightful crowd. They can never be described as "downhearted," and though merry and full of the gaiety which means so much in favour of a holiday, they are always orderly, and gain the respect and admiration of everyone.

But, separate and apart from the million who travel, over a million toilers remain who cannot manage to save or afford to go to the sea. For this vast mass of human life the itinerant showman and novelty caterer provides, and the old historic fair-ground known as Tommyfield (the playground of Oldham lads and lassies from time immemorial) is the theatre of their effort.

On the eve of the fair, as we neared the main street and noted the trend of human life in the busy thoroughfares of the town, we were especially interested in the outward and visible signs of a whole town and people bent on taking a holiday.

The heart of a toil-worn people seeking rest—seeking not only rest from toil, but change, recreation, amusement, and some little joy of life. To the stay-at-home people "Tommyfield," even on the eve of the fair, was the "Mecca" of their pilgrimage.

On Saturday, however, the main fair day, you would have been puzzled to realise that any exodus had taken place at all. From every railway station thousands came in to the town, for it must be ever remembered that Oldham is easy of access to dozens of busy centres of life, and that "Owdham Wakes" is dear to the heart of Lancashire. To visit Tommyfield is a local duty as well as a never-failing delight.

By five o'clock the streets looked very lively, and as time wore on crowds continued to arrive by trams and trains till nearly eight o'clock. Then indeed Oldham presented an animated picture. Nothing was dull or monotonous, and the amount of business done must have been enormous. Of course, it was in Tommyfield the principal portion of the amusement was centred. There the usual fair was again held, its attractions this year being more novel and pleasing than we have seen for a good while. Variety was almost endless as far as progress was concerned, but the old time amusements which so delighted our ancestors seem to have been entirely lost sight of. There were gay charioteers after the Oriental fashion there in galore, but where was the rushcart and all its memorable associations? We know that old people would have very much preferred to see one there; it would have conjured up old thoughts; it would have brought them back to the past; but is the modern idea of recreation turned in another direction? It seems to be, and to meet the requirements of fashion modern inventions were requisitioned.

From seven o'clock till after eleven, Tommyfield was packed to the extreme, standing space being at a premium, while at times it was rendered difficult to retain a position owing to the crushing of the human surging mass which pressed on and on from one variety to another till all taking part in it had seen the different displays. And no sooner had they made the way clear than they were succeeded by an equally numerous throng, walking along speechless, all eyes on the alert and all minds centred on the attractions around. The effect was quite panoramic, and one standing at the end of any of the long unoccupied passages which marked the boundary between one set of amusements and another, and from there survey the multitude of faces, could witness a scene to delight the eye. With the brilliant light of the electric arcade lamps, and the glowing flames of the more modest gas, and the pleasing countenances of the throng, everything seemed in harmony and everyone seemed to be enjoying themselves.

THE cinematograph shows were those of Messrs. Payne and Clarke. Haydn's second-sight show and the side-shows of Messrs. Ling and Payne completed the show list. The motor-car sets were those of Messrs. J. Collins, P. Collins, and William Mitchell, jun. John Green's switch, B. Mitchell's ostriches, and steam yachts by William Mitchell, sen., and J. Collins; whirly-whirlys by Holland and J. Collins, swings by J. Platt, gem horses by Hibbert, Chaplain, and Mercer; photo saloons by Gunthorpe and Barker, rifle saloons and bottle batteries by Aldis, Hughes, Martin, and Ludlow. The variety caterers included Messrs. Harrington, Ormerod, Mercer, and many others.

WE are glad to say that the Dean Memorial Monument was erected last week over the resting-place of the venerated showman leader in Witton (Northwich) Churchyard. We hope shortly to give our readers a photo of the memorial, with some interesting descriptive details.

STROOD Old Charter Fair follows Mitcham, and attracts a big crowd of shows and other fair-ground amusements. The principal attractions were the well-known concerns of Messrs. Alf. Ball, William Biddall, Lal Elliott, Swales Forrest, C. Hill, C. Bailey, G. Holmes, H. Bond, Andrews, Mayne, H. Forrest, Laing, Harvey, Mannings, T. Pettigrove, F. Wilson, Hewitt Peters, Edwards, Sanders, Knighton, H. Castle, and Mrs. Edwards. Strood is an example of what can be done when there is plenty of room. The fair is arranged as a vast quadrangle, with two full-length avenues of swings, machines, strikers, and gem horses; down the centre the big shows occupied the whole of one side of the square; the shooting galleries and side-shows another side; throwing games, dart and ring-boards another side; and the remaining side was entirely given over to coker shies and Emma sheets. The central avenues also displayed panorama and toy stalls, Japanese fish game, and other varieties.

FROM Strood the greater portion of the things go to Barnet for the Fair next Monday, and the rest go to Oxford for its famous Fair, Monday and Tuesday next. Mr. Alf. Ball takes private business with the Royal Bioscope at Aylesbury this week-end, then on to Oxford.

DEATH OF EDDIE HARVEY.

We regret to announce the death of Eddie Harvey, who was a sufferer from that dread disease, consumption, and passed away on Friday, the 24th ult., at his brother Dennis's flat, 41, De Laune Street, Kennington, at the early age of twenty-six. He had not worked with his brothers for the last three months, his place being taken by the youngest of the trio, Frank. Dennis was at Clacton-on-Sea when he received a wire intimating the serious condition of Eddie, and on reaching Liverpool Street Station on Thursday morning immediately drove in his trap to Tatsfield, near Westerham, Kent, where the invalid had been living, and took him back to his place where he died the next day.

The deceased performer, a native of Glasgow, was the younger of the two boys, known as the Harvey Midgets, who were brought out some sixteen or seventeen years ago by their uncle, Frank Folloy (formerly of Folloy and O'Neill, Irish comedians), in an entertainment known as McGuinness's Kitchen, their weights at that time being respectively 2st. 8lb. and 2st. 4lb. respectively. The pair worked with their uncle some six and a half years, until, indeed, an attack of paralysis put an end to his professional career. This misfortune threw the boys, then in their teens, on their own resources, and they were secured for the London Pavilion, where they appeared for eighteen weeks. They afterwards worked the London Syndicate halls for two years, followed by a couple of years on the Moss and Thornton Circuit. They went to Australia in 1902 under engagement to Mr. Harry Rickards, and under the auspices of Mr. P. R. Dix, toured New Zealand. On the termination of their engagement there they went to South Africa. Throat trouble had developed in the deceased artist before the voyage to Australia, where his health much improved. He was again attacked, however, during his stay in Johannesburg, and very wisely he was landed at Madeira for a month's stay in that salubrious climate. The monotony of a solitary stay on the island was too much for the invalid, and he landed in England in a week after his brothers. He gradually got worse, and was unable to speak during the last few months that he fulfilled engagements in the sketch known as The Fighting Dummy.

The remains of the deceased were interred at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Cemetery, Kensal Green, on Wednesday, in the grave where lies the body of his mother. The cortége left De Laune Street, Kennington, at 12.20, and arrived at the place of interment at 2 o'clock. The coffin was of polished oak, with massive brass mountings, and the plate bore the simple inscription:—

Edward Harvey,
Died 24th August, 1906; aged 26.
R.I.P.

The principal mourners were:—In the first carriage, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Harvey, Kate and Maggie (sisters), Frank Harvey (youngest brother), and Frank Folloy (uncle). In the second carriage, Walter and Jim (brothers-in-law), Manny Hart, Bob Baigle. In the third carriage were Miss Ray Maskell and two other ladies, and in private conveyances were the Three Laurels, and Messrs. Griff, Leo Tell, Morny Cash, and Harry Bancroft, representing the Variety Artistes' Federation.

At the cemetery many friends of the deceased gathered to pay a last tribute of respect, and the grave-side was covered with flowers. The senders of wreaths included Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Harvey, Frank Harvey, Frank Folloy (uncle), Katie and Maggie (sisters), Walter and Jim (brothers-in-law), Aunt Betsy, Cissie and Charlie (cousins), Aunt Annie, Willie Benn, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Conlin, The Florodora Girls, Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson, Mr. Don and Dulcie, Baby Ray, S. Aarons and Sons, Bert Burnell, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Elvin, V. L. Granville, "Bob," The Three Laurels, Fred Haile, W. Lee, D. Lexie, The Terriers' Association, The Variety Artistes' Federation, Alexandra Dagmar, Manny Hart, May Henderson, Lottie Stone.

The funeral arrangements were admirably carried out by Mr. Theophilus Dunkley, of Westminster Bridge Road.

MUSIC-HALL COMMISSIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I beg formally to notify, so far as concerns the Oxford, Tivoli, and other establishments which are under my direction, that no commissions, discounts, fees, loans, gifts, or other considerations are permitted to be received by any of the companies' employees from anyone who may supply goods to or have any business transactions with the companies.

Any breach of this rule will lead to the closing of business relations with any firm offering the same, and the instant dismissal of any employee receiving the same.—Yours truly,

G. ADNEY PAYNE
(Managing-Director).

Aug. 25.

PRESENTATION.—At the Brixton Theatre on Wednesday evening Mr. R. W. Allum, the acting-manager, on behalf of the management and staff, presented Mr. Harry Richardson, the chef d'orchestre, with a silver cigar-case, in token of their esteem and as an expression of regret on his retirement to take up an important position elsewhere. The presentation was made in the saloon of the theatre. Mr. Allum, in the course of a neat speech, expressed the hope that Mr. Richardson, in his new sphere, would always be top-scorer. Mr. Richardson returned thanks in a felicitous speech, and took the opportunity to introduce his successor, Mr. E. Moss, to the staff, and hoped they would be as loyal to him as they had been to their former chief.

PORTABLE THEATRES AND BUILDING BY-LAWS.

Judging by what we hear of Hemel Hempstead we might imagine it was in some out-of-the-world corner of the earth, and not within easy access of the heart of the world's life, mighty London. The question agitating the grave and reverend seigniors of its council is—theatre or no theatre? A permanent Temple of Thespis being out of the question, is it wise to admit a portable or travelling theatre?

The debate in the Town Council, which we reproduce from the local Press, is of wide interest.

The Highways and Works Committee reported that the magistrates had granted Mr. Whitmee, proprietor of the Eden Theatre, a licence for a temporary building to be erected. The committee had directed the Borough Surveyor to request Mr. Whitmee to submit plans before erecting the building.

Councillor Clarke submitted the report, and asked if Mr. Whitmee had sent any plans.

The Borough Surveyor: I received a letter from Mr. Ellis, Mr. Whitmee's solicitor, and he says the theatre is a building which does not require plans to be submitted. However, plans were afterwards received, with a letter which said that they had been sent as a matter of courtesy.

Councillor Herbert: Are they in accordance with the by-laws?

The Borough Surveyor: No.

Alderman Thompson: I have seen a report of a case where this matter was thrashed out, and it was decided that plans were not necessary for a temporary structure.

The Borough Surveyor: There was a case in reference to a structure for a circus, but I believe that was for one night only.

Councillor Bailey: The theatre is up now. A tenant of mine was ordered to remove a building he had put up, and I want all treated alike. I don't see why there should be a law for one and not another.

Councillor Clarke: It would be best to refer the matter back to the committee with power to act.

Councillor Denny: Does that mean taking counsel's opinion? It seems to me that we should know whether we are in the right or not.

The Chairman (Alderman Chennells): The Town Clerk will be here soon, and he will advise us.

Alderman Thompson: What does "with power to act" mean?

Councillor Clarke: If we are within our rights we should pull it down.

Councillor Denny: There was a case from Bovingdon just lately, but the building still stands.

Councillor Clarke: That was not ours.

Councillor Denny: Coming the bluff does not act always.

Councillor Clarke: It is not bluff. I am in sympathy with entertainment for the people, but we must see that they are in a safe building. At present we have had no case stated to us that plans are not required.

The Borough Surveyor: Mr. Ellis was asked to state a case at the last court, but he could not do so.

Councillor Bailey: That is where the bluff comes in.

Councillor Herbert having made a remark, it was decided to hold the matter over till the Town Clerk's arrival.

When Mr. Smeathman arrived he read Mr. Ellis's letter, and added that he had looked into the matter and was not aware of any case supporting the statement made by Mr. Ellis. His own opinion was that the building must be approved by the local authority, as it was more or less a permanent structure. It seemed to him that that class of building needed special restrictions. However, he would put the case before the Municipal Corporations' Association and get counsel's opinion.

Alderman Thompson: Of course, if anyone had shown opposition before the Bench the licence would not have been granted.

Alderman Gray: It had been refused, and no one thought it would be granted again.

The matter was then referred back to the committee for the purpose of receiving the reply to the Town Clerk's letter.

The Council of Hemel Hempstead did wisely and well in referring the matter of their power to the Town Clerk. We doubt not that the case governing all similar applications will be looked up by the Clerk.

The case of the Urban District Council of Nantyglo and Blaina (Wales) v. Edward Ebley, clearly shows that by-laws framed to regulate permanent buildings do not apply to portable erections, such as booths, tents, or shows. Another point also of vast importance was settled in that test case. That is, that no Parish or District Council has power to make by-laws, but must use the by-laws already in existence under the jurisdiction of the County Council.

It was proved that the County Council could not delegate power to make local by-laws to smaller governing bodies like Parish or District Councils.

This is of immense importance to travelling shows and theatres. Local bodies strain their powers, not to regulate shows and theatres, but to prohibit their erection. If Mr. Whitmee had been so ill-advised as to submit plans without any qualification he probably would have been prevented opening at all by the vexatious restrictions and conditions placed upon him and his theatre.

Hemel Hempstead is in the County of Hertford and the county by-laws provide for the "good order, rule, and government" of all places of public resort; and, over and above all that, the common and the statutory law of the land provides amply for all kinds of entertainments, so far as they touch public morals or public safety. Let the Solons of the Town Council leave something for their brethren of the County Council to do.

BLONDIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—It has been stated by a contemporary that Blondin, the world-renowned tight-rope walker, was born at St. Omer, Pas-de-Calais, France, in 1822. That is incorrect, as the year of his birth was 1824.

I myself witnessed Blondin's wonderful performances on two occasions, once in Leipzig in 1881, and the other time years afterwards at the Aquarium, Westminster.

Blondin lies buried in Kensal Green Cemetery, the inscription on the fine brown granite tomb, containing a white marble medallion bust of the deceased, covered with glass, being as follows:—"In memory of Jean François Gravelet Blondin, who died at Niagara House, Ealing, February 22, 1897, in his 73rd year."

His wife is interred with him.—Yours faithfully,

ALGERNON ASHTON.

44, Hamilton-gardens, N.W.

MR. WILLIAM J. LOCKE, author of The Morals of Marcus, has just corrected the proofs of a new book, to be published shortly by Mr. John Lane. It bears the promising title of "The Beloved Vagabond." Mr. Locke, who attended all the rehearsals of his play at the Garrick, does not suffer from the intense nervousness that makes a first night positive torture to many playwrights.

ALBURGH regatta was held on Monday in fine weather. Stock's gallopers, Crichton's gallopers, Purchase's menagerie, Kibble's fine art exhibition, and a host of swings, shooting saloons, Emmas, stalls, &c. More people than ever known before attended the fair, and business was good.

MARIE WALFORD MEMORIAL.

"MYSTIC MARIE."

Messrs. William Boddie and Sons, the well-known sculptors and granite merchants, St. Clair-street, Aberdeen, have just finished a beautiful and artistic memorial to the order of Dr. Walford Bodie, which is to be erected in the Macduff Churchyard, in memory of his sister-in-law, Miss Mary Walford Henry, better known as "Mystic Marie," who used to appear along with Dr. Bodie at his performances in London and the provinces. Miss Marie died during the doctor's last visit to

MISS MARIE WALFORD.

Aberdeen, in her twenty-first year. The monument stands over 14ft. high, the top part being an exceedingly fine piece of workmanship by Professor Morescalchi, the famous Italian sculptor. The figure, which is life-sized, represents "Hope," and is carved out of a solid piece of white Sicilian marble and weighs over two tons. It takes the form of a cross with a scroll hanging over a lovely figure of an angel, whose features are beautifully moulded and life-like. She is represented placing a laurel wreath on the cross, and is undoubtedly one of the finest specimens of monumental architecture seen in the North for some time. We understand that the statue was carved as a labour of love by the professor, and has never been duplicated, and has been exhibited in several exhibitions. It undoubtedly reflects great credit on the sculptor as being a very fine work of art.

The figure stands on a granite monument over 8ft. high, consisting of two bases, die and cap. The bottom piece is 3ft. 6in. square, and finely axed. The second block measures 2ft. 11in. square by 1ft. 4in. high, with a rich carved moulding. The die is 4ft. 2in., the cap being 3ft. by 1ft. 5in. The last three stones are all polished. The cap is also richly moulded, with dentils cut round the four sides. Rubislaw Aberdeen granite has been used for the bottom parts of the monument, and all the stones are of the best colour and even texture. The inscription, which is deeply sunk in gilded letters, reads as follows:

Erected by
S. M. Walford Bodie,
M.D., C.M. U.S.A., F.R.M.S, F.R.S.A. London, in loving and affectionate memory of
MARY WALFORD HENRY,
"MYSTIC MARIE,"
for six years his gifted musical directress and assistant, who died at The Manor House,
Macduff,
19th July, 1906, aged 21 years.

MEMORIAL TO MISS MARIE WALFORD (MYSTIC MARIE).

A ministering angel she has been;
Appeared with me in many a scene.
She was so humble 'midst it all,
And now has answered her last call.
Such talents as to you were sent
Filled all the world with wonderment;
As spellbound they would speak your praise
And marvel at your mystic ways.
And now your soul is called above
To mansions of eternal love.
Why should we sorrow? You were good—
A type of perfect womanhood.

Bodie is cut in raised letters on the second base, and stands out in bold relief. The monument will be erected in the Macduff Churchyard, where the deceased is buried, and will stand in the centre of the family vault, which has recently been constructed by Dr. Bodie for the Bodie and Henry families. It has been built by Mr. Robert Morrison, Macduff, and is one of the largest vaults in the North; it is 14ft. deep, 19ft. in length, and 9ft. wide. The walls are built of solid blocks of granite, and are 9ft. thick, the floor being finished with glazed bricks. The roof is covered with large stone slabs, with two massive iron doors supported by four strong iron girders; the foundation, which is laid in bricks to rest the monument on is 16ft. deep. The monument has been on view all this week, previous to being sent to Macduff, at the King-street showyard of Messrs. William Boddie and Sons, and has been visited by admiring crowds.

THE MACNAGHTEN WAYZGOOSE.

All on pleasure bent two hundred and sixty "merry souls," comprising Mr. Frank Macnaghten's London District Staff from the Palace, Bow, Foresters', Britannia, Sadler's Wells, and Surrey Theatres, could be seen in the early hours of a recent Sunday morning converging towards Liverpool Street Station where they all entrained at 10.25 a.m. in one of the G.E.R. Co.'s luxurious specials for Southend-on-Sea, which was reached in good time to allow for a stroll round to see the many attractions of this unique combination of an East and West End seaside resort.

All in good time, with appetites sharpened by the bracing air, the company assembled in the elegant hall of the Southend Kursaal to do justice to a menu that would have satisfied an epicure in dainty dishes, all served in a manner that has made the cuisine of the Southend Kursaal famous, and comprised the following:—

Soup.
Clear Ox Tail.
Joints.
Roast Lamb and Mint Sauce.
Roast Sirloin of Beef. Horseradish Sauce.
Yorkshire Pudding.
Boiled Leg of Mutton. Caper Sauce and Turnips.
Poultry.
Roast Fowl and Sausage.
Vegetables.
Baked and Boiled Potatoes, and all Vegetables in Season.
Sweets.
Macaroni Pudding, Greengage Tart, and Custards.
Cheese and Salads.

After the cloths were cleared a most convivial hour or two were spent, with Mr. Frederick Baugh in the chair, supported by Mr. C. Harvey, Mr. J. D. Kirkland, Mr. J. McCarthy, and Mr. C. Craig, when the following toast list was gone through and drunk with marked enthusiasm. "The Chief," Mr. Frank Macnaghten, proposed by the general-manager, Mr. Frederick Baugh; "Mr. Baugh," proposed by Mr. J. McCarthy; "The Ladies," proposed by Mr. Kirkland; "The Visitors," proposed by Mr. Harvey; "Mr. Warren," the hon secretary, proposed by Mr. C. Craig. At 3 p.m. the entire company boarded a number of brakes, and thoroughly enjoyed a splendid drive around Southend, and returned to the Kursaal to tea at 5.30 p.m., when full justice was done to the splendid tea of rolls and butter, watercress, lettuce, shrimps, preserves, and Genoa, Madeira, and cherry cakes. It was rather late when the lengthy "Sports programme" was commenced in the Kursaal grounds, the greatest interest being manifested in the first item—a Tug-of-War between the Staffs of the five halls for a handsome Silver Cup, given by Mr. Fred Baugh, and medals for the winning team by Mr. Lew Lake. The Surrey team proved victorious, and proudly carried off the elegant trophy.

The remaining items on the programme—some of which had to be abandoned—were:—

50yds. Race for Married Ladies.
50yds. Race for Single Ladies.
100yds. Race Open Handicap for all Halls.
100yds. Race Open.
Egg and Spoon Race, Potato Race, Three-Legged Race, Sack Race, Monkey Race, Blindfold Race for Ladies, Blindfold Race for Gents.
100yds. Handicap Programme Boys' Race.
Match—Mr. F. Baugh v. Mr. Weaver, 100yds. for 5s., Mr. Baugh 35yds. start.
Match—Mr. J. Malchar v. Mr. C. Redgrave, 100yds. for 5s., Mr. J. Malchar 5yds. start.
Two Mile Cycle Race.
Half-Mile Open Race.

Mr. Con Weaver proved himself a most efficient property-master of the sports.

A full list of the winners will be published when the presentation of the prizes takes place.

The return journey to London at 9.25 p.m. landed all safely in London about 10.45, when a large number of the company adjourned to the Foresters' for a parting toast, and to tell all over again the many enjoyable incidents of a memorable and happy day's outing.

"THE DUCHESS OF TOOTING."

At the Empire Palace Theatre, South Shields, on Monday, a most successful musical comedy was produced, entitled The Duchess of Tooting, the words and lyrics being written and the music composed by Mr. Georg Sheldon. The book is smart and entertaining, and although the plot is not entirely original, it is full of ludicrous situations which keep the house continuously amused.

Charlie Cash, the son of Silas Cash, a wealthy manufacturer, marries Rosa Latour, an actress in the halls, who is also known as the Duchess of Tootsie, the title of one of her songs. Silas Cash, the father, falls into the mistake of supposing his son's bride to be the Duchess of Tooting, and visits his son for the purpose of giving him a wedding present of £10,000. Matters being complicated by his arrival, Fitzroy Fitzherbert, Charlie's friend, kindly consents to impersonate the Dowager Duchess. The real Duchess, however, comes upon the scene, and being much annoyed, is taking her luggage away from the hotel when Silas Cash enters, and seeing what he believes to be his daughter-in-law's name on the luggage, has the Duchess arrested by the gendarmes as a thief. She sees the sham Duchess, and breaking away from the gendarmes, pursues him, followed by the rest, and a general chase across the stage ensues, ending by Fitzherbert appearing dressed in his own clothes, and presenting the bride with a £10,000 cheque which he has got from Silas Cash, and with the usual explanations all ends happily.

Rosa Latour is charmingly portrayed by Miss Josie Bickford, her singing and dancing being applauded. Mr. Eric Delavere as Fitzroy Fitzherbert keeps the audience amused by his funny make-up as the Dowager Duchess. Mr. Henry Latimer is good as Charlie Cash, and Mr. Ernest Spalding as Silas Cash contributes towards the success of the play. Miss Dora Heritage as the Duchess of Tooting and Miss Ida Lawrence as Peter are both successful. A quartette of dancers and acrobats score heavily. The piece is well mounted, the dresses beautiful, and the music light and pretty, the band and chorus being ably conducted by the author and composer, Mr. Georg Sheldon.

ON the occasion of Mr. Billy Keene's benefit at the Town Hall, Portrush, on Aug. 24, Mr. Rowland Hill presented him with a handsome silver-mounted crocodile skin cigar-case, the artists presented him with a beautiful morocco leather pocket-book with suitable inscription, and to Mrs. Billy Keene was presented a large case of real Irish linen from Miss Daisy Morell (Mrs. Hill).

THE NEW EMPIRE, CAMBERWELL.

The Empires of the Metropolis will be added to on Monday next, when the old-established theatre at Camberwell, built by Mr. J. B. Mulholland some twelve years ago, will be re-opened as a music hall on the two-houses-a-night plan, a system of which it has already had a brief experience. The Metropole, as the house was formerly known, has been lavishly redecorated, and a sight of its handsome interior was given to a privileged few on Wednesday, when Mr. Jesse Sparrow, the managing-director of the company formed to carry on the enterprise, welcomed many friends and supporters. Mr. Sparrow has behind him the benefit of eight years of local popularity, gained at the Palace of Varieties opposite, and his ability to cater adequately for the wants of the neighbourhood render the success of the venture practically assured. The association in the management of Mr. Harry Bawn, a performer of wide renown, and an experienced manager, who is a director of the company, materially strengthens the chances of prosperity. The board of directors is completed by Mr. E. C. Webb, Mr. Percy Ford, and Miss Vesta Victoria. The solicitor to the company is Mr. G. P. R. Burgess, who acts in an honorary capacity for the Terriers' Association and the Music Hall Home. Mr. Percy Ford will fill the position of acting-manager.

The hall stands on an exceptionally fine site at the junction of Denmark Hill and Coldharbour-lane, and the electric cars, which will soon be running past the door, will open up a vast source of patronage in the rapidly-increasing residential districts of Dulwich; while the erection of the new King's College Hospital and the opening of Ruskin Park will increase the popularity of the immediate locality.

The effect of the new decorations is agreeably striking, no expense having apparently been spared to render the hall attractive. The highest credit is reflected on Mr. W. Nutt, the stage-manager, whose staff has carried out the work, under the supervision of Mr. Sparrow, with whom Mr. Nutt has had an association extending over many years. Crimson is the prevailing colour, relieved by hues of Antwerp blue and gold, the figure subjects, baskets of fruit and flowers, and Oriental designs being tastefully painted. The plush hangings are in peacock blue, and the seats are upholstered in the same colour. Attention will be attracted to the ceiling, upon which a design symbolical of the Empire has been painted, the blue sky being studded with golden stars. Wilton carpets of fine quality cover the floors. Stained glass is profusely used in the decorations, and when the house is lit up by electric lights the whole scene is very inspiring. New scenery from the practised brush of Mr. Richard Douglass has been provided, fine garden scenes and elegant interiors, &c., quite sustaining the artist's reputation. The orchestra will be under the direction of Mr. Frank Hurst.

The company for the opening night consists of John F. Preston's company, in the racing episode, Rogues of the Turf, Edie Rivers, Little Tina, Grey and Parry, in their burlesque on Acrobats, Past and Present, Marguerite Hay, Will McIvor, Hamilton Hill, Marlow and Manton, Jack Wood, Elton and Edwin, and the Empire Pictures. There will also be a special production of an original vocal mélange, introducing songs and characteristic dances of two countries, entitled Girls Will be Girls, portrayed by Miss Mabel Bright and selected company.

Numerous friends looked in during the evening to assure Mr. Sparrow and his colleagues of their best wishes, among those present being the veteran Mr. George Burgess, Mr. Rob Cunningham, Mr. Joe Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Millis, Mr. Leon A. Bassett, Mr. J. J. Fruin, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neiman, Mrs. Cliff Ryland, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Cowper, Miss Lottie Lennox, Miss Nance Maries, Miss Dora Clifford, Mr. Jack Wayho and Miss Eva Hope, Mr. Harry Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gage, Mrs. Potter, Mr. and Mrs. Cooke, Mr. E. C. Webb, Capt. Ben Woodger, and Messrs. Ernest Aplin, J. Gallimore Fox, Paul Valentine, Dave Cohen, Jeapes, John Moore, Will Crackles, V. Golden, Ted Delome, Tom Eugene, J. Wolff, and Ed. C. Webb. Selections on the pianoforte enlivened the evening, and the acoustics of the house were agreeably tested by Mr. W. L. Murray, who has hitherto won distinction as the winner of the Sandow gold statuette for his physical development, but on Wednesday gained honours for his singing in a pleasing tenor voice of "The Maid of the Mill" and "Alice, where art thou?"

REHEARSING "PINAFORE."

One Monday morning in 1899, says Mrs. Alec-Tweedie in her amusing book, "Behind the Footlights," when Mr. Gilbert, who was coming up to town to attend a rehearsal, asked me if I would care to see a rehearsal of H.M.S. Pinafore.

"Nothing I should like better," I replied, "for I have always understood that you and Mr. Pinero are the two most perfect stage-managers in England."

We drove to the stage door of the Savoy, whence down strange and dark stone stairs we made our way to the front of the auditorium itself. We crossed behind the footlights, passing through a small, unpretending iron door into the house, Mr. Gilbert leading the way to a side box, which at the moment was shrouded in darkness; he soon, however, pushed aside the white calico dust-sheets that hung before it, and after placing chairs for his wife and myself, and hoping we should be comfortable, departed. What a spectre that theatre was! Hanging from gallery to pit were dust-sheets, the stalls all covered up with brown holland wrappers, and gloom and darkness on all things. Verily a peep behind the scenes—which, more properly speaking, was before the scenes in this case—is like looking at a private house preparing for a spring cleaning.

Built out over what is ordinarily the orchestra was a wooden platform large enough to contain a piano, brilliantly played by a woman, beside whom sat the conductor of the orchestra, who was naturally the teacher of the chorus, and next to him the ordinary stage-manager, with a chair for Mr. Gilbert placed close by. The librettist, however, never sat on that chair. From 11.30 to 1.30—exactly two hours—he walked up and down in front of the stage, directing here, arranging there; one moment he was showing a man how to stand as a sailor, then how to clap his thighs in nautical style, and the next explaining to a woman how to curtsey, or telling a lover how to woo. Never have I seen anything more remarkable. In no sense a musician, Mr. Gilbert could hum any of the airs and show the company the minutest gesticulations at the same time. Be it understood they were already word and music perfect, and this was the second "stage rehearsal." He never bullied or worried any one, he quietly went up to a person, and in the most insinuating manner said:

"If I were you, I think I should do it like this."

And "this" was always so much better than their own performance that each actor quickly grasped the idea and copied the master. He even danced when necessary, to show them how to get the right number of steps in so as to land them at a certain spot at a certain time, explaining carefully:

"There are eight bars, and you must employ so many steps."

That hale and hearty veteran, Mr. G. B. Bigwood, looking none the worse for his forty-one years' connection with the Britannia Theatre, is, as is known to many, located at Gaiety House, facing Southend Pier, and many are the Hoxtonians who patronise his cigar-shop, in order to see once again one of their old idols.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
The thirty-ninth issue of "The Era" Annual has just appeared, and once more it supplies a useful record of the theatrical year. An editorial note reminds us that among the contributors to the first number, that of 1868, were E. L. Blanchard (its editor), Charles Mathews, T. W. Robertson, Andrew Halliday, H. J. Byron, Watts Phillips, and Dion Boucicault—a brilliant band indeed. The contributors to the present issue are almost exclusively actors rather than literary men, but upon the whole they make a very fair show; while the lists of plays produced in London and the provinces, and in Paris and Berlin during the twelve months under review are distinctly useful. There are a number of photographs including an exceedingly fine one of the late Sir Henry Irving.—Pall Mall Gazette, Jan. 22.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

CUSTOMS MAN BEWITCHED by Carmen.

Code Word, BROCHURE.

The wiles and love-making of Carmen overcome the Customs man on duty at the Boundary, and the smugglers succeed in getting their contraband through. Perfect scenery.

230ft. The Subject £3 16s. 8d.

THE POACHER.

A dramatic story, culminating in romance, in which a young lover helps his future father-in-law, who is shot at by a poacher, brings the doctor, fights the poacher, takes him to the lock-up, and is rewarded with the hand of the girl he loves. One event after another, each more exciting and enthralling.

478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

TWO MISCHIEVOUS BOYS.

These two young scapegraces combine to do the wickedest things—let off fireworks in an old gentleman's hat, put too much pepper in the food, and run riot generally. Very amusing.

396ft. The Subject £6 12s.

THE MARBLE INDUSTRY IN CARRARA.

Code word, BRESSANT.

The title almost speaks for itself. Suffice it to say that one is taken into the mountains, workshops, and homes of the people who look after this great industry. Intensely interesting.

412ft. The Subject £6 17s. 4d.

THE LITTLE NEW BROTHER.

Code Word, BRULOT.

Parents lose their young baby boy. Their other little daughter, wandering in the fields, discovers another little boy in the grass, takes him home, and the parents decide to adopt him. Very pathetic and grand quality.

264ft. The Subject £4 8s.

THE SIX AMOROUS TROOPERS.

Code Word, BRULEUR.

Amusing adventures of six Soldiers who make love to the pretty Nursemaids and Dressmakers. Surprised each time by their superior Officers.

311ft. The Subject £5 3s. 8d.

ILL-REWARDED HONESTY.

Code Word, BROME.

A poor gentleman living in a flat on top floor is given a valuable note-book containing money belonging to the first-floor tenant, a rich man, it having been found by a workman. The gentleman, returning same, is rewarded with 5s. He throws it indignantly in the rich man's face, and the workman takes up his cudgels, and beats the millionaire.

311ft. The Subject £5 3s. 8d.

A BROKEN IDYLL.

Code Word, BROMURE.

A pair of Country Lovers are much devoted to each other, until a travelling Theatrical Company induce the girl to join them. The lover is left, and revenges himself by shooting the unfaithful girl. Very dramatic and powerful.

344ft. The Subject £5 14s. 8d.

No. 1122.

WHEN JENKINS WASHED UP.

A woman is getting ready for a good wash up; she places her bath half full of water on a stool, and gazes around almost despairingly at the many piles of plates and dishes. Feeling somewhat faint she sits down holding her head between her hands, just as her husband enters the room. He, seeing how queer she is, at once volunteers to undertake the task, and with a little persuasion and coaxing leads her from the room.

Taking off his coat the worthy man vigorously starts his job, placing the plates, etc., in the water with none too much care. With much splashing he gives them a rub round and throws them from him to the floor. Picking up another heavy lot, he drops them in the water, and in his carelessness, upsets the whole concern. He still goes on quite undismayed by the damage, breaking and dropping the crockery until the place is full of wreckage. He then starts on the dresser; jumping up he begins to clear all the china, and throws it into the bath. Without warning, the poor man is precipitated through the dresser, it giving way under his strenuous exertions. He crawls out from beneath just as his wife enters the room. The sight overpowers the poor woman and she sinks into the chair in despair. Her husband goes to her side and urges her to be calm and patient. Taking the bath and holding it on high he invites the broken pieces to return. He goes back through the dresser, the plates flying to their places, and the others miraculously adjust themselves between his hands, he taking them with many majestic flourishes.

This picture shows a splendid reversing movement, and gives an extremely comical effect.

THE MINER'S DAUGHTER.

AN ORIGINAL KINEMATOGRAPH DRAMA. WILLIAMSON'S COPYRIGHT.

List No. 293. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED. Length 600ft.

SCENE 1.—Artist sketching in a wood. Miner's daughter—a dainty country maid—enters and stoops to gather flowers. Artist persuades her to pose in the picture for him.

SCENE 2.—Another woodland scene. Artist and his model have become great friends.

SCENE 3.—Outside of miner's cottage. Miner seated, playing violin; daughter standing beside him, sewing. Enter artist—introduction to father—asking permission to visit—father hesitates—asks them to come inside and talk about it.

SCENE 4.—Interior of cottage. Father, after some consideration and talk with them, forbids the acquaintance. Affecting parting of the lovers rudely interrupted by the father.

SCENE 5.—Outside of cottage—moonlight—elopement.

SCENE 6.—The same morning: Father's search for his daughter—finds letter—tears it up in rage—disowns her.

SCENE 7.—Off to work, very despondingly.

SCENE 8.—An interval of five years. Interior of artist's studio. Wife and child posed on raised platform—artist painting—all the appearance of a rising artist.

SCENE 9.—At the Royal Academy. Fame. The picture in the previous scene can be recognised on the line. Enter artist and wife—congratulations of friends.

SCENE 10.—Explosion in the mine. Shows cage descending with miners—miners at work, among whom the father can be recognised—explosion!—falling timbers—smoke and effects.

SCENE 11.—The Rescue.

SCENE 12.—In hospital. Daughter, hearing of the disaster, hastens to the hospital, to which her father has been taken, but the old man is obdurate—refuses to see her or accept her gifts.

SCENE 13.—A country lane. Motor car draws up. Artist, child and wife alight and walk towards cottage.

SCENE 14.—Another view of the miner's cottage. The miner, convalescent, is seated outside, a nurse in attendance. Miner looks very helpless and despondent—asks for his violin—fruitless attempts to play—vision of his daughter, which fades away as he looks round.

SCENE 15.—Here we see the daughter with her husband and child looking round the corner watching the poor old lonely man. The child is sent to take some flowers to grandpa and make friends with him.

SCENE 16.—The old man sees the child approaching—nurse lifts child on his knee—something in the face or voice tells him who she is—he relents and opens his arms to his daughter, who now runs up to him, followed by her husband, and the reconciliation is complete.

AUTUMN TOURS.

WE ARE NOW VERY BUSY CLEANING DRESSES FOR AUTUMN TOURS, but have plenty of room, and, like Oliver Twist WE ASK FOR MORE.

We are also very busy Cleaning and Renovating Tableaux Curtains and Draperies from London and Country Theatres and Music Halls.

We still hold the field as Cleaners and Dyers to the Theatrical and Music Hall Professions. This fact is clearly proved by the unsolicited testimonials we are continually receiving.

Professional work takes precedence over all other orders.

By Special Arrangement

TOURING MANAGERS

EARLY TRAINS.

The Railway Companies are despatching many morning trains earlier than hitherto. This will enable subscribers and advertisers in the provincial towns to get copies of "The Era" in time for the breakfast table. Advertisers are requested to forward their advertisements as early in the week as possible, and not later than 7 p.m. on Thursday.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA.

Kind expressions from Authors and Managers.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT.
"I congratulate you on your 'Fifty Years of the Drama': the list must prove both interesting and useful to lovers of and workers for the stage."

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES.
"I think the new feature of The Era is most interesting and useful. A list of plays produced from 1850 to 1900 will certainly be of great service to a very large number of your readers."

MR. EDWARD TERRY.
"An admirable idea, and will prove a most valuable record."

MR. FRANK CURZON.
"Your list, I think, will be most useful for reference."

MRS. W. K. CLIFFORD.
"I think the list will be immensely useful."

MR. SYDNEY GRUNDY.
"Your list will be exceedingly useful. But, of course, there is no reason why old titles should not be used again. Indeed, some day we shall have to go back to them. Some of our modern titles, when they are not mere proper names with an adjective attached, display the desperation of the dramatist in too ludicrous a light. Such a title as 'The Importance of Being Earnest' amounts to a misdemeanour."

MR. ARTHUR W. PINERO.
"The list of plays produced during the last half-century is a most valuable record. The thanks of those interested in the theatre are due to The Era for this and many other enterprises."

MR. ALFRED SUTRO.
"The list you are compiling will be of very great benefit, and I am looking forward to the time when it shall be complete, and obtainable in pamphlet form."

MR. JUSTIN HUNTLY McCARTHY.
"I have watched with the greatest interest the progress of your alphabetical list of the plays published during the last half of the nineteenth century. It is a most useful undertaking, and when it appears in volume form it must prove of great value to all who are concerned with the drama."

MR. ISRAEL ZANGWILL.
"The list of plays will be very interesting and useful when published in complete form. The etiquette of the profession apparently still allows of novelists' titles being used by playwrights. Thus, The Master, which will appear in your list as a play by somebody else, is the name of a book of mine; while the new play, Noah's Ark, has the same title as a shorter story of mine."

MR. ARTHUR LAW.
"The publication in The Era of a list of plays produced during the fifty years, 1850-1900, is an excellent idea, and will be most useful to authors who may be in doubt as to their right to a certain title. When it is issued in book form I shall be very glad to possess a copy."

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER.
"Mr. Arthur Bourchier thinks the list very useful indeed."

MR. TOM GALLON.
"Your idea seems to me to be a most excellent one. Quite apart from the fact that there is always a difficulty in knowing what titles have been used, there very often arises the question of when and where a play was actually produced—a question difficult to be answered. Actors and authors should alike be grateful to The Era."

MR. HAROLD MONTAGUE.
"I think the idea of printing a list of plays produced during the last fifty years an excellent one. It should be of great value to authors."

MR. ARTHUR SHIRLEY.
"The list of produced plays was not merely a happy thought, for the same idea has probably occurred to many, though until The Era carried it out no one took the pains to collect and publish such a truly valuable record.
"Managers, dramatists, as well as would-be authors, will henceforward have a long list of titles to refer to, and there will be neither reason nor excuse for encroaching on pre-existing copyright in play titles. What a lot of trouble it should save us all!"

MR. WALTER MELVILLE.
"I think it shows great enterprise on the part of your journal, and likely to prove most useful and at the same time interesting to the general profession."

MR. ARTHUR MORRISON.
"The list you are publishing will be a most valuable work of reference to everybody taking an interest in the stage, and I have no doubt that when it is published as a book you will find its success warrant you in issuing fresh editions from time to time, with the information brought to date in each case."

MR. J. J. DILLEY.
"The idea is an excellent one, and there can be no question at all of the usefulness of such a summary. Cousin Grace has not been included. This is a little piece from the French, played at a matinée performance at the Gaiety Theatre, Dec. 4, 1884."

MR. COSMO HAMILTON.
"I think that your new feature is an excellent and most useful one. A list of plays produced during fifty years is interesting not only to the playgoer, but essentially so to the manager and the playwright. They will only have to consult it to be sure that a title has not been used before."

MR. CHARLES H. E. BROOKFIELD.
"My attention has been called to your list of plays produced between 1850-1900. I have no doubt it will prove interesting and useful to many."

MR. F. FRANKFORT MOORE.
"The list of plays produced during the past fifty years, now appearing in The Era, will, I am certain, prove, when completed, extremely valuable to everyone associated with the drama in England. I am convinced—and I have had a considerable amount of experience in this direction—that it will be especially valued by all writers upon stage matters. The advantage of being able to refer at a moment's notice to the criticisms upon the production of various plays in various newspapers must be apparent to everyone. If such a list had been in existence some years ago I would have been saved a vast amount of worry and vexation of spirit. The Era has once again proved itself appreciative of the conditions under which the best interests of the drama in England are maintained."

MR. LOUIS N. PARKER.
"I think your list of plays, produced between 1850 and 1900, will, like the other contents of your paper, be invaluable."

THE COMEDIE FRANCAISE.

It was after the Revolution of 1848, according to M. Francisque Sarcey, that more prosperous, if not more glorious, days began to shine on the Comédie Française. The commissioners delegated by the Government to this republic of actors had already for some time been replaced by a general administrator. The names had been changed, but in reality the thing was the same. It was still the hand of the Sovereign in the affairs of the Comédie. The rules which limit the action of the two powers are not more defined in the present day than they were two centuries ago. The amount of authority which falls to the general administrator depends on the prestige he enjoys. It is something entirely personal. He is the real master if he is capable and willing. I have known M. Arsène Houssaye in that post; he was master, but in such a clever and exquisite manner that nobody perceived it. M. Empis, on the contrary, acted the master in such a disagreeable way that he was removed. M. Thierry, who came next, exercised with all kinds of reticence, circumlocution, and delays, at the same time appearing to give way, an influence which was for a long time preponderant. Finally, M. Perrin, of to-day, has charmed and overcome all resistance by the clearness of his views, the brilliancy of his conceptions, and, above all, by the renown of a successful and fortunate manager, which he had acquired in all his undertakings, either at the Opéra or at the Opéra-Comique. And his good luck has followed him to the Théâtre Français, for never since its foundation has the house made such large receipts. They vary from 6,000 to 7,000 francs. Hence the dividends shared every year by the sociétaires have become enormous. The sociétaires, besides the salaries they pay to themselves, last year had parts or shares which amounted to more than 40,000 francs. Add to this the supplementary expenses they allow themselves every time they play, or, as "weeklies," supervise the getting-up of a piece, and you will see that a member entitled to the whole of one part gets from 60,000 to 70,000 francs per annum. Add again the fact that a portion of the profits has been deducted beforehand and turned into two parts, one part to increase the general fund and the other to form for every sociétaire a little heap of money which he receives on the day of his retirement. It was thus that Bressant, when he took leave of the Comédie Française, received 80,000 francs in a lump; his retiring pension is, I think, 8,000 to 10,000 francs a year.

It is easy to understand that so many advantages, apart from the honour of being able to put on your card the words, "Sociétaire de la Comédie Française," which gives a position in society, and which assures a certain consideration of which actors are all the more jealous that it was long refused to their calling—it is easy to understand that so many advantages possess an irresistible fascination for all young actors. There is not one that does not dream of entering the House of Molière one day, that does not make it the height of his ambition, and struggles with all his might and main to attain it. The high study of elocution would long since have been abandoned for the easier triumphs of the vaudeville and the opérette if the House of Molière did not appear in the distance offering its golden apples to candidates. No, you will never know how many unfledged Delaunays and Sarah Bernhardts there always are on the streets of Paris, who work ten hours a day at the old répertoire, and who dine at restaurants at sixpence a head, waiting for glory. They try to raise themselves to the height which the Comédie Française alone maintains in these days of decadence.

The decadence which affects all the theatres in Paris has not yet made itself felt at the Comédie Française, and yet of the three elements which have contributed to its success during centuries one has already almost disappeared. There is no longer any public. The Parisian is swamped amid the multitudes which the railways daily turn out on the Boulevards, and which invade the salle of the Rue Richelieu every night. They prolong beyond measure the success of pieces, and force the actors to play them a hundred times running, thereby spoiling talents which cannot be renewed, and which have not opportunities enough to seek fresh strength in the great school of the classic répertoire. Their taste is neither delicate nor attentive. They neither instruct nor support the actor. This state of things, unfortunately, will only go on increasing, and one can see no remedy for it. It has not yet done much harm to the Comédie Française, which still presents a majestic aspect, and relies on the two principles which presided over its formation, and which have constituted its power. On the one side, that ensemble of actors governing themselves and guarding the traditions. Do you know that between Got and Molière there are only seven or eight names of great actors? We have, so to speak, only to stretch out our hand to be able, across several generations, to find the first Mascarille. Got played a long time with Montrose, who had seen Dazincourt. Dazincourt appeared young by the side of Préville, already old. Préville had known Poisson, who is the last link of the chain up to Molière. In this way the tradition has been preserved alive from one great actor to another. One feels how such or such a rôle was played in the days of Molière, and when by chance the interpretation is changed by the caprice of an actor, as happened in the case of Arnolphe, whose character was modified by le père Provost, that change forms a date, and the new tradition is established, unless the successors of Provost reject it. Here we see the distinctive mark of the Comédie Française, which unites to tradition a wise spirit of innovation, that corrects and harmonises it to the tastes of the day, but at the same time, out of respect for tradition, it always puts the bridle on this taste for novelty. The history of the Comédie Française is only a perpetual compromise between these two contrary forces.

The administrator represents more especially the spirit of innovation. As he is always a man of influence and education, he brings with him into office personal opinions on art, and seeks to apply them. He therefore gives a stroke to the rudder which turns the ship into a new direction. He is disinterested, as the question of money does not affect him; or rather he has no other interest than glory. He does not, therefore, feel any desire to sacrifice art to big receipts. He is also above those petty rivalries, those mean jealousies, which often divide actors, and from which those of the Comédie Française are not more exempt than others. He puts an end to their quarrels sometimes by imposing his own will, sometimes by compounding dexterously with their passions. C'est la lutte: donc c'est la vie.

Such is it still, this majestic ensemble of traditions, which is called the Comédie Française. Everything is there, as in great family houses, rich and solemn. The employés of it rest there till old age, and are proud of it. You will find ushers there so ceremonious that they appear as if they dated from the Great Monarch, and had formerly opened the doors to him. The box-openers know all the habitués, and salute them with a friendly smile. Costumers and assistants transmit their charges from father to son. The very forms which are used to reply to all who have anything to do with the Comédie smack of old times, and in everything the Comédie says or does there is a politeness and generosity which is like a permanent homage to the memory of Molière.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Z Andrews.—Mr. Ian Maclaren's Shakespearean company is here this week. On Monday Hamlet was presented. In the title-rôle Mr. Ian Maclaren was excellent, his acting reaching a high standard; Mr. Philip Gordon as Claudius proved himself to be an actor of considerable ability; Mr. Gordon Phillott as Polonius deserved much praise; Mr. Whitford Kane was highly satisfactory as Laertes; Mr. F. S. Dawson as the Ghost was also worthy of special note. Miss Gertrude Gilbert was a great success as Ophelia, her acting in the mad scene being highly creditable; Miss Edith Coleman was successful as Gertrude; Miss G. Littlewood made the most of her part as the Player Queen.

ABERDEEN.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—La Poupee, which is always exceedingly popular here, was presented on Monday by Mr. C. P. Levilly's company. Miss Stella Gastelle was as bright and piquant as ever in the part of Alesia; Hilarius was in the capable hands of Mr. W. H. Powell, and Mr. Frederick Hobbs was specially successful as Father Maxime; Mr. Manfred Kassell made an excellent impression as Launcelot, and Loremois and Baron Chanterelle received full justice from Mr. Fred Seymour and Mr. William Griffin. The augmented chorus was ably directed by Mr. Harry Rushworth. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday Amorelle was to be given.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Darc's Marionettes contribute an exceptionally interesting entertainment, their imitations being really delightful; Les Kyasyas are wonderfully capable athletes; and Kan and Kooney make a decided hit with a diverting sketch, My Friend, the Enemy; Mr. Bob Hamilton, Scots comedian, obtains a cordial reception; and among others who contribute to the success of the evening are the Four Kays in a lively pantomimic sketch, The Drudge; Miss Marie Yorke, burlesque artist; Mr. Dan Noble, comedian and vocalist; Miss Florence Deighton and Miss May Fallowfield.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. John B. Shinton and company opened here on Monday with The Price of Her Soul. Mr. J. B. Shinton in a most artistic and telling style portrays Mandeville, V.C.; Mr. Annesley Helys, who represents Major Skoboloff, displays genuine histrionic ability; Mr. W. Percy submits a capital character sketch of Pat Murphy; Mr. Bryce Methven is good as the Captain Sergius; Mr. Archie Gear scores as General Demitrius. Exceptional praise is due to Miss Ada M. Ryder for her careful and effective reading of the part of Countess Inez Steinmetz; Miss Mona Gray depicts Olga Lanovitz to the life; Miss Olive Chesman is good as Nadine; Miss Ada Arnott is amusing as Jemime Fraser; Little Ida Thompson gives an excellent reading of Vera; Polly Perkins is smartly represented by Miss Tina Frank.

HIPPODROME — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. Campkin.—A good variety bill here includes Lady Julia, the ape, who gives a very interesting performance; Liggins and Morlone are smart entertainers; Hill and Lane deserve to be complimented; Lillie delights the house with her singing and dancing; Andy Fagan is very good; Miss Mabel Thorne is pleasing; the Bioscope presents some interesting pictures.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Williams.—Mr. C. Macdona's company is here this week in Mr. Hopkinson. Mr. Frank Stanmore's Samuel Hopkinson is exceedingly funny; Miss Alison Alexander has a fine appearance as the Duchess, and her acting is talented; Miss Gladys Jesson's Lady Tyra is played with excellent results; and Eliza Dibbs has an exponent in Miss Katherine M. Romsey to whom only praise can be given; Mr. C. M. Heslop as Dursingham is capital; and as the Earl of Addleton Mr. Shirley Lea is admirable; Mr. Arnold Lacy's Duke is ably impersonated; Mr. Reginald Dane's Lord Cawthorpe is a capital enactment; and Mr. George McCloskie's Smedhurst is a good performance.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—A return to what is known as the Adelphi drama is seen here this week in the revival of Messrs. Geo. R. Sims and Robt. Buchanan's play, The Trumpet Call. Mr. Leonard Yorke is the hero, Cuthbert Cuthbertson, his interpretation being full of vigour, and his military bearing that of a gentleman and a man of honour and courage; Mr. C. F. Cooke as Sergt.-Major Milligan presents not only a fine military figure, but is a characteristic Irishman. Mr. Joe Bracewell, an old Manchester favourite, is suitably cast as Professor Ginnifer, the showman; Mr. John Denny's Richard Featherstone is a meritorious performance; Mr. Freddie Bentley is a small, but remarkably smart, soldier as Tommy Dutton; Miss Helena Rigby is a motherly Mrs. Wicklow; Miss Phyllis B. French is extremely vivacious as Lavinia Ginnifer; as Astrea Miss Dora Gilham portrays with dramatic force the unfeminine characteristics of a revengeful woman; Miss Elsie Evelyn Hill as the heroine portrays the tender solicitude of the true woman with delicacy and sensitiveness in many agreeable lights and shades; there are also excellent points in the acting of Messrs. J. Betterton, G. Hastings, W. G. Blunt, J. B. Glover, Alec. Murray, Misses Florrie Heys, May Bowyer, and Jessie Dene and others. The mounting of the drama is adequate, many of the scenes being mechanically well managed.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—A big novelty in the bill here is the performance of Kreamer and Braun, in a two-mile cycle race, and a half-mile horse v. cycle race; Daisy Martell, song and dance artist, is successful; Will Johnson is a comedian of no mean merit; Merton and Rydon are very mirth-provoking; the Vere Brothers are graceful gymnasts, and are loudly applauded; Lottie De Abbey is a talented vocalist and mimic; the popular Will Letters gives a pathetic recitation and tells some funny stories; Peakman and Walsh give a very entertaining juggling act; Ranji Sinji and Valeria, Indian magicians, give a smart performance, their basket trick evoking much wonder; the Bioscope pictures, "Before the House Awakes," are amusing.

ATTERCLIFFE.—PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. Laycock.—First honours in the excellent entertainment submitted here must be accorded to that versatile comedian, Mr. Harry Pleon, who presents his own mirth-provoking scena entitled P.C. Pudden, in which character he creates roars of laughter. He is ably assisted by Miss Celia Dent, an able exponent of the poetry of motion, Mr. Chris V. Bern, and Mr. Tom Kent Clown Barker, assisted by Miss Rozsika, gives an excellent show with highly-trained dogs, monkeys, and pony; the musical act of Blind Henderson is well received; the Three De Veres are smart acrobats; the coon songs and acrobatic dances of the Four Sisters Godfrey are a decided acquisition to the "bill"; Mr. E. C. Clayton has a fine selection of pictures; the Adderley Brothers are good as mimics; and Mr. Harry Vardon, the golfing ventriloquist, finds much favour. On Thursday and Friday evenings Mr. Harry Pleon presented a new and original tabloid drama entitled The Folly of being Too Sure, a busker's romance, in which comedy and pathos are delightfully blended.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—The three first nights of this week Mr. Horace Stanley and a strong company occupied the theatre in the sensational drama, The 10.30 Down Express. Mr. Stanley, the author of the piece, plays the part of the jolly, happy-go-lucky, Sam Wagstaff, and he is exceedingly well supported by Miss Kate Kilpack as Peggy Potts, the quaint love-making of the two sending the audience into fits of laughter; the Jack O'Malley of Mr. George Beverley was admirably played and sufficiently restrained where there were great inducements to catch the plaudits of the gallery; the James Idderwick of Mr. Chas. Burdon was cleverly acted; Mr. Edwin Clarke as the Scotland Yard detective played his part well; Mr. Alaric Burton as Cuthbert Leigh gave a fine rendering of the part of the old, unbending country gentleman, while as his daughter Miss Elsie Capell was sweet, graceful, and sufficiently pathetic; the Letitia Leigh of Miss Evelyn M. Walton showed a rare appreciation of the eccentricities of the maiden lady, and her portrayal of this elderly spinster was most comical; Miss Josephine Lee as Olive Coombes (Inderwick's deserted wife) was powerful and effective.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Miss Lillian Beszant's company is appearing here this week in An Actor's Romance. Miss Beszant is highly amusing as Dotty Dillingham; Mr. R. Eardley Howard's portrayal of Harold Davenport is powerful; as Louise Davenport Miss Beatrice Honley is sweet and attractive; Miss Florence Nelson shows considerable ability in her delineation of Florence Hastings; and Miss Marion Ryder as the child Phyllis is intelligent. Mr. Cecil Fowler as Robert Livingstone does admirable work; Mr. Harry Agar-Lyons as Jack Woodford also plays well; and a clever impersonation of Charley Cummins is given by Mr. Harry Wren. Mr. Percy Warlow as Ikey Isaacs is seen to advantage.

BARNSTAPLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—On Monday and Tuesday Mr. George Dance's company presented The Cingalee, under the direction of Mr. J. Eyre-Massey. The musical comedy was finely mounted, and the acting and singing were of a high order. Miss Edith Harmer made a great hit as Nanoya, winning golden opinions for a careful and sympathetic rendering; vivacious Peggy Sabine could not have been better placed than with Miss Minnie Muir, whose idea of the part thoroughly deserved the praise endorsed. With Mr. Tom Payne as Chambhuddy Ram Miss Muir captured many encores. Miss Bertha Frey scored heavily as Lady Patricia Vane, her fine voice being heard to advantage in several numbers; a conspicuous success was humourous Mr. Tom Payne, who delineated the Baboo lawyer with marked ability; and excellent in every way was Mr. Harold Montague as Harry Vereker. Boobhamba received careful handling from Mr. Frank Sutton, and Mr. Coope Edmonds as Sir Peter Loftus, and Mr. William Austin as Bobby Warren evinced ability.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Charles Carey's company in After the Ball is here. Mr. Algernon W. Lee enacts Halliwell Menit with great spirit, and Mr. Percy Baverstock plays Colonel Joseph Menit with considerable bluff humour. Miss M. Sadie is a sprightly Nancy, and Mr. Norman Bowyer a smart and entertaining Dick Seymour; while Miss Queenie Finis, Nellie Mather, Miss Eva Ellis, and Ruth Gay play cleverly.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—A variety company, including the cinematograph representation of the Britt-Nelson fight, is here; Kid Gwinn gives an interesting display; the Sisters Charnley discourse some duets sweetly; the 'Frisco Girls do some clever dancing; and Cresswell Bernand interestingly expounds Dickens.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—Here Paulton and Dooley prove skilful trick bicycle riders; Myra Love, comedienne, sings well; Grey and Welford are smart comedians; J. T. MacMillan is an amusing Scotch comedian; and the Ellimans give a clever musical entertainment. Vernon's Bioscope also contributes some good pictures.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Mr. George Alexander's company is here in Mr. Pinero's play, His House in Order, which has been received with enthusiasm by large audiences. Mr. Frank Fenton is seen to the utmost advantage as Hilary Jesson; Miss Auriol Lee has great chances of displaying her undoubted histrionic talents in the finely drawn character of Nina, and with Mr. Fenton secures an ovation at the end of their big scene in Act III. As Filmer Jesson, Mr. Cyril Harcourt does much estimable work; Derek Jesson is cleverly undertaken by the youthful actress, Miss Doris Champion. The Ridgeleys are portrayed with excellent discrimination and tact by Mr. Adam Alexander, Mr. George Silver, Mrs. Kemmis, and Miss Audrey Campbell; Major Maurewarde is enacted by Mr. Charles Tyrel with judicious restraint; Mdlle. Juliette Milo represents in a chic way Mdlle. Thomé; Mr. James Annard secures many a laugh in his one appearance as the provincial mayor; and Mr. Langford Browne and Mr. Cyril Cattley each do well as Harding and Forshaw. The general manager for the tour is Mr. Ernest Benham.

PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schubert.—A prominent position this week is held by Herbert Shelley, who is presenting his latest, and certainly his greatest success, Dan the Outlaw. The ThreeSeabournes are responsible for new and unusual equilibristic and acrobatic feats; as a character impersonator Mr. Victor Newman is successful; Keith and Merson, in their hunting acrobatic absurdity, are amusing; the Sisters Melba, duettists, harmonise effectively; Burg, Haud, and Wise continue to give their popular act, Ye Brown Cow Inn, with every token of acceptance; Arthur Slater, the whistling man in white, and Wat Tyler, character vocalist, each secure a share of favour; and the humorous films shown by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux create laughter.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week the boards are occupied by Adria Hill and Robert Ayrton's company in the Anglo-American play, A Gambler's Daughter. Miss Adria Hill depicts the characters of Mildred and Miriam Grant with conspicuous success; Mr. Robert Ayrton as Desmond O'Dare leaves nothing to be desired; Mr. Harry Cave cleverly impersonates the rôle of Solomon Solomons; and Mr. Richard Pitt makes an excellent John Grant, whose son Jack is in the capable hands of Mr. Victor Millard.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company opened here on Monday with a return visit of the favourite musical comedy, Florodora, which met with a capital reception. In the rôle of Dolores, Miss Josephine Sullivan was most successful. Congratulations are due to Mr. Alfred E. Passmore for his admirable impersonation of Anthony Tweedlepunch. He succeeded in causing roars of laughter with his amusing interpretation. Mr. Allen Morris was all that could possibly be desired as Frank Abercoed; and Miss Lily Gulick furnished a charming and decidedly graceful impersonation of Angela Gilfain. Mr. Stanley White played the part of Cyprus W. Gilfain admirably; and Mr. C. A. James deserves praise for his clever impersonation of Leandro. One could not desire a more vivacious or clever interpretation of Lady Holyrood than that furnished by Miss Kate Leicester; and Mr. Herbert St. John was seen to great advantage as Captain Arthur Donegal. Other rôles were well sustained by Miss Bessie Nunan, Miss K. Russell, and Messrs. F. Farrow, Geo. Speed, &c. The orchestra and chorus were under the able direction of Mr. J. C. Hann.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The leading attraction here is provided by Mr. Tom Grave, who creates quite a sensation with his thrilling cycling feat of flying the revolving wheel. Lockhart's elephants have been retained a second week, and their remarkable performance is the talk of the city. Roars of laughter have been created by the production of the sketch Three of a Kind by Miss Ethel Arden, supported by Mr. George Abel and company. Mr. Russell Carr is a smart ventriloquist, with new ideas; and a hit has been made by Huntingdon and Macdonald in their singing and dancing act. Miss Clara Walters, comedienne and trick pianist; Miss Flo Cecil, comedienne and dancer; the Sisters Poole; and the Palace pictures complete the bill.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John S. Walker.—The chief attraction here is provided by Miss Annie Abbott, the "little Georgia Magnet," whose remarkable performance has created quite a sensation. A capital reception has been extended to Miss Harriett Vernon, who has been heard to great advantage in several catchy songs. Mr. Josh Dixon is a funny comique; and Mr. George Reeves, "the conjuring comedian," is well received. Miss Rosie Bartlett is a smart comedienne; and Goodfellow and Gregson, assisted by Mr. Bert Wade, appear in their very funny act, Watch the Chalk, which is quite a feature of the programme. Vernando, "the ventriloquist barber," has made a hit; and also appearing are Rezene and Robini and Mr. Leslie Race, vocal comedian.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company, under the personal direction of Mr. M. Montgomery, of Liverpool, presents this week the popular drama, The Law and the Man. Notwithstanding the heat, a capital house assembled on Monday and gave the piece a good reception. Mr. Herbert Cecil as the hero Will Waring acted cleverly, and was most successful throughout; and honours were also secured by that charming actress, Miss Nina Blake-Adams, whose emotional acting as Nellie Laverock is worthy of high praise. Mr. Horace Denton portrayed the villainies of Robert Galloway, J.P., most realistically; and Miss Lina Nazeby furnished a sympathetic rendering of Cicely Waring. The humour of the piece was capitally sustained by Miss Effie Macintosh as Bess Dabney and Mr. W. G. Wesley as Tom Dabney; and Mr. Cyril Grier was an admirable Silas Wragley. Other rôles were ably portrayed by Messrs. J. F. Pearce, H. Arnold Allen, and J. M. William. The Alhambra Bioscope presents a new set of pictures, "The Life of a Cowboy," which are most attractive.

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren are here with their company in Proof. Mr. Gerald Kennedy a sympathetic Pierre Lorance, is ably supported by Miss Beatrice Shirley in the rôles of Madeline and Adrienne. An excellent exposition of Lazare is given by Mr. W. J. Butler, and Valentine is effectively played by Miss May Grimshaw. The Duke is earnestly played by Mr. Carl Beechey.

DRILL HALL.—The Imperial Pierrots, "in their new home" here, under the proprietorship of Messrs. Alf. Brookes and Syd Bazley, present an attractive programme, and are supported by Mr. J. C. Richards, baritone; Carl Osmond, cartoonist; Pulo, juggler; Lily Fellows and Little Linda Arthurs, vocalists; and Bertram Brennan, pianist. For the 6th instant was announced a benefit performance for Mr. Alf. Brookes.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—After an interval of ten years Mr. Auguste Van Biene and his talented company are revisiting this town with The Broken Melody, and it is gratifying to observe that crowded and delighted audiences are still attracted by this charming entertainment. An important factor in the great success achieved is undoubtedly the matchless violoncello playing of Mr. Van Biene, which, combined with that gentleman's powerful performance of Paul Borinski, is worthy of the highest praise. As Lena Borinski Miss Lena Burnleigh proves herself to be an emotional actress of exceptional merit; and Miss Rosemary Rees as the Duchesse de Verviers handles a somewhat difficult part with consummate ability; Mr. Henry Ludlow is a good General Ivanoff; Mortimer, the theatrical agent, is well impersonated by Mr. P. Hamilton; and Mr. Lawrence Grove is an excellent Beaujoie; Mr. Charles A. Morgan is an admirable Dickson, and Miss Rosie Lewis is equally well placed as his wife; and the remaining parts are all adequately represented.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Mr. Fred Karno's company of comedians head the bill with the amusing sketch, Moses and Sons, in which Mr. Fred Kitchen appears as Perkins with great success, the production being hailed with delight by crowded houses. Miss Lily Burnand, an accomplished comedienne, receives her customary ovations nightly, and Vasey and Ramsey, expert step dancers, dainty Maggie Rimmer, and Brown's Royal Bioscope also furnish attractive turns.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Paolo and Francesca, in which Messrs. Nixon and Zimmerman "announce" Mr. H. B. Irving, Miss Dorothea Baird, and company, is received with the admiration its beauty and novelty deserve. Mr. Irving is greeted with affection, and as Malatesta is receiving praises which are deservedly evoked by his genius and magnetism. Miss Baird makes an exquisite Francesca, the delicate pathos of the accomplished actress leaving an indelibly sweet impression. Mr. E. Harcourt Williams is an ideal Paolo, with his youthful bearing and tender, sympathetic acting; Miss Maud Milton as the unhappy Lucrezia fills the audience with admiration by her fine tragedy powers; Miss Ada Mellon delivers the prophetic lines of the blind and aged Angela impressively; and Mr. C. Dodsworth, Miss Nannie Bennett, and Miss Elaine Inescourt act exceedingly well.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The Catch of the Season, as presented by Mr. George Dance's company, is the attraction here. Mr. Frank Lincoln undertakes the rôle of the Duke of St. Jermyns, and imbues it with vivacity and good humour; Miss Moya Mannering makes a captivating and dainty Angela; Miss Belle Napier is decidedly pleasant as Lady Caterham; Sophia and Honoria are agreeably rendered by Misses Margaret Saville and Jane Eyre; Miss Gwynneth Galton comports herself well as the Duchess; and Miss Ida Mann plays Lady Crystal with excellent tact. Mr. E. H. Kelly depicts the idiosyncrasies of Lord Dundreary in a clever and laughable manner; and Bucket is divertingly embodied by Master Grata; Miss Ivy St. Helier, Miss Ethel Quarry, Mr. Julian Cross, Mr. A. R. Boielle, Vivian Willis (who succeeds poor Mr. Harry Eversleigh), and A. Lloyd are all excellent.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—The Adventure of Lady Ursula opened the season here in fine style last Monday, presented by Mr. Norman V. Norman's company, who also include in their present week's répertoire Nell Gwyn of Drury Lane and Count Hannibal. Miss Beatrice Wilson as Lady Ursula gained flattering marks of approval; Mr. Dennis Cleugh won excellent opinions by his portrayal of the Earl of Hassenden; Mr. Norman V. Norman as Sir George Sylvester was admirable; Mr. Francis Hope created mirth by his clever character sketch of the Rev. Mr. Blimboe; Mr. Harold West was successful as Mr. Dent; Miss Sybil Ruskin charmed the audience by her good looks and clever acting as Dorothy Fenton; and Miss Hilda Gregory acted capably as Mrs. Fenton. Messrs. Norman Leslie, Kenneth Bruce, Howard Brenan, Sam Wilkinson, jun., and Chas. Redforth were included in the cast.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chris Felton.—The Two Hussars is here, and Messrs. Webb, Benge, and company have been cordially received. Mr. Wilson Benge plays Harry Alford in a clever and soldierly manner; Mr. Fred J. Webb portrays Paul Villiers in thoroughly competent style; Mr. J. Stuart invests the rôle of Col. Manners with the requisite dignity; Miss Sadie Smith is much applauded for her charm and spirit as Ellen Maythorne; Miss Danvers Smith wins admiration as Marie; she has a pleasing manner and appearance. The humorous parts are safe in the hands of Mr. G. Paradise, who scores as the eccentric Sergt. McFinie; Mr. Louis Nanton as Trooper Runn, and Miss Lallah Price as Molly Cutts.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Span of Life is presented here by Mr. Arthur Carlton's company, including the Almo trio of acrobats. Miss Kitty Russell and Mr. Walter Dale, in the characters of Shrove Tuesday and Nutty Brown respectively, introduce clever specialities, which are appreciated and encored. Mr. Hyburn-Dellar brings down tumultuous applause by his manly embodiment of Richard Blunt; Mr. Sanderson Moffatt represents Dunstan Leech with admirable effect; Miss Ella Willmer enacts Kate Heathcote in a most pleasing manner; Mr. J. Petersfell as Azreh and Miss M. Douglas in a dual rôle elicit praise; and Mr. Conrad Clarke as Joshua Gurnet, Mr. Bob Brooks as Inspector Ferguson, and Miss Phylis Hamilton as Mrs. Jelf complete this well-ordered cast.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY. — General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Plucky Nipper is here, played by Miss Bonwin Carlton's company. Mr. Edward Surrey is quite creditable as Bill Burgess; Mr. Fred Rivers displays commendable resource as Richard Vanbrugh; Mr. Claude Kingston as Henry Paget and Mr. Chas. Cameron as Col. Fenwick both do clever work; Mr. W. Anderson as the Ferret acts cleverly; and Mr. Edward Stream as Capt. Frank Leslie (with songs) and Mr. Douglas Cambell as Tommy Atkins (with songs and dances) cause a great amount of enthusiasm. Miss Evelyn Derwent wins the audience's good will as Ma Fenwick; Miss Kitty Maynard excites compassion as the blind girl Daisy Paget; and Miss Bonwin in her popular rôle of the plucky nipper Polly Hithard is the admiration of all.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—A Wife's Triumph is here, played by Mr. Ernest Abbott's company, including Miss Ada Abbott as Bessie Dewhurst. Her prepossessing manner and really clever acting charm the audience. Mr. Douglas Phelps gives an exceedingly fine performance as Robert Dewhurst; Mr. Ernest E. Abbott pleases immensely with his assumption of Frank Wilton; Mr. W. H. Garbois as Ellis Jordan is effective in his realism; Mr. Weedon Ross as Hartman is most commendable; Mr. W. H. Davis-Brown is successful as Stubbs; and Mr. Edwin Keene as Ben Bradford, with Miss Marjorie Tennant as Margery Crib supplies acceptable humour. Miss Kathleen Stewart is well received as Alice Wilton; and Miss Hetty Jones is a favourite as little Frank.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—George Lashwood is a big attraction in the programme here, his songs being well received; while George Newburn imitates him most successfully, also Harry Lauder and Mark Sheridan. Joan Saul mystifies his audience with his remarkable tricks; the ji-jitsu act of Raku is decidedly clever, while Beau Brunmell in his vaudeville act is loudly applauded.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—The Six Brothers Luck are always sure of a big reception here; their sketch, Blazes, is very amusing. Palvero's naval bombardment is also an excellent turn; the Rinaldo Trio are some of the smartest equilibrists we have seen; while as acrobatic cyclists the Brixtons are worthy of much praise. Lily and Flaxmore, and Rosie Lloyd receive loud applause for their songs.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Apollo and Miss Moya Sam are making a great impression here in their ji-jitsu display, which is most interesting; the Olympian Troupe of acrobats are loudly applauded; Gus Harris, Stewart and Morgan, the Du Gros Trio, Leah Arden, Tom Moore, Sidney Dolf, R. Leyland and C. Heney and company are prominent items in the bill.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—The athletic display presented by Ben Hur is exceedingly fine; Queen and Le Brunn are certainly worth all the applause accorded them, their Cockney Huntsman sketch being most amusing. Fred Peake and company have a good sketch, The Hypocrite, which is well acted; Millie Hylton and Decima Brooke are loudly applauded. J. H. Wilson and his dog, Beatrice Willey, and Tom Hughes make up an excellent programme.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Lessees, A. Addison, Ltd.—Mr. Samuel James's company is here this week in As Good as Gold. Mr. H. H. Barrington as Mark Williams is seen to advantage; Mr. Norman Hall, a smart comedian, plays well as Horatio Spanker; Mr. William Heilbroun as Lieutenant Jack Stanton is much to be commended; Mr. Eric Hudson is effective in the trying rôle of Sir Richard Wharncliffe; and Mr. Thorpe Tracey leaves nothing to be desired as Timothy. Miss Marie McAulay acts powerfully as Kate D'Arville; Miss Gertrude Bonser as Nora Williams is charming; The Kipper is in the safe hands of Miss Irene Ross; and others worthy of mention are Miss Ella Seton and Mr. John Greenhalgh.

BLACKBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company in the drama, Between Two Women, is being presented here this week. Miss Molly Malone as Violet Thornton and Miss Winifred Pearson as Carmen de Severeaux score successes in their respective parts. Mr. Stephen Langton acts well as Harry Millard, and Mr. Watkyn Wynne plays the Earl of Millard with dignity. Mr. Fred Danvers as Jack Pringle is capital. The piece is excellently staged.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—The Love that Women Desire is being played to capital houses at this place of entertainment.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—An excellent show here is provided by the Geraldos, hoop manipulators and club jugglers; Fred Earle, in his "Seaweed" and other songs; Rich and Rich, eccentrics; the three Sisters Chester, banjoists, vocalists, and dancers; Elsie Robey, in The Slavey's At Home; Mabel La Blanche, burlesque actress; Alice Ormonde, comedienne; the Schiavony troupe of comedy acrobats; George Colline, comedian; and Zaro and Arno, comic gymnasts.

BLACKPOOL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—An enthusiastic reception was accorded Mr. Tree when he appeared on the stage on Monday night last in the character of Isidore Izard in Business is Business. The scene in the last act, where he depicts the vain and ambitious financier in the throes of heart failure, was a particularly powerful piece of acting, and the curtain was rung down on a perfect tumult of applause. The company supporting Mr. Tree is one of unusual excellence. Mrs. S. H. Brooke presented a wonderfully life-like picture of Mrs. Izard, and Miss Norah Lancaster showed that she had made a close study of the part of Inez Izard, the self-willed daughter. That sterling actor Mr. G. W. Anson scored a distinct triumph in the small part of Professor Gruggh, and Mr. Robert Atkins was efficient as the solicitor friend, Mr. Deevish. Cyril Izard had a capable representative in Mr. A. G. Benedict, and the Earl of Hathersage was portrayed as to the manner born by Mr. Edmund Maurice. Mr. Sydney Brough as Sir George Tarrant, Mr. Charles Quartermaine as Hubert Forsyth, Miss Muriel Alexander as Mrs. Fraser, and Miss Hilda Moore as Mrs. Underwood were also in the cast, and performed their respective tasks creditably. The Man Who Was, with Mr. Tree as Austin Limmason, followed, and never has finer acting been witnessed within the walls of this theatre. The other characters were also well played, but the Colonel Dirkovitch of Mr. Edmund Maurice calls for special mention. Colonel Newcome is billed for the latter part of the week, with Mr. Tree in the title-rôle and Miss Constance Collier as Ethel Newcome. Mr. Alfred Wareing is the business-manager.

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal are paying another visit here this week, and giving the utmost delight to their numerous admirers in a round of their favourite plays. The Elder Miss Blossom was played on Monday, and proved as popular as ever. Mr. Kendal was just the same kindly Andrew Quick, and Mrs. Kendal a charming Dorothy Blossom. The Housekeeper was Tuesday's attraction, The Iron Master on Wednesday, and A Tight Corner on Thursday. The personnel of the company is little changed since the last visit, and includes Messrs. Bassett Roe, Ernest Hendrie, Hubert Harben, R. Burnett, W. M. Rutherfurd, Edward Vaughan, and Misses Kate Bishop, Dorothy Moor-Lane, Dora Fellowes, and Mrs. A. B. Tapping, all of whom play their old parts with credit and distinction.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr. G H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Morris Cronin in his great juggling scena is the favourite turn here this week. The Miles-Stavordale Quintette, in the musical novelty, "Voices on Strings," are received with loud applause. Also included in the programme are Conway and Leland, the merry monopedes; Hermann Melot, the French conjurer; Dorothy Drew, comedienne; Daisy Dormer, vocalist; Murke and McVoy, comedy tumblers; Albert Whelan, singer and mimic; Johnson and Bert, in a sketch; Corbin's troupe of performing dogs; and Ben Albert, a clever comedian. The Palace pictures are shown by Vernon's Imperial bioscope.

HIPPODROME. — Lessees, Messrs. Whitehead and Ramsden; General Manager, Mr. T. P. Dulignan.—The Karnos continue to top the bill here, and their sketch, entitled The Traveller's Rest, evokes continual merriment. The McConnell Trio also submit a very comical sketch, and the Northern Troupe of Dancers are a favourite turn. J. W. Rickaby, comedian; Marie Elsie, comedienne; Sisters Morgan, duettists and dancers; Eily Adair, soubrette and dancer; Francis, the cannon ball king; and Teresa de Silva, vocalist, are also in the bill.

WINTER GARDENS PAVILION AND THE TOWER CIRCUS. —The same attractive programmes are continued here, and packed houses are again the order of the week.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Mr. Bulmer's company is presenting the drama Sentenced for Life. Mr. Ernest Vaughan plays well as Captain Paul Derrick; Mr. Edward E. Louis gives a manly portrayal of Lieut. Roy Stillwell; Mr. Morris Maud as the Rev. Martin Orris acts the part with success; Mr. James E. Firth and Mr. Arthur Keand and Mr. Howard Keane win favour in their respective rôles of Beckwith, Percy McGentle, and Bill Sharkey, Tadpole being a humorous character in the hands of Mr. Reg. Oldroyd. Mr. Hugh Faulkner is prominent as Sir George Gray; Miss Mary Dalby as Lady Stillwell submits a finished performance; and Miss Maud Douglas as Adele Gray and Miss May Neilson are successful.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME. — The current bill here includes Dene and Dawson, comedy sketch artists; Miss Lillie Coleman, soprano; Mr. Charles Grantley, a lively comedian; Little Lottie Lonsdale, a clever juvenile; and a series of new pictures.

THE GAIETY.—Proprietor, Mr. Grantham; Manager, Mr. Snoudeni James.—Alex Gay, illusionist, assisted by Miss Irene, constitutes the star turn here; the Pradellas, coon artists; Phillis Dagmar, Brack and Johnson, the Maholems, Maggie Dean, also contribute, and the Bioscope continues.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—Beauty and the Barge has been well received here this week. Mr. Blake Adams has again appeared as Captain James Barley. Miss May Fairclough renders with delightful freshness the part of Ethel Smedley, and Miss Mary Pemberton, Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite, and Mrs. Ruby Wyndham are commendable in their respective characters of Lucy Dallas, Mrs. Porter, and Mrs. Baldwin. Mr. Walter Pemberton is good as Major Smedley; John Dibbs has a capital representative in Mr. Charles White; Mr. Fred Knight is very amusing as Tom Codd; Mr. Edward Coventry makes the most of the part of Lieut. Seton Boyne, and the same may be said of Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu as Herbert Manners. The play is preceded each evening by a pretty comedietta, *J highly appreciated by the audience, which had assembled to do honour to the beneficiaire. Madame Mary Conly's rendering of Verdi's Ernain Involain, with full orchestral accompaniment, was very fine, as was also her singing of Elizabeth's song from Tannhauser; Miss Marie Steven's excellent voice was heard to advantage in the flower song from Faust; and Miss Alise Greasley sang Batten's "April Morn" with good effect. A novelty was the Maori songs of Chieftain Ranginia, who possesses a very musical voice. The Strolling Players rendered some of the best gems of their repertoire; annd Miss Madeline Rossiter gave a fine turn in her musical song and dance entertainment; Herr Simon Wurm's Spa Orchestra gave capital items, and Herr Wurm played a violin solo. In the interval, Mr. Hague was the recipient of a testimonial in the shape of a large framed portrait of himself, which was presented to him as a mark of esteem from a large number of visitors who had subscribed to show their appreciation of the admirable way in which he had catered for their entertainment during the ten years of his management of the Spa, and the unwearying courtesy and kindness he had shown to the thousands of patrons of this lovely resort. This week the favourite Yorkshire baritone, Mr. Dan Billington, is the vocalist at Herr Wurm's promenade concerts. The Strolling Players are still rendering some capital programmes, Miss Seymour James being a welcome addition to the company this week.

THE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. A. Hubner.—Cyrus and Maude are paying a welcome return visit, and their musical eccentricities are very amusing, and so is their cleverly trained donkey, which causes great fun. The Brady and Johnson company is appearing in some well played sketches, including A Chapter of Blunders and Turning the Tables; Miss Lola Vereker sings some excellent songs; Leon Leonard is a quaint comedian, and the Lennards are good in their illustrated songs. On Friday evening last Mr. Hubner took his benefit, when he had the assistance of Mr. H. Flockton-Foster's Costume Comedy company, and those mirth provokers the Waterloo Pierrots. The programme also included items by the Marvellous Howards, Miss Alice Lead, song and dance artist, Miss Clarice Raynor, the Misses Le Maude, Miss Lilian Swade, and the Dunlops.

SUMMER GARDENS, — Lessees, Messrs. Beanland, Bath, and Danton; Manager, Mr. Charles Beanland.—Several novelties are this week introduced in the capital programme submitted by the Waterloo Pierrots to their patrons at this popular place of entertainment. The many humorous items by Messrs. Beanland, George Hyan, Joe Bath, and Charles Danton, as well as the capital turns of Cada and the other members of the troupe, are always a source of delight to large audiences.

ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—The first theatrical performance in the Grand Pavilion was given by Mr. Arthur Sutro's clever play The Walls of Jericho, in which Bourchier's company, who presented Mr. Alfred Mr. A. R. Anson gave a talented rendering of the part of Jack Frobisher, and was ably supported by a company of first-class artists. Miss May Tavenor especially being very fine in the part of Lady Alethea. The vocalist this week at Herr Winternitz's promenade concert is Miss Blamy, whose songs are finely rendered.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—San Toy is drawing crowded houses here this week. In the title-rôle Miss Bessie Allayne is seen at her best, and posseses a musical and powerful voice; Mr. Arthur Cartwright's full-toned voice is heard to the utmost advantage as Bobby Preston; Miss Lottie Sergeant acts with ability the part of Dudley the lady's maid; Mr. Bert Edwards works hard as the thieving Chinaman; Mr. Percy Stevens invests the part of the Emperor with a deal of talent; the boisterous fun of Mr. Robert Rivers as Sir Bingo Preston is infectious; and Mr. Hugh Webb, as the Mandarin, is all that could be wished.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Larger houses than those which have welcomed The Ugliest Woman on Earth have not been seen here since the pantomime season. Mr. Philip Darien makes a manly and heroic Jack Merriman; Mr. Leyton Cancellor invests the difficult part of the villainous Hubert Gold with no mean skill; Miss Beatrice Homer gives a sympathetic rendering of the title-rôle; Miss Nell Oliver is well suited as Rose Courtenay; Miss Margaret Watson deserves a special word of commendation for her artistic portrayal of the character of Morita; no end of fun is supplied by Tubby Edlin (under whose management the company is touring) as Tubby Herrick, and whose eccentricities form a welcome relief to the more sober portions of the play. Others who are doing good work are Miss Nellie Jackson (Aggi Brown), Mr. Charles Barrett (Antonio Luchesi), Mr. Allan Devenport (Tom Redvers), and Mr. W. Wallace Aston (Raggles).

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—A diversified programme is being presented here this week. It is being sustained by John Terry and Mabel Lambert, the American comedy duo, who are appearing in an entirely new production, Scenes from Everyday Life; Will English, the real coon comedian; Harry Tate's company, who are appearing in the amusing absurdity, Motoring, Fyne and Hurley, the coster and dude; Rose Hamilton, a refined character actress; the Lorrisons, comedy artists; Les Belles Americaines, a quartette of charming lady vocalists and acrobatic dancers; Tom Dunmore, an eccentric comedian; Allis and Cassati, comedian and humorist and Tyrolean songstress; Queenie May, described as the juvenile prize packet; and Andy Burn, the broken-down millionaire; while the Alhambrascope is presenting "The Smuggler's Dog."

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A capital programme is being sustained here this week. Vesta Victoria is achieving great triumphs in her captivating songs; Alf Gibson convulses the audiences with laughter by his humorous ditties; the three Sisters Thurban give a much appreciated musical turn, and are expert performers on the bugle, cornet, side drums, and banjos; Violet Morgan gives lifelike imitations of a number of well-known artists; Frank Cass delivers with much success a medley of English, Scotch, and Irish songs; Prince Kuroki, a clever Japanese magician, mystifies the audience by his art; Just and Wise are appearing in an American absurdity, Number Three; Arthur Elvy is gaining fresh laurels with his latest success, "The Up-to-date Tipster"; George Adams, the New Zealand baritone, wins plenty of marks of approval by his artistic vocalisation; Johnson and D'Evere, who perform a number of novel cycle tricks; the Rainats, who appear in a stage flying trapeze act; and Mountford and Walsh, society entertainers; while the Barrascope presents "The Serenaders."

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—The company of Madge McIntosh and Lumsden Hare is presenting the three-act play, Mollentrave on Women here this week. The piece is admirably staged and well acted. Mr. Michael Sherbrooke makes a successful Mr. Mollentrave; Miss Madge McIntosh cleverly represents his daughter, Lady Claude Derenham; Mr. E. A. Warburton makes a great hit in the difficult part of Sir Joseph Balsted; as Mr. Mollentrave's maid, Margaret Messilent, Miss Gladys Wynne is an attractive young lady in love; and Mr. Murray Carrington makes an ardent lover as Everard Swenboys; Mr. Stockall Ward is clever in the part of Lord Contareen. The cast is completed by Mr. J. P. Wilson, Mr. Charles Halford, Mr. W. Ansteed, Miss Belle Donaldson, Miss Ada King, and Miss Jessie Fraser.

NEW PALACE PIER THEATRE.—A strong attraction is provided here this week in the highly successful farcical comedy, The 'Varsity Belle, played by Mr. Henry E. Leigh's London company. Miss Josephine Ellis is excellent as Gaye Sparkleton, the 'Varsity Belle; Mr. James Danvers is achieving a triumph as Prof. Septimus Stoney; as Runyard, the college "scout," Mr. Frank Lilliput is very entertaining; and Miss Nellie Beacon plays the part of Eva Stoney, the Professor's wife, to perfection; the broken-down actor, Theocritis Ward Sparkleton, is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Edward Chester; Messrs. R. Harley West and Ray Barraclough acquit themselves well as the undergrads. George Barker and Albert Perrin; and the character of Mrs. Barker, the Professor's mother-in-law, and Maud Stoney, Albert's intended, are capitally sustained by Miss Nellie Parker Dent and Miss Beatrice Egerton respectively.

AQUARIUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. J. Sallmayer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry de Groot.—An attractive programme of vocal and instrumental music, interspersed with amusing sketches and some clever dancing, is provided here this week by the Harmonic Entertainers' Comedy Company, consisting of Miss Mabel Janner, the possessor of a sweet soprano voice, who rendered her vocal item exquisitely; Miss Stephanie Olive, a rich contralto, whose vocalisation is well-nigh perfect; Mr. Richard Evans, a clever tenor vocalist; Mr. W. H. Romer and Mr. Alf. Laffolli, two smart comedians and dancers; Miss Mabel Mavis, who rendered a number of mandoline and glassophone selections; Mr. Arthur C. Harley, a skilful banjoist; and the duets and concerted numbers by the Manhattan trio are very harmoniously rendered, their farcical sketches also being highly diverting.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—There was a large attendance here on Monday evening on a return visit of The Prince of Pilsen. The musical comedy is staged to perfection, and Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is an exceptionally good one. Miss Millicent Marsden is pleasing as Mrs. Madison Croker; Miss Nellie Barnwell is well placed as Edith Adams; Miss Nell Emerald is charmingly vivacious as Sidonie, obtaining much applause for her songs; Miss Isa Bowman is winsome and interesting as Nellie Wagner; and Miss Meg Hamylton is very smart as the bell boy Jimmie. Mr. J. B. Fox is very good in the title-rôle, and he sings well; Mr. Lawrence Wensley makes the most of the Earl of Shrimpton; Mr. Martin Adeson is highly amusing as Hans Wagner, his songs being well applauded; Mr. G. Villiers Arnold makes a very acceptable, both vocally and histrionically, Lieut. Tom Wagner; Mr. Alfred Selby is highly diverting as François, displaying ability as a dancer; and both Mr. Madison Rich and Mr. D. O. Uglas do well in their respective parts of Cook's Courier and Sergeant Brie. The chorus is large and tuneful, and the augmented orchestra is ably conducted by Mr. Thomas M. Tunbridge, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—Driven from Home is attracting good houses. Mr. Andrew Melville's company is a good one, and the popular drama is excellently staged. Mr. Felix Pitt acts with his accustomed skill as Anthony Raybrook, and Miss Frances Ruttledge displays marked ability both as Laura Raybrook and Walter Hatherleigh the younger. Mr. Clement Wakefield and Mr. Frederick Sandy both play their parts of Walter Hatherleigh and Geoffrey Waring in good style; Mr. Percy Dawsone acts well as Willie; Mr. Harry Cornwall is good and unobtrusive as Jabez Thomas; and Mr. John Brooks presents a good study of Dick Saunders. The comic parts of John Anderson and Margaret Bailey are cleverly taken by Mr. Alic Hemming and Miss Evelyn Marrable, the remaining characters all being in good hands.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. V. Welchman.—Alice Pierce, American impressionist, heads the programme here with a charming turn, in which she displays much ability as an imitator of famous English and American actresses. Kelly and Ashby, in Fun on a Billiard Table, interest with their novel acrobatic feats; Frank Coyle, comedian, obtains applause; Muir and Bartlett have an exceptionally amusing duologue, entitled A Clerical Combination; Elsie Earle, descriptive vocalist, interests with her well rendered songs; the Four Herberts, acrobatic comedians, do some clever work; Lade Henderson, character vocalist, is appreciated; Brothers Brooks, patter comedians, are favourably received; and the performance concludes with interesting animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Harry Cadle's company is here with the smart and amusing sketch, The Casey Circus; Billy McClain and company (six in number) obtain applause for their sketch, The Hottest Coon from Dixie; Annie Casey, comedienne, obtains considerable appreciation; Terry and Bentley score with their comedy sketch, The Hunt; Nina Elmo, comedienne, presents a pleasing turn; Edward Cranston and company are successful in the Irish racing sketch, Terry; or, True to his Trust; and Charles Chard, comedian, obtains appreciation. The performance concludes with interesting animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson. — Mr. Henry Swinerd's No. 1 company, under the direction of Mr. J. W. Cordiner, commenced here on Monday with Dare-Devil Dorothy. Miss Dorothy Desmonde as Dorothy Montrose acted her part with charming grace; Mr. W. Ashley as Captain George Fielding was much applauded for his singing; Mr. Arthur Verne made a droll Silas Crump, keeping the house in roars; and the part of Captain Edward Dudley was in the safe keeping of Mr. H. C. Ward. Miss Marie Vere was a charming Ruth Montrose; Miss Nellie Harcourt an amusing Judith; and Mr. Deane Cliffe a comical Featherstone Haugh. The Misses Mabel and Lillie Blake contributed some very smart acrobatic dancing; Mr. Edward Fletcher as Hawkins and Mr. Walter Boyce as General Garston also deserve mention.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The attraction here this week is Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company in At Cripple Creek. Mr. Stanley Bedwell scores a distinct triumph as Joe Mayfield; Mr. Arthur D. Layland gives a clever study of Wahketah; and Mr. Chas. H. Lester as Martin Mason is highly successful; Mr. J. G. Main as Manuel Alvarez is clever; Mr. Sydney Benson is distinctly funny as Ben White; and Mr. Will Hook also contributes to the fun as Reggie Harwood. Miss Agnes Verity undertakes most successfully the rôle of Dynamite Ann; Miss Lily Beagle is a sweet Belle Gordon; Miss Daisy Carlton is another creator of laughter as Maggie Mason; and little Miss Daisy Carlton is charming as Little Tatts.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Big crowds are drawn here by an excellent programme, in which Cruikshank, a man of wit and music, is included. Continuous laughter greets his performance, and he is loudly recalled. The Five Whiteleys are a clever troupe of acrobats; Gustave Fasola, Indian fakir, introduces several clever tricks; Percy Farrimond, who is again heartily welcomed, sings as well as ever; the Arundels, in The New Office Boy, are funny; Wyndham and Waters, a most acceptable turn, introducing some well-rendered music and excellent fooling; Trick and Trixie, in a comedy act, are very good; and J. H. Greener is well received.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Mr. Langford Carson's company, with The Drama of Life, is here this week. Mr. Ed. M. Hamilton is powerfully dramatic and at times intensely pathetic as Harry Beech; the cool cynical villainy of Walter Beech is ably depicted by Mr. John J. Hooker; Mr. H. Maxwell Payne (Jack Lawton), Mr. Sydney Fiennes (Dave Crane), and Miss Nellie Birchenough (Betty), creditably sustain their respective rôles. Much amusement is caused by Miss Florence French as the assertive Lady Jane; and Mr. Harwood Roberts, as the lady's amateur detective husband; while the genuine detective is cleverly portrayed by Mr. R. D. Foote. Miss Elsie May, in the juvenile part, acts extremely well.

BURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is playing The Midnight Wedding here this week. The play is a military drama, and the shining lights are Mr. Paumier as Paul Valmar, Mr. Ulick Burke as Lieutenant Von Strelsburg, Miss Ada Champion as Kathie, Miss Florence Hunt as Satanella, and Miss Annie Saker as Princess Astrea. The comic relief is in the safe hands of Mr. J. B. Page, Mr. Percy Compton, and Mr. A. Spalding.

THE CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Good turns here are headed by Carrie Laurie and her troupe of juveniles; others include Dunningarto, conjurer; the Morton trio of vocalists; Fitzroys, gymnasts; Maggie Crawshaw, mimic; Harry Bickley, comedian; and Leonard Gourney, dancer.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; General-Manager, Mr. W. Broadhead, jun.—Jack McKenzie and company of comedians are very clever in a musical sketch entitled The Belle of Barcelona. Espinosa and Edwards, in a little scena, The Coon's Holiday; May and Eugenie, quick change artists; Harley and Hardon, knockabouts; and the Sisters Walton, duettists, who won a competition here recently, are very popular.

BUXTON. — OPERA HOUSE. — Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—For the first three nights of the week Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. Leveaux's company was the attraction here in The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt. An excellent company played this very amusing comedy. Mr. Reginald Dance acted Mr. Bourchier's part with ease and sang-froid; Mr. Lawrence Leyton had a character well suited to him in that of Colonel Rayner; Mr. Edward Coutts made effective use of his slight responsibilities as Lord Woolham; Mr. George A. Seager's Sir Bartholomew Cardick was an able sketch, and Mr. Russell Barry was amusing as the musical Mr. Goddiestone. Mr. George Percy acted with discretion and tact as the Rev. Hubert Langston; Mr. P. Vernon Travers was capital as Mr. Mellon; and Mr. Gerard Henson was a droll Alfie. Miss Mary Weigall did exceedingly well in the rôle of the Marchioness of Hendingby; Miss Mary Brooke was an emphatic Lady Clementina Desborough; Miss Eva Titheredge an attractive Aggie Coles; and Miss Dorothy Haigh a capable Mrs. Brevell. The character of Mrs. Mellon, though comparatively unimportant, was suitably acted by Miss Helen Tytler. Lady Clarice Howland was played in a most artistic manner by Miss Gladys Mason. The play was preceded by the clever petite drama The Drums of Oude. The Walls of Jericho was presented on Thursday.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—A capital house gave a good reception to The White Chrysanthemum on Monday, when Mr. Frank Curzon's capital company submitted a delightful performance. Miss Lulu Evans as Sybil Cunningham quickly wins favour with her capital singing; Miss Daisy le Hay as Betty Kenyon makes a bewitching young widow, acting and singing most charmingly; and Miss Katie Vesey is the smart American to perfection, her dancing being particularly clever and sprightly. Mr. Horace Mills as Chippy keeps the fun going in his quiet, humorous fashion; and Mr. W. H. Rawlins as the lively Admiral is no less successful in providing merriment. As Lieut. Armitage Mr. E. Pope-Stamper does well, his fine voice being much appreciated; Sin Chong is most divertingly rendered by Mr. O. E. Lennon; and Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., as Private Perks, makes his impersonation one of the successes of the piece. The orchestra and chorus are under the able direction of Mr. Leonard Hornsey.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Duncan.—The Assassin is being most capably presented here by Mr. Augustine Knight's company. Miss Ella Vane's Countess Wanda is an excellent delineation; Mr. Augustine Knight as Prince Demetri enacts the polished villain creditably; Mr. Edward E. Ashby submits a good rendition of Ivan Ipanoff; and Mr. Theo Balfour as Duke Carl displays histrionic abilities much above the average. Miss Frances Waring as Nita, and Miss Edith Woodward as Olga, are clever exponents of their parts; and Mr. Tom Taylor as Peter, and Miss Marie Robertson as Katrina, are reliable representatives of comedy.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—Miss Hetty King, who is at the head of the bill here, is a most attractive and versatile artist; the Sutcliffe Family of Scottish pipers and acrobats provide a capital turn; Jack Lorimer gives a Scotch performance that finds favour; Nelson's Newsboys are an excellent combination of juvenile talent; and Griff, the ever-popular clown, is most acceptable. The De Breans, Japanese jugglers and sciographists; the Mackweys, a riotous trio, in a mad whirling on the wire; Max York's dogs; the Mayvilles, in their lilliputian performance; and the Bioscope, are the remaining names on the programme this week.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Trustees of R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—Mr. George Stephenson's company is again paying a visit here with Kitty Grey. In the title-rôle Miss Hilda Guiver scores a big success; Lady Binfield has a charming representative in Miss Marie West; and Miss Nellie Laurine does some clever character work as Mrs. Bright; Mr. Lauri Lisle has a congenial rôle as the King of Illyria; Mr. Leslie Stewart gives an amusing sketch of Lord Plantagenet, being especially successful in the humorous character duet with Miss Nellie Laurine; and Mr. Leslie Fairfax successfully impersonates Sir John Binfield.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Ltd.; Managing Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—The Max Wessely Troupe at the top of the bill give a wonderful display of juggling; the Norman and Leonard Trio contribute a smart and novel musical turn; Miss Helen Martin is a ballad vocalist of more than ordinary merit; the Sisters Wingrove sing lively songs with spirit and effect; the veteran Sam Redfern's funny patter keeps the house in roars of laughter; Kendrick and Laura, society entertainers and dancers; Flo Wood, serio; and the ever-popular Pepiscope, with first-rate pictures, conclude a well varied entertainment.

CARMARTHEN. — ASSEMBLY ROOMS. — Proprietors, Public Rooms Company; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—On Monday evening Mr. T. R. Nugent paid a welcome visit with his company in the successful drama The Little Earl. The leading part, that of Billy Barton, was successfully impersonated by Mr. T. R. Nugent, and that of Little Vic, the little Earl, by Master Sidney. The other characters in the play were taken as follows: Harry Dare, Mr. R. Gordon; King Ashton, Mr. J. Fletther; Reggie Clavering, Mr. S. Douglas; Sergt. Charlie Noble, Mr. V. Cooke; Drake, Mr. J. Gardiner; Peter, Mr. J. Tulford; Constable Bruin, Mr. C. Summers; Servant, Mr. J. Blackie; Claire Sidney, Miss V. Clark; Elsie Woodford, Miss Hilda Stanley; Maud Bates, Miss C. Davies; and Belle Langrist, Miss Maud Elliott, all of whom sustained their respective parts with power and much artistic ability. The versatile and favourite artist, Mr. George Grossmith, paid Carmarthen a visit this week, under the direction of Mr. F. McCrea, of Gloucester, and delighted a fashionable audience with his drawing-room entertainment. Mr. Grossmith was assisted by Miss Dorothy Scott, raconteuse musicale; Miss Dorothy D'Egville, vocalist; and Miss Dorothy Forster, pianist and accompanist, each of whom were rapturously applauded for their respective contributions.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman.—On Monday Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company opened here with The Christian. Mr. E. Stanton Sharp gives a carefully drawn portraiture of an enthusiastic young Anglican priest, and plays with convincing earnestness and subdued fervour; as Glory Quayle Miss Mildred Gilbert depicts the changing moods of the capricious girl with excellent effect; as Father Lamplugh Mr. Harry Colbeck delivers his admonitions with appropriate solemnity; and Mr. Phipps Stanley, as Archdeacon Wealthy gives an admirable sketch of a churchman of different type; Mr. H. Louis Wilson as Brother Paul plays with quiet dignity; Mr. Duncan Yarrow as Horatio Drake and Mr. P. Gedge Twyman as Lord Robert Ure are capable representatives of those parts; Miss L. Kingston depicts Polly Love with much tenderness; and Miss Alice Maude is a kindly Mrs. Callender.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Mattinson; Business-Manager, Mr. Seth Smalley.—Percy Victor's Minstrel Dogs are the star turn here and meet with an enthusiastic reception; Fred Villiers is a clever vocal comedian; the Camerons, in their laughable comedy act, The Ploughboy and Lady Guide, prove very diverting; Carlton and Hill, in their tumbling speciality, win much favour; Brook and Bond, in their funny military act, A Raw Recruit, win assured success; Marie de Voy, Tyrolean vocalist and dancer, is well received; Bob Pearson is an excellent comedian; Edie Clay, comedy musician, does an interesting turn; and Lily Pender is a successful speciality comedian. Brooke's Bioscope is still showing good pictures.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—The Carl Rosa Opera Company opened here on Monday in Carmen, with Miss Doris Woodall in the name part and Mr. Julius Walther as Jose. In Lohengrin, which was also performed, Miss Grace Nicoll was the Elsa and Mr. Julius Walther appeared in the title part; these two artists made a conspicuous success and were recalled again and again. Other leading characters were admirably sustained as follows:—Telramund, Mr. Chas. Victor; Ortrud, Miss Marie Alexander; Henry, Mr. Arthur Winckworth; and the Herald, Mr. Frederick Clendon; while Mr. Eugene Goossens wielded the bâton in masterly style. Other operas staged during the week are The Marriage of Figaro, The Bohemian Girl, Faust, Tannhäuser, and Il Trovatore.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Miss Alice Raymond's cornet solos, bugle calls, and post horn playing are very clever. Her act is enlivened by Kurkamp, singing conductor. Alice Maydue, an old favourite, scores with low comedy songs and patter; Mahatma completely mystifies the audiences. Another excellent engagement is that of Miss Cissie Dryden in "The Sailors of the Empire." Other variety turns are supplied by Jessie Albini, comedienne; Tom Yorke, coster comedian; and Fields and Lewis, burlesque artists. Lacey's Erascope continues to be popular.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank E. Donne.—The bill of fare here includes Les Voces, duettists; Louie Hurman, comedienne and burlesque actress; the Sisters Hall, vocalists; Dave Wallace, comedian; the Dean Tribune Trio in The Cheerful Idiot; Jack Foley, comedian; the Cape Girls, vocalists and dancers; and pictures by the Edisonograph.

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. Cyril Keightley and company on Monday successfully produced a new play entitled Miles Carew, Highwayman. On Friday evening The School for Scandal was down for performance.

MONTPELLIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. Alfred W. Newton.—For the last week of the summer season "The Royal Comedy Entertainers" hold the boards. The company includes: Mr. Fred Daniels, humorist; Mr. Geo. Lomax, tenor; Mr. Charles Rex King with character sketches and ventriloquism; Mr. Owen Clark, illusionist; and Miss Nellie Webber, accompanist and contralto.

CHORLEY (Lancs.). — GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Secretary, Mr. A. Hemingway.—This week we are having a return visit of the capital drama, I Defy the World, played by Mr. Julian Malvern's company under the personal direction of Mr. Chas. M. Julian. As Leon Darville Mr. Percy Ballard plays with much vigour; Mr. Charles Wilton successfully presents Count de Beaulieu; General Delaporte is ably rendered by Mr. Alfred Denning; Mr. Charles Conway capitally interprets Laroche; Mr. Arthur Chisholm is effective as Andre; and Mr. Chas. M. Julian excellently impersonates Samuel Wozzle; Pauline Delaporte is charmingly portrayed by Miss Beatrice Sinclair; Miss Violet Craufurd artistically represents Blanche Darville; Miss Maud Lilian is a clever exponent of Marie Wozzle; and Miss Rosie Dane is capital as Fanchette.

CLACTON-ON-SEA. — PALACE-BY-THE-SEA. — Proprieors, Palace, Clacton-on-Sea, Ltd.—Meier and Mora top the bill here this week, and are a pair of smart variety entertainers. Other turns include Welda and Wynne, comedy jugglers; Beattie Kent, comedienne and smart dancer; Tom Collins, with a good topical song, "Fly Away"; Gracie Taylor, billed as "Herself." Gladys and Alber, comic acrobats; and the Brothers Hayes, good dancers. A confetti carnival, held in the grounds last Saturday, was well patronised.

WEST CLIFF GARDENS.—Good business is, as usual, being done here. In addition to the well-known trio, Graham, Russell, and Bentley, the old favourite, Miss Alice Braunstein, is back again; Mr. Walter Clyde, vocalist, sings in good style; and Mr. Chas. Bulwar is a clever conjurer and ventriloquist.

OPERETTA HOUSE. — Lessee, Mr. Ch. Macdona; Manager, Mr. T. H. Rhodes.—For the first three days of the week Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company has been giving The Silver King. The Wilfrid Denver of Mr. Horace E. Herbert is a fine piece of acting; Miss B. Doyle plays charmingly as Nellie; and the Spider of Mr. Oswald Cray is all that can be desired. On Thursday Fred Karno's company in His Majesty's Guests came.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. Ashton's Royal Agency; Manager, Mr. Digby Dent.—Miss Constance Milestone, contralto, and Miss Jessie Reeve, soprano, are the vocalists here this week, and are both good singers. The other attractions include Mr. A. J. Hill, the living Lilliputian and ventriloquist; Mr. W. P. Demprey, comedian; Miss Fanny Humber, instrumentalist and speciality dancer; and the Walturdaw animated pictures. On Friday night the annual lifeboat concert was given.

BANDSTAND CONCERTS.—Mr. Joseph Sainton's band has this week been helped out by Miss Ethel Dyer, vocalist, and Mr. Eric Charlswood, a smart humorist.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Montague.—These boards are occupied this week by Messrs. Beaudyn, Livesey, and Hardy's company with the historical drama, The Days of Cromwell. Mr. Henry Belding makes a powerful Ironhand, the avenger; Sir Marsden Mardyke is carefully portrayed by Mr. Robertson Foulis; Mr. Howard Hardy is worthy of mention as Matthew Mardyke; and a smart impersonation of Shadrack Shadwell is given by Mr. T. R. White. Miss Gertrude Gilman looks and acts well as Ruby Avondale; Betsy is humorously acted by Miss Annie Clunn; and Mrs. Shadwell is safe in the hands of Miss May Bracey.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. Fred Karno's company is here for three nights, playing that successful musical pantomimical farce, His Majesty's Guests. The piece centres round the character of the Scotland Yard emissary, Sergt. Lightning, a part played in a droll manner by Mr. Geo. Hestor, a clever comedian; Mr. Frank Morton and Miss Leonora Castelle as Lord and Lady Easem are admirably allocated, whilst Mr. Tom Manardo impersonates Selina in capital fashion. The last half of the week is apportioned to Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in The Silver King.

HIPPODROME. — Joint-Proprietors, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot and Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Ben de Frece.—Dandy George and his dog Rosie head the bill, and, as on the occasion of the previous visit, are a success. The Great Marconis provide a wonderful and withal an instructive turn; Harry Taft scores heavily, and, in addition to his powers as a sifflеur, is a capital raconteur; Maree Kean, with her engaging personality, is popular with all parts of the house; Joe Mac does well with his eccentric patter; and Mark Henton provides an amusing turn. This week the orchestra, under the baton of Mr. James Hargreaves, is receiving marked applause for a capital selection of music.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. F. Marriott Watson and Company are paying a welcome return visit here this week with A False Wife. Mr. Geo. Langham is good as Sir Colin Mansfield; Mr. W. Howard Barlow is a manly Lieut. George Mansfield; Mr. Elton Morgan gives a creditable performance as Ben Rattler; and as Jean Beraud Mr. F. Marriott Watson is excellent. Mr. Charles Osborne does well as Inspector Fulton; as Zorah Mr. James Chippendale acquits himself with ability; Mr. Owen Edwin as Archibald Brown Tee and Miss Minnie Leslie as Bessie Blazer keep the house in roars of laughter; Miss Annie Hylton is a winsome Agnes; Miss Flo Morgan a satisfactory Sarah Bernstein; and Miss Florence E. Florence a successful Lady Mansfield.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. Charles Carte's company opened a week's engagement here on Monday with A Noble Brother. Mr. Carte scored a great success in the rôle of Jerry, the tramp. In both pathos and humour he was capital, and received great applause. Miss Doris Brookes was an attractive Nana Leigh, and Miss Rosie Conroy was a lively and funny Rosie Rapide. As Henry Travers, the villain, Mr. Frank Lyndon was effective; Mr. Archer A. Tomlin as Jeck Elsworth capably filled the part, and Mr. Michael Madden as Larry O'Brien kept the audience in a merry mood.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The above popular place of amusement re-opened on Monday, when a capital bill of fare was provided. The star turn is Wizard Stone and Irene Stone with "the Globe of Life," inside which the two performers cycle around at great speed, the male cycling the circle on a motor cycle; Clarke and Glenney give a laughable turn entitled The Haunted House; Jack Martin is a capital actor-vocalist; the Three Tivoli Girls are well received, their dancing being much admired; Captain Ralston sings some interesting numbers; the Greys are good duettists; the Three Henriques submit a fine acrobatic performance; Adeline Yohle is an excellent vocalist; the Cee Mee Troupe's aerial trapeze act is a very clever and novel performance; and James Kurry, comedian, is most diverting.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Mr. Baron H. Harris's company, by arrangement with Mr. Geo. Musgrove, are presenting The Prince of Pilsen here. Mr. Harry Kilburn's impersonation of Hans Wagner creates much amusement; Mr. Frank Crimp is the possessor of a splendid baritone; as the Prince of Pilsen he is warmly received. Mr. Bernard Russell gives an amusing rendering of the Earl of Shrimpton; Mr. Roy Sidney is seen to advantage as Lieut. Tom Wagner; Mr. Ernest Gifford is a good François; Miss Sophie Harris, a thorough favourite, plays the American widow, Mrs. Maddison Crocker; Miss Florence Beech and Miss Dorothy Grasdorff being respectively responsible for the rôles of Edith Adams and Nellie Wagner; Miss Connie Leon is delightfully arch and active as Sidonie.

THE HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—The Collinson Combination are very amusing here; the Sauteron Wonders are well received, one of the troupe giving a marvellous exhibition of high jumping; the Five Orlacs appear in an up-to-date entertainment, the Herald Comedy Four being clever and much appreciated; Vi Carlile, Sid Brandon, and Miss Kate Gourley also contribute to the success.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Charles Berresford and W. H. Moore's company is playing here this week A Rogue's Daughter. Mr Roy Gordon gives a capital presentation of Sir George Mynard, whose wife, Lady Mynard, has a very able exponent in Miss Gertrude Sterroll. Mr. Frank V. Fenn is particularly well placed as Frank Tyler, as also is Mr. Hall Elden as Ebenezer Dunnem, ably assisted by Miss Becky Elliston as Priscilla Jenkins. Mr. Richard Ferriss has the "heavy" part of Colonel Foster, and is well received, whilst Mr. Robert W. Lynn as Isaac Isaacs supplies the fun of the piece. Mr. W. H. Moore makes a first-rate "Ercules" John Gibbs, and Miss Florence Gower is quite at home as Dick, a waif; Mr. T. Rowe as Inspector Morris and Mr. George Shorrock as Inspector Bates deserve mention; whilst Mr. Eric Hargreaves as Christopher Crummles is a capital showman; Miss Madge Devereaux is a winsome Letty Grey; and mention should be made of Mr. G. Scholes as Warder Mason and Mr. A. Plews as the railway porter.

CREWE. — LYCEUM THEAT

DONCASTER.—NEW THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Mr. Fred Granville is presenting for the first time here the drama For Better or Worse. Mr. George Edwin Clive is seen at his best in the part of Captain Frank Hilliard; Mr. Scott Leighton as Major Gerald Crawford is effective; Mr. Owen Kedmonde is particularly alert and breezy as Lieut. Hector Dalrymple; and Mr. Willie Black's humour adds piquancy to the rôle of Horatio P. Ranter. Mr. Carthage Coldcleugh is responsible for a cultured presentation of Ned Earnshaw; Mr. Fred Garrett in the rôle of David Heathcote is unquestionably clever; Olive Heathcote is pleasingly impersonated by Miss Elsie Marriott-Watson; Miss Chrissie Dunbar is vivid and realistic as Bodie Raverstock; and Miss Jennie Hallworth is prim and coy as Malinda Little.

DUBLIN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Mr. George Dance's company is playing Veronique here this week. The opera is perfectly staged and dressed with exquisite taste. Miss Ruth Lincoln is greatly admired in the title-rôle; Mr. Roland Bottomley sings well, and acts the part of Florestan de Vallancourt with dignity; as Mons Coquenard Mr. Leslie Holland's comedy is excellent; Miss Ethel Negretti's embodiment of Madame Coquenard is clever; Mr. Courtney Comber successfully displays his abilities in the rôle of Seraphin; and Miss Gracie Sinclaire makes a graceful Denise; Miss Lena Maitland is very good as the Countess, and sings extremely well; Mr. Fred Lyne fills the part of Loustot satisfactorily.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—A hearty reception was accorded on Monday to The Blue Moon, as presented by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company. Miss Florence Smithson gives a successful and pleasing portrayal of Chandra Nil, her singing being most effective; in the character of Private Charles Taylor Mr. Bert Gilbert scores a success; Mr. Edward Lewis creates roars of laughter by his amusing representation of Moolray; Mr. Leslie Gaze acts capably as Major Vivian Calibone; and the part of Captain Jack Ormsby is satisfactorily filled by Mr. Herbert Clayton; Miss Lulu Valli displays ability as Millicent Leroy, and as Lady Brabasham Miss Mabel Lorrell is dignified; Miss Daisy Revett wins applause for her effective singing and dancing; Mr. Thomas Holding is successful as the Prince Badahar; and Mr. George Mudie (junr.) in the part of Bobbie Scott is capital.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; Acting-Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson.—Mr. J. W. Whitbread's Irish players under the direction of Mr. Dane Clarke are here this week with the dramatised version of William Carleton's novel, Willy Reilly. Mr. Robert Faulkner gives a manly interpretation of Willy Reilly; Miss Cecilia Dare submits a careful study of Helen Folliard; Mr. James O'Brien as Fergus Reilly displays ability, being ably supported by Miss Monica Kelly as Nelly Connor; Squire Folliard has a capable representative in Mr. Dane Clarke; Miss Madeline Hurst is exceedingly good as Mary Mahon; Sir Robert Whitecroft is in the able hands of Mr. H. Ryeland Leigh; and Mr. Ion Ireland as the Sheriff and Mr. Harry Richardson as Corporal Johnstone are both acceptable.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—Lil Hawthorne takes the premier position here this week, and her songs, which are all new to Dublin, are most effectively sung; Mark Melford with his capable company in Only a Wedding causes no end of amusement; C. H. Unthan, the armless wonder, receives hearty appreciation for his wonderful performance; Harrigan and Holt are extra smart in their patter and dancing; the eccentricities of Johnny Gilmore evoke laughter; Mr. Charles Robinson with his well-chosen songs makes a hit; and Stuart and Stuart, comedy artists; and the Sisters Rosedale, comediennes, are favourably received. The Empire pictures are as popular as ever. Eva Kelland was billed, but did not appear on Monday.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Topping the bill here this week are Charles Baldwin and company with their sketch, Bank Clerks, which arouses great laughter. The humorous character songs rendered by Barney Armstrong afford much enjoyment; Lena Brunton, comedienne and mimic, wins cordial approval; Lambert and Hands in a vocal scena are highly entertaining; Farley, Rennie, and Farley in their sketch, Fun at a Railway Station, score successfully; Charles Rowen, comedian, contributes some capital songs; and Massona gives a clever juggling performance; Maude Roma is a pleasing comedienne, and the Maros are smart bar performers. The Bioscope pictures are also good.

PAVILION, KINGSTOWN.—Manager, Mr. C. Irvine Bacon.—The Roman Singers, who are here this week under the direction of Mr. Benbrick Blanchard, are drawing large audiences. The company includes Miss Dorothy Carter, Mr. Broughton Black, Miss Ella Lorraine, Mr. Harold Payne, and Mr. Lyndon Watt, who all contribute successfully.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The artists appearing here include Mentis Brothers, thought readers; Jack Mento, comedian; Eugene Brant, comedian and dancer; Rose Phillips, ballad vocalist; and Fred Mento, baritone.

SAMUELS' EXHIBITION PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels.—The company engaged here this week comprises Alice Townshend, ballad vocalist; Fred Burnard, actor-vocalist; Sisters Du Barrie, duettists and dancers; Kitty Seymour, coon vocalist and dancer; Daisy Reddy, vocalist; Prof. Davison, ventriloquist.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—The Silver King is paying another visit here, and is received as enthusiastically as ever. Mr. Herbert Ford scores honours as Wilfred Denver, and Miss Victoria Addison gives a highly pathetic rendering of Nellie Denver; Mr. Tom Paulton (an old favourite here) acts admirably as the faithful Jaikes, and Mr. Charles Baird gives a finished performance of the Spider; Mr. Arthur J. Rooke as Baxter, the detective, is another prominent character.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Deputy-Acting-Manager, Mr. Rhodes Wells.—Tate and Tate, comedy trampoline acrobats, are the principal attraction here this week with a turn that is both highly amusing and clever. Also included in the programme are: Fioretti and Ella, continental speciality artists; Rita Bell, the Dutch girl; Kisbey, in a unique speciality; Frank Boyce, a favourite comedian; and Adey Spencer, "the girl from the hat shop." The Empire Bioscope presents some highly interesting pictures, including "Frisco, After the Earthquake."

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. Brandon Thomas's famous comedy, Charley's Aunt, is again delighting large audiences here this week. Mr. Stanley Cooke gives an extremely laughable impersonation of Lord Fancourt Babberley; the parts of Jack Chesney and Charley Wykeham are exceedingly well played by Mr. Hastings Lynn and Mr. Richard B. Mason respectively. As Stephen Spettigue Mr. Walker Beaumont could not be improved upon, while the part of Colonel Sir Francis Chesney, Bart., is capitally undertaken by Mr. C. B. Keston. Mr. Sydney Compton is excellent as Brassett. Miss Lena McNaughton makes a handsome Donna Lucia; Miss Gladys Storey a winsome Ela Delahay; while Miss Lilyan Lait and Miss Katie Carew as the girls Kitty and Amy leave nothing to be desired. The comedy is preceded by Mr. Thomas's one-act play, Fourchette and Co., in which Miss Gladys Storey, Mr. C. B. Kingston, and Mr. Sydney Compton take effective part

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—A good bill is presented here this week, pride of place being given to the Reed-Oetzmann Troupe, who are very successful in their pantomime sketch Tour in the Tyrol. The Brothers Lawrence are expert dancers and vocalists, and Gus Lawrence upholds his title to the champion rag-time dancer. E. J. Sheldon, specialty comedian, is another capital dancer, and, as on his former visits, proves very poular. Harry Briggs is successful in his imitations of child singing, and M. and Mlle. Sardon get a hearty reception as illusionists. The Two Romers introduce a pleasing scena, and Maria Rivers maintains her popularity as a singer of good songs. George Martinengo proves himself a capital 'celloist and a good bass singer; while Selby and Myres, comedians and dancers, please with their original patter. Varnon's Bioscope completes.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company is appearing here in the exciting play A Beautiful Fiend. The scene is laid in Russia, and the play gives plenty of scope for good acting. As Sergius Strogoff Mr. Albert Wray plays with considerable dramatic power, and Nadine is admirably portrayed by Miss Irene Munro. As "the Beautiful Fiend" Miss V. St. Lawrence is excellent. The part of Ivan Paulovitch, of the Russian police, is exceptionally well played by Mr. Montague Beaudyn.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers-Mackey and a talented company are appearing in the Irish melodrama The Wearin' o' the Green. The part of Barney O'Hea is ably undertaken by Mr. Chalmers-Mackey, and his quaint sayings cause much hearty laughter. As Shamus McDermott Mr. Charles Homer is very effective, while Michael Kenny is cleverly impersonated by Mr. H. Macauley. Miss Nora Flensberg scores as Biddy M'Ginn, and her charming songs are much appreciated. Mrs. Chalmers-Mackay as Nora M'Grath acts with sweetness and sympathy.

KINNAIRD HALL.—The United States of America Animated Picture Company, under the able management of Mr. Victor Hamilton, is showing a large and varied assortment of cinematograph films. On Monday evening the hall was packed by a large and appreciative audience who thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment, in which there is not a dull moment from start to finish. In addition to the pictures, David Davies, the champion whistler, bird, and animal mimic, and Ellis and Watts, swell comedians and dancers, appear.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Miss Grace Warner made her first appearance here this week. On Monday The Little Widow was presented to a well-filled house. In the part of Mrs. Constance Rattlebrain Miss Warner proved herself to be a capable and versatile actress, and was well supported by Mr. George Gordon, who gave an exceptionally good rendering of Mr. Wilkins Potter. Mr. G. L. Leigh made a capital Dr. Arthur Potter; Mr. Arthur Page was well placed as Auguste Bousier; Mr. R. Brown did well as Morton; Miss M. Stamer was an effective Mrs. Wilkins Potter; and Miss Hilda Herne a sweet Emily Randal. The Scarlet Clue was given on Thursday.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen Triggs.—The first three evenings of the week Mr. George Dance's company appeared here in Lady Madcap. Miss Isabelle Dillon has all the lightness, grace, and gaiety which made her performance as Lady Betty a very successful and enjoyable one; Miss Elsa D'Uses was a refined, effective Miss Holden; Miss Ethel Beech, with a crisp and arch style, was a dainty Susan, and Miss Gabrielle Leighton excelled as Mrs. Layton. Much clever fun was provided by Mr. Harold Parkes as Trooper Smith; Mr. George Whillis was a smart Corporal Ham; Mr. O. Marshall was a satisfactory Framlingham, and Mr. Jules Charmettes a natural Count de St. Hubert; Mr. Sheriff Clunes sang in excellent style, and was a manly Captain Harrington; Mr. Bay Russell danced well and succeeded admirably as "Stony" Stratford; Mr. James Graydon was a very good Posh Jenkins, and the Hussar officers were ably represented by Messrs. Emlyn Davis, Ernest Cresfan, and Frank Hilton. Mr. Leonard Leslie is the musical director. Mr. George Grossmith and his company were announced to appear on Thursday.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—During the week Mr. George Dance's company is appearing here in Veronique. Miss Nellie Wigley as Veronique is pretty, attractive, and everything that is charming, and her songs are most pleasingly given; Miss Agnes Tandy has an excellent voice, and is quite a captivating Mme. Coquenard; Miss Neste Laurel is a dainty Denise, and she dances gracefully; Miss Edith Devonshire is an appropriate Countess, and she gains well-merited applause for her singing; Miss Ruth Messina is a smart and gay Sophie, and Miss Maud Leonard is a good Aunt Benoit. Mr. Ellis Holland cleverly carries out his duties as Coquenard, the chief laughter maker; Mr. Tom Seymour is an able second as Mons. Loustot; Mr. Scott Cullen is an excellent Seraphim; and a conspicuously successful performance, both vocally and histrionically, is given by Mr. Warren Foster as Florestan. A capital chorus and augmented orchestra are under the direction of Mr. Clement Locknane.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Resident Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—A really excellent variety bill is being offered here this week and good houses are attracted. Miss Ada Colley occupies the place of honour on the bill, and her fine voice of phenomenal range is pleasingly and effectively used. In Mr. Leo Dryden is combined the ability to sing and act, and his work is well received; Mr. Edward E. Ford has an original turn, and is a clever mimic; the Four Aces are smart acrobats, with much funny business; Lozelle has a startling and pleasing gymnastic act; Lytton and Bland appear in an effective sketch; Charlie's Indian is a laughable sketch given by Messrs. Ford, Mitchello, and company; Mr. Sam Mitchello is a good comedian and dancer, and Miss Mollie Nolan is a pleasing comedienne.

THE FLORAL HALL.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen Triggs.—The Devonshire Park Grand Orchestra continues a successful season here, and on Wednesday evening the musical director, Mr. Norfolk Megone, gave his benefit concert, when Miss Evie Greene and other special attractions were billed.

ECCLES.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Wardle and Potasch; Manager, Mr. P. Potasch; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Ryan Smith.—We are this week being entertained by Mr. George Harvey's company in The Sorrows of Satan. Mr. George Harvey's representation of Prince Lucio Rimanez is weird and impressive; he is well supported by Miss Eleanor Glover as Lady Sybil Elton. The part of Geoffrey Tempest is in the capable hands of Mr. A. Bertram Croucher; Mr. G. Nelson Turner as Morris repeatedly causes the audience considerable mirth; Mavis Clare (Miss Beatrice Hall) is pathetic; and Miss Kate Donovan impersonates an American heiress in a typical way.

EDINBURGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company is here this week with The Private Secretary. Mr. Donald Price Evans, a clever comedian, is felicitous in make-up and acting as the Rev. Robert Spalding; and Mr. W. Hargreaves is extremely droll as Mr. Cattermole. Mr. W. T. Elworthy is admirable in an incisive performance of Mr. Marsland; and Mr. Randolph is bright and pleasant as Douglas Cattermole. Mr. James E. P. Hussey is a buoyant Henry Marsland; and as the Bond-street tailor, Mr. Gibson, one of the cleverest sketches in the piece is given by Mr. Vivian Gilbert. Miss Dora Gray is a gay, laughing Edith Marsland; Miss Beth Elliott is graceful in the attenuated part of Eva Webster; Mrs. Alfred Davis makes all that is possible of the character of the spiritualistic Miss Ashford; and Mrs. Cecily Wade is an entertaining Mrs. Stead. The comedy is preceded by the farce My American Admirer, capitally played by Mr. W. T. Elworthy, Mr. James E. P. Hussey, Miss Cicely Wade, and Miss Beth Elliott.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General Manager Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—Mr. Edward Terry, always a welcome visitor, opened his annual engagement on Monday evening with Liberty Hall, and in the rôle of the old bookseller William Todman Mr. Terry finds a character part which fits him like the proverbial glove. His impersonation equals—if it does not, indeed, excel—any of the many admirable creations which this genuine comedian has presented, played as it is with unerring pathos and rare humour. Strong support is rendered by a good company. Miss Fyfe Alexander and Miss F. Glossop Harris acted with charm and feeling as Blanche and Amy Chilworth; Mr. Owen was very acceptably played by Mr. Allan Pollock; and Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., gave a breezy rendering of the rôle of Gerald Harringway. The Lawyer Pedrick of Mr. E. W. Thomas was sufficiently well characterised; and the grotesque Mr. and Miss Hickson and Mr. Briginshaw found suitable exponents in Mr. George Howard, Miss Ella Dickson, and Mr. William Dexter; while Miss Eugenie Vernie portrayed the general servant Crafer in vigorous style. The week's programme has also included two of Mr. Terry's best known successes as Mr. Pockett in The Magistrate and Dick Phenyl in Sweet Lavender.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Fischer.—The attraction at the Grand this week is an adaptation of Daudet's Sapho, in which Miss Annie Bell and the members of her company appear to advantage. Miss Bell's performance of the courtesan has attributes of passion and power; and she is well supported by Mr. Sydney Arnold as Jean and by Mr. G. Antley, a jovial, humorous Cesaire. Mr. H. Langford makes a pathetic personage of Flamant, and there is merit in the impersonation of Father Le Grand by Mr. C. P. Lester. The other characters are in able hands, a touching piece of acting being given by little Miss Doris E. Graham as the child Joseph.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The Boissets provide the leading item in a good bill with their lively sketch A Trip to the Continent; and a bustling pantomime turn is also contributed by the Canary Company. Binns and Binns are responsible for much fun and hilarity with their comic business as two musical vagabonds; Mr. Ryder Slone is loudly applauded for his special burgling scena; and Pierce and Maizee appear in a vaudeville act which gives the lady an opportunity of wearing a number of handsome dresses. There is novelty as well as amusement in Eric's ventriloquial sketch; Violi creates great enthusiasm by the display of her accomplishments as a versatile instrumentalist; Boy Glen proves himself a clever juvenile raconteur; Miss Jose Collins gains favour as a comedienne and dancer; Atroy gives a singularly smart performance as a society juggler and manipulator of hoops; and Grais' baboons show almost more than human dexterity in tight-rope walking and other acrobatic feats.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Large and appreciative audiences have been drawn to witness The Follies. Mr. H. G. Pellissier, who devises and arranges the entertainment, caused much merriment with his topical song and German character-study; Mr. Dan Everard gave his songs with taste; Mr. Lewis Sydney's piano sketches were much enjoyed; Miss Marjorie Napier, with a sweet voice, rendered her numbers tastefully; Miss Gwennie Mars is clever in her imitation of negro eccentric dancing; and Miss Ethel Allandale contributed some well executed mandoline solos.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—On Monday Somebody's Sweetheart was performed here by Mr. Edward Marris's No. 1 company. Mr. W. H. Kirby, in the character of Martin Blabbs, was irresistible; Miss Molly Hackett, in the title-part, acted bewitchingly, and proved herself a pleasing vocalist; Mr. E. H. Bertram sang nicely as Stanton Ashleigh; the part of Stephen Leverton was well sustained by Mr. Douglas B. Watson; and as Lem Lee Mr. J. Templar Ellis showed real skill; Miss Cordelia Knight was a good Zora; Miss Norah Melton made a successful appearance as Mrs. Ainslie; Miss Millie Gordon enacted Freddie Ashleigh well; and Mr. Reg. Hugh Hamber as Old Joe was praiseworthy. Mr. George Ess is an excellent conductor.

FLEETWOOD.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Snelson.—Mr. and Mrs. Waller's Juvenile Pantomime Co. is this week appearing in The Babes in the Wood. Miss Kitty Chester (Bertie) and Baby Blythe (Cissie) are both excellent as the babes; Miss Gerty McQueen plays the part of Robin Hood with good effect, and Maid Marian is well represented by Miss Fanny Adamson; Miss Hilda Deacon is good as Dolly Dimple, and Mr. Ally Benson as Dame Flossie is the cause of roars of laughter; Mr. Ernest Thirlway as Baron Wheresmecash acts his part very well, and Messrs. Doyle and Gibson are seen to advantage as Blustering Bill and Wavering Walley.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland. — Mr. George Dance's company, in The Duchess of Dantzic, was the attraction here for the first three nights of the week. Miss May Glenn in the title-rôle quickly won all hearts; Miss Burna Bent was a vivacious Lisette, singing prettily; Mr. Gilbert Yorke made a commanding and capable Napoleon; Mr. J. T. Bolesworth displayed a good voice as Philippe; Mr. Ernest Tornence was all that could be desired as Lefebvre; Mr. Steve Fitzgerald was highly diverting as Papillon; Miss Ella Derwent played with dignity as Josephine; and Napoleon's sisters were in the capable hands of Miss D. Garland and Miss Edwards; Renee de Saint Mezard had an able exponent in Miss Maggie White; and other parts were in good hands. Lady Madcap occupied the boards on Thursday.

TOWN HALL.—Lessee, Mr. E. J. Chadwick.—Mr. George Grossmith, assisted by Miss Dorothy D'Egville, vocalist; Miss Dorothy Forster, pianiste, and Miss Dorothy Scott, raconteuse musicale, gave a most pleasing entertainment here on Monday.

BATHING ESTABLISHMENT GROUNDS. — Cardow's Cadets give a varied programme at every performance here.

GAINSBOROUGH. — KING'S THEATRE. — Proprietors, Arthur Carlton Theatres, Ltd.; Resident Manager, Mr. Robt. Kirk.—Mr. Campbell Kelly's company appeared here for three nights last week in The Trail of the Serpent. Miss Nana Cameron gave a powerful rendering of the Gipsy; Mr. Kelly was interesting as Gerald Kingston; and Mr. Bradford Crosley was good as the villain; Mr. Booth Conway gave a clever character study of Gipsy Jake; and the comedy element was safe in the hands of Mr. Vincent Kelway and Miss Gladys Newcombe. Mr. John Leopold's New Frivolity company are paying a return visit here this week. The company is practically the same as on the last visit, and the piece goes as well as ever. Miss Amy Hall is again charming as Lucy; Mr. John Leopold, jun., supports her excellently as Daniel; Mr. Watson Hume is an amusing Buckwheat; and Mr. Barry Lupino gives a clever rendering of Sammy. The acrobatic act and statue business of the Leopolds is as smart and clever as ever, and the rest of the company give admirable support.

GATESHEAD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. M. S. Hammond; General-Manager, Mr. Joe May.—The fare submitted here this week is again of a first-class nature. Occupying the top line are Tennyson and Wallis, who have some excellent songs and amusing patter. Burt Shepard, with his funny parodies and quaint stories, is much appreciated; quite the latest thing in gymnastics is sumbitted by the Avolos; Gerald Mount and Hilda Corelli make a huge "hit" with their vocal entertainment; Curtis and Vanity are excellent in their acrobatic dancing act; the Vekeys, banjoists, receive well-merited applause; Kenneth and Kane are seen to advantage in a musical, singing, and dancing act; Maqua, in beautiful artistic poses, provides excellent entertainment; Rodin, eccentric comedian and trick cyclist, and Annie Neilson, vocalist, complete the "show."

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—An excellent company is attracting good "houses" here. "Starring" we have Dinah Morris and her troupe of Southern Belles in a brisk sketch entitled The Lost Coon, into which are introduced some pretty songs and dances; Ryan and Hall are amusing comedy acrobats; the Chivosky troupe of Russian dancers and vocalists give a fine turn; and Little Don is a popular comedian; a very entertaining eccentric is Tom Odlin; Clarendon Fenwick, a pleasing baritone, and pictures shown by the American Bioscope make up the bill.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—A strong attraction here this week is Mr. J. Rice Cassidy and company in In Holy (?) Russia. Mr. Cassidy in the rôle of Micky Nolan is extremely comic; he receives excellent support from Mr. Arthur Stratton, who portrays Colonel Richard Forrest; Mr. Carl Rovinelli makes a capital Steragoff; Mr. Terence Nerry realises to the full the character of Michael Natolski; Mr. Horace Butler is successful as Petrokski; Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy is a convincing Renée Rubinoff; Miss Mavis Lee Anderson gives an admirable impersonation of Catska Lavotski; Misses Evie Norman and Annie Dudley do well in their respective parts.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Percy Humphrys.—Opera-goers are many in Glasgow, and they never forget old friends and favourites. Mr. J. W. Turner is one of these, Hence the flattering receptions this week of the veteran tenor and his fine company. Mr. Turner has not sung here for years so well as he did on Monday evening, when Wallace's Maritana was produced. As Don Cæsar de Bazan he was at his best, acting and singing with great charm. In Miss Kitty Brownlees, who was the Maritana, Mr. Turner has a prima donna of great ability. Gifted with a voice of great beauty and a perfectly easy grace and style as an actress, she made a profound impression, and shared the honours with her chief. The other artists who assisted included Messrs. Tom Griffiths, Sidney Clinord, R. Cummings, Frank Clarke, and Geo. Ridding, and Misses Jessie Dennis and Maud Esdale. In every case they excelled themselves. The chorus and orchestra were brilliant. The Bohemian Girl was given on Tuesday, and other favourite operas followed during the week.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. George Stephenson's company is here with the farcical comedy The Night of the Party, which is being greeted nightly by large audiences with continuous laughter and applause. Mr. Sebastian Smith as Crosbie, the free-and-easy valet, contributes the greater part of the fun; Miss Evelyn Howard as Lady Hampshire gives a charming representation of an impulsive creature with conflicting emotions; while Mr. Aidan Lovett makes a stately and dignified Sir Charles Hampshire. The part of Frank Frayne is ably interpreted by Mr. Frank H. Denton. Miss Maud Linden as the lively housemaid, Pauline, is excellent. Other servitors who figure at Mr. Crosbie's "party" are Gipsy Vandelier, by Miss Stanley Ronalds; Nannie Portland, by Miss Marie Lewis; Baby Hastings, by Miss Gertrude Manners; Mr. Flambert, by Mr. Douglas Munro; Mr. Roundle, by Mr. E. Patrick; and Mr. Bogue, by Mr. Ernest Rivarz, each portraying distinct types of character with great ability. Miss Lena Graham as Mrs. Young, Mr. Edmond T. Sayers as Alderman Oargen, Mr. Charles F. Bruce as Alec Montresor, Mr. Charles Wilson as Horace Clouge, Mr. Abbey as Mr. McRoth, and Mr. Samuel Plinge as Captain Bleary all act their parts to satisfaction.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Mr. George Dance's company is this week paying a return visit in The Girl From Kay's. The title-part is taken by Miss Nancy Hervyn, whose singing and acting find much favour with the audience; Mr. Arthur Stigant is the Hoggenheimer, and in his hands the part loses none of its humour and character; in the rôle of Harry Gordon Mr. Herbert Frankly acts with quiet, gentlemanly grace; and for the part of Norah a singer of considerable talent is found in Miss Aimee Grey; Miss Chrissie Ralland makes a bright and attractive Ellen; and as Mrs. Chalmers Miss Cruikshanks plays her part well. Mr. Tom Shelford is very good as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle; Mr. S. Major Jones extracts a deal of amusement from the part of the Hall Porter; and able character-acting is seen in the Mr. Chalmers of Mr. Chas. Lupton, and in the Quench of Mr. Buchanan Wake.

GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—A most important revival of "Scotland's national drama," Rob Roy, is being given here, and will occupy the boards for three weeks. The scenic effects have been entrusted to that doyen of Scottish theatrical art, Mr. Wm. Glover, who has been ably assisted by Mr. Bert Vennimore and others, with the result that in this department alone the present production claims a high position. In addition, however, the cast is a specially well chosen one, and the musical side of the play has been well looked after in the engaging of the famous operatic tenor Mr. E. C. Hedmondt, for the part of Francis and Mme. Alice Esty for that of Diana Vernon. These clever artists provide quite a feast of Scottish song throughout, and all their contributions were received with enthusiasm. The chorus, too, is strong, and the concerted pieces are given with striking effect. Mr. Nelson Ramsay plays the outlawed Rob Roy with much distinction, and Helen Macgregor is excellently acted by Miss Marion Lind. As Bailie Nicol Jarvie Mr. W. George Robb ably sustains the best traditions of the part, and gives the pawky wit and wisdom of the character with unctuous enjoyment. Mr. Herbert Bentone as the uncouth Dougal also proves a valuable member of the cast. Mr. W. Mowbray Harle, who stage-manages the production, plays Andrew Fairservice on broad comedy lines, and takes well. Mr. Robert Minster as Captain Thornton, Mr. W. E. Holloway as Rashleigh, and Mr. Walter Russell as Sir Frederick all ably fill their parts, and comedy is supplied by the Owen of Mr. Montague Corri, the Major Galbraith of Mr. Alex Hamilton, the Macstuart of Mr. Edwin Tudor, and the landlady of Miss Jenny Macintyre. Miss Jeanie L. Harle is an attractive Mattie, and deserves a special word of praise for her singing throughout, and more particularly for the fine rendering of the solo part in the "Tramp Chorus." The entire production reflects the utmost credit on the able managing-director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan, whose artistic and original ideas are evidenced in many of the most noteworthy features of the revival.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—A large and appreciative audience welcomed the return visit of Mr. William Greet's company in the ever-popular play, The Sign of the Cross. The principal parts are in very capable hands, the chief characters being exceptionally well played by Miss Marie Leonhard as Mercia and Mr. Frank E. Petty as Marcus; while Mr. C. Yorke as Nero, Mr. Charles Aldred as Tigellinus, Mr. Frank Wood as Glabrio, and Misses Newcombe, Price, and Dane, in their respective characters of Poppea, Berenice, and Stephanus, stand out prominently.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Mr. Jack Haddon and company in Under the Russian Flag are proving an attraction here this week. Mr. Haddon submits a capital reading of Captain Demetrius, and Mr. Cecil Melton as Ivan Romanoff finely depicts the part; Mr. Edward Avinal as Michael Romanoff appears quite at home as the villain and brings the selfish and brutal character into due prominence; a satisfactory General Romanoff is found in Mr. George Herbert; Luka Marischla has a clever exponent in Miss Marie Raynor, a part played throughout with force; Miss Elaine Vanbrugh is responsible for a good portrayal of Vera Vassiloff. The humorous element is in no wise neglected, Mr. Will Rivers (Peter Poluskie), Miss Violet Lytton (Ogarita), and Mr. Fred Hornung (Alexis Skopolopki) having plenty of opportunities, of which they make the most.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—This week Govan gets a play after its own heart in Fred Locke's musical comedy, A Trip to the Highlands. An excellent house welcomed Mr. Wal Croft as the quaint Macmutchkin, Mr. Gus Wheatman as Brown Windsor, Mr. Arthur Poole as the Detective, and that eccentric comedian, Mr. J. B. Montague as Timmins. The ladies of the company come out strong, and Miss Millie Engler, the charming Winnie; Miss Maisie Ellinger as the romantic Araminta; Miss Kitty Clinton as the vivacious Fanny Flounce; and Misses Florence Woolley and Kathleen Naughton as a spooney couple all help the play along in capital style. Mr. Frank Barclay as Fred Lackington, Mr. Wellesley Smith as his father, and Miss Lillian Kevill Davies as Mrs. Macmutchkin all add their quota. The chorus and dancers also assist greatly in the success.

NEW GAIETY.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong. Drama is now in full swing here, and proving very popular, the attraction being this week The Ticket-of-Leave Man, produced by the Gaiety Dramatic Company under the direction of Mr. M. Montgomery. The cast is a strong one, and includes Mr. Horace Booth, who gives a capital account of himself as Robert Brierly; Mr. H. Hesslegrave as Hawkshaw submits a representation which is thoroughly appreciated by the audience. Mention must also be made of Mr. Alfred D. Adams, Mr. A. H. Clarke, Miss Mattie Crawfurd, and Miss Marie de Roos, who one and all lend excellent support; Miss Laurie A. Pardy acts well as Emily St. Evremond, and Mr. T. E. Conover gives a humorous portrayal of Melter Moss.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Mussett.—A varied and interesting programme is submitted here this week. Leo Stormont and company are responsible for an important item, a dramatic scena entitled The Devil's Week-end, which is produced in a highly artistic manner. Cussac-Talma, illusionist, has also made a good impression, his performance, in conjunction with Mlle. Yvonne de Forge, being as mysterious as it is interesting. Spry and Austin, vaudeville artists, are great favourites and have had a hearty reception. In addition the following notable artists appear: Tina Clementa, with well-trained horse and dogs; Sanford and Lyons, comedians and dancers; Ethel Walker, mimic and pianist; Albert Le Fre, comedian and dancer; Ada Martine, comedienne. The Bioscope shows an interesting series of pictures.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—An enjoyable star turn is provided here by Miss Florence St. John and company in My Milliner's Bill. The popular actress gives an excellent touch of comedy to her part, and her vocal items are much appreciated. The Ten Genis in a risky act show marvellous skill and daring; Wilfred Shine and company appear in an amusing sketch, Trooper Hunt's Widow. Charles J. Johnson, coloured comedian and cake-walker, is a great favourite; the conjuring turn of Cull-pitt is smart and amusing; Esta Stella's catchy songs and neat dances make her turn a special success; Fred Keeton is a smart eccentric comedian; Arthur Gill's vocal imitations are good; Lord, Murray, and Lord give a gymnastic sketch; and the latest pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Tom Leamore, armed with a budget of new songs and smart patter, is fetching the audiences here in his best style; Grant and Grant are an exceedingly clever pair of coloured artists, whose songs and dances are particularly well done; Les 4 Papillons dance neatly and their songs prove popular; J. W. Hall in new and old songs alike takes the fancy of the crowd, and his reception is cordial; Harry Edson, with his dog Doc and another shows some wonderful examples of animal training; the Solari Duo are clever instrumentalists; Raie Walters does well with her "Fishing" song; Angeline, lady juggler, contributes some smart work; and Katie Marsh gives a varied impersonation turn.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Miss Marie Kendall tops a good bill here, and the big house is comfortably filled at each "show," no doubt the popular entertainment accounting for many. One of her songs, a topical one, is worthy of special mention; Frank Lynne has some smart sayings, and his songs are well received; Lambeth and Robertson in a clever sketch show how Scots folk wooed in Burns's time, and are the recipients of loud applause; Miss Lambeth sings "A Hundred Pipers" with much dash and patriotism, and is warmly recalled; the Dean Brothers, "white dancers," are a host in themselves; and Jas. H. Ju's wire act is, at times, one to make a spectator pause for breath, his jumping over several chairs being marvellous; Ste delights his audience; Miss Lucretia wins unstinted applause as a burlesque artist; and the Tichell family of acrobats give an exceedingly clever show. Parker and Parr, novelty duettists; Baddow, ventriloquist; and Anita Hayman, soprano, are also very successful. Fresh pictures are shown by the Britanniscope; and Mme. H. E. Angless's Ladies' Pompadour Band continues to give entire satisfaction.

WELLINGTON PIER PAVILION.—Proprietors, Great Yarmouth Corporation; Manager, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—A capital company is again provided. Miss Hulo Hodgson and Mr. Harry Lowther are well received in the farcical episode Barmaids; and Frank and Alice Lurin submit a most amusing extravaganza Cinderella. Other artists appearing are Arthur Croxon, comedian; Minnie Mace, comedienne and dancer; Raymond Trio, in a musical act; Charles Russell, comedian; Frank Hartley, the juggling schoolboy; and Walter and May, coloured comedians and dancers.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—Paul Cinquevalli, the incomparable juggler, is the leading turn here this week, and his marvellous dexterity and unerring judgment win great applause each evening. Other newcomers are Horten and Linder, on the triple bars; Smith and Johnson, society coloured duo; the Humels, equestrians, and the Plunging Horses, in a scena, entitled Bungay Races.

GREENOCK. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—This week's attraction here is The Bauble Shop. Mr. Fredk. Annerley appears to advantage as Lord Clivebrook; Mr. Percy H. Vernon makes an excellent Matthew Keber; Mr. Reginald Hargreaves is an amusing exponent of the Hon. Chas. Teviot, and Mr. John Cecil makes the most of his opportunities at Stoach, M.P. Miss Lily Bertram gives an artistic rendering of Jessie Keber, and Miss Renee de L'Estrade is good as Gussy Bellenden. The other parts are well filled.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—The Three Missouris top the bill here, and their burlesque acrobatic turn is very amusing. Other good turns are Walter Wade, local comedian; Hallam and Stanton, in a musical comedy sketch, A Broken Journey; Poole and Poole, comedians and dancers; Strathmore Troupe of International Dancers; the Cosmans, and Cyril Carle, actor-vocalist.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Lessees, The Greenock Pavilion, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd. Gracie Graham tops the bill here, and her turn proves very enjoyable. The other members of a good company are Joe Conway (comedian), Lillian Trexalli (comedienne), the Haverleys (American song illustrators), Sam Dalton (comedian), Daisy Ray (comedienne), and Dale and Vale (speciality dancers).

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—The first visit of The Blue Moon, played by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company, has created a very favourable impression. Miss Clarice Lockstone invests the central character of Chandra Nil with quiet charm, and sings sweetly; whilst Miss Florence Imeson has won much favour by her bright representation of Millicent Leroy. The amusing impostor, the Moolraj, is portrayed in droll fashion by Mr. Alfred Beers; whilst Mr. Reginald Switz is also responsible for much merriment as Private Taylor. Mr. A. Wykes Ashdown scores vocal honours as Bobbie Scott; and Mr. Alec Fraser, who appears as Captain Ormsby, also sings well. Other prominent members are Miss Ethel Callanan as Evelyn Ormsby, Miss Kathleen Cartaret as Lady Brabasham, Mr. Alfred Clark as the jovial Major Callabone, and Mr. Arthur Soames as the Prince.

CURRY'S TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. North.—There has been plenty of comedy in the Tivoli programme this week. The burlesque, The Adventures of a Happy Tramp, given by Billy Howard and Kathryn Harris, was especially laughable; whilst the Elvio Trio, in Those Troublesome Slaves, introduced good knockabout comedy. Charles R. Whittle, a comedian with a quaint style, and Ernie Myers, who has a fund of smart patter, added to the fun. Feats of equilibrium of an exceptionally novel and difficult character were performed by Yamamato and Miss Koyoshi, a couple of Japanese artists. The wire-walking display of Yetta was also very clever. Others who contributed were Lily Lonsdale, vocalist, and Rosa Tilley, comedienne.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moves; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Miss Minnie Palmer has made a welcome return to Grimsby, after a somewhat lengthy absence. She appeared in a new character, Nell Gwynne, and her delineation was altogether charming. Charles Vandyke's pantomimists caused much laughter by their burlesque, Sensations, in which are introduced a host of surprises and trick effects. The vocal turn of the Crown Trio was highly popular, their singing being marked by high artistic merit. Morimura gave an entertaining display of Japanese magic; Silvo submitted demonstrations of his skill as a manipulator of musical glasses; and others appearing were Wright and Elton, in a speciality, Eccentricities; W. H. Downs, a favourite coloured vocalist; and Maude Mortimer, burlesque comedienne.

THE EMPIRE, CLEETHORPES.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Carter-White; Manager, Mr. W. M. Baker.—The main portion of the programme has been provided by the Monckton Comedy Company; whilst other engagements were: Violet Desmond, vocalist and violinist; Fred Hallam, comedian; the Lauriers, jugglers and conjurers, and Bertha Cousins, comedienne.

GUERNSEY.—ST. JULIAN'S HALL.—Lessee, Mr. C. Robt. Perkins.—On the 31st ult. we were provided with an exceptional treat in the Moody-Manners Opera Company. The opera selected was Carmen, the interpretation being brilliant, and heartily appreciated. Premier honours were awarded to Miss Rosina Beynon, who not only possesses an excellent contralto voice, but made a bewitching and captivating Carmen. Miss Ethel Cadman deserved the highest praise for her excellent singing as Michaela. Don José was admirably presented by Mr. Maurice Paul; Mr. Frederic Erle as Escamillo was a success both musically and dramatically; and Morales and Il Dancairo were excellently presented by Messrs. S. Lonsdale and Van Lachterop. The performance was well directed by Mr. A. Frewin.

HALIFAX.—GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Notwithstanding the inevitable tram strike, which is proving very inconvenient to patrons, good houses are enjoying the visit of Mr. Frank Lindo's company, in Home, Sweet Home, which has previously been seen here. Mr. Lindo, as before, simulates the honest fisherman, Stephen Armitage, his prepossessing figure having much to do with the success attained. A fine Duke of Ancaster is found in Capt. Gerald Gambier, and Mr. F. Lucas Lyle is a capable private secretary. Some really good comedy is presented by Mr. Helsby Wri (Gaffer) and Mr. Harry Dawson (Hon. Percy). Miss Marion Wakeford is charming as Jean, while the playing of the orchestra (which has been transferred from the Royal), under the able guidance of Mr. James, give highly entertaining selections of a varied quality.

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—A delightful company is at the above house this week, headed by Vesta Tilley, who submits, "Who said, Girls?" "The Seaside Sultan," and "Algy," &c., in a manner that sets the audiences cheering lustily. The Eight Stella Girls, sprightly little damsels, sing and swing in their piquant scena enchantingly; the Three Rubys are received spontaneously by their clever acrobatic feats; a Highland sword dance is capably enacted by the Stewarts. We have also the Halifax Orpheus Quartette of Vocalists; Stanley and Greenop, expert banjoists; and Ralph Moore (the boy Patti); while the Three Merrills give a wonderful exhibition of cycling. After the performance on Monday night, Miss Vesta Tilley delivered the following neat little speech:—Ladies and Gentlemen,—I cannot leave the stage to-night without thanking you very sincerely for this magnificent reception. You do not know what a delight it is to me, after having a very successful tour in America, and after being away from Halifax so long to return and have such an ovation. I can only thank you very much. I also wish to thank the members of the Halifax Bowling Club for this handsome bouquet. I thank you all very much once more and in taking my leave I beg to remain your humble servant.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.—After a closure of three weeks' duration for decoration, this modern music-hall was re-opened on Monday evening. Mr. Cecil is here with Dronza, the imaginary doll, who answers questions most intelligently; Hall and Earle (comedy grotesques) are champions in their line of business; a comedienne, full of vivacity, is Maidie Scott, who sings exceptionally well; while Mlle. Annie Schuberth, the famous prima donna, was in magnificent voice. The Athlones, Vandinoff, and the well-known Ring Ling Trio offer yeoman service.

HANLEY.—ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mr. Lewis Waller's company opened here on Monday in Brigadier Gerard. The title-rôle is admirably sustained by Mr. Long Fernie, whose dash and manly bearing well suit the part. Miss Beatrice Lindley as the Comtesse de Roquelaure acts with ease and ability. Mr. Arthur Somers contributes a most artistic impersonation of Napoleon; as Talleyrand Mr. George Malleit gives a capital character portrayal; Mr. Alfred Hilliard is successful in the part of General de Caulaincourt; Mr. Frank Powell does well as Colonel Guerin; Major Bron is capably played by Mr. J. Henry Twyford; Mr. Elliott Ball (Major Olivier), Mr. Wilson Blake (Captain Sebattier), Mr. Wylie Thompson (Captain Pelletan), Mr. Thomas Brooklyn (Lieut. Legros), Mr. Penn Hamilton (Mons. D'Albert), Mr. Reginald Mason (Pierre), Mr. James Crowe (Mons. Bassompierre), and Miss Gertrude Beattie (Agnes) are all most capable in their respective parts.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—Heading a splendid bill is Carl Hertz in his wonderful entertainment, consisting of illusions, &c.; Lynn as a mimic has but few rivals; Frank Sylvo returns, and once more his comedy juggling is thoroughly enjoyed; the Brothers O'Brien contribute a clever turn upon the triple bars; Jack Pleasants scores a decided success in his humorous songs; Donaldson Brothers and Ardel's contribution is appreciated by all; Cissie Curlette is a smart mimic; Nora Emerald is successful; and the Sisters Casselli are always favourites here. The Urbanora shows some admirable pictures.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Fielding Smith.—The first three nights of this week we had a visit from Mr. Geo. Alexander's company in A. W. Pinero's comedy, His House in Order. Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay was in every respect excellent as Nina. Mr. Stephen Ewart as Hilary Jesson gave a masterly performance; and Mr. J. Edward Pearce was well placed as the exacting and precise Filmer Jesson. Miss Maisie Richardson gave a clever performance as the boy Derek. The objectionable family of the Ridgeleys were all well portrayed by Mr. George Fitzgerald as Sir Daniel, Miss Haviland as Lady Ridgeley, Miss Elaine Sleddall as Geraldine, and Mr. Ernest Holloway as the cad, Pryce Ridgeley. Mr. Lloyd Lownedes gave a good sketch of Major Maurewarde. Mr. Luke Forster was an amusing Dr. Dilmot. The Hutchison company in A Country Mouse, including Miss Annie Hughes, occupied the stage the remainder of the week.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—The company booked this week is one of all round excellence. A strong attraction is afforded by the Cattaneos Troupe of acrobats, who introduce some novel and original business in a remarkably well finished style; Tom E. Cliffe's legmania dancing takes well. The remaining turns have all been tried by Hartlepool audiences already, and the re-booking is evidence of the satisfaction they have given. They are: Ida Ross, a taking Tyrolean vocalist; Gus Merriman, whose singing whilst smoking puzzles all; Halma, a society juggler, whose performance proves him to be an adept; Starr and Jerome, in a neat and graceful exhibition of sand dancing; Gus Barra, who is exceedingly funny in his act, The Comic Musical Motorist, and who has had a big reception for a concertina selection from "Poet and Peasant"; and some interesting films on the bioscope.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—On Monday a first performance in Hastings of Mr. Popple (of Ippleton) was made by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. Mr. Morris Harvey cleverly impersonated the genial Freddy; a good performance of La Bolero was submitted by Miss Mamie Brickwell; Mr. Tom May was an able representative of Platt; Miss Lulu Londen displayed piquancy as Louise; Miss Claire Pridelle won much applause as Violet Brinton; Miss Louie Rene was artistic as Mrs. Doring; and Miss Stella St. Audrie was an effective Mrs. Hannay. The performance was under the musical direction of Mr. H. R. Matthews. A Country Girl came on Thursday.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — General Manager, Mr. Albert Mathams.—The patriotic songs of Miss Nellie Wilson are much applauded here. Floria is a smart equilibrist, and excels on the slack wire. The impersonations of Mr. Will Stancomb are very effective; two comedy sketches are introduced by Miss Evelyn Vaudray, Mr. Frank Pearson, and Miss Naomi Neilson. They are much applauded. The up-to-date pictures shown by the Hippodrome Bioscope are realistic. Accompanying herself on the piano, Miss Nellie Adams sings soprano songs charmingly; the "Black and White" sketch by Snowball and Dolia creates great fun. The American wizard Germaine is very smart; and Dan Thomas receives a hearty welcome; his comicalities are irresistible.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—The drama recently has given place to a variety programme here, and this week Mr. J. D. Hunter has provided his patrons with a superior bill of fare in that direction. Miss Margaret Lewys, a pleasing contralto, opens the varied entertainment; Mr. Fred Stafford, a lightning artist, sketches a series of scenes of quite pictorial beauty; Les Frasettis perform some musical selections in a clever manner on different instruments, including the harp, 'cello, xylophone, etc. Mr. Ernest Hastings is delightfully amusing, a ripple of merriment accompanying his pianoforte sketches; a gymnastic display by the Brothers Bright is much applauded; some vivid and quite fresh pictures are contributed to the bill by Payne's bio-photoscope. A flying visit from Miss Marie Dainton was made here on Tuesday. An interesting programme was submitted, in which the talented comedienne was associated with Miss Cora Moore, a contralto of considerable excellent quality. A violin soloist, Mons. Trebini, who overcame the difficulties of classical pieces with comparative ease; Miss Marjorie Cassini, a capable and effective reciter; Miss Dainton fairly won the hearts of her audience by her finished method and telling voice. This well-graced artist also gave imitations of celebrated actresses, which were received with great appreciation.

PUBLIC HALL.—On Wednesday, under the auspices of Mr. Wm. Slade, a return visit here was paid by Mr. George Grossmith, in his drawing-room entertainment. He has the valuable assistance of Miss Dorothy Scott in musical recital; Miss Dorothy D'Egville in song and ballad singing; and Miss Dorothy Forster, a clever pianist and accompanist.

ST. LEONARD'S PAVILION THEATRE.—Pier Master and Entertainment Manager, Mr. E. Thomas.—The Clifford Essex Pierrots are attracting good audiences here with a varied programme. Besides Mr. Clifford Essex, the concert party includes Miss Ella Barkley, Mr. Joe Morley, Mr. Fred Rome, Mr. Langford Kirby, and Miss Frances Roscorla.

HAWICK.—THISTLE THEATRE, COMMON HAUGH.—Proprietor, Mr. Leland Jones.—On Monday The Worst Villain on Earth was staged here. Mr. L. Jones gave a strong impersonation of Nero Morath; Sharp, the detective, was in the capable hands of Mr. Swanton; and as Faith Morath, Miss Jessie Holland proved herself an actress of much ability.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. P. Barnsley.—Mr. H. F. Maltby's company appeared here on the 30th ult. and the following night in The Youngest of Three. Mr. H. F. Maltby was responsible for an excellent portrayal of George Wendover. The Gerald Wendover of Mr. H. Hargreaves was played in a capable manner. The representation of Lucy Dulley by Miss Beatrice Marsdene was artistic; Miss Mara Maltby is to be complimented on her portrayal of Florence Dulley; Miss Janet Hodson, as Anne Dulley, proved herself a very finished and most cultured performer. The Ladies' Battle drew an appreciative house on Saturday.

DRILL HALL.—Manager, Mr. A. Lovesey.—The Orchid received a warm welcome on its return visit to Hereford on the 30th ult. Miss Poppy Wilkinson played with much vivacity as Lady Violet Anstruther; Miss Trilby Collier was a charming Josephine Zaccary; Mr. Clifford Bing was quite at home in the character of Guy Scrymgeour. As Meakin, Mr. H. Walsh was capital. Miss Hilda Vining as Caroline Vokins displayed great ability, her songs being well rendered.

HOLT.—CONCERT HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Preston.—On Monday Miss Kate Johnstone and Miss Ethel Mowbray opened with the London Vaudeville Company, under the management of Mr. James Jarrett. A good interpretation of East Lynne was given, Miss Kate Johnstone playing with nicely-graded emotions as Lady Isabel. Mr. James Jarrett made Levison the cynical man of the world without conscience; Cornelia was presented with quiet humour by Miss Ethel Mowbray; and as Lawyer Dill Mr. J. C. Ainslie achieved success. A sympathetic study of Archibald Carlyle was submitted by Mr. Alfred G. Lord; and Miss Edna Ray made a delightful Barbara Hare. In the small part of Joyce Miss Olive Mowbray played well; and as the comic policeman, called in this version Goat, Mr. Leslie Sears caused much fun. Miss Gwendoleen Ashdown was distinctly good as Little Willie.

HORWICH.—NEW PRINCE'S.—Proprietor, Mr. A. P. Patterson.—The theatre re-opened on Monday night with a strong variety company, including Mr. James Stockton, Tyrolean vocalist; Gipsy Ann with her fortune-telling dog Rosie; Miss Violet Rose, serio-comic; The Schallers, in a comic gymnastic act; Collin and Irene, second sight experts and illusionists; Mlle. Rosini's toy menagerie of well-trained dogs; Gertie Grahame, speciality artist and dancer, in a smart scena, "Dick Whittington"; La Belle Rosa, solo mandolinist; Bob Lewis, tenor; and Turle and Blanche, comedy duettists.

HOYLAND.—METROPOLE.—Owner, A. Carlton; Lessee and Manager, Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Geo. R. Baker.—The above theatre re-opened on Monday to a crowded house, with a return visit of Messrs. Poole's Myriorama Bioscope and Variety company. The Bioscope presented some good pictures, including the latest American success, "Black Beauty." The variety turns included Woolford's marvellous performing ponies, clever dogs, and comical donkey; the Fordyces (Jennie and Willie), humorous juveniles; Harry Raymond, the Mexican coon; Dane's marionettes; and Funny Chef, comedian.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Mr. Bert Coote's production of The Fatal Wedding is here on a return visit. The piece is well played by Miss Madge Hawes as Mabel, Miss Gertrude Harrison as Cora, Mr. Ernest Owttrim as Wilson, Mr. S. H. Humber as Curtis, and in the humorous parts by Miss Maud Locker as Bridget, and Mr. C. H. Hughes as Toto. Miss Marjorie Lawrence gives a clever and natural rendering of the part of the child Jessie, known as the little mother, and other gifted youngsters contributing are Master E. Frisby, Master J. Grice, a nimble little clog dancer, and Misses Hetty Kelly, Ethel Press, Shirley Sparks, and Nora and Essie Herbert.

HIPPODROME. — Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Mr. R. A. Roberts, the well-known protean actor, is appearing with complete success in two of his creations, Dick Turpin and Ringing the Changes. There were also Ford and Barras, talented youths, who were discovered in the streets of London; The Woods, singers and dancers; Barrett and Knowles, two amusing favourite comedians; A. G. Spry, comedian; Miss Gena Manon, soubrette; Henry A. Moore, a clever character-actor; The Paolis, in an effective display of feats of strength; and new pictures on the Biograph.

HULL. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is responsible for the production of the Christian, which returns to Hull once more. Glory Quayle finds an admirable representative in Miss Grace Chalmers, who is effective in every phase of the character; the John Storm of Mr. Frank Tennant is such as to be acceptable all round. The whole production is one that has much in it to make it noteworthy.

GRAND THEATRE.—Mr. John Hart, Managing Director; Mr. Wynn Miller, Local Manager.—The long-looked-for visit of Geo. Edwards' Spring Chicken company has not disappointed the public, who find the comedy equal to what had already been written about it. Nothing could exceed in humour the efforts of Miss Nene Verona as Mrs. Girdle. Miss Nellie Lonnen affords proof of hereditary stage genius, and the same, too, can be said of Mr. Fred Leslie. In her song, "Rotterdam," Miss Rosalie Glyn achieves considerable success. The Mr. Girdle of Mr. Geo. Gregory is a piece of work in which the comedian finds full scope for his powers. Mr. John Brabourne's Gustave Baberi is highly commendable.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mortons, Ltd.; Mr. Geo. Morton, General Manager.—The Female Swindler is a play full of possibilities, and one that meets the taste of the popular playhouse's patrons to the ground. In the title-rôle Miss Grace E. Leslie has a part in which she continues to gain the good graces of the audience by the ability with which she acts. Gifted with a striking stage presence, she adds to this attraction considerable dramatic skill. As the heiress Miss Florrie Kelsey is most convincing. The comic relief is well sustained by Mr. H. Wright. As the hero Mr. Joseph Millane is eminently successful. Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company in this play reached a high standard of efficiency.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Considerable interest is being created here this week by Messrs. E. Hill Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg's company with The Traitor. The callous and crafty nature of the Chief of the Police is graphically depicted by Mr. Stephen E. Scalan, and Miss Rosalind Scott Watson gives an excellent portrayal of the rôle of the unscrupulous adventuress, Countess Zicka; Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson plays with convincing earnestness as Prince Rudolph, and Miss Ruth Shepperd displays exceptional histrionic ability as Zula; whilst Miss Isabel Hunt creates a favourable impression as Lieutenant Nicholas; Mr. T. W. Hurst as Captain Ross, R.N., and Miss Katerine Vere as Elsie Dupres are responsible for some excellent light comedy; and fun of a more boisterous type is furnished by Mr. F. Sutherland as Jack Boult, Miss M. Stuart as Cen-Cen, Mr. Arthur McCulloc as General Hertz, and Mr. Edward Lowrie as Zoff.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Miss Emily Huby's company, in The Convent Bell, is appearing here this week. Miss Magdalen Moore plays the part of Marguerite Courier in a way that compels admiration; whilst Mr. Howell Webb causes laughter as Pickle Podds. The other comedy parts are in the hands of Mr. Edwin Osborne and Miss Ivy Blanche. Mr. H. W. Bertram plays the rôle of Philip Vautier; and Mr. R. Faulding that of Henri Cassella. Miss Emily Huby gives a forcible representation of Christine Valgrave. The Price of Pleasure is played by the same company on alternate nights.

IPSWICH. — LYCEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—Mr. Allan Wilkie, supported by a strong company, has appeared during the week in a round of Shakespearean and other characters. On Monday as Hamlet Mr. Wilkie made a favourable impression. He was most ably assisted by Miss Ina Cameron, whose impersonation of Ophelia was sweet and powerful. Laertes received full justice at the hands of Mr. G. Alexander Marsh, and Mr. George Munro was a capital Polonius. Mr. Wilton Ross as Horatio lent capable aid.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—At the top of the bill this week are Frank Ellis-ton and company on a return visit with Aunt Matilda, which again causes much merriment. Other items include the Folkestones, with eccentric interlude called Swimming the Channel, and some knockabout business; Fred Elton, with On Board an Ocean Liner; Laurence Barclay, comedian; Jessie Burnett, a pleasing singer and dancer; Edwin Brett and Emmeline Orford, vaudevillists; and the Two Bees, in a scena entitled Hiawatha Wedded.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. C Robert Perkins.—Miss Emma Hutchinson and Mr. Percy Hutchinson's company was here for four nights with the Freedom of Suzanne. Miss Mabel Love, who looked charming in the name-part, was accorded a hearty reception; Miss Annie Stalman was convincing as the overbearing Lady Charlotte Trevor; whilst Miss Violet Ley and Miss F. Turner ably impersonated Lady Isabel and Mrs. Tustail. Mr. Templar Powell was natural and easy as Charles Trevor; Mr. F. G. Thurstans gave a capital rendering of the giddy Fitzroy Harding; Mr. Patrick Quill was a dignified Sir Horace Hatton: Mr. J. Hastings Batson was an amusing Lord Datchet; whilst Mr. Townsend Whitling and Mr. Richard Neville figure as Harry Cecil and Tommy Keeston. The comedy is well staged, and Miss Mabel Love wears some charming confections. Miss Marie Hall, the world-famous violinist, appeared here on Friday night, and was supported by Miss Eleanor Felix and Mr. Willis Scott.

ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—Messrs. Poole's Myriorama is proving a great attraction here. Mr. Harry Dowsett is a versatile comedian; the Snow Family of skaters are particularly clever; Houston, the wonderful Chinese magician, introduces some marvellous illusions; Learto and his clever dog Babs do a good turn; the George French Troupe give a first-rate exhibition of acrobatic cycling; Mr. Fred Poole is a genial and entertaining guide.

TRIANGLE PARK.—Mr. Victor Stevens's premier pierrot party are still appearing here, and Mr. John Warren continues to provide the audience with free drinks from his magic kettle. Miss Mollie Wynter, comedienne and sifleuse, is the special attraction this week.

KETTERING.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—Messrs. Beaudyn and Crowe's company is here in The Way of the World. Mr. Herbert Skardon contributes a fine rendering of the rôle of Cecil Montague; and Mr. Victor Gordon depicts Captain Slade in good style. Miss Sydney Crowe is a distinct success as Adele de Roche; and Miss Marie Fontaine is excellent as Kate Montague. The characters of Horatio Bluff, Ned Montague, and Polly Bell are admirably portrayed by Mr. Augustus Hammond, Mr. Frank Stanley, and Miss Violette Vivienne.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore.—After having been closed for some weeks this place of amusement was re-opened on Monday by Mr. Langford Carson's company in The Power of the Cross. Mr. Hartwell J. Kirby is seen to advantage in the part of Baron Curzola; Gerald Fairfax is in the capable hands of Mr. Harry C. Rutland; and Mr. Royce Carleton ably portrays the character of Dr. Leslie Fairfax; Miss Stanley Burt as Margaret Seaton, and Miss Cissie St. Elmo as Rita Lascelles, an adventuress, are both good.

KIRKCALDY.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Burton.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's company in Her Forbidden Marriage opened on Monday to a large audience; Mr. Henry Lonsdale, an old favourite here, was powerful in the rôle of Geo. Madison; Mr. Kenneth Black as Sir George made a capital old man; the villainy of Chas. Devereux and Lady Lucretia was cleverly interpreted by Mr. Louis Hector and Miss Octavia Noel; Miss Isla Garnet Vayne deserves special mention for her artistic rendering of Lucy, her acting being full of charm and refinement; the comic element was in the hands of Miss Denny Fitzherbert and Mr. Fred De Vere, who capably undertook the parts of Patty and Timothy; and Miss Barbara Gott gave a careful study of the Mother Superior. Somebody's Sweetheart occupied the boards on Thursday.

LANCASTER. — ATHENÆUM. — Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.— Mr. Harry Starr and company are this week presenting Otto the Outcast and Carl the Clockmaker to good houses. The former piece was played on Monday with Mr. Starr in the title-rôle. Mr. Edwin Firth gives a clever portrayal of Roderique D'Estalier; Mr. William Miller is powerful as Daddy Bruneau; as the Marquis Marcella de Laporte Mr. Will Hee is worthy of mention; and Mr. Fred W. Graham is comical in the part of Augustine Carrotte; Miss Kate Norris ably fills a responsible position as Lara; and Miss C. Hastings impersonates the Marchioness de Chaumont in a praiseworthy manner.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Porter and Fergusson.—An excellent programme is headed by the Brothers Webb in a wonderful musical turn; Ada Fawn, an old favourite, is recalled again and again; and Za Zaran, the man on the lamp, is exceedingly smart; Claude Feldmaus' Bean Ideal troupe of juveniles, is well received, as also is Marie De Paso, clay modeller; Mabel and Winnie Brooke sing and dance nicely, and another pleasing turn is Elsie Clare, vocalist; Walter Payne's animated pictures complete the bill.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—Mr. Hall Caine's Drury Lane success, The Prodigal Son, opened on Monday to a crowded house. The semi-religious atmosphere of the play is in the way of a novelty to playgoers here, and made an obvious impression. The prodigal, Oscar Stephenson, is played by Mr. Norman Partriege with ability and conviction, his depiction of the return and conciliation being particularly fine. That sterling actor, Mr. Henry Renouf, is in the cast as the vengeful brother Magnus, which part he enacts with characteristic power. Miss Lily Hall Caine is very satisfactory in the arduous heroine rôle, and earns repeated recognition and appreciation; Miss Alma Murray in an artistic presentment of Anna, the boy's mother, earns and is awarded high praise, whilst the Margaret Neilson of Miss Mima Renouf is a clever and pleasing personality. The cunning character of Helga is admirably realised by Miss Cecil Cromwell; and Mr. Henry George in the rôle of Stephen is also worthy a special modicum of praise.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—A welcome revival of that interesting drama, On the Stroke of Twelve, is proving very popular with the Royal habitués this week, for all the best features are retained in the condensed version, which is given twice a night. The persecuted hero, Jack Rutledge, is admirably played by Mr. W. Matthews; Mr. H. C. Hunt as the scheming money-lender, Horton, makes an effective stage villain, whilst his female accomplice in crime, Marie Bergene, realises her opportunities to the full in the person of Miss Madge Laverton. A sweet and charming portrayal of the hero's sister, Doris Rutledge, emanates from Miss Beatrice Moore; capital work also being done by Mr. P. Palmer and Miss Nellie Moore in leading parts. An effective leaven of comedy runs through the story.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—Under the title of The Woman who Gambles Mr. S. B. Rogerson has written a thrilling tale of plot and intrigue, and Mr. Morton Powell's company is giving a powerful presentation at the popular Queen's this week. The company includes Miss Gertrude Hunt in the central part of the Countess of Steinbach, and this lady acts the character with rare ability. The Count is powerfully portrayed by Mr. James Duncan; the part of Governor-General has an able exponent in Mr. Horatio Sinclair; Mr. Ernest H. Clarke makes an effective Chief of Police, and the young lieutenant lover, Karl, is a distinctive portrayal by Mr. Reginald Fox. The Baron's female accomplice is played with the requisite abandon by Miss Rhoda Clighton. Other big female parts are carefully presented by Miss Florie Halton and Miss Brenda May; whilst Mr. G. H. Hurst, Mr. Fred Prior, and Mr. Gilbert Dance are also largely concerned in the success of the piece.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—The popular Chirgwin is well billed "funny and punny," and his efforts in that direction at the Empire this week are keeping good houses in continual merriment. The appearance of R. H. Douglass is most welcome, and his clever monologue sketches are a strong feature of the week's bill. Barton and Ashley's comic speciality is provocative of uproarious mirth. Prof. Dunning's ventriloquial turn is a novel one, and eminently successful; whilst originality is also the keynote of a clever acrobatic speciality by the Picquays. An entertaining musical act by Will Cornish proves vastly popular; the Wedburns score again with patter and comedy business; Millie Payne finds a ready acceptance for her clever vocal contributions, and appreciation is also won by Marie Reeve in a similar line; whilst last but not least is an exhibition of conjuring by Kahn and Kahn.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Claude Shayler and Mr. Chas. Weldon.—A clever musical and pantomimic extravaganza, entitled Office Hours, is the leading item of entertainment here, and as it serves to exploit, amongst other things, the whimsicalities of that clever comedian, W. T. Thompson, proves vastly popular; Rosina Caselli again presents her marvellous dog show, arousing great interest; some acceptable comedy is introduced by the Columbia Trio, and also in a more riotous style by the Three Prestons; the Musical Schaffers are expert and entertaining in the use of their instruments; a novel specialty by the Lombarts is well received, as also is the unique entertainment given by Sylvesto; Robb Gilmore is a leading light amongst the comedians; the Sisters Tinsley are enjoyable in song and dance, and Mollie Doon, comedienne, has a good presence and a pleasing style.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred W Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—In the Three Sisters Jonghmans has been secured an attractive star turn for this week; these fine vocalists have a big reputation locally. A funny sketch, The Deserters, by Hudson Powell and company, promises to be a popular line judging by a big reception on Monday. The New Macs are repeating previous successes in the way of clever patter and neat dancing. Ike Scott and Son are to be seen in a smart comedy interlude, and of the rest Sid Cotterell and company in comic sketch, the Sisters Darrell, duettists, and Jack Crawley, comedian, are having a successful time.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—A return visit is being paid here this week by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company in Leah Kleschna. Miss Bessie Rignold as Leah gives a portrayal of great emotional and dramatic power; Mr. Paul Belmore as Kleschna submits an embodiment of exceptional merit; Mr. William F. Grant deserves nothing but praise for his Paul Sylvaine; Mr. Campbell Goldsmid is good as Schram; and Mr. Hamilton Deane excellent as Raoul Berton.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The boards here are held this week by Miss Winifred Maude's company under the direction of Mr. Victor Du Cane, with The Sins of a City, and the musical comedy drama, The Stowaway. The engagement opened with the former play, in which Miss Winifred Maude is seen to considerable advantage as Seaweed; Mr. William Vane as Sandy McDonald makes an excellent impression; Mr. James Carson shines as Ralph Blackwater; Mr. Victor Du Cane is very good as Isaac Levi; Mr. Maurice Drew in the dual rôles of Joe Woodleigh and Jasper Woodleigh is most praiseworthy; Miss Jenny Hackett is a vivacious Midge, scoring in song and dance; Mr. Leonard Harrison is well placed as Donald McIvor; and both Miss Jessie Mason as Jenny, and Miss Ethel Tinsley as Lesbia are commendable. The Stowaway was underlined for Thursday.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Andrews.—Lottie Lennox, a dashing comedienne and excellent chorus vocalist, who is most popular with Leicester audiences

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—There was no mistaking the genuineness of the applause, and even cheers, which emanated from large audiences assembled in the leading theatre this week, when Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry introduced to this city Dorothy o' the Hall. Between each act the curtain had to be run up several times, and, on Monday night particularly, the delighted spectators, at the close, seemed loth to let go of the distinguished players. It was not until Mr. Terry spoke a few words, and remarked that "both Miss Neilson and he were very pleased to again meet their Liverpool friends," that the audience ceased their greetings. The Mersey city has certainly stamped the new work with its approval, and nothing but praise is heard concerning the whole of the production. As the wayward, persuasive, Dorothy Miss Neilson was fitted with a rôle which afforded every scope for the display of that lady's brilliant and versatile talents; Mr. Terry, with his Sir John Manners, made an ideal, daring lover; praise is well earned by Mr. J. Carter-Edwards for his fine portrait of the choleric father, Sir George Vernon; Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw did justice to Sir Malcolm Vernon; a particularly good Perkins, marked with discretion and well-studied action, came from Mr. Horace Hodges; a most amusing and carefully-handled Lady Vernon was submitted by Miss Claire Pauncefort; Miss Mary Mackenzie afforded satisfaction with her minor rôle of maid to Dorothy; and creditable work was done by Miss Miriam Lewes (Elizabeth Tudor) and Miss Lilias Waldegrave (Mary Stuart). It is unnecessary to mention the brilliancy of the mounting and dresses.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Mr. Popple, of Ippleton, paid his first visit to Liverpool this week, and found a cordial reception awaiting him. Things could hardly be otherwise where Mr. G. P. Huntley was concerned. Large audiences just revelled in the doings of the notable comedian, whose picture of the country visitor to London was generally looked upon as one of the best things he has given us. Miss Millie Legarde, who made a lovely La Bolero, received several demands for encore verses of her catchy songs, while much applause followed her smart acting; Mr. Basil S. Foster was the handsome Norman Popple; Mr. Charles M. Daly helped with the fun as Platt; Miss Nellie Hodson proved a most vivacious maid, Louise; Miss Eva Kelly did especially well in the character of Violet Brinton, singing and dancing most daintily; the two husbands, George Hennay and Henry Doring, were well presented by Mr. Sydney Young and Mr. James Stephenson respectively; the disconsolate wives, Mrs. Doring and Mrs. Hennay, found in Miss Kate Forster and Miss Ella Daincourt able exponents; Master W. F. Kottann was a lively messenger boy; and worthy support also came from Mr. C. Fitzsimon in the character of the Hon. Kerr Buretta, and Mr. Sydney Courtney as Lord Downe.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The ever-popular East Lynne has been played here this week by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company. Miss Julie Kennard did every credit to the rôle of Lady Isabel; Mr. Alfred Beaumont afforded a pleasing representation of Archibald Carlyle; the Francis Levison offered by Mr. Eric Mayne was well drawn; Mr. Alfred Tate looked and acted as a police constable, known as Bullock; the most was made of Lord Mountsevern by Mr. Spencer Goodwin; no fault was to be found with Mr. C. C. Grattan's Justice Hare; Mr. E. Massingham was an acceptable Richard Hare; and Miss Ethel Saville is deserving of recognition for her Barbara.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—The Harmony Four, with their vocal selections and humorous items, greatly amuse the audience here; Austin Rudd is a comedian of a high order, his humour and eccentricities cause roars of laughter; Les Bastiens supply a decidedly clever and daring acrobatic performance; the Seddons are really funny; G. W. Foster creates much laughter; Mephisto is an expert contortionist; Lola Patey is a pleasing comedienne; and Rose Waller is popular.

STAR THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The French Spy, from the able pen of Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson, has been a good attraction here this week. Mr. Fred Benton, who brought a capable company, held the part of Fritz, a capital representation of a German strong man; Mr. Richard Fulton was very successful as Captain Sommers; a powerful Count Romanoff was submitted by Mr. Max Coutts; in the title-rôle Miss Gertrude Evans acted with power; Miss A. Harrison-Tate was well placed as Olga; Miss Cissie Cleveland proved a lively Julie; Mr. L. Chaseby made a manly Lieut. Maxwell; and Mr. Lincoln Calthorpe was impressive as General Trepoff. The new scenery and effects were very appropriate.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—A return visit of Mr. George Testo Sante, with his stirring drama, The Life of a Showman, has been welcomed here. Mr. Sante again undertook, in his customary excellent style, the rôle of Brien Leader, and his trial of strength with two horses proved a most interesting feature in the circus scene. Miss Rosa West played sweetly as Lena Hartland; Mr. Logan Darra proved powerful as the villain, Hendrick Marais; Miss May Warden was graceful and effective as Lynette Leader; a satisfactory Sir Noel and also Stickers were supplied by Mr. E. S. Petley; Miss Amy McNeill played carefully as Agatha Winter; and a deal of comedy was provided by Mr. Frank Sante, Mr. Will Lindsay, Mr. Fred Vaughan, and Miss Grace Harlington.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Top here this week is Arthur Roberts, who pays a welcome return visit with Where's the Count? Hayman and Franklin, also in big type, cause great laughter with their sketch, A Matrimonial Agency; as comedy acrobats the Four Emilons give a particularly smart turn; the Davis and Gledhill Trio provide a sensational act with a cycle that is motor-paced; delightful music is provided by Diamond, an accomplished harpist; and Beatrice, soprano saxophonist; the juggling by B. Troba is neat and clever; Alma Gray shows to much advantage as a dancer; Cribb and Cribb are a pair of smart and funny comedians; the singing and dancing of Annie Laurie is cordially approved; and others in the list include John P. Dane, a lively comedian; and Mamie Iris, comedienne.

NEW PARTHENON. — Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—At the head of the bill here this week are Atlas, Vulcana, and the Sisters Atlas, all of whom go through a clever athletic display; Arthur Richards, comedian, has several taking songs; some popular ballads, sweetly rendered, come from Janet H. Reynolds; Edie Tennis and Gertie Laune have a neat vocal scena, Chapters from Life; and Renee Walon dances and sings tastefully.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. —Hand in Hand has been the dramatic sketch given here this week by the "Royal" stock company. Mr. Percy Boucher was full of humour as Billy Barton, the poetic greengrocer's assistant; Mr. Harry Tresham acted with care as Edgar Hartington; a villainous Herbert Hartington came from Mr. Sydney Grant; Mr. Cecil Ravenswood did justice to Ben Drummond; Mr. E. D. Allen handled the rôle of Jim Ward with care; Mr. Robert Wilton evoked much laughter as Policeman Foot; Miss Florence Palmer played sweetly as Grace Edmonson; and Miss Ravenswood was a dignified Elise Marchand.

PARK PALACE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—The original Hartfords, with their sensational equilibristic act, are foremost here this week; Pete and Juno, coloured comedy duo, give a smart turn with their songs, stories, and patter; some clever banjo playing is provided by Leon and Leon; continuous laughter follows the antics of Peter Bermingham, the Scotch tramp; Burns and Bentley are a pair of accomplished black and white speciality dancers; Rappo and Ella go through some acceptable work as equilibrists and dancers; and Minnie D'Aubyn, burlesque actress, also appears.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—The always popular Martin Conway, "Walk round Martin," heads the programme here this week with his latest songs; a gratifying reception is given to the Society Quartet for their high-class singing and graceful dancing; the Reays (lady and gentleman) provide a neat turn as athletic equilibrists; Carrington has a clever musical act; a lively comedienne is Edna Latonne; with a degree of unconcern that is pleasing to witness Friscarri goes through several clever juggling and hat manipulating feats; and J. S. James shows skill as a comedian, juggling bone soloist, and banjoist.

OLYMPIA, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—A capital draw here this week has been Turpin's Ride to York, presented by Fred Ginnett's company; Frank and Jen Latona, comedy musical couple, give a pleasing and much-appreciated turn; O. K. Sato, comedy juggler, gains great applause; Edith Courtney renders several ballads in pleasing style; a pair of particularly humorous comedians are O'Malley and Brown; Dot Hardy, as "the slavey" is funny; Menotti goes through a remarkable performance with a bicycle on a wire; Ornheus certainly shows himself to be a master of melody; and the Primrose Quartet of Vocalists sing in a most pleasing manner.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Wilmot.—Heading the bill here this week are the Brothers Ashley, who cause roars of laughter with their boxing sketch, Next, Please; the Lulaine Darrell trio of novelty gymnasts submit a graceful entertainment; Miss Pattie Bella has some catchy songs; the dancing and singing of Louie Leonard and Lazy Larry are appreciated; Pat Duddy is a comedian with humour; and the Three Royal Temples render several operatic selections.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery. —The dramatic form of entertainment here has caught on, and the "Royal" stock company is being much appreciated. This week the selection has been What Women Suffer, written by H. G. Brandon. Included in the cast are Messrs. Vincent A. Briscoe (Squire Norton), Frank S. Strickland (Herbert Standish), Albert Sember (John and Wilfred Coventry), H. G. Brandon (Obadiah Shakespeare), F. E. Wybert (Tod Potts), Miss Lena Pierpoint (Nance Meredith), and Miss Lilian Burns (Edith Coventry).

PICTON HALL.—A short season has begun here with Sydney Carter's new Century pictures, under the direction of Mr. Francis D. Sunderland. The bioscope has always been popular in Liverpool, and when here on several occasions, remained for many months at a time.

LONDONDERRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Hoggan-Armadale's company is here with David Garrick, The Vicar of Wakefield, and The Bells. In the first-named piece Mr. Hoggan-Armadale in the title-part was decidedly successful, and as Laura Bedford Miss Georgina Winter was very good indeed. Mr. Arthur Rose played Squire Overdon well, and Miss David Beattie was a fine Joshua Bedford. The minor parts were well filled.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards. —This popular place of amusement reopened its doors on Monday, when a performance of Faust, given by the United English Opera Company, was greatly enjoyed. Mr. F. S. Gilbert gave a capital rendering of the title-rôle, being in excellent voice; Miss Elsa May appeared with success in the character of Marguerite, and Mr. H. Davies made a good Valentine. The Mephistopheles of Mr. Kneale Campbell and the Siebel of Miss Doris Gilbert were worthy of notice. Maritana, Il Trovatore, and The Bohemian Girl were also in the week's programme.

LOWESTOFT. — MARINA. — Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—This week we are afforded the initial visit of Alfred Sutro's charming play The Walls of Jericho, which is admirably presented by Messrs. Dauncey and Leveaux's company. The rôle of Jack Frobisher is cleverly acted by Mr. Herbert Bunston, who gives a skilful and earnest reading for which he is thoroughly appreciated. Warm praise must also be meted out to Miss Florence Jackson for her careful rendering of the part of Lady Frobisher. Lady Lucy Derenham finds a charming and skilful exponent in Miss Molly Carton; and other ladies who add to the general success include the Misses Lydia Busch (Lady Westerby), Edith Cuthbert (Miss Mornington), Rita Millman (the Duchess of Skye), and Evelyn Maxwell (Lady Parchester). Mr. George A. Bradram gives a capital study as Hanky Bannister, and Mr. Cyril Baleim is equally well placed as the Marquis of Steventon. Mr. Sydney Hamilton is successful as Harry Dallas; and other parts are carefully treated.

HIPPODROME.—Mr. George Gilbert.—The star turn this week is Mendel, the blind pianist.

LYTHAM. — PIER THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Harrison.—Mr. Howard Cochrane this week is presenting The Marriage of Kitty here. Miss Aida Jenoure gives a capital performance as Kitty Silverton; Mr. Howard Cochran is good as Sir Reginald Belsize; and Mr. Cecil Welford is an excellent John Travers. Miss Betty Castle is good as Mme. de Semiano. The other parts are in capital hands. The play is preceded by His Lordship Intrudes, ably enacted by Miss Gladys Dare and Mr. Langford Reed.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatby. — A London Actress is the drama which is presented by Miss Emma Litchfield and company this week, and a capital reception is accorded them. Mr. S. Cleveland as Clive Crawford does good work; as Lieut. Kingstone, Mr. E. Derwent contributes a clever character study; Miss Emma Litchfield fills the rôle of Hilda Mannering admirably; Miss Maude Steele gains instant sympathy with her fine emotional acting as Phyliss Crawford; Mr. C. Vallender as Pat Maloney makes the most of this amusing part; Mr. G. H. Doyle as Moses portrays the character cleverly; Miss Maud Saxby is successful as Nellie; whilst Miss Nellie Fern as Biddy Malpney and Miss Madge Clare as Mrs. Skinner are amusing.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The following are here this week: The Brown and Kelly Combination in the amusing sketch The Butler Knows; Frank Seeley, a comedian, on a return visit; Otto and Olga in a clever burlesque musical act; Tony Iveson, rag merchant, at the piano; Marco, a clever boy conjuror; the Two Daniels, negro comedians; Miss Emily Blanche, Dutch dancer; and the Hippograph.

MANCHESTER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra. — Mr. Lewis Waller, Miss Evelyn Millard, and company provide a big attraction here this week, and on Monday night played in fine style before a good house, that romantic comedy, Brigadier Gerard. Too much praise cannot be accorded Mr. Lewis Waller for his spirited rendering of the title-rôle; Miss Evelyn Millard makes the most of her opportunities, and acts charmingly as the Comtesse de Roquelaire; and Miss Helen Leyton is a pleasing Agnes. Mr. Edward O'Neill is excellent as Talleyrand; Mr. A. E. George as the Emperor Napoleon is good; and others who do well are Messrs. Shiel Barry, Owen Roughwood, Frank Wolffe, J. H. Irvine, Eric Scott, Frank Cochrane, and Herbert Vyvyan. The scenery is excellent. Henry Hamilton's monologue, Fortune's Fool, in which Mr. Lewis Waller scores a distinct success, precedes. Monsieur Beaucaire is also included in the week's bill.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—The first visit of A Girl on the Stage to Manchester was welcomed by a good house here on Monday, when Mr. George Edwardes's company gave an excellent performance of the piece. Miss Queenie Leighton as Molly Montrose sang and acted with considerable vivacity and cleverness; Mr. J. Robert Hale was lively, competent, and resourceful as Lord Congress; Mr. Arthur Longley scored his usual success as Algernon Southdown; an oddly amusing bit of characterisation was the Ethelbert of Mr. Nelson Keys; an easy and successful impersonation of Shingle was given by Mr. John Humphreys; and other adequate performances were those of Mr. Colin Coop, Mr. Cranston Neville, and Mr. Edwin Rutland. Among the ladies, Miss Fanny Dango and Miss Valli Valli distinguished themselves greatly as the Ladies Isabel and Dorothy Congress. The great treat of the evening, however, was Mr. Lennox Pawle's depiction of the Earl of Sanctobury—a very funny impersonation, crammed with gag so comic and spontaneous that the stage enjoyed it at times quite as much as did the audience. Many vocal auxiliaries are employed, and the singing and dresses are elaborate and highly effective.

GAIETY THEATRE. — Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Sunday is presented here this week by Mr. Louis Calvert's company, with Miss Emélie Polini in the title-rôle. The performance is most enjoyable, Miss Polini portraying the part of Sunday—the pet of "the Boys"—in a charming and pathetic manner; while Mr. William Lockhart as Towzer, Mr. Sydney Rennef as Davy, Mr. T. Norman Walter as Lively, and Mr. Arthur Vezin as Jacky, all add vigour and realism to the situation. Mr. Leonard Pagden gives a fine rendering of Colonel Brinthorpe; Mr. G. Wallace Johnston acts well as the despicable Arthur Brinthorpe; and all the remaining parts are cleverly played.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company has transferred their attraction, For Life and After, from the Grand Junction Theatre to this popular house.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—An attractive programme here this week includes Leoni Clarke, with his wonderful troupe of trained animals and birds; a company of twelve artists in a musical mélange, The Shoeblack's Dream; Walter Munroe, an excellent comedian, in his latest successes; Arthur Stacey, clever comedian and dancer; Sandy and Carl, comedians and eccentric boxers; Maud Kaye, a smart coon vocalist and dancer; the Rushforths, in illustrated songs; King Leo, a capital ventriloquist; Blarney and Kennard, in a smart comedy act, including the waltzing dog; and some entertaining Bioscope pictures.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan; Manager, Mr. Gus. Flanagan.—A return visit of Mr. Junius Booth and company in Monte Cristo is to be noted here this week. A fine dramatic and picturesque performance is given, Mr. Booth's admirable work in the varied title-rôle being very ably supplemented by the entire cast. Particularly good are Mr. E. Howard Templeton as Nortier; Mr. Walter Huron as Villeforte; Mr. J. W. Braithwaite as Caderousse; and Miss Clare Elstob as Mercedes. Mr. H. G. Griffin has the tour in hand, and the piece is admirably staged and costumed.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—An excellent drama, Her Lost Self, is presented here this week by Miss Frances Delaval and company. Miss Frances Delaval is especially successful in her portrayal of the central character, Philippine Marcel (otherwise Sarah Cohen); while in heroic parts Mr. Cecil Gray and Miss Clare O'Sullivan are conspicuous for their excellent work. Among others, Miss Min Johnson as little Dorothy Daventry is distinctly clever; and a considerable success is scored by Tiny Carrie Johnson, described as the smallest character comedienne in the world, and certainly worthy of being called one of the cleverest. The whole play is interesting and well put on.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Berry.—Mr. Bert Coote's company is here this week in their well-known successful drama The Fatal Wedding. Mr. Wilson Howard gives an accomplished and sympathetic rendering of Howard Wilson; Mr. Guy Hastings is subtle and effective as Curtis, the man about town; Miss Katherine Clarke figures with quiet charm as Wilson's wife; and Miss Leah Marlborough plays Cora Williams, the adventuress, with skill and point. The minor parts are in able hands, and the general staging is all that could be desired; while a long list of entertaining specialities is introduced in the third act.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The big turn here this week is provided by Willie Edouin, whose monologue of character studies is really excellent and enjoyable. A wonderful illusion is Buddha's Blackboard, upon which answers to questions are written in chalk by an unseen hand, in the very moment of asking, and by no form of trickery conceivable to the audience. Besides these, Lottie Collins, the favourite comedienne, sings several songs in good style; Fred Lincoln, comedian, makes a hit; the Aquamarinoffs, a Russian troupe of singers and dancers, give a brisk and clever performance; the xylophone playing of Josef Adelman is choice and artistic; Alice Blandford, the New Zealand nightingale, sings ballads sweetly; the Grisse Brothers present their smart novelty act, On the Tiles; and some nice vocalism is offered by the Cambrian Trio of ladies. The Bioscope pictures are, as usual, interesting.

PALACE. — General-Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Lew Lake and company are to the front here this week in that laughable absurdity, The Bloomsbury Burglars, and Sam Mayo, the immobile one, amuses with his quaint songs and style; the Borgetti Troupe go through a marvellous head-acrobatic performance; Talberto and Douglas are clever and amusing eccentric acrobats; and Thos. E. Finglas is a capital coon delineator; Conan and Doyle are exceptionally neat dancers; Evelyn Talor, comedienne, sings a catchy song nicely; Harry Rogerson, the tired one, presents an excellent and clever burlesque turn; Frank Harwood is a good actor-vocalist; and the Gregson Trio amuse with a sketch, The Dummy. The Palace pictures are good.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—A strange human contrast is the attraction here this week, that of Henri Cot, the French giant, height 8ft. 7in., and Prince Colibri, the Russian midget, height 1ft. 11in. Herbert Darnley's company of comedians are seen in a screaming domestic absurdity, Moving In, and create no end of laughter. Carlton manipulates cards in his usual surprising manner, and amuses with his quaint talk; the Olive Trio are refined singers and neat dancers; and Mabel Bardini and company are seen to great advantage in a theatrical episode, Nell of the Halls. Prof. Therese is a clever comedy hypnotist; the "Coons' Revelry" is presented by Barnard's Mannikins in a very life-like manner; and O'Gust, second to none as a mimic, is wonderfully clever and entertaining. Two vocal items are contributed by the Choir, and "Our Ice Supply" is shown on the Bioscope.

TIVOLI. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Mlle. Sylvia Du Barry, the eminent South American vocalist, is an excellent singer, and meets with a good reception; Keith and Kent as the waiter and the barmaid, as usual, keep the house in roars of laughter with their smart business; and Helen Charles is a pleasing drawing-room entertainer. George Hall, siffleur and vocalist, contributes a good turn; the Ashers (Agnes and Mike) appear in a neat speciality act. Other enjoyable turns are those of De Vere and Kenwick, the American comedy duo; Edith St. Clair, burlesque artist; Katie Weston, comedian; and Nat Travers, coster comedian. Raymond's Vivagraph pictures complete.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—A good programme here this week is headed by the Villions in an incomparable acrobatic cycling act; Flo Hilton, male impersonator, makes a big hit; the Elgars render operatic selections in fine style; Mary M. Glenn, Scotch vocalist, is a good singer; Yorkshire Tom is an excellent mimic; Alfonzo, the Tranka wonder, is a clever footjuggler; and Charles Somers is a quaint, quiet comedian. The Sisters Belmont, dancers, did not appear on the occasions of our visit, two smart knockabouts acting as deputy, and an extra turn was contributed by Hetty Hall, a pleasing instrumentalist. "A Sailor's Story" is depicted on the Bioscope.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead. — Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery are appearing here in their amusing skit, The Would-be Actors, and are very successful; Carl Mysto, the handcuff King, mystifies with his clever box trick; and the Gladenbecks give a smart acrobatic display; Sam Shipley, comedian, is a great favourite; Laura Lorne and Nell Rene are good in their Lancashire singing sketch, Capital and Labour; and other capital turns are given by the Gretnas, illusionists; Beattie Worth, comedienne; Copeland and Son, dancers, and an unnamed artist, sifflеur and negro comedian, who acted as deputy for the Bros. Hampson. The Bioscope pictures, "A Prodigal Son," is very interesting.

HIPPODROME, HULME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Cumberlands in their highly finished acrobatic cycling feats are at the head of the bill here this week, and are most successful; the Seltina Troupe are smart tumblers, with plenty of humour; Permane's bears are well trained, and are amusing; and Fredrica's toy terriers and cake-walking pony Dot provide a very entertaining item; Percy Curry is a comedian who hits the mark; May Lilian Levey is an old Manchester favourite; and Jack Truman, tenor, is greatly appreciated; Montague Biggs, female impersonator; and the Bros. Levett, champion vaulters, also contribute good items. The "Dog Detective" depicted on the Bioscope is very good.

RUSHOLME PAVILION. — Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles North. — A capital programme is provided here this week, and includes the following capable artists: Tony and Terry, humorous duettists and dancers; Bert Byrne, comedian; Charles North, baritone; Albert Ventor, comedian; Fenton Cross, entertainer; Sybil Lester, soprano; and Hetty Wilson, pianist.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Exclusive-Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austin Leigh.—Messrs. E. Lockwood and R. Crossman's company opened here on Monday for three nights with Sergeant Brue. Mr. E. Russell gave full rein to his humour in the laughable title-character; Mr. T. A. Shale as Crookie Scrubbs presented an intensely amusing picture of an ex-gaol bird; Miss Lily Lingard was a capital Lady Bickenall; and Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy submitted an acceptable interpretation of the part of Michael Brue. Mr. Clarence Napier was distinctly good as Inspector Gorringe; Miss Kitty Dale made herself highly popular as Aurora; and Mr. Henry Chichester furnished an admirable study of the magistrate. Mr. Popple came on Thursday.

THE HIPPODROME.—Sole Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree. — Alec Hurley, one of the leading delineators of coster life, heads the programme this week, and has appeared with great success in several typical songs and in his successful scena—in which he is assisted by numerous auxiliaries—The Costers' Friendly Lead. Amy Russell, an old Margate favourite, has been receiving a cordial welcome; and the Sisters Terry, comediennes and baby mimics; and Milner Verren, tenor, have been greatly appreciated. The Athos troupe of acrobats and ball manipulators are smart; Frank Crouch, comedian; and A. B. Houghton, trick pianist, are both good; and the Hippodrome pictures are of more than usual interest.

HALL-BY-THE-SEA.—Sole Proprietor, "Lord" George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. Evans.—This week's programme is again an entertaining one, and is contributed to by Florence Carlow, comedienne and dancer; Zasma, society gymnast; the Redferns (Rubie and Elsie), banjoists, vocalists, and dancers; Luigo's Serenaders, in their nautical scena, Ashore in Venice; Mlle. Florizell, the aerial performer, and a lady of great flexibility; Reuben Hill, character comedian and vocalist; and Bosanquet, who introduces a "singing" violin and his Bosanquephone, an instrument that produces a close imitation of the human voice.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Smithson.—Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty's company is appearing here this week in An Unwedded Wife. Miss Van Praagh presents an excellent study of the part of Marion, and Miss Violet Wilson is successful in her rendering of Elsie Langham; Mr. J. Edward Whitty and Mr. Reginald Payne as Frank Armstrong fill their parts admirably; and Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes is effective as Philip Blackstone. Comedy is well provided by Mr. Fred C. Imbert as Napoleon Boomer; Mr. Harry Townley as Pimple; and Miss Amy Coralli as Crumpet.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—A first-class variety programme is provided here this week. The principals include Mr. J. K. Reynolds and company in sketches entitled Conscience and His Country's Curse; The Bradleys, novelty trick cyclists; Miss Florence Inman, vocalist and dancer; Mint and Mart, comedians; Charles Bu Val, and a good display of animated pictures.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE. —Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—A Beautiful Criminal, presented by Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred. C. Somerfield's company, is the attraction here this week. Mr. Fred C. Somerfield plays with great emotional power and dramatic force as Will Maynard; the dual rôle of Cyril and Geoffrey Langdon is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Roy Fortescue; Mr. Fred Mace is a capital Harold Hingston; while Mr. T. G. Vane is satisfactory in the part of the dude, Leonard Vimbart. Miss Marie Dagmar, in the title-rôle, displays rare histrionic abilities, and scores heavily; Miss Amy Naughton does well as Florelle de Vere. Mr. Chas. E. Warne (Peter) and Miss Mollie Monaghan (Janet) are an amusing country couple.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson, supported by a capable company, is appearing in the military drama Revenge here this week, of which play he is the author. Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson is a decided success as Prince Orloff; and Mr. Gerald Ord does well as the King. As the Queen, Miss Violet Carlyle leaves little to be desired; and Mr. Lancelot Usher is excellent as Captain Carr. Miss Amy Ellam as Draga Vanessa has a lot of work to do, which she gets through with commendable exactness; Mr. John Malden as Corporal Kruse, and Mr. Cyril Maitland as Karl, also impersonate their parts exceedingly well.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—Mr. Fred Paul's company, in the musical comedy The Lord of the Last, is here this week. The book and lyrics are by Fred Ellis, and the music by Percival Knight and Denham Harrison. There are many very pretty and taking numbers, most of which are loudly encored. There is also some extremely clever dancing. Mr. Paul must be highly complimented on the all-round excellence of the company. A good deal of the success of the piece is due to the capital low comedy of Mr. H. C. Morton as Sir Hy. Ackerman, the Lord of the Last. Mrs. Jones Jones is played by Miss Louie Tinsley in which rôle she is a decided success. The rest of the company fully maintain the standard of excellence.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. Rembges. The excellent quality of the programme is attracting large audiences here this week. Tom Costello creates roars of laughter in his skit, Women Suffragettes; he also presents his "Tale of the Ten-pound Note," and he is very successful in his dramatic idyll, The Old Clown. Arthur Lennard also has a flattering reception; and the Deer Family give a natural display of Indians of the Past. Ernest Montefiore and company are exceedingly good in their sketch, The Little Colonel; and Stephens and Reunior, comedians, do well. The others turns are provided by Lizzie Fletcher, Letine, and the bioscope.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Alf Graham.—Harry Weldon, a droll comedian of first-rate ability, is the star turn here this week, and he makes a highly favourable impression. The Marie Santoi company, in the musical sketch, A Night in Japan, is also well received. The Gondolier Glee Singers provide some excellent singing and Fancourt and Rubie cause roars of laughter in their comedy act, Out of Barracks. The other turns are provided by Haydee's Marionettes; Sadie Simpson, comedienne; and Lavern, in his sensational wire act.

MORECAMBE. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General-Manager, Mr. C. M. Julian.—Mr. F. Mouillot's company has presented The Greek Slave and The Geisha this week. Miss Lydia Bland sang and acted with great charm as Maia and O Mimosa San; and Mr. Edward Kipling created much amusement as Heliodorous and Wan Hi, characters which suited him admirably. Mr. J. H. Booth was admirable as Pomponious in the first piece, and Imari in the second. Messrs. Wilfred Heath, F. Pollard, Miss Edith Adeson, and Miss E. Kipling played with spirit the characters entrusted to them. The musical arrangements have been in the hands of Chevalier Legrand.

WINTER GARDENS.—Manager, Mr. Tom Atkinson. —The Andos Troupe of Japs do really clever things in the acrobatic line; the Arden and Abel sketch company, in Three of a Kind, work smartly; Martinette and Grossi, musical surprises, and Prütt and Lizette, illusionary extravaganza, supply meritorious turns. Dusty Rhodes has a neat and effective style, and his patter is good; MacBunker's novel mountebank show has taken well; the gymnastic display of the Jansons is neat and clever; and the acrobatic work of Hector and Paulus is extremely amusing; and clever mimicry is introduced by Fred Horsfall; and Miss Bessie Blackburn has a pleasing contralto voice.

ALHAMBRA PALACE.—Manager, Alderman John Gardner.—The Battle of the Belles, as presented by Moule and Nicholl's company, is a most amusing sketch, and is divided into three hilarious scenes; Paul Vandy occupies a prominent place in the programme, which is deserved by his excellent juggling; the Saxonias are experts with the saxophones and dulcimers; Mme. Collard's boarhounds have been carefully trained is self-evident; and the Robinson Crusoe burlesque is capital. The Harrison Brothers are extremely funny comedians and excellent dancers. A good operatic and descriptive vocalist is Harry Claff; and little Dolly Moore is a clever male impersonator. The foot-balancing of Carlo Bianchi and Loundoun Cameron's conjuring work are both first class.

CENTRAL PIER.—Manager, Mr. E. Hill.—On Wednesday evening Mr. Hill was given a benefit, and a big bill was presented to a crowded audience. During the week his programme has included the Three Schaffers, in their effective gladiatorial show; Zeta Gray and company, in a most amusing musical sketch, A Lancashire Lass; the Three Sisters Hayden, neat and clever comediennes; Hector and Sultan, who are excellent in their comedy acrobatic act; while Ray and Calden's Peculiarities is a clever trifle neatly done. Mr. Hesketh Meade and Miss Felicia Sutton are the vocalists retained this week.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Mr. P. Howard Sturgess' company is appearing this week in A Queen of Villainy. The title-rôle is ably sustained by Miss Edith Blande; Rose Delmayne is prettily portrayed by Miss Cecilia Desmond; the Stephen Faucit of Mr. Edward Heanley is sufficiently villainous; and Mr. Alfred Calver does well as Alec. Really good comedy work is contributed by Miss Jessie Cramonde and Mr. P. Howard Sturgess.

NELSON.—NEW GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. George E. Mudd.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's No. 1 company is here with Three Little Maids. Three winsome and engaging "little maids" are Misses Cora Lingard, Daisy Silverton, and Eva Weigh; Miss Alice Rene is clever as Lady St. Mallory; Mr. Victor Kerr is to be commended for his representation of Lord Cheyne; Mr. Walter Freear is extremely diverting in the character of Cupid; Miss Laura Wright is lively and comical as Gretchen; Mr. Guy Williams is seen to advantage as Brian Molyneaux; Mr. Eric Barrington in the part of M. de L'Orme, of the French Embassy, commands admiration for his singing; Miss Kitty Whiteley makes a capital Miss Price; and Mr. Chas. Leverton does justice to the part of Rev. Mr. Branscombe.

NEW BRIGHTON.—TOWER THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Prominent among the company here this week are Mr. Ford Williams, Welsh basso; Miss Blanche Jerard, in the pathetic scena, My Pal and I; Miss Bertha Duckett, juvenile comedienne and dancer; the Silvanes, in their original comedy act; and an excellent selection of new pictures by the Theatrescope. Amongst the side-shows, we find Mons. Beauté, who is attempting a 31 days' fast, which commenced on the 29th ult.

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. F. C. Sutcliffe.—The new musical comedy, The Sweet Girl, made its first appearance in the city on Monday evening, securing a flattering reception from a house filled from ceiling to floor. Miss Claudia Lassell as Lola was extremely effective. Her rendering of the chief song show good training. Harris and Worth's songs are well received; and the Bioscope is greatly admired.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's La Poupée company opened here on Monday. Miss Mysie Devine is charming as Alesia; Mr. Arthur Cozens is very good as Launcelot; Father Maxime is well represented by Mr. Walter Balfour; and Mr. Arthur Dennis makes a capable Loremois; Miss Edith Hunter as Madame Hilarius and Miss Doris Dickens as Henri supply agreeable impersonations; Mr. Harry Brayne successfully exercises his comic power as Hilarius. Mr. H. H. Shaw ably directs the orchestra and chorus.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson.—Cliff Ryland, comedian, vocalist, and story-teller, is well received; Les Uniques give a picturesque display on the electric ladder, trapeze, and rings; the Sages are comical burlesque artists and dancers; and Maudie Ford supplies a song and dance with success; the Fimans give an amusing skit, The Fire Station; and Fred Land is popular with his comic effusions. The Palace Pictures are still "going strong," and the Brothers Corcoran, described as musical shipbuilders, give an instrumental performance which is highly applauded.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—The boards here this week are occupied by Mr. Geoffrey Fulton's company with The Poor Must Live. Mr. Paul E. Draco is good as the Earl of Marswood; Mr. H. Macney is clever as Donald (his son); Mr. Henry Burnard is seen to advantage in the character of Clifton Manville; Mr. Arthur Trail is a capable Sam Sully; Mr. Frank Dale makes the most of Dick Sully; and Mr. Shaun Flenville gives a good performance as Hooker Holdsnitch. Miss Violet Hammersley submits a satisfactory portrayal of Dorothy Murdock; Miss Marguerite Thorne makes a hit as Sal Darling; Miss Dora Hilstrom is appreciated as Moya Darling; and Miss S. Carmichael as Olga D'Enycourt is well received.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Miss Rose Elliott, the popular comedienne, is making a hit here, and Messrs. Ben Elton and Tom Elma (triple bar comedians) are loudly applauded. Miss Nancy Renshaw, negro comedian and bone soloist, is smart; Mr. Gus Arthur and company in their song scena Goodbye, are greatly relished; the Cavaloths present an enjoyable musical act; Mr. Frank Newbury, whistling comedian, is clever; and the Bio-Photoscope is, as usual, successful.

NORTHWICH.—PIERROT PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Sidney Dooley. — "The Koffee Koloured Komedy Koncert Komedians" are responsible for the programme this week, and their dancing and singing have been of a high order. Mr. Alf Clegg in his acrobatic dance, Messrs. Charlie Bayman, Blanco White, and Glanmore Jones all meet with hearty receptions.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—Mr. Frank Ayrton's No. 1 company in The Power of Gold is here this week. Mr. Charles Whitlock's Hadgi Zambra is a masterly portrayal: Mr. Richard Oliver displays histrionic power as Paul Judson; Mr. Albert Sefton plays the scapegrace, Maud Harley, with skill; and Mr. Frank Ayrton as Sammy Smudge is the life and soul of the piece, being ably assisted by Miss Madge Seymour as Norah Donnelly; Miss Georgina V. France powerfully and pathetically portrays Meg Judson; Miss Lilla Wilde is a clever Lady Brandon; and Paddy Blake, street arab, is naturally impersonated by Little Prudence.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company is here this week with An Abandoned Woman, and is highly successful. Miss Georgiette Thierry as Ninon was excellent, and Mr. Bernard J. Leill was successful as Phillipe; Mr. Wolstein Foster was good as Capt. Herbert Seaton and Mr. H. Evans Gibbons was amusing as Paddy Boyle; Mr. Charles Cresswell did well as Sir Marmaduke Seaton, and Mr. Frederick Wright as Robert Saunders, Mr. A. Abbott as Pierre, Mr. Will Glase as Sammy Sharpe, Mr. Harrison Forbes as Jules, Mr. Pat Quinn as Sergt. Stubbes, Miss Lily Beverley as Sally Sloper, Miss Frances Maddocks as Maddock, Miss Lily Addison as La Celeste, and Miss May Richardson as Eleanor Dean were praiseworthy in their respective parts. The scenery and dresses were very effective.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt.; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—Heading the bill here are the Ten Loonies, excellent musicians, who cause uproarious laughter by their funny antics; Billy Farrell's coon songs and dances, humour, and mimicry obtain much applause; Downes and Langford, comedians and dancers, have a good reception; and Jack Lane, the Yorkshire Rustic, is much appreciated; the Arlyo combination in their gymnastic pot-pourri, with their performing dogs and trick bicycle riding, give a unique performance; and the Kato's automatic theatre is a very pleasing item; Rosalie Jabobi is a charming comedienne; and Will Poluski, comedian, is successful. The Hippo Bio is a feature of attraction.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Robt. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The well-known musical comedy, The New Barmaid, is presented this week by Mr. C. Edwardes' company. Mr. Alexander Loftus as William White is quite at home, and creates plenty of fun, in which he is ably assisted by Mr. Charles Adeson, whose well-known abilities are brought generously into use in the realisation of Bertie White. Miss Violet Osmund makes an excellent Dora Heather, and works very hard for the success of the piece, as also does Miss Maude Nichols as Brenda Louth. A very charming little lady is Miss Amy Preston, and in the rôle of the new barmaid makes lots of friends. Combining with the work of stage-manager the part of Captain Lovebury, Mr. Leslie Austin secures a notable success, his singing being very attractive and his acting satisfactory; Mr. James Grant impersonates the irascible colonel in good style, and Mr. W. E. Chewd is to be congratulated upon his efforts as Bonsor. Miss Winifred Preston represents Lady Moulton in a judicious manner, and the volatile Gussie finds a suitable exponent in Miss Emily Preston. All the other parts are in competent hands, and the production is staged and mounted in a highly commendable manner.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Chas. P. Cooke.—The successful and interesting drama, The Spider and the Fly, is presented by Messrs. Ernest Carpenter and Sidney Cooper's company, and is attracting large houses. Mr. Stanley S. Gordon brings the result of experience to bear in the impersonation of Cyril Girdlestone, and as the crafty half-brother, Mr. Ellis J. Preston makes every use of his numerous opportunities. Mr. H. C. Lanceley has a congenial rôle as the village pastor, and Mr. Frederick Ross misses no points in the character of David Strong. Mr. Fred Terriss and Mr. Charles A. Preece are admirably suited in the parts of the Bros. Roe, and their broad comedy acting is excellent. Miss Nina Vaughton as Edith McAllister and Miss Amy Venimore as Stella Gray deserve every commendation, as also does Miss Lucy Murray as Molly Blake. Miss Nellie Burgess and Miss Kate Parker are satisfactory fisher girls, and Miss Marjorie May is well suited in the rôle of Flipps, a mudlark. Miss Ada Palmer, and Messrs. G. H. Thomas and Robert Castle complete the cast.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edgar O. Waller.—For yet another week the animated pictures, which have been so great a success, remain here, and are still attracting satisfied audiences.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—Once more George Robey is here, and once more is realised the enormous popularity of this clever comedian, large houses nightly testifying in no uncertain manner their appreciation of his efforts. Casey Court, produced by 30 midgets, is the second attraction of the programme, and its broad humour appeals to a large section of every audience. Miss Ethel Haydon is indeed a delightful vocalist, and is so pleasing and attractive in manner that she is always sure of a hearty reception. Billy Hobbs, a coon singer and dancer of great merit, secures unqualified approval; and Nipper Lupino Lane gives promise of securing a place amongst the first flight of comedians. Daisy O'Malley makes a decidedly favourable impression, and Charles Pastor causes much mirth by his eccentric singing. Fox and Melville sing to an accompaniment of lantern pictures, and the animal impersonations of the Lupino Brothers are excellent. The programme is completed by Peppo's monkeys, which give a pretty and interesting performance.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Prince of Wales Theatre and Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bufan.—The first three nights this week the stage was occupied by Mr. G. H Snazelle's company in the highly amusing comedy The New Clown, which has proved successful in drawing good houses. Mr. G. H. Snazelle gives a capital rendering of Mr. Dixon; Mr. P. R. Goodyear works hard as Lord Cyril Garston; as Captain Jack Trent Mr. Chas. Hanbury does well; Mr. A. G. Brown appears to advantage as Pennyquick; Miss Helena Millias makes a pleasing Rosie Platt; and a cleverly trained donkey, Ping Pong, greatly enhances the fun of the piece. For Thursday and Friday The Lights of London was the attraction.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—A revival of the late Wilson Barrett's play Claudian, has proved successful here this week. Mr. William Maclaren, in the title-rôle, gives a powerful rendering of the part; and Miss Lily C. Bandmann as Almida assists him in an admirable manner, both artists having to respond to repeated calls; Mr. F. Owen Chambers is excellent as Thariogalus, as is Mr. Chal J. Chaloner as Belos; Mr. Edmund Grogan makes a capital Theorus; and Mr. S. Briscoe Farbridge is good as the Holy Clement. Mr. Weston Hubbard scores as Alcares, as does Mr. Cecil Gerrard as Rhamantes. Mr. Douglas Murray and Mr. H. Hargreaves are Losimus and Volpas respectively. Miss Rose Webster makes a capital Serena; and little Geraldine Meredith is excellent as Carenos. Miss Ruth Garth appears as Edesse, Miss Lena Oswald as Galene, and Miss Nellie C. Bilbe as Hera. Miss Violet Barclay is Clias, with solo; and Miss Amy Hardcastle is the principal dancer.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—On Monday night Mr. Nevill Lynn's play, entitled Geoffrey Stirling, Banker and Thief, adapted from the novel by Mrs. De Courcy Laffan, was held here. Mr. Henry Doughty achieved success in the title-part, gaining several calls. He was ably assisted by Miss Vera Leslie as Hester Devenant, and a strong company, including Mr. Kenneth Brampton as Ralph, Mr. Ernest Percy as the Rev. Cuthbert Dene, Mr. Moncton Hoffe (John Devenant), Miss Maud E. Stoner (Hilda Devenant), Miss Margaret Fareleigh (Pierre); among others being Misses Dorcas Corbie and Miss Beryl Graham. The mounting and costumes were much admired.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—George Bastow is appearing here as "Farmer Giles," and he is highly appreciated. The Royal Tokio Troupe give an astonishing performance, including balancing, top-spinning, and walking the slanting rope; J. P. Ling is as popular as ever in a mimetic monologue; and the Bros. De Wynne are good athletes. Barney Vox gives a capital ventriloquial performance; and Les Rubens, entertainers, contribute some excellent duets. May Marton is a dainty comedienne; and Oliver Conroy is a favourite comedian. The Royal Dottoscope concludes the programme with amusing pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—The Leonards head the bill in an entertainment of comedy, vocalism, and dancing; George M. Schilling describes in an interesting manner his walk round the world; Pollo Jerome is a smart trapeze artist; and the Sisters Pine have an excellent sketch. Ida Brophy is a charming soubrette; Bert Bowden is a quaint comedian; and the Sisters Bartholomew are smart singers and dancers. The Dottoscope concludes the programme successfully.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Darrill.—Mr. Edward Marris's company is here with The Dandy Doctor. Mr. Edward Marris enacts the part of Melchisadeck Brown with great artistic skill, and causes considerable laughter; Mr. Ion Maxwell is especially good as Arthur Vandyke; Mr. Leslie Martin makes a capital Bertie Bolingbroke; and Mr. Herbert Pearce is good as Col. Pendred. Mr. John Birtles is highly successful as P.C. Quick; Miss Elfie Vincent is a dainty and delightful Ivy Pendred; Miss Dolly Payne is admirable as Henson; Miss Rosie Chandler dances well as Marie Burton; Miss Vandyke and Miss Lorraine find capable exponents in Miss Ethel Dunker and Miss Bell Hamilton; and Miss Florence Smithers scores by her clever impersonation of Jane. Specialities are given by the Dandy Belles, the Dutch Girls, and the Yeoman Male Voice Quartette.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Life's Sweetest Sins is being presented here this week by Mr. T. Arthur Jones and company. A capital and realistic embodiment of Captain Harold Marston is given by Mr. Jones; Miss Marie Daventry's histrionic abilities in the part of Doreen Rivers are warmly applauded; Mr. Oswald Douglas as Doctor Colbrooke furnishes an excellent portrayal, the doctor's confederates being ably impersonated by Mr. Robert Sawin as Kimberley Coutts and Mr. Clem Horlock as Rev. Edward Grey. Mr. Ernest Dare enacts Ernie Wodstone in an intelligent manner; the Fay Colebrooke of Miss Mary Ainslie is worthy of commendation; and humorous impersonations are submitted by Miss Elsie Walton as Bess Grayson, Mr. Edward Morgan as Bob Tanner, and Mr. Bertram Lee as Martin.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—For the opening week at this place of entertainment the management has secured an admirable company, including Dan T. Roberts' Royal Troupe of national, characteristic, and continental dancers; Daisy Turner, serio and dancer; Aldro Lukos, in swinging perch act and tumbling antics; J. A. Cassels, Scotch humorist; J. H. Bowman, dancing expert; Katie More, serio; J. H. McCann, roller skate dancer; and Panlo Bros., comedy acrobats.

PENZANCE.—ST. JOHN'S HALL.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's Chinese Honeymoon company appeared here on Monday night, and the delightful musical comedy, paying its third visit, drew a large and warmly appreciative audience. Brightly staged, beautifully costumed, and with a chorus much above the average, under the conductorship of Mr. E. H. Bamberger, the merry play went with delightful verve. Miss Kitty Clayton as the irrepressible Fi-Fi scored all along the line, and had to respond to numerous encores; Miss Florence Wilton, in her original character as Mrs. Pineapple, sang, danced, and acted with a full enjoyment of her rôle. Mr. James Wilson was a sufficiently dignified Emperor; Mr. Louis Ashmead as Chippie Chop made the best use of his opportunities; and the same may be said of Mr. Edwyn Sykes as Hi Lung; Mr. C. F. Howard as Tom Hatherton possesses a fine voice, and won a deserved encore in his song in the second act; Miss May Jelpke presented a most piquant Soo-Soo, her sweet singing and portrayal of the little princess winning golden opinions. Miss Alma Bolton as the official mother-in-law looked and comforted herself as that terror-striking lady in a highly forcible and humorous manner; Miss Frances Olgar and Miss Louie Love, with Miss Dulcie Greatwich and Miss Sybil Ross as maids-of-honour and bridesmaids (ubiquitous and embarrassing), played with great success in the many scenes that produced humorous trouble for the much-tried Mr. Pineapple, a character that Mr. Lindsay Harman seemed to revel in.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge. — Messrs. Chas. H. Phelps and Harry Tilbury's company is here this week in the comedy drama, The Blind Foundling, by the actor-manager, Mr. Chas. H. Phelps. Mr. Phelps undertakes the conspicuous rôle of Gerald Dalton, to which he does full justice; Mr. Alfred G. Fry is forceful in the adventurous part of Mark Redman; Mr. Frank Harvey and Mr. Bernard Webb are suitably placed as Parson Ray and Jasper Waterford respectively; Mr. Harry Tilbury's amusing impersonation of Dick Dobbins is much appreciated; Miss Arline T. Grouge makes an admirable gipsy boy in Jaikes Romono; Miss Amy Dalby is sweetly sympathetic as Viola Waterford; Miss Millie Doris's lively impersonation of Winnie Dobbins is heartily applauded; Miss Mabel Hall undertakes the rôle of Fairy, the blind foundling, and her successful portrayal meets with hearty approbation; Miss Belle Tilbury is seen to considerable advantage in her strong impersonation of Isabel.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Mr. Geo. Edwardes' company in The Little Michus made its appearance here on Monday. Mr. George Graves in his part of General Des Ifs is responsible for hearty laughter; Mr. Jack Cannot is admirably suited to the part of Bagnolet; Mr. George Miller as Pierre Michu is an ideal shopkeeper; Mr. Leonard Mackay as Aristide Vert has a splendid baritone; and Mr. W. Talleur Andrews as Gaston Rigaud, captain, uses a magnificent tenor to advantage. Misses Iris Hoey and Thelma Raye's delightfully graceful dancing and deportment are greatly appreciated; Miss Florence Parfrey as Madame Michu creates plenty of amusement; Miss Vivien Talleur does a finished pas seul in the second act. The piece is mounted in the lavish style characteristic of all Mr. Geo. Edwardes' productions.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—The Mockery of Marriage is here. Mr. Tommy Gough as Toby Wright does full justice to the part; Mr. Alfred Brandon as Dick Kenyon gives a highly creditable performance; and a similar compliment must be paid to Mr. W. A. Mackersey for his representation of Seth Pearce. Other hard-working members of the company are Messrs. Edward Lloyd and the Misses Beatrice Whitsey and Ethel Kay.

METROPOLE THEATRE, DEVONPORT.—Manager, Mr. Mitchell.—Hardy and Von Leer's Co. in Two Little Vagabonds, has lost none of its popularity. The leading part of George Thornton is played by Mr. Douglas Vigors with creditable ability; Miss V. Crespin is successful as the heroine. Other members of the company are Messrs. E. McLean, F. Gordon, and the Misses G. Vernon and L. Beaumont.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager Mr. Jack Field.—Miss Marie Loftus is the principal contributory to an exceedingly good programme here. This versatile lady puts the house in good humour and reaps continued applause. My Fancy contributes a smart bit of sand dancing; Carl Rosine surprises the audience by some remarkable "trickery"; Walker and Lake have some smart patter; Maxwell and Frances supply an acceptable flirtation scene; and Clive and Clark are a couple of good speciality dancers. Johnny Dwyer, comedian, is popular, and Vernon's Pictures are admired.

PROMENADE PIER AND PAVILION.—Mr. Whipp Hadyn's Opera Singers were unable to fulfil their engagement in the early part of the week owing to a fire of somewhat serious dimensions having damaged the Pavilion. The genial manager (Mr. J. Higson), with his customary consideration for his patrons, decided to postpone all performances until the repairs had been made.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J.W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. Mouillot's company, by arrangement with Mr. George Edwardes, opened here on Monday with the successful musical play The Toreador. Mr. Harry Buse appearing with signal success as the Sammy Giggs, and Mr. Fred Fowler working hard and scoring well in the part of Pettifer; Sir Archibald was humorously impersonated by Mr. Howard Cridland; Mr. H. M. White made an excellent sketch of Carajolo; and Mr. Atheling Farrar did extremely well as Augustus Traill. Miss Katie May made a charming and vivacious Dora Selby; Miss Rose Helena played prettily as Nancy Staunton; Mrs. Malton Hoppings was capitally taken by Miss Zoe Gilfillan; and Donna Teresa was admirably portrayed by Miss Florence Burdett. The augmented orchestra was under the direction of Mr. George Saker.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—This week we have here Messrs. Stillwell and Teulon, with a company presenting The Branded Woman. Miss Zana St. George plays the trying part of Genevieve Larouche with well-sustained force; Miss Katherine Barnett makes a favourable impression as Marie; and Miss Violet Bailey-Clarke is capital as Rudolph. Mr. James Stillwell submits an excellent impersonation of Philip Maurice; Mr. Edward Turner is a powerful Baron Hauber; Mr. Paul E. Teulon ably impersonates Duroc; and Mr. Harry Liddle is responsible for some amusing songs and business as Dick Brown.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Heading the bill here is Harry Tate's No. 1 company in the diverting sketch Fishing; Belrose and Develin, soloists and duettists, are artists of ability, their operatic selections being much admired; Gus Hindell, versatile comedian, is cordially greeted; Baker and Balfe, xylophone experts, are capable and clever; Billie Burford,

Miss ADA REEVE IN JOHANNESBURG.

TRANSVAAL LEADER, May 15, 1906.

"There is no risk of 'terminological inexactitude' in describing the first performance at the new Empire as a success. It was more than a success; it was a triumph.

"Miss Reeve had to face a very critical audience, and to live up to a great reputation in a town where she has not previously appeared. She got a hearty welcome, and then the audience became critical, and intensely attentive.

"Her first verse brought out her inimitable powers of expression and her genius for style, but the first two songs did not fire the audience. They had not quite risen to her level.

"The third song evoked a persistent encore, and her response gave the audience over into her hands. She was re-called time after time, and her triumph must have been the pleasanter because it was not easily won."

THE RAND DAILY MAIL, May 15, 1906.

"Never has an artist in Johannesburg met with greater success. Artistic to her finger tips, she amply proved her right to the programme description, 'the inimitable comedienne.'

"Singer and actress both, exponent of pathos or humour, she completely captivated her hearers. Not one section of the audience alone, but every part, applauded her to the echo.

"Miss Reeve was called back again and again, and it seemed that the people would never be satisfied. She was given a memorable reception."

THE TRANSVAAL CRITIC, June 1, 1906.

"At the Empire the bright particular star cannot be said to be any more in the ascendant, because she reached there on the first night of her appearance and has remained there ever since. A more talented artist than Miss Ada Reeve the Empire management have never presented.

"A combination of circumstances has served to bring the Empire Palace into the close ken of the Society woman. The new building was one, the arrival of Miss Ada Reeve was another.

"One cannot say more for Miss Reeve than that she has captured women as well as 'all the men.' Nobody could be more enthusiastic about her than some women I have listened to. They are in love with her gowns, with her way of wearing them—which is inimitable—her sense of art and colour, and her dainty movements; as for her 'turn' at the Empire, it is just what one could expect after that.

"She makes you feel that she has not stopped where you have seen her stop; that there is hardly a height of tragedy or a depth of comedy to which she could not go, and drag you with her—if she wanted to.

"She has the real attraction, not of the senses merely, but of the inner sense, that causes the little ripples of laughter, the individual words of cheer and appreciation, that break over her audience while she is on the stage."

SUNDAY TIMES, July 24, 1906.

"Miss Ada Reeve last night ended a memorable season. Long before eight o'clock the Empire was packed to the doors; the theatre could have been filled three times over. Miss Reeve was re-called so often that one seriously feared that the little lady would be finding her way home with the milk. Not until she had sung ten songs and delivered a speech was Miss Reeve allowed to go away to her dressing-room."

TRANSVAAL LEADER, June 25, 1906.

"Miss Ada Reeve completed her season at the New Empire Theatre on Saturday evening. The enterprise of the directors was magnificently rewarded.

"Night after night crowded houses welcomed the great comedienne, who has splendidly sustained her reputation.

"The magnificent success she has achieved culminated on her last night, when the enormous audience received her with rounds of cheering, and encored her till it seemed at one time as if no further item in the programme would have any chance. Generous as ever to her friends, Miss Ada Reeve responded to the demands with smiling acquiescence. She sang no fewer than ten songs, with many encore verses, and even then the delighted audience refused to allow her to depart. There were loud demands for a speech. Miss Reeve was presented with an exceptionally large number of beautiful floral tributes, and subsequently, upon leaving the theatre, she was greeted with rousing cheering."

Miss ADA REEVE IN CAPETOWN.

THE CAPE TIMES, June 28, 1906.

"The furore of applause which rounded off her entrances or exits was probably the most tempestuous that ever rang in the pretty theatre. Miss Reeve does not depend upon her costume for her effects; the dress she wears is rich, yet simple, and was unchanged during the time she held the stage. The huge audience, which literally crammed the building from floor to ceiling, recalled the artist again and yet again. Judging by her reception last night, Miss Reeve bids fair to repeat her Johannesburg successes in Cape Town."

SOUTH AFRICAN NEWS, June 28, 1906.

"There was a transformation at the Tivoli Theatre last night. Gone were the empty seats and the indifferent audiences, and in their place was a house packed literally from floor to ceiling, leaving barely an inch of standing room in the surrounding aisles. Needless to say, the fairy who effected this change was Miss Ada Reeve, and, even with the recollections of her Johannesburg triumph so fresh, Miss Reeve must have been gratified at the reception she received last night—a reception never surpassed by any other artist in Cape Town.

"Big reputations are sometimes apt to fade before reality. Usually the audience expects too much, and the best thing that can be said about Miss Ada Reeve is that in no degree whatever did she fail to reach the very high degree which her reputation foreshadowed."

THE OWL, June 29, 1906.

"The cosy little theatre was packed with a crowd prepared to give the dainty lady a hearty welcome. The welcome was so hearty that it became embarrassing almost. Miss Reeve sang half a dozen songs, and was called back another half a dozen times to give extra verses. Even after the following turn was announced, the huge audience would not be silenced. So Miss Reeve came back again and sang another song.

"Her success was instantaneous and unbounded. Never before has an artist secured such a whirling reception. It was good to be at the Tivoli and see the people in their enthusiasm. Wednesday night was a triumph for the lady, who possesses the three graces of the stage—the power to sing, to act, and to dance. If one were asked what she does best, it would be difficult to find an answer."

CAPE ARGUS, July 14, 1906.

"On Tuesday night Miss Ada Reeve appears for the last time at the Tivoli, for she sails on the following day for 'England, Home, and Sooty'—London.

"The same success that attended her appearances in Johannesburg has marked her visit to Cape Town; for the Tivoli has been crowded night after night, and, as often as not, if one had not booked beforehand and turned up at the place at eight o'clock, one had perforce to turn away again."

Miss ADA REEVE IN LONDON.

THE TIMES, Aug. 22, 1906.

"Miss Ada Reeve, who has lately returned from a tour in South Africa, made her reappearance in London on Monday night. No coarsening of method or exaggeration in her performance was to be detected; she is the same wickedly clever, delicate, and charming singer that she was before she left, and the flashes of her diamonds were no brighter than the flashes of her art.

"When she had sung 'Auntie sent me Marketing' (out of a recent musical comedy), with more point than any singer has ever given it before, an enthusiastic audience demanded some dozen or more verses from 'If the World were Ruled by Girls.'"

THE DAILY CHRONICLE, Aug. 21, 1906.

"Miss Ada Reeve, who has been away from the metropolitan music-halls for many months, owing to theatrical engagements in the provinces and in South Africa, received a hearty welcome last night on her return to the Tivoli. This talented comedienne was in excellent voice, and her songs especially delighted the crowded audience."

PALL MALL GAZETTE, Aug. 22, 1906.

"Miss Ada Reeve has made a welcome reappearance on the variety stage at the Tivoli this week, and has been received with great enthusiasm."

THE SUN.

"Ada Reeve, fresh from her South African triumphs, made her first appearance in England. She received a great ovation."

THE DAILY TELEGRAPH, Aug. 22, 1906.

"Not for some considerable time, if memory serves, has Miss Ada Reeve been seen in London in the domain of variety, and, if only for this fact, the Tivoli's enterprising manager may be complimented on securing the welcome services of this popular artist on her return from South Africa; but in any circumstances there would always be the heartiest of greetings for a 'star' so rarely gifted and endowed as Miss Reeve. To the Tivoli she has brought a budget of capital songs, of which last night's audience showed the keenest enjoyment."

THE TRIBUNE, Aug. 22, 1906.

"Many years ago, when Miss Ada Reeve was merely a bright particular music-hall star, I remember I warmly urged her to forsake the halls for the stage and play pure comedy. Shortly afterwards she made the change, and scored a distinct success. She is a finished and accomplished little actress, and the highest compliment I can pay to her method is that it is French, and there is more than a suggestion of Yvette Guilbert about her manner. The audience insist on the singer returning again and again."

THE GLOBE, Aug. 21, 1906.

"Miss Ada Reeve must have been highly gratified with her reception on her first appearance at the Tivoli last evening, after her return to England. Her entrance was the signal for a great ovation, and one which this popular artist well repaid."

THE REFEREE, Aug. 26, 1906.

"The big planetary attraction at the Tivoli is, of course, little Miss Ada Reeve. Enough that she is always welcome, and that she was never more welcome than at the Tivoli during the past week, for, be it noted, little Ada is just now at her brightest and best."

MORNING POST, Aug. 22, 1906.

"The general interest of the programme at the Tivoli pales before the interest of the reappearance of Miss Ada Reeve. She has been absent from us too long, and her return was greeted last night with fitting enthusiasm."

MORNING LEADER, Aug. 22, 1906.

"The charm of Miss Ada Reeve is more apparent with her each return to the variety stage. She is the new Nellie Farren of the halls. At the Tivoli this week, where she appeared for the first time after her South African tour, she sang four songs in her characteristic fashion—a way that is naïve, inconsequential, humorous, wayward, frolicsome, and always fascinating.

"She is one of the few comediennes possessing that indefinable charm that is better than everything else—except the cleverness with which it endows its possessor."

TRUTH, Aug. 22, 1906.

"At the Tivoli, that clever little actress, Miss Ada Reeve—just returned from South Africa—is singing several songs nightly. I remember her in the music-halls of old, before she deserted them for musical comedy and comedy. She is a most attractive little person, with a very individual style, and will certainly draw all London."

THE STANDARD, Aug. 21, 1906.

"Miss Ada Reeve is receiving a splendid reception at the Tivoli this week. Her welcome is invariably enthusiastic, and she is rightly called upon to contribute several encores."

THE MORNING ADVERTISER, Aug. 21, 1906.

"Miss Reeve at the Tivoli."

"Her reappearance at the famous establishment in the Strand was naturally looked forward to with unusual interest, and, as she came upon the stage, on which she had not so many years ago scored undoubted triumphs, she received quite an ovation from a crowded audience.

"She sang with real artistic subtlety four songs, and won general applause, stirring even to enthusiasm. Miss Reeve was recalled over and over again."

M.A.P., Aug. 4, 1906.

"I hope the substantiality of fact is behind the rumour that, after her Tivoli engagement, we are to see that brilliant comedienne, Miss Ada Reeve, at one of our West-end theatres in the autumn. It is a common saying in the theatrical profession that no stage favourite, when he or she is absent from London for any length of time, is really missed, there being always someone as popular to fill the vacant place. This in a general sense is true enough. But there are particular instances where the London stage has very plainly suffered by the absence of one of its established attractions, and the instance of Miss Ada Reeve is conspicuous among their number. It is easy enough to find——. But Ada Reeve is a comedienne born, a representative of the real and true art of the stage; she is at the head of her own special department just as —— is at the head of hers; and the business of that department is certainly 'not what it was' while she is away from it.

THE DAILY GRAPHIC, Aug. 22, 1906.

"Returned from a very successful tour in South Africa, Miss Ada Reeve appeared at the Tivoli on Monday night, when she was enthusiastically welcomed by a crowded house. She sings several new songs, all of them, judging from the flattering manner in which they were received on Monday, should draw thousands to the Tivoli for many nights to come."

THE MORNING ADVERTISER, Aug. 28, 1906.

"First and foremost comes the special engagement of Miss Ada Reeve, who appears at 8.50, giving her ample time to fulfil her contract at the Tivoli.

"This clever artist, who has just returned from South Africa, has not been seen at the East-end for a long time, owing to her theatrical engagements, but that she was not forgotten was evidenced by demonstrative applause as soon as her number went up. Miss Reeve seems to be quite as popular in the East as in the West, and her arch ways and tuneful minstrelsy charmed a crowded house. She gave, with matchless artistry, three favourite songs, each of which was applauded to the echo, winding up with quite a host of encore verses, each one being more vociferously received than its predecessor."

THE ERA, Aug. 25, 1906.

"Miss Somebody from Somewhere—otherwise London's favourite comedienne, Miss Ada Reeve, just home from South Africa—came to the Tivoli on Monday, and, notwithstanding the tropical heat, packed the house from floor to ceiling. We see too little in this gay Metropolis of ours of the charming Ada, who has distinguished herself in many forms of theatrical and music-hall art. No actress that we could name sings a song with such a real appreciation of its witty points, such crystal-clear enunciation, or with such piquancy, and the house rapturously applauded Miss Reeve, many of them no doubt remembering her triumphs at the old Gaiety in musical comedy."

TIVOLI, LONDON, NIGHTLY.

Correspondence: CHIDEOCK, DORSET, ENGLAND.

smart soubrette, makes a favourable impression; Read and Wright, specialty artists, are an amusing pair; and May Henderson, the dusky comedy queen, who possesses an irrepressible vitality that never seems to tire, delights the audience with new songs and gets an enthusiastic welcome. Herbert Madden, vocal comedian, the Sisters Edwards, dancers and drummers, and Payne's pictures complete the bill.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart's company is here this week with Sherlock Holmes. Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart gives a convincing interpretation of the title-rôle; the malevolent spirit of Moriarty is strongly defined by Mr .W. F. Stirling; Mr. Stanley Logan successfully impersonates Dr. Watson; Mr. Fred Bell acquits himself well as John Forman; Mr. Ernest Gray submits an effective delineation of James Larrabee; Mr. Edward Mervyn creates much amusement as Sidney Prince; Billy has a capital representative in Master Cedric Sutherland; and the other male parts are in good hands. Miss Lindsay Fincham acts with dramatic power as Madge Larrabee; and much praise is due to Miss Constance Leigh for her capable and pleasing portrayal of Alice Faulkner.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. J. A. Campbell and company is presenting here this week the popular drama, entitled, The Little Bread-Winner. Mr. Eugene Santley, in the rôle of Lord William Derrington, displays ability; Little Emmie Thomas is a bright and vivacious "little bread-winner"; Miss Mary Fulton wins sympathy as Margaret Daventry; Mr. Alfred Maurice ably sustains the difficult part of Joseph Prior. Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam deserves credit for her portrayal of Kate Cherry; Richard Lawrence is played sympathetically by Mr. Matthew Boulton; and Mr. Allen Charles in the quaint character of Charles Prior creates unlimited laughter.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons: Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—Heading the bill here this week are the Boccaccios, with a pleasing vocal and musical performance; Whimsical Walker is fulfilling a welcome return engagement in the artistic sketch, Captain Hamilton, V.C, and is cleverly supported by Miss Frances Maddock, a child actress of intelligence and charm. Dolly Denver gains applause for her smart dancing; the Kimberley Boys, in their knockabout act, afford great amusement; the Betsons submit a skilful and mirth-provoking cycling and acrobatic act; the chorus songs sung by the Lovelaces are popular; the Weimars contribute an acceptable musical and singing turn; Geo. Young, the blind collier boy, is a clever musician; and Cailler entertains with his feats of strength.

RADCLIFFE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—A return visit is being paid by Messrs. Ediscope and Barnum's animated pictures, under the capable management of Mr. J. B. Kennedy. Lulu is a picturesque lady instrumentalist, and gives general satisfaction in her garden scene; the Original Oldham, singing mill girl, was heard to advantage; and Mons. Reni has a remarkably clever performing dog; Stilvo is a quaint American stilt performer; and Miss Queenie Vane is a fine comedienne and expert dancer; the two Ver-Vains are good coon singers and buck and ragtime dancers; while one of the best and most amusing turns is given by Vela in his clever hurricane wire act.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE AND PAVILION.—Proprietors, Ramsgate Corporation; Lessee, Mr. Jules Richeux.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company has been appearing here this week in Oliver Twist. The acting is of a very high standard of merit. Mr. Stanley Drewitt scores heavily in the rôle of Fagin, a part which gives him a fine opportunity of displaying his histrionic ability. The Nancy of Miss Edith Anton Laing is excellent; while the Bill Sikes of Mr. James Skea is a first-rate conception of the part. Mr. C. Clark gives a capital representation of the Artful Dodger; and Mr. F. Penley does well as Mr. Brownlow. The part of Rose Maylie is charmingly portrayed by Miss D. Mayhew; and Miss D. Marsdin handles with skill the pathetic part of Oliver Twist. The remainder of the characters are entrusted to capable hands. Fine acting is "writ large" throughout the show.

AMPHITHEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Bowman.—A very successful engagement at this place of entertainment was that commenced on Monday and lasting three days, when Mr. F. Mouillot's fine company produced The Blue Moon for the first time in Ramsgate. There were good audiences at each of the three performances. In the title-rôle Mlle. Marguerite Naudin was a very great success; Miss Dorma Morgan scored most unmistakably as Evelyn Ormsby; and Miss May Audrey elicited frequent applause for her impersonation of the dashing Millicent Leroy. Lady Brabasham was excellently portrayed by Miss May Glanbrane; Mr. Arthur Radcliff capably presented the character of Captain Jack Ormsby; Mr. Victor Wallace was a gay, light-hearted Major Vivian Callabone; and Mr. Basil Mercer was good in the rôle of Bobbie Scott, a journalist. Mr. Ainsley Burton did excellent work in the guise of Moolraj; and Mr. Charles Stephenson created roars of laughter by his antics as Private Charles Taylor. On Tuesday afternoon Miss Marie Hall paid a visit to the theatre. During the next three nights of the week the boards were occupied by Mr. E. Lockwood and F. Crossman's company in Sergeant Brue.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur de Frece.—Another excellent house witnessed the presentation here on Monday of Her One Great Sin by Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr. J. Leicester Jackson's company. Miss St. Albans was specially good as Grace Warhurst, her rendering of the character being very fine; Miss Maudie Lambert as Little Gracie also achieved success, and Miss Nellie Lambert made an excellent Nancy Winpenny; Miss Louie Walton as Bet Humble being admirable in that difficult part. Mr. J. Leicester Jackson was clever as the villain, Arnold Thornhill, and Mr. J. Beresford Innes also gained success as Reuben Warhurst. Mr. Fred Hodson, an excellent comedian, scored as Jerry Jumble; Mr. Charles Lambert and Mr. Harold B. Ford as Dan and Jack Humble were humorous; and Miss Phyllis Damean was a capable Charlie.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr. Reginald Taylor.—Mr. Charles Macdona is presenting the popular lyrical comedy, The White Chrysanthemum, for the first time in this town with pronounced success. Miss M. George acts and sings with great ability in the title-rôle; Mr. Richard Telford as Sin Chong, and Mr. Jamie Dallas as Private Perks are both highly diverting; Mr. Charles Schmiedt as Admiral Sir Horatio Armitage acts well, and gains numerous re-demands for his topical song; Mr. H. E. Garden as Lieut. Belmont, and Mr. H. Langdon Bruce as Lieut. Reginald Armitage, make two dashing naval officers. Miss Nellie Groves is excellent as the American heiress, and Miss Emily Taylor is a captivating young widow. The very tuneful music is done justice to by a full chorus and augmented orchestra under the able direction of Mr. Harry Richardson.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—The Village Blacksmith occupies the boards here this week. Mr. Sam Livesey is prominent with a powerful impersonation of John Strong; Mr. Joseph Carter cleverly portrays the villainies of Captain Leo, and Mr. G. V. Campbell is amusing as Billy Twigg; Miss Bertha Hanbury is quite a favourite as Harry Strong; Miss Cassie Le Grand as Ruth Parkins and Mrs. T. C. Livesey as Sal Parkins are both effective in their respective rôles, and Miss Maggie Edwards acts with feeling as Kate Strong.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Smith and Lee.—The patrons here are well catered for this week. The Daunton Show Troupe of Australian trick cyclists give a remarkable exhibition of trick riding; Bonnette and Corrie, eccentric jugglers, are both smart and amusing; Harry Morris, comedian; Miss Lil Hartley, vocalist and comedienne; Bruce and Ross, comedy artists; Miss Babs Lloyd, in new songs; Mignon La Belle, musicienne; Vernon's Bioscope; and George French, comedian, complete the programme.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—France and Stewart submitted a well-acted sketch, The 100 to 1 Chance, that was both exciting and laughable; Mlle. Von Etta in The Palace of Electricity introduced some quick-change business, and also some clever illusions; other turns are submitted by Two Neros, in refined drawing-room act; Syd Herman, comedian; Sword and Robb, comedians and dancers; Lil Dresden, vocalist; the Empire Bioscope; and the British Quartette of Vocalists.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy's company is here this week with The Executioner's Daughter. Mr. Stanley Radcliffe is highly successful as Monsieur Roche; and Mr. Juan de Alberti scores as Felix Marino. Mr. W. Ruddle Brown is a manly Paul Rovel; and Mr. Willie Hicks is humorous as Tom Holmes. Kretch is well portrayed by Mr. W. S. Stevenson; and Mr. Geoffrey Chate is deserving of mention as Vivian Ormonde. Miss Evelyn Robson does well as Felice, and Miss Bella Moody is a smart Sally King. Christine is prettily enacted by little Miss Marie Ada Dowsing; and Miss Nellie Howett is pleasing and sympathetic as Annette.

RUGBY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Drew Mackintosh.—The first three nights of this week Mr. Hollister's company appeared in The Lights of London. Mr. G. Montague Lane as Harold Armytage gives a carefully considered and able rendering; Miss Jeannie Burgoyne as Bees wins the approval and sympathy of the audience by her clever and pathetic rendering; Mr. Herbert Lewis as Jarvis, Miss Violet Temple as Mrs. Jarvis, and Miss Renee Douglas as Shakespeare Jarvis all do well, being very successful in their efforts to amuse; Mr. Raymond Thomas scores as Clifford Armytage; and as Seth Preene Mr. Herbert Hollister does not miss an opportunity; Miss Constance Davey as Hetty Preene gives a smart portrayal of a difficult part; Mr. Norman E. Purnell is good as Cutts, the detective. The New Clown was presented the last three nights of the week.

RYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.—Are you a Mason? was a source of amusement to hundreds here during the early portion of this week, being presented by Mr. Charles Macdona's chief company. Mr. Ernest Cossart makes a success of the character of George Fisher; a decidedly funny impersonation is that of Amos Bloodgood by Mr. E. H. Patterson; Mr. Howard L. Tracy is equally at home in the part of Frank Terry; Mr. Edwin Millins is an efficient John Halton; Miss Adelaide Grace submits an excellent sketch of Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood; Miss Mabel Young does well as Mrs. Perry; and as Lottie Miss Minnie Rayner adds materially to the humour of the piece.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. J. Herbert Jay; Manager, Mr. F. T. Studd.—The Excelsiors have given good performances here under the direction of Mr. W. H. Webb. The programme is contributed to by Miss Ethel Branston, Miss Marie Maffert, Miss McCall Chambers, Mr. McCall Chambers, Mr. Wilson Bamber, and Mr. W. H. Webb. Entertainment has been liberally provided, too, by the Funmakers, under Messrs. F. T. Studd and Charles Penrose, while exhibitions of high diving have been given from the pier by Capt. Gore and Miss Gore. Mme. Ella Russell and Herr Backhaus appeared together on Thursday evening in a high-class programme.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Miss Mary Austin is here again this week, and on Monday a large house enjoyed The Golden Ladder, with Miss Austin as Lilian Grant, a part that she invests with ease and grace. Mr. W. Clayton makes an excellent Rev. Frank Thornhill; Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds played well as the excitable Greek adventurer Peranza; Mr. J. M. Taylor successfully impersonates Michael Severn; much laughter is caused by Mr. J. Rowlands as Samuel Peckerby, Miss Winifred Acton as Victoria Alexandra, and Miss Nellie Graham as Mrs. Peckaby. Jim Dixon and Mrs. Dixon are well sustained by Mr. Fred Acton and Miss Teresa Haynes.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Datas astonishes audiences here by his wonderful memory; a most daring comedy cycle act by Narow Brothers keeps the house in roars; Ada Gatley's swinging wire act is much applauded; and Ted Cowan, comedian; Edie Barnard, comedienne and dancer; the Newport Brothers, smart comedy gymnasts; Wee Jessie, a clever little singer and dancer; Walter Stanley, comedian; Venie Clements, mimic; and Ruby Aston, comedienne and dancer, also contribute.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Wm. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident-Acting-Manager. Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—The Land Grabbers is an amusing scene which catches on here most unmistakably; Les Montaldos do some clever work on the slack wire with wonderfully trained birds. The programme also includes some excellent turns by Mike Cray and his dog; Dooley, comic juggler; the Dancing Gilberts; Anna Kenwick, American danseuse; Polo and Florence, society acrobats; Little Beattie, comedienne and dancer; and the Saletos, acrobats and equilibrists.

SALISBURY.—VICTORIA PARK.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. F. D'Alton Tebby; Manageress, Miss Jessie D'Alton.—Miss Beattie Witham, who is this week giving a new selection of songs, is as bright as ever; Miss Ramsdale's song, "The Parrot," is capitally sung; Miss Flora Macdonald uses her fine voice to advantage in her songs; Mr. Skidmore's character songs and amusing antics win for him unbounded applause; Mr. William Dyar, Mr. Tom Walton, and Miss Searle are all appreciated. The Bioscope pictures are very interesting.

SCARBOROUGH.—LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Waddington and Son; Manager, Mr. J. T. Carpenter.—Mr. Martin Harvey is here with his company in The Breed of the Treshams. Mr. Harvey, as Reresby, displayed all his wonted skill and power; Mr. Glenney as Colonel Hungerford was grimly effective; the part of Col. Bagshawe was admirably undertaken by Mr. Fred Wright, sen.; Mr. Leonard Craske, as Mr. Francis Tresham, gave ample evidence of ability; Miss Coleridge as Margaret Hungerford created a favourable impression and played with much tenderness; Miss De Silva as Batty had a part that suited her exactly, and presented it adequately. During the week Mr. Harvey also presented Boy O'Carroll and The Only Way.

SPA THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Cliff Bridge Co.; Manager, Mr. Fras. Goodricke.—What the Butler Saw is here this week. Mr. Lionel Rignold as Pink, is very original in the part of the butler, and contrives to be exceedingly amusing; Miss Ida Blanche sustains the part of Mrs. Barrington admirably; as Jack Barrington Mr. Charles Fawcett is well fitted for the rôle, and acts capitally; Mr. Reddick Anderson is all that can be desired as Sir Chas. Foden; as General Dunlop Mr. Geo. Ascott is delightful; as Abraham Welnstein Mr. Hy. A. Rignold is very funny; Miss Jenny Wigney performs the part of Nora becomingly; and Miss Dorothy Garth as Maria is very acceptable.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs. Hy. Mayhew; Manager, Mr. Fred P. Morgan.—Mr. F. Wybert Clive's company in The Conscript is the attraction here this week. Mr. Henry Cullenford as Carl Truevitch gave a most praiseworthy characterisation; as Nadia Miss Lilian Ross did exceedingly well; Mr. Walter Steel was thoroughly convincing as Ivan Manloff; as Count Paul Hardiski Mr. Chas. E. Johnstone acted ably.

PEOPLE'S PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—The vocalist for the week is Mr. Hamilton Harris, the popular Lancashire basso; Texas Hattie gives a remarkable performance on the tight rope; Will Douglas has a very droll style; Capt. Devereux's dogs do difficult tricks and show amazing intelligence; G. W. Nicholson, with his Yorkshire dialogues, creates hilarity; the Tiger Lily, with coon songs, dances most gracefully; the three Seymours do an equilibristic and juggling act cleverly; the Rizeralis meet with their usual success as gymnasts; Miss Lily Andrews, coon vocalist, is very entertaining; the Recars supply a Chinese eccentric acrobatic turn; Mlle. Marie Levante's orchestra of ladies play classical selections, which are much appreciated: Miss Ada Webb has got together a fine troupe of lady swimmers. The Bioscope still retains its popularity

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Zalva.—The Musical Savonas' latest creation, The Palace of Orpheus, is received here with hearty applause, as is their clever playing; Mlle. Chloe Convere is here for another week with her cake-walk horse, Kentucky Beau, and gives an entertaining show; Marti and Julietta show ability on the flying spar and crystal pyramid; Chatamooga does a novel comic equestrian act; Mlle. Marquita, the flexible Venus, is very clever; Eloina is graceful and neat in gymnastical exercises; Claud Ohmy performs daring feats on horseback; and Albini and Doodles and the Bioscope conclude a capital programme.

SPA PROMENADE.—The vocalist here for the week-end was Mr. Fowler Burton. He has a cultivated bass voice, and is well received.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Dickie Clare's company of comedians appears here this week with Lucky Liza. Mr. Dickie Clare gives a smart rendering of Silas Slim; Mr. T. W. Benson presents an excellent portrait of Peter Pettitoe; Paul Pettitoe is a comic study in the hands of Mr. Leonard Maitland; Mr. Dan Ryan causes amusement by his William Bimn; Barnaby Blatterwick is adequately played by Mr. A. W. Thompson; Virginia Blaterwick is prettily presented by Miss Vesta Brownie, and the title-rôle is in the able hands of Miss Madge Brownie.

SHEERNESS.—PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Reymond.—Business at this old-established place of amusement continues good. This week Mr. Fred Walshaw opens the ball with some first-rate songs and clever dancing. Miss Marie Roselle, in new songs, finds favour; Mr. Harry Hilton, as an expert dancer, would be hard to beat; Miss Lillie Thomas, a local favourite, scores with new songs; Mr. Geo. Morgan, negro comedian, is a big favourite; and the Daintons, comedy entertainers, conclude with a laughable sketch entitled Trifles, which is well played and capitally staged.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—A crowded audience on Monday welcomed The Earl and the Girl, which is being played here on a return visit by a company under the direction of Mr. W. Greet. Mr. Wiliam Stephens kept the house in roars of laughter as the funny and irrepressible Jim Cheeze. Mr. Arthur Harold was a smart representative of Dick Wargrave; and the Hon. Bertie was amusingly portrayed by Mr. Percy Wright. A clever character-sketch was Mr. Will Hindson's American solicitor; Mr. H. Courtin was good as Mr. Bliss; and Mr. Tom Redmond made a humorous landlord. Miss Frances Earle, pretty, graceful, and refined, as usual, made a piquant Elphin Haye; Miss Jenny Richards was bright and vivacious as 'Liza; and the parts of Mrs. Black and Miss Virgina Bliss were cleverly played by Miss Beatrice Anderson and Miss Mary Morison.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B Beaumont.—Mr. Vivian Grantham's dramatic company opened on Monday in the sensational drama Held in Bondage. Miss Florence Tyrrell acted in a sympathetic and convincing manner as Zara. The other characters were well played.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The favourite drama As Midnight Chimes is again being performed here to good houses. The funny business of Witty Wattie Walton is received with hearty cordiality.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.: Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—Harry Randall is again starring here. An original turn is given by Ted and Mary Hopkins; Miss Ella Retford is a charming vocalist and dancer; Miss Bijou Russell dances with graceful abandon; and others in the bill this week are Mr. Leo Tell in imitations of animals, &c.; Millman and Russell, opera-bouffe artists; the Captain Cupid sketch company; Mr. Herbert Clifton, a talented mimic; Cliffe's wonderful dog; and the Biograph.

GRAND PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Engaged here are the Two Palmers, Vay's Juveniles, Miss Jenny Lynwood, Mr. Mark Merritt, Mr. Chas. Sloman, Bion, Pallister's Bioscope, Mr. T. B. Fayme, Baroux and Bion, and Miss Gertie Moore.

SLIGO.—TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, Sligo Corporation.—Messrs. Leno and Preston's company paid us a visit here on Monday, when Mr. Leno appeared as Robert Emmet. The drama was well staged. Mr. Leno's performance as the Irish patriot gained for him warm applause; Mr. G. Preston was excellent as O'Leary; Mr. J. Walton was particularly good as Kearnon; the part of Serab Curran was ably undertaken by Mrs. Leno. The remaining rôles were in good hands.

SOUTHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sydney Paxton.—Mr. E. Lockwood's and Mr. R. Crossman's company is appearing in Sergeant Brue. Mr. Arthur Reynolds in the title-rôle gives a droll representation; a like remark applying to Mr. Charles McLagan, who appears as Crookie Scrubbs; Mr. E. Percy Rogers does well as Michael Brue; and Mr. Cecil Burt makes the most of Mr. Crank. Miss Hebe Bliss gives a pleasing performance as Lady Bickenhall; Miss Mary Hay is a charming Aurora Brue; and Miss Marion Hargrave does well as Daisy.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. W. Trussell.—The bill here is interesting. Newhouse and Ward are clever cyclists; Belle Braham goes well with her picture songs; and Clavier and Piccolo excel as equilibrists and jugglers. Miss Gladys Hooley is a brilliant violinist, and successfully appears in Corri and Dereve's Heart Strings; Talbot and Pearce are a duo who prosper well; and others contributing are the Three Bounding Patersons, with a fine show on the triple bars; Mlle. de Rose, lady baritone vocalist; and J. H. Hawtrey, actor-vocalist.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; District-Manager, Mr. Sydney Paxton; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. P. Howell.—Eugene Stratton, the popular coon artist, is starring here, and is a huge favourite. Neil Kenyon, the Scotsman and his pack, creates roars of laughter; and Dave O'Toole, comedian, wins golden opinions. The Gotham Comedy Quartette are old favourites; and others who successfully appear are Los Rupertos, in their equilibristic performance; The Calcotts, musical entertainers; and the Bensons, dancers.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—That popular comedy-drama entitled A Mesage from Mars is the attraction this week. It is presented by Mr. F. Mouillot, who is supported by a strong company. Than Mr. Herbert J. Bentley a more suitable exponent of Horace Parker could not be wished for; the Messenger from Mars was exceedingly well characterised by Mr. William H. Brougham, who proved an able reformer; Mr. Bruce Lindley as the tramp was good; as also were Messrs. J. Edgar Stevenson and Leslie Tyler as Arthur Dicey and Mr. Fergusson respectively. Miss Constance Groves gave a pleasing impersonation of Mrs. Clarence, and was well supported by Miss Flora Hastings in the rôle of Miss Parker. Minnie Temple was entrusted to Miss Joan Ellis, and her interpretation was dignified and most successful.

THE KURSAAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon.—A sensational item in this week's variety theatre's programme is the daring and really clever turn given by Messrs. Aerian and Ostara, whose great flying act from the high roof holds the audience spellbound, and their acrobatic feats are deservedly and vociferously applauded. The other artists that entertain are Alf. Davis, a pleasing character comedian; Daisy Reed, a smart comedienne and dancer; Pueblo and Cropp, who have been retained, two excellent Creole speciality artists; Nellie Navette, a popular singer and dancer, sustaining her success of earlier in the season; and Geo. Neno, whose grand beauty show causes much merriment, and who is assisted by Mr. Tom Carpenter as M.C. Excellent pictures are still a feature, new sets being shown on the bioscope every week. The Kursaal Imperial Pierrots occupy the Café Chantant, and give capital entertainments. A new attraction is provided in the Arcade by the Dahomey Warriors.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless: Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—Mr. Charles Macdona is again providing this week's attraction, and is to be heartily complimented on his most successful production of the musical comedy entitled The Gay Parisienne. The company is a good all-round one, and both the singing and dancing merit special mention. The scenery and mounting are pretty and effective. The vocal quartettes rendered by Messrs. Ashwyn, Jones, Rose, and Fitz-James gained well-deserved applause; Mr. T. Gibson Warren as Major Fossdyke is good; whilst Mr. Will Harman scores in his dry and unaffected impersonation of Mr. Ebenezer Honeycombe. Mrs. Honeycombe is pleasingly portrayed by Miss Holford Berenger, who sings well, as also does Miss Ethel Ivimey, the representative of Norah. Miss Madge Souttar as Ruth is eminently well suited, and her singing and dancing receive hearty recognition. Mr. Fitz-James is decidedly good as Hans; M. Pompier finds in Mr. Clifford Seyler a talented artist, who wins golden opinions by his dancing and singing; and Miss Evelyn Hughes as Mlle. Julie Bon-Bon, is attractive, and sings and dances exceedingly well.

ALFRESCO THEATRE OF VARIETIES, ROYAL TERRACE.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Angless; Manager, Professor Vincent.—The able and genial manager had a gratifying testimony in his endeavours to provide excellent programmes for the vast numbers that visit here by a record house on Saturday evening last, when he took his benefit. This week's fare is all that could be desired. The two principal attractions are undoubtedly the Urban Bioscope and the Bijou Orchestra, the latter being under the direction of Mr. H. Lyme.

PIER HILL BANDSTAND.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Angless—Mr. Ballard Brown, who is assisted by a talented company, provides first-class and refined entertainments that still win the admiration of the huge crowds who visit this popular rendezvous daily. Mr. Arthur Thomas, the favourite clown and humorist, was given a well-deserved benefit last evening.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—An attractive entertainment is again furnished here this week by Mr. George Dance, whose No. 1 company is appearing in the successful musical play, A Country Girl, which was excellently interpretated. Considerable local interest was manifested in the production, owing to the part of Marjory Joy being undertaken by Miss Barbara Babington, a former resident of Southport, who depicted the part in a highly successful and artistic manner, alike in a dramatic and vocal sense; Mr. Coningsby Brierley is irresistibly droll and diverting in the character of Barry; Miss Ellalhe Thorne is a vivacious and clever exponent of Nan; the dusky Princess Melaneh has a clever exponent in Miss E. Desborough, who introduces some effective singing; Miss Cissie Lephton as Madame Sophie sustains the part in a piquant and commendable manner; Mr. John M. Hay gives a good account of himself as Geoffrey Challoner; Mr. Arthur Jackson is an able representative of Sir Joseph Verity; and the Rajah of Bhong is capitally portrayed by Mr. F. J. Rooney, whose vocal efforts are much appreciated.

ALBERT HALL, WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—Mr. George Leyton, the renowned actor-vocalist, in his great military scena, Boys of the Chelsea School, who is assisted by twenty-four local boys and the Lancashire Crimean veteran, Michael Maney, heads the bill here this week. The programme includes Phillips and Terry, in their comedy sketch, A Wonderful Invention; the Marblesque Trio of white living pictures; Kate Traill in songs at the piano; the Three Clarions, comedy artists and expert dancers; Ruth Lytton, Scotch comedienne; the Two Eltons, comedy bar performers; the Brothers Durant, acrobatic comedians; Sable Fern, described as "an English singer of English songs"; and the Bioscope, with the latest films.

PIER PAVILION.—Proprietors, The Southport Pier Co.; Manager, Mr. Charles F. Johnson.—Prominent amongst the capital all-round variety combination appearing here this week is Mr. Charles Banks, with his clever dog Woof, described as "the apex of animal intelligence"; other good turns are contributed by Joseph Hughes, the Lancashire bass vocalist; the Haytors (Edie, Arthur, and Frank), in their diverting comedy oddity, A Hot Time; Xley and Hamilton, musical comedy duo; Lily Hayes, comedienne and dancer; Albert Duncan, club manipulator; Madge Northcote, soprano vocalist; the Richards Trio, in their comedy acrobatic sketch, The Giddy Golfer; and the Bio-Tableaux.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company is here in The Indian Mutiny. A powerful portrayal is given of Nebu Sing by Mr. Villiers Stanley; Mr. J. S. Shedden is good as Abul Khan; Mr. Charles Boult does full justice to the part of Ra Goonga; Mr. George Steel plays Lieut. Manley in soldierly style; Ghus-nah has an able exponent in Miss F. Melrose Millet; Kate Ingleby is happily impersonated by Miss Agnes Kingston; and the comedy element is strongly represented by Mr. C. Morand as Teddy O'Brien, and Miss Lillie Grey as Mrs. Major Ingleby.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Billie Barlow, a popular comedienne, is a big success here. Smythson's comedy company contribute a clever sketch, entitled The Lie Alarm, which is full of amusing incidents. "An Actor's Dressing-room" is an artistic success, as portrayed by C. Leonard Fletcher; Fielding and Hull are seen to advantage in "catchy" duets; a mirth-provoking turn is provided by the Monte Myro troupe in Adventures of a Café; and a good all-round entertainment is concluded by Flo D'Orville, Phil Herman, and the Bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—The Cullane Trio score heavily in a scena, The Ladies' School, in which specialities are introduced. Another scena, Christmas Eve, is given in excellent style by Corman's Juveniles; an entertaining sketch, Sallie's Dilemma, is contributed by Bensley Evans's London company. The remaining items are the Brothers Zampah, monopedes; Cavalli, the Tyneside ventriloquist; the Two Dawns, speciality dancers; and Payne's Bio-Photoscope.

STALYBRIDGE.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Mundill; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. D. Oswald.—The Itrams, gymnasts and acrobats, hold the premier position on a very attractive programme here. Mlle. Zelda is an expert performer on a number of musical instruments; Alexander Royal is a dashing comedienne; Wal Owen, comedy man, is very quaint; Marlo, juggler and equilibrist, is warmly applauded; John Ross is very good as a double-voiced vocalist; Viviana (dancing girl), the Two Roses (vocalists and dancers), and the American Bioscope complete the bill.

ST. ANNES-ON-SEA.—PIER PAVILION THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Leslie.—The Country Girl has been capitally performed here by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. Miss Violet Leslie sang charmingly as Marjorie Jay; Miss Blanche Courtney gave a fine portrayal of Nan; Miss Rita Narcelli was capital as the Princess of Bhong; and Miss Madge Campbell was excellent as Mme. Sophie. Mr. Martin D. Pitts sang in good style as Geoffrey Challoner; Mr. Bernard Vaughan made a stately Rajah of Bhong; and Mr. W. O. Billington was a humorous Sir Joseph Verity. Mr. W. Besley Beltran as Douglas Verity and Mr. Eric Delvere as Lord Anchester were both good; and Mr. Frank Weir kept the house highly amused as Barry.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, The St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—This week we are having a first visit from Miss Florence Baines and company in Miss Lancashire, Limited. As Mary Ellen Miss Baines is the heart and soul of the farce, and she speaks the dialect as if to the manner born; Mr. Will Casey creates laughter as the bluff farmer Thompson, being well supported by Miss Pattie Groves as Mrs. Thompson; Miss Eva Lancashire finds an efficient representative in Miss Annie Mitchell; as Higgins Mr. David Donaldson makes the most of the part; and as Grant, the illiterate butler, Mr. Walter Hicks causes many smiles. Credit is also due to Mr. Burt Burdon, who makes a typical Jew.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Will Sley, and Fred Willmot; Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—Heading the bill here are the King's College Boys, who have scored a success with their vocalism; Miss Alma Obrey, comedienne, and Bob Baxter, the genial comedian, repeat their former successes; the Alberto equilibrists, are clever; the Musical Keisteis (Carlina and Charlie) are talented; Bock Pylades makes a hit as an impersonator of celebrities; Bishop and Hanlon are funny comedians; and Mr. Guy Ryder pleases all with his whistling.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The Spring Chicken, presented by Mr. George Dance's chief company, has attracted large audiences here this week, who have evinced unbounded delight at the many bright scenes, pleasing songs and dances, charming dresses, and lively music that go to make up this successful musical comedy. The humour of Mr. Fred Payne as Mr. Goodle was highly amusing; and Mr. J. S. Durant made a thoroughly pleasing Gustave Barbori; whilst Mr. Henry Averell was mirth-provoking as Boniface. Miss Chrissie Leonard was charming as Rosalie; and Miss Nelly Cavanagh as Mrs. Girdle sang her songs in excellent style, and was rewarded with unstinted applause.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, the Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—The clever performance of De Gracia's Assam elephants has genuinely amused the habitués of this popular establishment here this week. A welcome reappearance has been made by Maude Clifton, a refined vocalist, who fully maintained the remarkable success achieved on the occasion of her previous visit; the Three Pirmans give a smart and amusing performance on the horizontal bars; the Beautiful Lillian is a clever trick cyclist; Marcus Boyle, comedian, is successful; the Two Wiltons, coon singers and dancers, are very entertaining; Ada Whitton is a pleasing burlesque artist; and Lillian Victoria, character impersonator, meets with satisfactory appreciation.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—The attraction for this week is Mr. Adair's company with the drama The Luck of Life. Mr. Wilton Marsh as George Stanhope proves an entertaining artist; Mr. Harry T. Butler provides plenty of humour; Mr. Harry Lloyd as Michael Bazilovitz is most capable; Miss Nita Langford as Rene Bazilovitz wins favour for a faithful portrayal, and Miss Marie Clavering is successful in the rôle of Countess Vlame.

SUNDERLAND.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Director and Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company with The Breed of the Treshams is paying a welcome return visit here. Mr. H. Tripp Edgar gives a graphic and attractive rendering of the difficult rôle of Lieut. Reresby; as Francis Tresham, Mr. Cecil C. Klein leaves little to be desired; Mr. Richard H. Greene does effective work as Colonel Hungerford; and Viscount Dorsington finds an apt exponent in Mr. Oswald Lingard. Miss Cel and Mr. Robert W. Lynn as Joe Jackson, Mr. E. Vicarson as Martin Yeast, and Mr. Paul Palmer as John Corbt are all well placed.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. Fred Willmot.—H. O. Wills heads the bill here this week, and he is certainly one of the most eccentric comedians we have seen here for some time. Zaid, the Spanish Moor, is again a big attraction, and Lillian Rigby is the possessor of a charming voice. Tod Lowen, comedian, and Walter Emmerson, "six feet of fun," score well; and Barington plays a number of instruments skilfully. George Edney is a good character-vocalist, and the Royal Bioscope pictures are a delightful collection.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—Mr. Charles Verney's company, in The Coal King, is here. Mr. Alec Alexander achieves success in the rôle of Tom Roberts; and as Sir Reginald Harford Mr. Robin Shiell submits an artistic rendering. The part of Walter Harford is in the able hands of Mr. Angus Alexander; Mr. Tod Squires evokes loud applause by his interpretation of Jem Williams; a favourable impression is made by Miss Olive Lloyd in her excellent portrayal of Grace Shirley; Araminta is well played by Miss May Selwyn; and as Mad Anne Miss Florence Mitchell makes the most of her opportunities.

WELLINGBOROUGH. — EXCHANGE HALL. — Mr. Joseph Poole's Myriorama is here for the whole of the present week, and is as usual doing excellent business. The pictures are excellent in every respect. Mr. Harry Miers is a decidedly clever comedy juggler, and the Four Rosaires gave very smart acrobatic performances. The Three Boleros in their comedy triple bar act evoke screams of laughter.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore.—Mr. Frank Bateman's company opened here on Monday in No Wedding Bells for Her. Chief honours are due to the clever actress, Miss Lizzie Montague, for her skilful impersonation of Lola Delaspierre; Mr. Frank Bateman appears to advantage as the detective Dick Delver; the rôle of Frank is ably sustained by Mr. Stuart Lomath; Harold Trevelyn is cleverly played by Mr. Mayhew; Mr. Harry Belfort gives a striking portrayal of the old actor, Horatio Trevelyn; Mr. Herbert J. Walton does well in the part of Adonis Tightfist; and Miss Louie Adaire is all that can be desired as Doris Fane.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing Director, Mr. T. M. Sylvester; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Player.—The chief attraction here this week is Boswell's stage circus, the wrestling ponies creating roars of genuine laughter; A-Bo-Kou gives a display of clever juggling; the singing and dancing of Mr. Charles Gerome are first-class; a good turn is submitted by May Bass; and a good reception accorded to Antoni with a capital turn. Mr. Harry Martell is a clever dancer; and Salida and Vone leave nothing to be desired. The Hippodrome pictures complete a fine programme.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—Mrs. Morton Powell's company is this week presenting When it was Dark, which is being well received by appreciative audiences. The piece has a vivid and realistic interpretation by an excellent company. Mr. Cyril Austen-Lee is a capable representative of the Rev. Basil Gortre; Mr. George H. Pitt is entirely successful as Constantine Schwabe; the rôle of Lucifer is in the experienced hands of Mr. Francis Cairns; Helen Byars is played with exquisite grace and power by Mrs. Morton Powell; an acceptable portrayal of Gertrude Hunt is that given by Miss Laura Walker; and the characters of Rev. Mr. Byars and Sir Robert Llewellyn have able exponents in Mr. Henry Heller and Mr. George H. Murray.

PALACE. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Well-filled houses witnessed the performance here on Monday, and the enthusiasm shown augured well for the week's business. Almasio, billed as "the only existing jumping juggler," performed his feats with notable skill and neatness, much genuine fun being added to the turn by the eccentricities of his "funny servant"; the Sisters St. Julian sang in splendid harmony and contributed a neat dance; Raymond's Bio-Tableaux depicted amusing and interesting scenes; Fred. Sinclair and Gracie Whiteford in a sketch, Getting Even, evoked much laughter; Maude Beaumont's turn proved successful; Geo. Leonard gave evidence of considerable agility in dance; the dulcimer specialities by the Sisters Aindow called for special marks of appreciation; and the pretty series of pictures, so sweetly accompanied vocally by Miss Gracie Moore, charmed all.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Very flattering was the reception given Mr. H. F. Maltby's company on Monday night, when The Youngest of Three was presented. As George Wendover, Mr. H. F. Waltby showed himself a thorough master of histrionic art; Mr. N. Henry Hargreaves gave an artistic interpretation of Gerald Wendover. A really good impersonation was the Phillip Radford of Mr. A. E. Wyn-Weaver; the Samuel Johns of Mr. Ralph Hutton is entitled to unstinted praise; Mr. Ernest Noble doubled the parts of Joshua Pynne and Paul, and proved extremely comical in both. Mr. W. Reginald Farell (Loke), Mr. Harris Fraser (Hickey), and Mr. George Laidlaw (Perkins) were good in their respective characters. Miss Beatrice Marsdene's bonhomie as Lucy Dulley was decidedly refreshing, and a charming representation of Florence Dulley was given by Miss Mara Maltby. Warm praise is deserved by the Anne Dulley of Miss Janet Hobson, and a word of commendation must be given to Miss Nancy York's Jane.

GRAND PIER PAVILION.—The Vagabonds are paying a welcome return visit here this week, and on Monday were warmly received. Miss Belle Green sang in good style, and was loudly encored; Miss Merita Leclair gained loud applause by her rendering of "Lazy Maisie Daisie"; Mr. Ernest Devereux was heard to advantage in "The Old Green Isle"; Mr. Percival Mackenzie showed exceptional talent in his lightning drawings; Mr. Harold Montague made a hit with his songs, and Mr. David Norton was deservedly encored for his pianoforte solo. An item much appreciated was the pictures shown by the bioscope by Mr. Frank Lens.

WEST STANLEY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co.; Managing Director, Mr. M. H. Lindon.—Messrs. Little and Darcy's company is occupying the boards this week in The Shadow of a Crime. Mr. Stephen Crossley is an attraction as Harry Bullington; as Sir Edward Bullington Mr. John H. Manley plays in dignified fashion; Mr. Robert Forder capably fills the heavy part of Ralph Esmond; the part of Jim Murdoch gives Mr. Wm. Matthews fine scope for emotional acting; Mr. E. W. Avery and Mr. Alfred Richards are capable fun-provokers, being ably seconded by Miss May Rosine as Mrs. Thomas Brown; Miss Ina Grant is a pleasing exponent of Loyale Norman; and Dora Bullington is cleverly presented by Miss Dorothy Riddell; Miss B. St. Ruth as Sarah is a general favourite.

WEXFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. E. P. Ronan.—On Monday and Tuesday we had Mr. Edmund Tearle and company in The Walls of Jericho. Mr. Tearle's impersonation of Jack Frobisher reached a high level; Mr. Sidney Leyton gave a finished performance of Hankey Bannister; Mr. Arthur Gordon's portrayal of Harry Dallas was admirable, and Mr. J. Coke Hinton presented a capital study of the Marquis of Steventon; Miss Kate Clinton's acting as Lady Frobisher was marked by power and feeling; Miss Esther Tearle as Lady Lucy was winning; and Miss Katherine Reynolds played the part of Lady Westerby with the requisite sympathy.

WEYMOUTH.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Nobbs. — Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's company opened on Monday for three nights with Blue Bell in Fairyland, which met with an excellent reception. Miss Lily Eyton as Blue Bell quite won the hearts of all by her charming singing and graceful acting; Mr. Frank Lennard was capital as Mr. Joplin; Mr. Herbert Clark and Mr. Will Clement were very good as Will and Won't. The dancing of Miss Haidee Fitch and the coon song and dance by Miss Maud Harris and Miss Winnie Bronte were loudly applauded. Mr. Frank Harris was successful as the King and Mr. Lawrence Emery as Dicky made the most of his opportunities. The dresses and scenery were much admired, and the changes are smartly carried out. The musical arrangements are in the capable hands of Mr. H. Simpson, and Mr. Gerald Alexander is the courteous business-manager of the company.

WHITBY.—THE SPA THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Charles Windemere's company was here on the first three nights of the week in Facing the Music. The principal characters were ably interpreted by Mr. C. Casson Freer (the Rev. John Smith), Mr. Charles Windermere (the Other Mr. Smith), Mr. Wentworth Fane (Dick Desmond), Miss Kathleen Willoughby (the Curate's wife), and Miss Mary Buckstone (Miss Fotheringay) played their respective rôles most effectively. The company is an excellent one throughout, and the piece admirably staged.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Clark.—The Throne of Terror is being played here. As Robespierre Mr. William Miller submits a sterling performance, and is capitally supported by Miss K. Lanyan-Maude as Victorine D'Almonte. Mr. Roy Milton works hard as Captain Lisle, and Mr. Frank Fuller is good as Roquefort. Miss Maude Davies is pleasing as Marguerite.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—The Milton-Ray's company are here with The Cruise of the Calabar and A Rough Diamond. Mr. Arthur Milton as Cherrible Cluckington proves himself a comedian of ability; Mr. Joe English works with a will as Peter Panley, and is responsible for a good deal of hearty laughter; Miss Minnie Mulvey is an amiable and pretty Mrs. Cluckington; Mr. Fred Russell is a manly and stalwart Captain Fairweather; Miss Hettie Lind is pleasing in her impersonation of Maude Cluckington; and Miss Lillie Ward is a capital Fanny Panley. The staging is excellent.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Worswick.—Mr. W. G. Wills' popular play, A Royal Divorce, is again here under the management of Mr. W. W. Kelly. The drama is a great favourite with Wigan audiences, as elsewhere, and the efforts of the talented company have been most highly appreciated. Mr. Frederick Victor as Napoleon and Mr. F. Joynsen Powell as Tallyrand give very successful representations of the respective characters. Miss Agnes Imlay, as Marie Louise, Miss Clara Russell as Stephanie, and Miss Gertrude Entwistle as Blanche d'Hervas act with charm and dignity; and Miss Edith Cole as Josephine maintains fully her great reputation as the exponent of this important rôle.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick.—A good all-round company has attracted large audiences during the week. Vermette and Dionne, bar gymnasts, are extremely smart in bar practice and in turning somersaults, and the Bros. Egbert are most amusing and original comedians. Jennie Johns is a sparkling soubrette; and Frank Maura, foot juggler, is well received. The Two Anartos, eccentric musicians and comedians; Harry Conlin, comedian, and Marie Walker, trombone soloist, also give excellent turns. Rosie Coleman, comedienne and dancer; the Lannons, duettists and dancers, and Ruby Dahl, with her most mystifying human marionettes, are also most popular.

WORCESTER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A Carlton.—This week, In Sight of St. Paul's has occupied the boards here. Mr. Richardson is a clever exponent of the rôle of Harry Chichester, and Mr. Allen as the brother is very good. Miss Davis gives a capital performance as the Panther; Mr. Daiper makes a good villain; and Mr. Sydney is amusing as the lawyer. Miss Cissy Bellamy is a captivating heroine; Mr. E. Valentine plays the part of Burnsides in an impassioned manner; Mr. Bedford as the London cabby and Miss Amy Randolf as a pert domestic keep the fun of the piece going. On Thursday a complimentary benefit was given to Mr. and Mrs. Carlton, under distinguished patronage.

WORKINGTON.—QUEEN'S OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—On Monday there was a crowded audience to witness G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company in The Silver King. Mr. F. D. Daviss created great applause by his fine impersonation of the title-rôle, and he was well partnered by Miss Daisy Scudamore as Nellie; Mr. L. St. George Lowther was grim as the Spider; Mr. Arthur Wright attracted attention as Combe; and Mr. Warriss Wright was forcible as Cripps; Mr. A. Grant acquitted himself ably as Geoffrey Ware; Mr. E. J. George proved a favourite as Jaikes.

WREXHAM. — EMPIRE MUSIC HALL. — Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—This week the following excellent company is appearing here: Mlle. Rita and Fred C. Roma, versatile vaudeville entertainers; the Three Behans, comedy artists and dancers; the Sisters Dawes, vocalists and dancers; Staffo, the jolly juggling butcher boy; Fred Arno, character comedian; and the pictures.

YORK.—ROYAL.—Lessee, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Variety business is being introduced this week, John Higgins, the jumper, being the principal attraction. He is wonderfully clever, and is well received. Gillin is a very able ventriloquist, with some smart patter; Mr. Will Rain and Company in The Motor Maniac cause amusement; and the Brothers Onda are experts on the bar. Lestree, Pearce and Ward, Gilroy and Gross, Fred Tenby, and the Bioscope are also in the bill.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—Le Diabolo's cycling performance on the revolving wheel is greatly appreciated this week; Florence and Lilian are musicians of a high order of merit; and Dolly Harmer is well received in his character business; Barney, Burke, and Bray give an amusing sketch, and Mr. C. in song and story is a deserved favourite; Mr. Bert Woodward on his cycle is as funny as ever, and Burley and Burley cause much astonishment. The Empire Bioscope completes a strong programme.

CRICKET.

MR. ARCHIE HAMLIN'S XI. v. BRISTOL X.L.C.R. AND EARLY CLOSERS' ATHLETIC CLUBS.

Played near Bristol on Wednesday, Aug. 29. In the evening an enjoyable open-air concert was arranged by Mr. Archie Hamlin, the following contributing to the programme: Miss Minnie Leonard, Miss Ethel Bowman, 'cello solos; Miss Ivy Bowman, banjo solos; Archie Hamlin, violin solos; Leonard Hamlin, harp solos; Harry Edwards, cornet solos; Percy Hewett, flute and piccolo solos; Eddie Bowman, piano solos; Jack Lewis, Jack Aubrey, Jack Leonard, Harry Belding, George Hedges, Arthur Rossiter, the Bijou Orchestra, played selections from The Belle of Mayfair, The Dairymaids, The Spring Chicken, Faust, "Plantation Songs" (Chambers), and "The Wee Macgregor Patrol." Eddie Bowman presided at the piano. The result of the match was Mr. Archie Hamlin's XI., 32; Bristol X.L.C.R. and Bristol Early Closers' Athletic Clubs, 115. Jack Leonard and George Hedges batted and bowled well for the winning side.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA. 1850—1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Sept. 3, the Three-Act Drama, by Claude Askew and Ed. Knoblauch, entitled
"THE SHULAMITE."

A red-letter week in the annals of the Marlborough was begun on Monday by the special and important engagement of the celebrated actress, Miss Lena Ashwell, who plays her original part of Deborah in the above successful drama. On Monday, and throughout the week, the house has been enthralled with her wonderful impersonation, and Miss Ashwell has touched upon its susceptibilities as a skilled pianist brings response from the notes of the keyboard. Her performance of this most trying part is in every way excellent, and is unquestionably one which is likely to live in the memory of all who witness it. Mr. Charles Weir, who appears in the part of the old bigoted Boer farmer, has delighted his many admirers with his admirable impersonation of Simeon Krillet. The whole reading is forcible, clever, and specially acceptable, and has merited the enthusiastic applause bestowed upon it. Notably good also is the performance of Mr. W. T. Lovell in the rôle of Robert Waring, the part being rendered with telling effect. As the young farmer, Jan Vanderberg, Mr. Reynolds Denniston found popular acceptance; and Miss Beryl Mercer is worthy of praise for her portrayal of the Kaffir girl Menke. Last, but by no means least, Miss Mary Griffiths, as the jealous Sante Anna Vanderberg, made another success; and no little of the success of the piece is due to the great ability with which Miss Griffiths impersonates the part. In a word, all the characters have most capable exponents, and work excellently together. The scenic effects are admirable, the stage pictures being most realistic, and the storm effects in Act 2 are remarkably good. The drama is preceded by The Widow's Woes, in which Miss Mary Griffiths and Mr. Charles Weir appear with great success, supported by Mr. Reynolds Denniston and Miss Marcella Hudson.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 3,
the Comedy, by Madeline Lucette Ryley, entitled
"MICE AND MEN."

Extreme delicacy of treatment being essential to the welfare of Mrs. Ryley's clever play, in Mr. Forbes Robertson and his gifted wife, Miss Gertrude Elliott, this requirement is, of course, most successfully attained. The very large audience at the King's on Monday evening was highly appreciative, and bestowed upon Mr. and Mrs. Forbes Robertson an unstinted welcome. The love affair of Professor Mark Embury, complicated as it is by the attachment of "Little Britain" to Captain George Lovell, excited a keen interest. Mr. Forbes Robertson played in his own admirable and scholarly fashion Professor Embury, the part which he has made his own. The novel methods of training employed by the Professor for fitting the young Foundling girl for the position of his wife, which so disastrously fail, raise many smiles. Mr. Charles Langley gives a capitally boisterous impersonation of Roger Goodlake, and Mr. Vernon Steel's rendering of Captain George Lovell is deserving of the highest praise. Mr. J. H. Beaumont is pleasant as Sir Harry Trimblestone, and Kit Baringer is played with skill by Mr. Charles Bibby. Mr. Sam T. Pearce is amusing as Peter, and Mr. W. Pilling presents a delicious "Bumble" portrait of the Beadle of the Foundling Hospital. Miss Gertrude Elliott's "Little Britain" charmed everybody, so delightfully does she act the part. Miss Adeline Bourne is clever as he designing and amorous Joanna Goodlake, and Miss Kate Carlyon is an able Mrs. Deborah. Miss Lily Price as the Matron of the Foundling Hospital, and Miss Dorothy Paget as Molly are both praiseworthy. The scenery is quite up to the King's standard. During a portion of the week Hamlet is being played, with Mr. Forbes Robertson as an ideal Prince of Denmark, and Miss Gertrude Elliott achieving further triumphs as Ophelia.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, September 3,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

The Belle of New York is on a visit here once again, and is attracting good audiences. The company is an excellent one, being Mr. George Musgrove's principal one, and it is being presented under the direction of Mr. J. Bannister Howard, who now owns and directs numerous touring companies. Miss Empsie Bowman appears as the Belle, Violet Grey, giving the daintiest possible rendering of the part, and she sings delightfully, thereby making herself a very great favourite. Miss Winnie Brown is a dashing and captivating Cora Angelique, and she plays her part with much dash, and scores a big success. That clever comedian Mr. Paddy Dupres is quite in his element as Ichabod Bronson, and he keeps the fun going merrily. Of course, the chief of the comic characters is the polite lunatic Von Pimpernick, which, in the hands of Mr. Max Copeland, is extremely diverting. Mr. Copeland deserves unstinted praise for his playing of this difficult part. Mr. Frank Lawton again fills his original rôle of Blinky Bill, and his whistling and dancing are as clever and finished as ever. He also receives great help in his efforts from Miss Florence Hersee, whose sprightly playing of Mamie Clancy is much appreciated, for this young lady works so very hard and with such energy that it is a pleasure to see her efforts meet with marked success. Fifi Fricot is enacted in a dainty fashion by Miss Lily Maxwell, while Miss Sylvia Spears is very good as Kissie Fitzgarter. Mr. Alfred Sandoe cuts a quaint figure as Doc Sniffkins, the manager of the Cora Angelique Opera Company, and Kenneth Mugg, the low comedian of that dramatic combination, is humorously depicted by Mr. Walter Uridge, who proves his abilities as a comedian. The twin Portuguese Counts are amusingly played by Messrs. Lionel Yeoman and R. L. Cody. Mr. John Doran is seen to advantage as Harry Bronson, a character he plays capitally, and he sings his various songs in a most artistic manner. The chorus are deserving of mention for the excellent aid they render throughout; the finale to the first act is admirably sung. The dresses are very pretty, and include many magnificent costumes, while the whole is capitally staged under the able direction of Mr. A. Linforth. We are pleased to see that Mr. Wilfred Stanford, the acting-manager here, is back again after his holidays.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Sept. 3,
the Play, by Charles Klein, entitled
"THE LION AND THE MOUSE."

Whatever may have been the verdict when this play was first produced in London, it is evidently very much to the taste of suburban audiences. On Monday there was a very representative audience here, and it is not too much to say that all sections thereof are heartily pleased with the performance of Mr. Walter Maxwell's talented company. Miss Christine Silver is admirably suited with the part of Shirley Rossmore; her acting is consistent throughout, her air of naïf innocence in Shirley's intellectual combat with Ryder and her impassioned rendering of the girl's final appeal to the financial autocrat being both clever renderings of different phases of this well-drawn character. In the rôle of John Burkett Ryder, Mr. Leslie Carter submits an admirably-thought-out characterisation of the "lion" of the title, suggesting with consummate art the various moods through which the soul of this man of iron nerves and indomitable will passes before he is finally humbled into making terms with the daughter of the man he hates. As Jefferson Ryder Mr. Stephen Wentworth successfully depicts the good-hearted but rather weak young man, who almost allows his life to be ruined for want of the moral courage to resist his father's wishes. Mr. J. W. Mackie extracts a good deal of humour out of the part of the Hon. Fitzroy Bagley; Mr. Richard Norton acts well as Alfred Stott; Mr. John Wheatman makes the most of J. Whitmore Roberts; and Mr. George Lyttleton is decidedly good as the broken ex-editor, James Rossmore. Miss Dorrie Roberts makes a pleasing Kate Roberts; Miss Elspeth Dudgeon gives a clever rendering of Mrs. John B. Ryder; and Miss Maude Townsend does as well as possible with the small part of Mrs. Roberts. The staging of the piece is to be commended for its unostentatious adequacy, the scene showing Ryder's library being a particularly fine set.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, September 3,
the Play, in Three Acts, by J. M. Barrie, entitled
"ALICE-SIT-BY-THE-FIRE."

A company, with Mrs. Russ Whytal as the bright particular star, is playing at Fulham in Barrie's charming little piece. Mrs. Whytal takes the title rôle of Mrs. Grey, or "Alice-sit-by-the-Fire," as she terms herself, and is very successful in her representation of a mother who, brought face to face with a grown-up daughter and son, finds that it is time for her to pass from youth to middle age. Mrs. Whytal's performance was full of humour and life; she can play with the lightest of touches, and yet she can strike a deeper note with equal success. It was a performance that fairly charmed the house. The part of the daughter Amy was excellently presented by Miss Beatrice Bramah, with plenty of youthful fun and natural feeling. She finds an able supporter in Miss Lucie Verrier as the stage-struck Leonora, her girl friend. Miss Ada Marius as the nurse had just the proper air of the superior domestic standing on her dignity, and Miss Lilian Locke acted with broad humour as Richardson, the lodging-house slavey. Mr. J. J. Bartlett made a capital representative of Colonel Grey, and the Cosmo Grey of Mr. A. W. Baskcomb was an excellent study of the surpassing dignity of a modern youth. Mr. Claude King's Stephen Rollo was in the true spirit of light comedy, with an undercurrent of feeling. Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire was preceded by a little comedy, adapted from the French, and called in its English version, The Royal Flower. In this Mrs. Russ Whytal played a youthful Marquis with a certain air of distinction, but the part hardly gave much scope for her powers. Mr. Claude King was good as Vidal, and Miss Ninon Dudley played brightly and naturally as Virginie, Mr. Baskcomb being amusing as the servant, Vincent.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, September 3,
the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE DERBY WINNER."

A capital interpretation of this exciting play is being given this week at the Standard. Mr. Roy Redgrave, an actor of much resource, and one who has had a considerable amount of useful experience, is seen to advantage as Douglas, Earl of Desborough, playing with manly bearing and striking force. Mr. Henry C. Cooper supplies an able performance of Colonel Donelly; Mr. Gilbert Fisher is all that can be desired as Captain Lord Chisholm; Mr. J. C. Aubrey cleverly portrays Major Mostyn; Rupert Leigh is enacted with skill by Mr. Wingold Lawrence; Mr. Jack Denton scores a success as Surgeon-Captain Cyprian Streatfield, playing with much spirit; and a special word of praise is due to Mr. Frank Lister for his exceedingly fine portrait of Joe Aylmer; Mr. Herbert Woodin is a satisfactory Dick Hammond. Miss Eva Dare proves highly acceptable as Maria, Duchess of Milford; Miss Kathleen Russell, a charming Muriel, makes the most of every opportunity; Miss Amy Maitland is well suited as Mrs. Donnelly; Miss Ruth Zillwood capitally sustains the rôle of Annette Donnelly; Mary Aylmer is pictured with feeling by Miss Marion Turner; and Miss Florrie Green artistically plays the part of Harold, Viscount Fernside. Miss Olga Audre as Vivien Darville proves that she has thoroughly grasped the nature of the part, contributing a forcible rendering. The piece is admirably mounted.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, September 3, the Drama, entitled "EVE."

Despite the tropical conditions prevailing, a large audience welcomed the performance on Monday by the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company of the interesting play, Eve, and although there is nothing particularly new about the story, or in the author's conception of the various characters, yet the drama is upon the whole bright and effective and was received with every evidence of favour. Each member of the company plays with a force and skill that are exceedingly telling, while the scenery and mounting are in perfect taste. Mr. M. Gusofsky looks exceedingly well as Simon Gotlieb, and acts with earnestness and passion, and Mr. Goldsmith renders a good account of Schlomke Tultshiner, while Mr. Streng is quite equal to the demands made upon him in the part of Isaac Fox. The rôle of Louis Schwartz is sustained with marked success by Mr. Joseph Fineberg, whose dramatic and forcible style is most convincing, while every point is made to tell by his incisive acting. Adamski receives justice at the hands of Mr. Schilling, and Mr. Rosenfeld is well suited as Jeine Knepete. Mr. J. Scherman lends invaluable service as Benedik Schpringer, and the part of the child Josele is ably filled by Miss Lubritzky. Madame F. Waxman gives due emphasis to the many opportunities which the character of Chaveh affords, and Sime Chaye is capably portrayed by Madame J. Kayzer, while Betty receives adequate treatment by Madame Goldstein. Successful performances during the week have been given of The Golden Land, The Sailor in Danger, Driven from Portugal, Rachel, or the Flag of Judah, and Solomon the Siberian.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 3,
the Comedy, in Four Acts, by Hubert Henry Davies, entitled
"MRS. GORRINGE'S NECKLACE."

This week a complete novelty is presented in the shape of drawing-room melodrama, and though it is a kind of dramatic fare to which Peckham audiences are unaccustomed, the piece has been very favourably received. Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace is an interesting play, unconventional in tone, and remarkable for its clever character sketches, and full justice is done to it by Mr. Thomas McKenzie's able company. Mr. Yorke Stephens, who appears in the part originally played by Sir Charles Wyndham, is an excellent Captain Mowbray, acting with much dignity and restraint. Miss Marie Illington plays capitally as the irritable, but essentially human, Mrs. Jardine, the part in which she originally appeared at the first production of the piece at Wyndham's Theatre, and she is a tower of strength to the cast. Miss Frances Vine thoroughly realises the character of the vain, frivolous, and not too scrupulous Mrs. Gorringe, and plays a difficult part with much skill. Miss May Straker looks charming and acts with much pathos as Isabel Kirk; and the hoyden Vicky Jardine is acted in appropriate fashion by Miss Mabel Melba. Mr. W. Brisco Owen makes the most of the part of the weak and vacillating David Cairn; Mr. Reginald Walter is a smart Detective Jerrigan; and Mr. Maitland Dicker is a duly irritable, but good-hearted, Colonel Jardine. Miss Isobel Fladgate and Mr. Lawrence J. White appear with success in minor parts. The one scene which does duty for the play is very elaborate and effective. The curtain-raiser is a comedietta, entitled Uncle Joseph, written by J. Hickory Wood and E. L. Furst, in which the characters are played by Miss Isobel Fladgate, Mr. Algernon J. Hicks, and Mr. Lawrence J. White.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 3, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Joseph Arthur, entitled
"THE STILL ALARM."

There is much to sustain the interest in The Still Alarm, the turn-out of the fire brigade being a thrilling incident, and the interpolated vocalism by the Central Brigade Quartette is a pleasing feature. It is the return visit of Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company, and the piece had a most cordial reception on the opening night of the week. Mr. Matthew H. Glenville cuts a gallant figure as Jack Manley, and is a most popular hero. The villainy of John Bird is strongly emphasised by Mr. George Arthur, who scores heavily in the rôle. Mr. Tom Beasley is a very amusing Willie Manley; and Mr. Fred Osmond in the character-part of the dissolute Doc Wilber is responsible for a capital performance. Mr. Lewis Gordon plays naturally as Franklyn Fordham; Mr. J. Sutton Pateman does well as Joe Jones; and Mr. James Morgan fulfils all requirements as Jenkins. Miss Maud Warburton is a pretty Elinor Fordham, and acts with sympathy and charm; Miss Mabel Veriton makes a motherly and amiable Mrs. Manley; and Miss Hettie Zillwood as Cad is always bright and vivacious. Minor parts are intelligently rendered.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 3,
the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled
"TWO LITTLE VAGABONDS."

The soul-stirring story unfolded by Two Little Vagabonds still retains a strong hold on popular audiences, and consequently the cheaper parts of the commodious Borough Theatre are being well patronised this week, despite the number of times the piece has been here before. The members of Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company acquit themselves with entire credit, and the piece is liberally staged. The two little vagabonds, Dick and Wally, are capitally played by Miss May Hart and Miss Margaret Nybloc, the robust, boisterous Dick being well contrasted with the fragile weakling Wally. Mr. William Fazan enacts George Thornton most convincingly; Mr. Henry Watson is responsible for a sound performance as Captain Darville; and Mr. Edmund Cuthbert is a praiseworthy John Scarth. Mr. John F. Traynor makes up well and plays powerfully as the Gaffer, whose confederates, Dido Bunce and the Coughdrop, have exceedingly good representatives in Mr. Ernest K. Nelson and Mr. Fred Archer. Miss Laura Hanson plays Marion Thornton with much expression and feeling; and Miss F. Russell Spiers makes an admirable Barbara Scarth. The vicious nature of Biddy Mullins is appropriately expressed by Miss Marie Pritchard; and Miss Muriel Clay is a prim and alert Sister Randall. Remaining parts are in capable hands.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, September 3, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Hal Reid, entitled
"HUMAN HEARTS."

Mr. Hal Reid's Human Hearts, which is being presented here this week, is meeting with great success. Excellently staged and enacted by a really strong company the piece is received with enthusiasm by large audiences, who follow the story with keen interest, and testify their appreciation of the thrilling scenes by unstinted applause. Mr. George Rowlands makes a fine, manly Tom Logan, his vigorous manner and earnestness being well suited to the rôle. The comic element in the play falls on the shoulders of Mr. Sydney C. Carl as Jem Mason, a tramp. Availing himself to the full of his humorous opportunities, Mr. Carl keeps the audience in rare good humour, and scores a decided hit. Mr. Lionel Williams is thoroughly satisfactory as the scheming Frederick Armsdale, and submits a finished impersonation. Mr. Arthur Estcourt gives an excellent interpretation of Mose Jones, a nigger, and Mr. Edwin Palmer faithfully portrays the tender-hearted Governor, Richard Markham. Mr. Harry Brame does all that is possible with the part of Samuel Logan, Mr. C. Palmer does well as Deputy-Warden Weston. Master Tom Robertson is to be commended for a really good performance of Limpy Morgan, and Mr. Charles Walton is satisfactory as Mike Corrigan. Miss Vera Fordyce as Jeannette Logan is a great success, her acting—especially in the last scene—making a deep impression. Miss Bessie Palmer acts with delicate pathos in the rôle of Semantha Logan, being warmly applauded for her clever delineation of the blind woman. Miss Barbara Bateman is responsible for an admirable study of the half-witted Jimmy Logan, and Miss Millie Silvester as Ruth Larkins acts with quietness and reserve. Little Miss Freda Green is to be congratulated on a pleasing performance of Grace Logan. The play is produced under the direction of Mr. Ben Nove (Felix Duma), and Mr. W. J. Robertson.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, September 3, the Play, by Hall Caine, entitled
"THE ETERNAL CITY."

By arrangement with Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. Bannister Howard's company are this week presenting the interesting play The Eternal City at the Dalston Theatre. A distinct feature of the performance is the admirable acting of Miss Sarah De Groot as Donna Roma Volona, a young sculptor, whose association with Baron Bonelli, Prime Minister of Italy, provides one of the main incidents of the story. The character of the elegant Baron is most effectively played by Mr. D. Lewen Mannering, who in the earlier stages of the play succeeds, and in a very clever way, in making himself thoroughly detested. In the end, however, when, after he has received his death wound, he asserts there are only two things he has ever loved, his country and Donna Roma, he succeeds, in quite a different way, in eliciting sympathy. Mr. Henry Deas as David Rossi is another conspicuous success, his representation of the young member of the Chamber of Deputies being rendered conspicuous by his vigorous style. Mr. W. O'Flynn does well as Rocco, Rossi's friend. The deportment of Mr. J. Fortesque as the Pope is dignified and reassuring, and he met with a most encouraging reception. Other prominent characters were represented by Mr. Edward Comperbach (a Capuchin Friar), Mr. J Poole Kirkwood, Mr. E. Clowes, Mr. Herbert Legerton, Miss Eva Stuart, and Miss E. Stokes.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, September 3,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by James Willard, entitled
"A WOMAN'S PLUCK."

This realistic spectacular drama of Mr. Willard's secured a very hearty reception in Marylebone this week, due in a great measure to the all-round excellence of the acting abilities of the clever company interpreting it. Mr. Austin Mortimor enacts Dick Darrell with resolute pertinacity and skilful effect; Mr. John Campling is responsible for a unique character study of the peppery Sir John Daredevil, V.C.; Mr. Harry T. Wood sustains the rôle of Winston Dale in a buoyant, cheery way; Mr. Harry Emmerson plays carefully as Matthew Pope; Mr. Frank Etheridge deserves praise for his Sir Noel Fordyce; and Mr. Fred Norburn's embodiment of Jim Daremont, alias the Tiger, is notable for its thoroughness and careful attention to detail. The important rôle of Grace Daremont is sustained in a muscular, masterly way by Miss Grace Lester, who carries the house along with her from start to finish; Miss Tina Shaw is precociously amusing as Bertie Daredevil; Miss Elsie Maitland is tenderly sympathetic as Mrs. Pope; Miss Nellie Freeman is persevering as Ophelia Pippin; Miss Helen Elmar is effective as Lady Daredevil; whilst Miss Violet Carr's impersonation of Jessie Pope is full of tender effect and unassuming girlishness of demeanour which is delightful in its innocence The rest of the characters are all carefully handled, and the piece is mounted and staged in a most realistic way, the Derby Day set being specially notable. Mr. Harry Emmerson is business-manager for Mr. James Willard.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Sept. 3, the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, by Seymour Hicks, entitled
"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

Patrons of the Royal County Theatre are indebted to Mr. Peter Davey, the enterprising managing-director, for the opportunity of again witnessing this tuneful and mirth-provoking play, a class of play that is always welcomed with open arms in the Thames-side town. Good houses have been the rule during the stay of the play in Kingston this week. Mr. Wm. Greet's company is engaged in the production of it, and is a most capable crowd of artists, down to the minor rôles. The part of the whimsical dog-trainer, Jim Cheese, is played by Mr. William Cromwell, of whose performance it is impossible to speak except in terms of the highest praise. His drolleries, presented as they were with a straight face, were simply irresistible, and the house was kept in a continual state of laughter whilst he was on the boards. Miss Gertrude Simpson achieved great success in the part of Elphin Haye, acting and singing with a charming naïveté, her song "In Zanzibar" capturing the house. Mr. Robert Hyett made a capital Dick Wargrave, and in the vocal numbers allotted to him showed the possession of a very fine voice. The part of the Hon. Crew Boodle was ably portrayed by Mr. Stanley Harrison. The parts of A. Bunker Bliss, Downham, Mr. Talk, and Mrs. Shimmering Black—the quartette in search of the heir—were well placed in the hands of Messrs. A. E. Coleby, Frank Cane, and Arthur Cassidy, and Miss Nellie Grant respectively. A creditable reappearance in Kingston was given by Miss Eva Bevington, who invested the part of Daisy Fallowfield with a piquant charm, and carried the house with her in her song, "Sammy." Others deserving particular mention are Mr. Fred W. Patrick as Hazel, Miss Florence Wix as Liza Shoddam, and Miss Helen Langton as Miss Virginia Bliss. There is a numerous and well-trained chorus, and an augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. Percy B. Fletcher.

CASTLE THEATRE, RICHMOND.

On Monday, Sept. 3, the Comedy, entitled
"A COUNTRY MOUSE."

"Good plays, clean plays," promised Mr. J. Bannister Howard last week on the occasion of the re-opening of this theatre, and hitherto he has every reason to be congratulated on the maintenance of so excellent a programme. It would be a matter of some difficulty, we take it, to find a cleaner, or, indeed, a daintier, play than A Country Mouse as enacted by Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. Truth to tell, this most delightful of country mice—than whom there is none more winsome than Miss Annie Hughes—quite early won the sympathies of a large audience, and there was a perfect preponderance of opinion that Angelia Muir was absolutely charming. And not only were honours due to the bright little ingénue who headed the bill, but the company all round was excellent to a degree. Mr. Evelyn Vernon as the Duke of St. Kitts caused endless fun. Nothing could have been better than his impersonation of the veteran "lady-killer." It was a clever piece of acting, untainted by the faintest exaggeration. Mr. Charles Esdale won honours as the Hon. Archibald Vyse. Throughout the play his influence tended to add to the success in no small degree; the house rocked with laughter at the flower-basket incident, when he substituted his card as donor in the place of the amorous old peer. Mr. Wm. Calvert—strangely reminiscent of an M.P. not unknown at Birmingham—did exceedingly well as John Bowlby, M.P. It is not a rôle bristling with possibilities, but Mr. Calvert certainly made the most of them. His scene with Jephcot (Mr. J. E. Watson)—the autocratic butler who had fears as to the degeneracy of the Upper Circles—was happily conceived, and still more admirably acted. Mr. Thomas A. Braidon was effective as Lord Robert, and won the hearty recognition of the audience. Very charming and stately was Miss Moyra Creegan as Lady Sylvia, with a penchant for elopements; Miss Frances Davie was altogether capital as Violet, and played with refreshing humour throughout; Mrs. Crooper was satisfactorily enacted by Miss Ida Lourie; and of the Mouse we have already spoken. Mr. Arthur Law has provided a rôle that fits Miss Anne Hughes to a nicety, and no one is quicker to grasp the author's intentions than the modest, merry, ingenuous maiden who comes from "near Dorking, you know."

A Bit of Old Chelsea, by Mrs. Oscar Beringer, preceded Mr. Law's comedy, and afforded Miss Hughes a further opportunity of displaying her versatility. As Alexandra Victoria Belchamber, otherwise Saucers, she repeated a success that is always welcome. She was capitally supported by Mr. Chas. Esdale as the Saint, Mr. Evelyn Donald the Sinner, and Mr. T. A. Braidon as the Student. There is every prospect of a successful season at this house. Mr. Arthur Howard is unremitting in his efforts as acting-manager, and does much to conduce to the comfort of all concerned. The orchestra should not be omitted from mention; indeed, Mr. C. W. Dowell has every reason to be proud of his followers. We should not be surprised to find the Castle Theatre has entered on a long and prosperous career; the fault will not be that of Mr. J. Bannister Howard if this is not so.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Sept. 3, the Musical Pantomimical Comedy, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE SWISS EXPRESS."

On Monday last the Alexandra, Stoke Newington, reopened its doors, a return visit from Messrs. Charles and Frederick Renad, in the well-known adaptation of Le Voyage en Suisse (The Swiss Express), forming the opening attraction of the season. While retaining all its familiar features, the piece has, since it was last seen here, been brightened, and its attractiveness added to, by the addition of some fresh musical numbers; but it is of course on the Brothers Renad that the success of the entertainment depends, and it seems almost superfluous to record that their quaint tricks and amusing antics are performed with all their accustomed neatness and dexterity. Mr. Johnny McElroy works hard and successfully throughout the evening, and his Dr. Gondimar Gull is the cause of no little amusement. Miss Ida Ernest as the bride, Virginia, acts prettily, and scores with her song, "My Bungalow in Borneo"; and as the two young men, Rob Rollingstone and Dudley Green, Messrs. George Martin and Alec Wylie contribute their quota to the general success. The remainder of the troupe all work loyally and well to keep the fun going, and the dancing of the Edene Quartette is entitled to a word of praise. Full justice is done to the music by the excellent Alexandra orchestra, of which Mr. J. Howard Hutchison is the able and talented director.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 3,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled
"A GIRL'S CROSS ROADS."

The attraction this week is Mr. Walter Melville's realistic drama, A Girl's Cross Roads. Miss Beaumont Collins admirably depicts the gradual downfall and the ultimate ruin of a girl through drink. It is a very trying character, but Miss Collins is equal to the occasion. The audience are held spellbound with her powerful acting, and accord her rounds of applause, which is richly deserved. An excellent character-study of the old country farmer, John Meadows, is presented by Mr. Charles Franmore. John Livingstone is embodied in a convincing and manly spirit by Mr. Wilson Gurney; Mr. Gerald Jordan is seen to advantage as Cuthbert Lumley, rightly named a "queer card." The unscrupulous adventuress, Nellie Meadows, is powerfully represented by Miss Nannie Meade. Luke Ramsden is successfully undertaken by Mr. Fred Withers. A charming and sympathetic representation of Constance Cornell is given by Miss Jessica Black; Dr. Weston is ably performed by Mr. Charles Kean. The humorous portion of the play is successfully undertaken by Miss Lena Delphine as Tilly Vane, and Mr. Fred Ingram as Toby Turvy, and these two artists keep the audience in a good humour during the evening. The minor parts are in capable hands. The drama is mounted in Mr. Melville's usual lavish manner. The orchestra, under Mr. Edwin Moss, plays some well-rendered selections during the intervals.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Sept. 3,
the Drama, by Ben Landeck and Arthur Shirley, entitled
"WOMAN AND WINE."

We have an enormous attraction this week at Rotherhithe in the shape of that well-known piece, Woman and Wine. The play is capitally rendered by the members of the talented stock company, and large audiences have been the rule. Mr. Ashley Page thoroughly realises the rôle of the reckless young hero, Dick Seymour, and adds another to his long list of successes. Mr. Alfred Harding is very effective in the part of the despicable Alphonse Beaudet; Mr. John Sargeant gives a powerful character-sketch of the deformed Pierre Crucru, known as Caliban; Mr. C. A. Chandler is humorous as Professor Sawter; and that favourite low comedian, Mr. Johnny Chippendale, causes roars of laughter as Charlie Sawter. Miss Mattie Everett brightens all the scenes in which she appears with her infectious gaiety as Janet Marlow; Miss Marion Denvil is a sweet and sympathetic Mary Andrews, enlisting the sympathy of the house for that heroine's undeserved misfortunes; Miss East Robertson makes a great success in the part of La Colombe; and Miss Georgie de Lara is a satisfactory Marcel Rigadout. Mr. Tom Taylor makes an effective picture as the blind artist, Hugh Seymour; and Phineas Collins is well played by Mr. D. J. Hennessey. The scenery is elaborate, especially in Act 3, the Flower Market.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, Sept. 3, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, entitled
"WEP-TON-NO-MAH."

Wep-ton-no-Mah, the Indian mail carrier, the picturesque sensational drama of the Far West, provides plenty of excitement and amusement for the patrons of this theatre. The title-rôle is sustained by Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, the American Indian actress, who is also the authoress of the play. She acts the part of the Indian boy with grace and dignity. As Colonel Stockton, Mr. C. W. Charles gives a careful study of an American soldier; Mr. Pascoe Bioletti as Manuel Lopes presents an excellent picture of the Mexican desperado, the companion in crime of Captain Franklin, ably played by Mr. L. F. Vernon. Mr. Guy D. Hackney as Sam White is highly successful; and Mr. Edwin Standish as Chief Ga-ne-Gua could scarcely be bettered. Mr. W. H. Killey as Garry Cullen, a rollicking Irishman, works hard and scores well; Miss Winnie Goepel is bright and attractive as Nellie Stockton; and Miss Dora Pass as Miss Matilda Sniffles, the Colonel's housekeeper, is exceedingly amusing.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Sept. 3,
the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE GIRL WHO LOST HER CHARACTER."

Mr. John M. East has secured Mr. Douglas Bruce's company in The Girl Who Lost Her Character to fill the programme this week. One of Walter Melville's great successes, the drama is full of incident and dramatic situations that appeal strongly to Elephant and Castle audiences. The Girl, Molly Vernon, is capitally enacted by Miss Evelyn Clyde, who very ably depicts the poor cast off toy of the hard-hearted villain, Captain Caversham. The house is roused to a high state of resentment when the callous officer orders poor Molly from his house. Mr. P. Adair gives a smart and finished rendering of Captain Geoffrey Caversham; Miss Lydia Mannington as Marian Franklin ably aids the villainy of the play; Mr. C. W. Standing presents a capital portrait of Jack England, playing with earnestness and sincerity; the browbeaten, repentant forger, James Sutton, is ably delineated by Mr. George Mitchell; Rose Seymore is charmingly represented by Miss Ethel Bracewell; and as the Rev. Robert Everton, Mr. Edwin J. Collins lends distinction to the part. Mr. Clifford Rean makes a smart and businesslike detective of Weathersby. Mr. George H. Asquin as Dick Punch, and Miss Daisy Maynard as Isabella Jones, by their untiring efforts in the comedy of the piece, evoke much laughter. Miss Madge Meynard is a pretty maidservant; and Mr. John Dixon as a street-hawker has a little scene to himself, in which he causes much merriment. Other minor characters are well sustained. The piece is carefully staged. Mr. R. A. Neville is a courteous acting-manager here.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday the Native Choir of Jamaica appeared in their well-varied entertainment, consisting of native songs, humorous and sentimental solos, duets, and quartettes, plantation, coon, and jubilee songs, concerted choruses, and glees. The choir was enthusiastically received by a large audience, who appeared greatly interested in the novel entertainment, which was followed by the late H. J. Byron's famous comedy, entitled Our Boys, represented by Mr. Charles Otley and company. Mr. Otley's performance of the retired butterman, Perkyn Middlewick, was a capital performance, clever and unexaggerated. The aristocratic Sir Geoffrey Champneys was admirably acted by Mr. Milroy Cooper; Mr. Orlando Barnett was an excellent Talbot Champneys; and Mr. Arthur Bawtree was a capital Charles Middlewick. Mr. Fitzpatrick was good as Kempster; Miss Olive Palmer was a charming Violet Melrose; Miss Edith Heron Brown an attractive Mary Melrose; Miss Phyllis Manners played Miss Champneys admirably; and Miss Marie Jonquil was amusing as Belinda. The Jamaica Choir sang between the acts of the comedy, and the evening's entertainment concluded with a well-rendered final chorus.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

THE COLISEUM AND GRAND OPERA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—With regard to my offer of £160,000 for the Coliseum, it is absolutely a "bona fide" one, and the amount is ready, and would be paid upon the completion of the usual formalities. From what I hear in different and reliable quarters, I feel certain that my bid will be accepted before the end of the year, as the Coliseum is very much over-capitalised. and cannot successfully be managed under its present conditions.

I have gone very carefully into the matter, and am convinced that a £200,000 capital is the maximum sum on which the interest can be paid. The taxes and ground rent of the Coliseum alone amount to £5,000 per annum, so that after paying 5 per cent. interest on £200,000 Debentures I should practically have a rental of £15,000. At the present moment Mr. Stoll is asking £20,000 per annum, and this sum would barely pay the interest on the existing Coliseum debt. What manager could pay such a "stunning" rent?

I can find additional capital, but would not do so, realising the fact that the Coliseum, with a capital over £200,000 plus its heavy ground rent and taxes, would mean another disaster, and this I do not intend to court, although, of course, I cannot command success on the capital I mention.

With regard to Mr. Charles Manners' widely-circulated prophecy that "my project is foredoomed to failure," he, of course, bases his experience of opera in London upon his unsuccessful season at Drury Lane Theatre, but inasmuch as I have no intention of giving English opera, or, rather, opera in English, Mr. Manners' prognostications have not dismayed me. To quote Mr. Manners' interview with a Press representative: "The aristocracy, gentry, and upper classes don't want opera in English," and he is undoubtedly right. The late Carl Rosa fully realised this fact, and only played his company in London at a heavy loss, as an advertisement for his country audiences and to get better terms from the provincial managers. The reason of this is not far to seek, the majority of the upper and wealthy class travel extensively on the Continent, have a general knowledge of French and Italian, and are great patrons of opera abroad, and thoroughly realise how much more euphonic and agreeable these languages are than English. This, coupled with the fact that Italian and French artists are born actors and sing with an intensity of feeling and expression which the English language does not admit of, explains why your upper ten thousands do not care for opera in the vernacular, and I cannot blame them. It speaks wonders for Mr. Charles Manners and his charming and accomplished wife that they have achieved very great results in facing such opposition, and I most sincerely congratulate them. I remember on one occasion in Chicago that the manager of the Auditorium, where we were giving Italian opera, came to me and said that if he could announce that Adelina Patti would sing "Una voce poca fa" (Barber of Seville) in English it would be an additional attraction. I consulted Mme. Patti, and after much persuasion she consented to do so; but when I produced Boosey's Royal English Edition, and found that the English translation read: "Though his voice was breathing far," the divine Patti threw the book on the floor with disgust, and I announced that she would sing "Home, Sweet Home" as an encore to "Una voce poca fa." On the other hand, my father conceived what he considered the great idea of giving Maritana in Italian, and Signor Marchesi carefully prepared a translation.

On the first night at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, Maritana in Italian was announced, with Titiens Trebelli, Guiglini, &c. The audience was fairly attentive until Guiglini started to sing "Let me like a soldier fall," when the gallery rose en masse and demanded that this favourite air should be sung in English, which so frightened the great Italian singer that he ran off the stage, not understanding a word of our language. After considerable delay, the uproar in the gallery meanwhile continuing, my father "faced the music," and announced from the stage that Wilford Morgan, the great Irish tenor (Morgan was a cockney, by-the-bye), who was at that time a member of the Italian Opera Company, would sing "Let me like a soldier fall" in English. I doubt if ever a vocalist obtained such a reception as Wilford Morgan did on this occasion. It is recorded that he was encored nine times, but three, I believe, was the actual number. This was the first and last time that my father attempted to give English opera in Italian. and the critics severely condemned the experiment as being "most incongruous." They were undoubtedly correct, and I consider that Verdi's Il Trovatore is even more incongruous in English than Wallace's Maritana in Italian, and the same applies to all Italian and French operas sung in weird English. To ensure a proper interpretation of an opera it should be sung with its original text, whereby the true musical accent is not spoilt by a garbled English translation which does not fit the notes. Mrs. Weldon relates that the true cause of Gounod leaving London, where he resided for many years, was owing to the great imprudence she committed in taking the great French composer to hear Faust in English. It appears Gounod had to be literally carried out before the first act was over. Mr. Manners, in the circular recently issued by him to the English nation, says "that grand opera as played at Covent Garden is the luxury of the idle and wealthy." It is for these misguided classes I intend to cater, leaving Mr. Manners the monopoly of the industrious and poor.—Very faithfully yours,

HENRY MAPLESON, Colonel,
Président de la Société International de Musique.
London, Aug. 30, 1906.

NOTHING succeeds like success! How true this trite saying is is proved by the wonderful trade that has been built up by Messrs. Whitbread and Co. with their bottled beers throughout the length and breadth of the United Kingdom. It is no exaggeration to say that in every provincial town the name of "Whitbread" is known to touring professionals, and their first enquiry of "Ma" (their landlady) is, "Which is the nearest grocer's that sells 'Whitbread's'?" Even in Belgium, where the firm started a depot only two years ago the name and fame of Whitbread's stout is spreading far and wide. Many a hard-worked artist can testify to the benefit to be derived from a wholesome and nourishing beverage, and, no matter how abstemious you may be, acting and singing necessitate a nourishing liquid of some kind, and there can be no better beverage for either man or woman than the wine of the country? Now, undoubtedly the wine of England is beer, and, as Dr. Josiah Oldfield, in the Daily Mail of Aug. 27, observed, the stamina of the Englishman is greatly due to the phosphates and salines contained in barley-tea, commonly called beer; and good, wholesome, well-brewed beer can be used to advantage by young and old alike. But, and it is a very big but, it is most essential that the beverage, be it stout or ale, should be matured in a natural manner, and that no carbonating or other artificial process shall be employed to bring it into condition. This Messrs. Whitbread pride themselves on doing, and guarantee that every bottle of stout that leaves their premises shall be perfect in its condition by the natural method of maturing in bottle only, no artificial process of any kind being employed.

THE MANAGERS' CLUB.

In our issue of April 14 we gave some particulars as to the proposed formation of a club for theatrical managers, resident and touring. We are now able to announce that the club is an established fact, for it was formally declared open at three o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. The president, Mr. Edward Lockwood, in a very brief speech, performed this pleasing function, and everybody present drank success to the Club. Mr. J. Bannister Howard also had a few words to say. He trusted that the Club would receive the support of resident and touring managers all over the country, as he believed it would tend to pleasanter relationships in business dealings. Mr. Howard and Mr. G. M. Polini snapped the privilege, before anybody else had a chance, of "christening" the billiard table, Mr. Polini coming out with fifty to the bad in a game of one hundred up. Other gentlemen who assisted at the opening ceremony were Mr. Clarence Sounes, Mr. Cecil Barth, Mr. Fred W. Crellin, Mr. G. B. Phillips, Mr. Harry Lyons, and Mr. William Martin, the secretary. Telegrams wishing prosperity were received from Mr. W. W. Kelly, Mr. Rollo Balmain, Mr. Russell Rosse, and Mr. Wentworth Croke.

The Managers' Club, as it is called, owes its existence to the Touring Managers' Association. Capital premises have been secured at Savoy Mansions, practically in the heart of theatrical London, and yet free from the noises of the busy streets. The Club possesses a most commodious and well-furnished "general room," where members may hold converse with one another and with their friends, and engage in writing or reading; an adequate refreshment bar, a large and well-appointed billiard-room, and, of course, the usual conveniences and offices. The objects of the Club may be stated, briefly, to bring touring and resident managers in touch with one another, to discuss theatrical matters in general for the joint benefit of touring and resident managers, and to provide a suitable place for making appointments, writing letters, and doing the hundred and one things for which a club is usually employed. Light refreshments, such as tea, coffee, &c., are obtainable, as well as wines, ales, and spirits, and the premises will at all times be made comfortable and convenient consistent with reasonable economy.

The membership of the Club is limited to London and country managers of public entertainments, including business and acting-managers, or any other gentlemen interested in or connected with the theatrical, concert, or music hall professions who may be deemed eligible by the committee. The entrance fee and subscription are extremely moderate, and applications for membership should be addressed to the committee or to Mr. William Martin, the secretary. It should be stated that the Managers' Club and the Touring Managers' Association will be kept distinct from each other, and that membership of the one will not of necessity entail membership of the other. We are informed that applications to join the Club and to take shares are daily arriving in such numbers as to prove that the scheme is being heartily welcomed and supported by touring and resident managers, and there seems not the slightest doubt that this undertaking is a move in the right direction. Many well-known theatrical business men have signified their intention of taking shares, and there is already a considerable sum of money in hand, part of which is to be devoted towards the furnishing, rent, and expenses incidental to the registration of the limited company—a form which, for their own protection, most clubs take nowadays. It is confidently anticipated that within a comparatively short space of time, as the membership increases, it will become necessary to acquire additional premises, and all the indications point to the Club occupying a useful and influential position in the not very distant future. Mr. J. Bannister Howard, Mr. Graham Falcon, Mr. B. Lockwood, and Mr. William Martin have for some months past given a good deal of time and attention to the preliminary arrangements in connection with the formation of the Club, and they are to be congratulated upon the extremely satisfactory result of their labours. Touring and resident managers will now be able to meet on mutual ground, and the Managers' Club should, if it does nothing else, conduce to happy relations between these two important departments of the profession.

Messrs. Harry and Edward Paulton's new effort is in striking contrast to their successful extravaganza Niobe, being a romantic costume play with a strong love interest, and a well-conceived yet daring plot, set in the virile, dare-devil days of mid-eighteenth century.

Sir "Miles Carew," whose inheritance had been greatly impoverished in his father's time through the machinations of an evilly-disposed neighbour, Sir Henry Frawley, is persuaded by two questionable companions picked up in town to waylay the coach of the present Sir Henry Frawley (son of the above-named), and attempt to regain possession by robbery of some part of that which he had come to look upon as his own—thus originating the escapades of the three masked highwaymen who have become the terror of the Yorkshire moors. Sir "Miles Carew" leads a lonely sort of a life at Carew Manor in company with his dissolute companions (Capt. Askew and Willoughby Royce), his aunt Melissa, and the Rev. Jeremy (her husband), an unattached and impecunious parson, and other dependents. The highwayman escapades of the trio are apparently unprofitable; for the house is bare and cheerless enough, and funds are so low that Miles confesses to a tenant who would be a-borrowing that he has not ten guineas to lend. Under such circumstances Lady Mallory and Clara, who come down on a visit fresh from London, are naturally disgusted to find bare rooms and cold comfort. Nevertheless, Clara makes eyes at her handsome cousin, and Lady Mallory hints vaguely to him of a cherished hope.

Isaac Beyfus and his daughter Ruth—a fascinating, noble-hearted Jewess, who is already an acquaintance of the hero's by reason of his visits to her moneylending father in London—seek shelter at Carew Manor on account of the nervous prostration of the old gentleman consequent on an adventure with highwaymen on the previous night. Their money had been safely hidden in a secret panel in the coach, but Ruth's jewels had been stolen. Sir Miles, who, with his companions, had on the night in question robbed a carriage without a clue to the identity of its occupants, is stricken with remorse. Ruth discovers his secret, and identifies him as the leader of the highwaymen. She had noticed a death's head signet ring on the hand thrust through the carriage window, and is horrified to find it on Miles's finger. Further, Clara Mallory has unearthed a mosaic brooch belonging to Ruth, and produces it to the company, saying that she found it in an old chest. Ruth keeps her secret, and when Miles in desperation beseeches her to accept the brooch as a present she accepts it, and begs the fatal ring also.

Reports of the robbery have gone about the country, and Carew's sworn enemy Frawley and Savile, a Bow-street runner, arrive to take depositions. Ruth evades the questions, and learns incidentally of a plot to capture the notorious trio that very night. She succeeds in conveying a hint to Miles of the danger. But out of loyalty to his comrades he swears he will accompany them, unarmed, for the last time unless she will give him some hope in life and admit that she cares for him. As a signal of this she is to place a light behind her door curtains, which signal also invites him to her chamber. At the last moment the signal is given, and in spite of the sneers and derision of his comrades Carew remains at home.

Act II. reveals Ruth's chamber. We witness the conflicting emotions which sway her decision. Overcome with shame and trepidation, she places a candle by the door. Meanwhile scraps of previous dialogue between Miles and his companions, had on the night in question robbed a Ruth, and the central scene of the play is enacted. When Miles learns what the danger really is he swears to go even then and join his doomed companions, but Ruth's avowal of love is the climax—he had tested her love, and she his better nature. Savile and Frawley return and raise the house in search of Sir Miles. He escapes from Ruth's window, and in so doing breaks his arm. Unfortunately, being outside, and his chamber not having been occupied, he is unable to prove an alibi. By a slice of luck for all concerned Askew and Royce have made good their escape, and Miles is charged with being the notorious leader of the trio.

In the final act he is brought up for inquiry before Sir Roger Tonk, a magistrate of the old school, and Frawley. Sir Miles meets the accusations of his enemy with spirit, but circumstantial evidence is against him. Things look blue until Ruth boldly describes the chamber incident, on which evidence bluff old Sir Roger dismisses the case. Frawley insults Ruth as a wanton, and Miles retorts by throwing a glass of water in his face and challenging him to a duel for his cowardly attack on the honour of the lady who in three days would be Lady Miles Carew.

The performance went smoothly throughout. Mr. Cyril Keightley made the most of his interesting part, and is a picturesque and gallant figure as Sir Miles Carew; and Miss Haidee Gunn's sweetly sensitive expression and controlled emotions were wonderfully well suited to the part of Ruth Beyfus. The fashionable Lady Mallory and her daughter Clara are cleverly impersonated by Miss Alice Arden and Miss Ethel Dane; Mr. Henry Crocker was altogether excellent as the parson Jeremy Gollsheaf; and the part of his outspoken dame Melissa was presented with quiet humour by Miss Theresa Gregory. Mr. Chas. Medwin as the old moneylender Beyfus was quite successful; Mr. B. A. Pittar acted powerfully as Sir Henry Frawley, the sottish and malevolent enemy of Sir Miles; while in admirable contrast we had as his colleague on the bench the dignified and portly Sir Richard Tonk of Mr. Baliol Holloway, who in the early scenes was associated with Mr. Iden Payne as one of the two evil associates of the hero. Mr. Arthur Fayne was vigorous and praiseworthy as Savile, the Bow-street runner; Mr. Sidney Burton made quite a hit as the butler of Sir Roger, addicted to the (mis)-use of jaw-breaking legal phrases comically mispronounced; and Mr. Ivan Leslie neatly impersonated the part of Badgery. Mr. Basil Dean was good as the poor farmer Dargle. The play was effectively staged and dressed—the Hall of Carew Manor being a notably pretty set—and was received with every demonstration of approval by a crowded house, the principals being repeatedly called before the curtain. Miss Haidee Gunn was presented with two handsome bouquets, Miss Ethel Dane also receiving one. At the close repeated calls were made for the authors, and eventually Mr. Harry Paulton (whose son and collaborateur, Mr. Edward Paulton, is absent in the States) made a brief speech of thanks for the cordial reception of the play.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham, who was at the annual general meeting of the Actors' Benevolent Fund unanimously elected to be its President, will preside at the annual dinner, the date of which is fixed for Wednesday, Dec. 5.

The secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund has received the sum of £1 8s. 6d. from Mr. Philip Rodway, of the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, who has collected that sum by imposing a small tax on professionals for free admission to the theatre. Mr. Lewis Waller has sent a further sum of £3 7s. to the Fund, which he has obtained by the sale of his autographs, and Mr. George Alexander has sent £1 6s., collected in the same way.

As the result of an examination of the late Mr. Toole's house at 44, Maida-vale, a quantity of valuable jewellery has been found. There is no mention of these jewels in Mr. Toole's will. The discovery comes as a surprise to the executor, and the estate, which has gradually been found to be larger than was originally expected, will benefit by a considerable amount from the sale of the jewels. There will be some delay in proving the will, as part of the estate consists of Chilian Government bonds, which, owing to a depression, it is considered better to hold. Mr. Toole had, it appears, arranged that all bequests should be free of legacy duties. In addition to the legacies already referred to in our columns, the late comedian left, from his large collection of diamond rings, one to each of over fifty friends in the theatrical profession. The sale of curios, letters, and personal effects has been deferred until November.

Sir Squire Bancroft and Mr. Arthur Pinero were present at the funeral service of the late Lady Campbell-Bannerman, at Marienbad, on Saturday last.

Mr. Tree has become the owner of a new motor-car, which has been specially designed for him. There is accommodation for four persons, but two seats fold up and make excellent footstools when they are not wanted. There is a collapsible table, and by it a box which contains a looking-glass, hair brush and comb, and a couple of cedar-wood drawers for cigars and cigarettes. There is no need to carry matches, as there is an electric lighter. By means of a tube one can communicate with the chauffeur; but for ordinary directions there is no necessity to use this, because there is a signalling apparatus connected with a series of buttons in the car. Mr. Tree required the new motor for his forthcoming tour in the provinces, so as to be independent of trains, and is delighted with it. The car is so roomy that its owner will be able to sleep in it if he so desires.

When two thousand actors and actresses pledge themselves to support a new movement proposed in the interests of their profession, its ultimate success would appear to be assured. We shall publish next week the eighth list of those who have promised to give their services on Actors' Day for the benefit of the Theatrical Funds and Charities, and this will bring the number of managers, actors, and authors who will contribute up to the substantial total of two thousand. More names are coming in every day, and there is every reason to hope that the number will be largely increased before the 18th of October, which is the day appointed for the inauguration. The organising committee have been greatly assisted by volunteers in all parts of the country. In addition to further promises of help, they will be glad to receive programmes of all companies on tour and in London, with information as to where companies will be on the date named. They invite resident and touring managers to supply them with this information, and with any suggestions they can make to promote the success of the first Actors' Day. Copies of the appeal, forms, and all further information can be obtained from the Organising Committee, Actors' Day, 10, King Street, Covent Garden, W.C., to whom all communications should be addressed.

Mr. Lewis Waller hopes to produce the new play, Robin Hood, at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, on Oct. 12, on the last day but one before the end of his provincial tour. He will open with the piece at the Lyric on Oct. 17. Mr. Waller will play Robin Hood, Mr. Cameron Allan-a-Dale, and Mr. A. E. George Friar Tuck. The part of Maid Marion will be allotted to Miss Evelyn Millard; Mr. Richard Cunningham will be Cœur de Lion; and Prince John will be played by Mr. Devereaux. The songs, &c., are composed by Mr. Herbert Bunning.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard's enterprises are numerous, and their number is constantly increasing. They include three companies with Florodora, one each with The Prince of Pilsen, The Belle of New York, The Earl and the Girl, The Eternal City, and The Christian; two with The Silver King; and one with The Four Just Men. Under Mr. Howard's management are the Crystal Palace Theatre, the Castle Theatre, Richmond, the New Royal, King's Lynn, and the Theatre Royal, Ryde. Truly a surprising list!

Miss Ellaline Terriss and Mr. Seymour Hicks had a pleasant time in Dublin during the Horse Show week. Not only did The Catch of the Season play to the capacity of the Theatre Royal, but the popular pair were honoured by the Lord-Lieutenant with an invitation to the Viceregal Lodge.

Mr. Oswald Brand's benefit matinée on the 18th inst., at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, which has been kindly lent for the occasion by Mr. J. B. Mulholland, has a fine programme. The items will include an Indian episode, by Oswald Brand, entitled The White Squaw; the thieves' kitchen scenes from Mr. Brand's version of Oliver Twist; a miscellaneous concert by a number of West-end star artists; selected episodes from "Bleak House"; and special scenes from Florodora. In addition to these attractions, Mr. Robert Pateman will appear in his intensely powerful impersonation of Quilp, in the sensational Wharf scene from Little Nell.

Associated with the benefit, either as patrons or artists, are Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Miss Lily Brayton and Mrs. Beerbohm Tree, Miss Lena Ashwell, Miss Wynne Matthison, Miss Constance Collier, Miss Helen Bancroft, Miss Tita Brand, and Mlle. Adeline Genée; Miss Phyllis Broughton, Miss Helen Mar, Miss Julie Mackay, Miss Kathleen Kellie, Miss Winifred Hare, Miss Ellen Terry, Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. Seymour Hicks, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. Lionel Brough, Mr. George Mozart, Mr. Frederick Harrison, Mr. Harry Randall, and Mr. George Edwardes. The following have accorded their patronage:—The Countess of Mar and Kellie, Lady Maud B. Wilbraham, Lady Hothfield, Lady Esther Smith, Mrs. T. P. O'Connor, Mrs. Ronalds, and the members of the Playgoers' Club and the Dickens Fellowship.

Mr. Oswald Brand is well known as actor, as author, and as manager, and his stage adaptations of Dickens's works are fresh in the public memory. In addition to his able and sympathetic work as adapter, he personally produced the Dickens cycle of plays, and acted with no little success in several. His health gave way under the strain, and he has been an invalid for many months. With such a splendid bill, and Mr. Brand's popularity in all branches of the profession, the success of the matinée is assured.

Mr. Tree, who has appeared in some of the most popular plays in his extensive répertoire at the Grand Theatre, Blackpool, this week, has met with an enthusiastic reception at each performance. His last visit took place eleven years ago. In reply to a question addressed to him, Mr. Tree, while expressing his delight at the splendid welcome accorded him at Blackpool, remarked that he found audiences very much alike the world over. Usually, however, southern audiences are more demonstrative than those of the north. London is more demonstrative than Manchester—and Australia more than America. Mr. Tree added that Business is Business seemed to appeal to Northerners with more power than it had done in London.

Mr. George Edwardes has fixed on the 22nd inst. for the first performance at the Gaiety Theatre of Messrs. James T. Tanner and W. H. Risque's "extravagance" The New Aladdin, the music of which is by Mr. Ivan Caryll and Mr. Lionel Monckton. The dialogue is in prose, and, as was anticipated, there will no attempt to "revive" the old Gaiety burlesque. Miss Lily Elsie will play the part originally intended for Miss Gertie Millar, who is prevented from appearing in it by the illness of her husband, Mr. Lionel Monckton.

An inquest was held at Dublin on the 30th ult. respecting the death of Mr. Harry Eversleigh, who, as we announced last week, was killed by a motor-car in Dublin on the previous night. Deceased was a baritone vocalist attached to Mr. Seymour Hicks's company, which is at present performing in the Irish capital. He was stepping off a tramcar, when a motor, in which two ladies were being driven by the chauffeur to Mr. Brooke, agent to Earl Fitzwilliam, struck him, and he was killed instantly. A mark on the head was the only sign of injury. Mr. Eversleigh was only thirty-two, and was married. It was stated at the inquest that deceased's proper name was Porter, and he hailed from Wath-on-Dearne, Yorkshire. A verdict of accidental death was returned, and sympathy was expressed with Mr. Seymour Hicks and his company.

The funeral took place on Saturday. The remains were interred in Mount Jerome Cemetery, Dublin. The chief mourners were the sister and brother-in-law of deceased, and others attending the funeral were Mr. Seymour Hicks, Mr. W. A. Seymour, manager of The Catch of the Season company, and several members of the profession. The remains were first conveyed to the cemetery chapel, where the service was performed by the cemetery chaplain, who afterwards accompanied the coffin to the graveside. Several beautiful floral wreaths were sent by friends and admirers of the deceased, amongst which were one from the directors and manager of the Theatre Royal, one from the ladies and gentlemen of The Girl on the Stage Company, Gaiety Theatre; one from Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Ellaline Terriss, one from the members of the Catch of the Season Company, and a large floral cross from Alicia Brookes.

Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's new play, The Hypocrites, which was presented on the evening of the 30th ult. by Mr. Charles Frohman at the Hudson Theatre, New York, and which was also produced on that day, for copyright purposes, at the Grand Theatre, Hull, has for its motto the words, "Expediency is man's wisdom: doing right is God's," from "The Pilgrim's Scrip." The heroine, Rachel Neve, made a step from the path which women are expected to keep, and, hoping to return to the right path by a marriage with her lover, Lennard Wilmore, she calls on his mother, Mrs. Wilmore, to whom her secret is, by an accident, made known. This lady, however, has other designs for her son, and has succeeded in bringing about his engagement with Helen Plugenet, the daughter of a neighbouring wealthy baronet. This marriage she hopes will build up their shattered fortunes, and the whole theme of the play is her endeavour to hide the fact of her son's fault with Miss Neve, and to bring about his marriage with Miss Plugenet. Throughout two acts she is successful in her endeavours, but they are at last frustrated owing to the zeal and energy of the hero—the Rev. Edgar Linnell, the curate of the parish.

The play really resolves itself into a battle between these two—between a woman who says that women have "no moral principles when it comes to saving those we love" and a strong-minded man, who fights her and her friends single-handed, in the face of every obstacle, and ultimately wins. All the other characters in the play—the vicar, the doctor, the lawyer, and their respective wives and families—are against him, and the heroine herself has been cajoled into trying to clear Lennard of all blame. The only one who honestly believes that he is innocent all along is his fiancée, Helen Plugenet, who is very much in love with him. After some strong scenes, full of intrigue, we are brought to the crisis—in the third act—where Sir John Plugenet, the father of Helen, insists on sifting the mystery for himself, and to that end he assembles all the parties concerned. This is a very strong scene, and reminds one of the famous trial scene in Mrs. Dane's Defence.

Besides the chief personages there are some little character sketches—the fat old vicar of the parish, the Reverend Everard Daubeny, who is a time-serving, placid, self-indulgent man of sixty; the village doctor, a stout, middle-aged man with a bland, sleek, formal, deferential, bedside manner; his wife, Mrs. Blaney, a stiff, formal, ill-natured body of forty-five, quite provincial and middle-class in tone, manner, and thought; and Mr. Wilmore, the lord of the Manor, a stout, violent, shallow, hot-tempered, illogical, English country gentleman, stuffed with all the prejudices of his class.

By the courtesy of Mr. J. B. Mulholland and the directors of the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway, the copyright performance of an entirely new comedy opera in three acts, entitled Lady Tatters, was given at that house on Friday afternoon, the 31st ult. The libretto is by Mr. Herbert Leonard, the music by Mr. Walter Slaughter, and the lyrics by Mr. Roland Carse. The period of the piece is 1660.

Mr. George Warren's version of Mr. Edgar Wallace's novel, The Four Just Men, was produced, for copyright purposes, at the Theatre Royal, Colchester, on Friday, 31st ult., by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company. The piece is to commence a tour at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Oct. 8 next.

The time of the play is the present, and Act I. shows us the gardens of an hotel in Cadiz. Act II. discloses to view a drawing-room in Sir Philip Ranson's house in Portland-place; whilst the third act provides three scenes, viz., at 45, Carnaby-street, West, a scene on the Thames Embankment, and the editorial office of the Megaphone. The fourth and last act also gives three scenes, the first and third of which lie at No. 45, Carnaby-street, whilst the second shows us Sir Philip's study at the Foreign Office in Downing-street. The music is by Miss Eva Stuart and Miss Violet Campbell, and a song is sung by Miss Ethel Percival.

Professor Horspool will give a lecture at the Academy, 14, George-street, Hanover-square, W., on Thursday, the 13th inst., at 3.30 p.m., solely to members of the profession, and those wishing to attend should apply to the secretary, Mr. Algernon R. Marman, A.M., for tickets, for which no charge will be made.

Mr. Martin Harvey, who has been playing to crowded houses at the Londesborough Theatre, Scarborough, throughout the week, has instructed Miss Violet Langbridge, a daughter of the Rev. Frederick Langbridge, to re-write certain portions of The Corsican Brothers, with the object chiefly of intensifying the love interest. As a lever de rideau, The Spell, a one-act play by Miss Rosamund Langbridge, another daughter of the dramatist-cleric, will be produced in conjunction with The Corsican Brothers when that play is done at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, for the first time on or about October 10. Miss N. de Silva and Miss Mary Rorke will appear in Miss Rosamund Langbridge's play. Mr. Harvey will appear on Monday at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, where, on the following Friday, Hamlet will be revived for the first time this tour, and at the request of a large number of Clydeside playgoers.

Mr. A. H. Canby has completed negotiations with Sir Charles Wyndham by which the very successful run of The Prince Chap at the Criterion Theatre will be extended for some weeks beyond the period originally fixed. Miss Adie Boyne, whom Mr. Canby discovered in the provinces, has been engaged to play the part of the servant Puckers in succession to Miss Hilda Trevelyan.

Mr. Cecil du Gué, whose good work as Napoleon I. in A Royal Divorce and Vinicius in Quo Vadis? will be remembered, has been engaged by Mr. Walter Reynolds to star in the title-rôle of his brilliantly successful play, Mr. Smith.

On the application of Mr. Norton, of the Haymarket Theatre, Mr. Denman granted a licence to permit Miriam Priddis, a little girl, to play in The Man from Blankley's. Inspector Landon, representing the Commissioner of Police, offered no objection.

The New Grand Theatre, Mansfield, was inspected last Saturday by the magistrates, who expressed themselves satisfied with the building and appointments. According to present arrangements, the place will open its doors on Monday, Sept. 17.

Miss Lulu Bonney was some time ago engaged by Mr. Henry Dundas in Hearts are Trumps. An important communication, containing news of great advantage to the young lady, lies at this office. Will any friend of Miss Bonney's who sees this paragraph kindly send address to Bamberger, care of The Era Office.

The cast of Mrs. Henry de la Pasture's play, Peter's Mother, to be produced by Mr. Otho Stuart, by arrangement with Mr. Frank Curzon, at Wyndham's Theatre, on Wednesday, will include Mr. Norman McKinnell, Miss Marion Terry, Mr. A. E. Mathews, Miss Dolores Drummond, Miss Alice Beet, Mr. Fred Kerr, Mr. E. W. Garden, Mr. Alfred Bucklaw, Mrs. Edward Saker, Miss Hilda Trevelyan, Mr. Reginald Eyre, and Mr. Montague Elphinstone. The piece will be preceded by The Sixth Commandment, by C. Hamilton, in which Mr. F. Percival Stevens, Miss Madge McIntosh, Mr. Walter Hampden, and Miss Isabel Grey will appear.

Mr. Bram Stoker's "Personal Reminiscences of Henry Irving" will be published by Mr. Heinemann in two large volumes on Oct. 13, which is the anniversary of Irving's death. The book is full of anecdotes and personal recollections of Irving and his many friends and acquaintances.

A new play, entitled The King's Signet, by Watson Bay, will be produced at the Grand Theatre, Fulham, on Monday, the 17th inst. The company will include, amongst others, Miss Marie de Campi, who makes her first appearance in this country, and comes here with a big reputation from America. Lavish mounting is promised, complete new scenery being done by E. G. Banks, Imperial Theatre, and costumes of the sixteenth century from Messrs. L. and H. Nathan. The company includes Mr. Alfred Woods, Miss Maud Williamson, and Mr. Charles Collette. It is intended to send this play on a short tour in the provinces during the autumn.

Mr. Allan Wilkie is this week paying a return visit to the Lyceum, Ipswich, after a lapse of over four months. He opened on Monday, despite the hot weather, to a crowded house in Hamlet, his performance in the title-rôle being received with tumultuous enthusiasm, the curtain having to be raised some five or six times at the end of each act. The local Press have been most eulogistic in his praise, and the booking for the remainder of the week is exceptionally heavy.

The latest additions to the Fred Locke Fund, received by Mr. J. S. Crichton, 9, Bridge-street, Glasgow, are as follows:—Collected by Arnold Bell, £1; John Manson (Lodge Star, 219), 2s. 6d.

Mr. Forbes-Robertson's production of The Merchant of Venice at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on the 31st ult., when he made his first appearance as Shylock, was witnessed by a large and very friendly audience. Mr. Forbes-Robertson's conception of Shylock was marked by striking intellectuality, and a tendency to represent Shylock as an unmitigated villain rather than an injured individual. At the beginning of the third act, Mr. Forbes-Robertson's outburst of passion surpassed any other moment of his performance. Miss Gertrude Elliott's Portia was a charming piece of work; and the remainder of the cast rendered good service. The scenery and dresses were beautiful.

Mr. W. H. C. Nation's forthcoming programme at Terry's Theatre will include a condensed version of the old comedy He's Much to Blame, attributed to Thomas Holcroft, the author of The Road to Ruin.

Messrs. Vedrenne and Granville Barker will produce at a matinée at the Court Theatre, on the 25th inst., a new play by Mr. John Galsworthy, the novelist. It is in three acts, and is entitled Silverbox. The scene of the third act is a police-court, realistically produced in every detail.

Mr. H. B. Irving will appear at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, on Thursday in Charles I., and on the following Wednesday will sail for New York.

Mr. T. W. Rawson, who met with such a serious accident at Morecambe on June 15, where he was then playing Clivebrook in The Bauble Shop, is slowly recovering from the effects of his mishap. His ankle was broken, and the healing process has been a long and arduous one, but Mr. Rawson, under the constant observation of Dr. Batten, of Morecambe, has displayed great fortitude. He is now able to take the air in a bathchair, and to enjoy the pleasure of a chat with new-made friends. His old friends have been very solicitous, and he has been the recipient of many sympathetic messages from them. He hopes to rejoin The Bauble Shop again very soon.

Mr. Standen Triggs, who has been manager and managing-director of the Devonshire Park, Eastbourne, for the past twenty-three years, has announced his intention of resigning his position at the end of the current year. Mr. Triggs will retain a seat on the board of directors, where his intimate knowledge of the local and special requirements will be available, we hope, for many years to come.

Mr. George Musgrove's Belle of New York company, under the direction of Mr. Charles Thorburn, will embark upon a lengthened tour of the suburban theatres on Monday next, Sept. 3, at the Camden. The cast includes Mr. Frank Lawton, in his original part of Blinky Bill; Miss Empsie Bowman as the "Belle"; and Miss Winnie Browne, Miss V. Maxwell, Miss V. Spears, Miss F. Hessee, Messrs. John Doran, C. W. Anson, W. Uridge, and Paddy Duprés. New scenery and dresses will be features of the reproduction, which has been supervised by Mr. Arthur Linforth, and in which several new numbers will be found. The tour, which is already booked for next spring and autumn, will be managed by Mr. Wilfred Esmond.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held last Tuesday. There were present Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy-chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Misses Kate Phillips and Saba Raleigh, and Messrs. Cecil Barth, Burton Cooke, F. Cremlin, Fewlass Llewellyn, Quinton McPherson, M. R. Morand, A. B. Tapping, Spencer Trevor, and Hubert Willis, and Mr. Charles Cruikshanks (sec.).

The hon solicitors reported they had advised several members upon points submitted, and a member having attended before the Council and explained the circumstances in connection with an alleged breach of a contract made between such member and a manager, the hon. solicitors were requested to write to the manager claiming damages for the alleged breach, and were instructed to enforce the claim if necessary. The Council considered a case of alleged bogus management, and the secretary was directed to file the information furnished for future reference. The secretary reported the receipt of a third instalment towards the liquidation of the balance due from a manager to various members of the Association.

The question of a three-quarter fare for actors was again under discussion, and it was ultimately agreed that a member of the Council should interview an influential member of the profession, who might present the views of the Council to the railway authorities.

In connection with the meeting of members, arranged to be held in the saloon of Drury Lane Theatre on Monday, the 1st prox., to consider the questions involved in the proposed Irving memorial, the secretary stated that he had posted twenty notices of the meeting in the various rooms of the Association, calling the attention of the members to the fact. The secretary submitted the list of unpaid subscriptions, and received instructions from the Council to deal with the matter. The secretary reported that a matter which had been referred to arbitration was withdrawn, owing to the fact that one of the three persons concerned would not agree to refer the question in dispute. Mr. Leopold Burroughs, L.R.C.P., M.R.C.S., Tudor House, Eltham-road, Lee, S.E., was elected as an hon. medical officer to the Association. Mary Morrell, Florence Smithers, Fred Maguire, and William Cronin-Wilson were nominated as candidates for election as members of the Association, and two former members were nominated for reinstatement.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday last, when the chair was occupied by Mr. A. E. Drinkwater, supported by Messrs. C. Aubrey Smith, Hubert Willis, and the secretary, Mr. Charles Cruikshanks. The secretary received instructions to prepare a leaflet, setting forth the advantages of the scheme under which all members of the Association whose subscriptions are paid are insured.

Mr. Leonard Boyne will sustain the leading part in Raffles when the piece is taken to the provinces, opening on Monday week at Oldham.

Mlle. Gaby Delys, a charming young Parisian actress, has been engaged by Mr. George Edwardes for a part in The New Aladdin that is to be produced at the Gaiety at the end of the present month. The title is The New Aladdin, but it will bear no likeness in any respect to the old Gaiety burlesque. Mlle. Delys, when she arrived in London, was only acquainted with a few words of English, but she has speedily improved her knowledge of the language. In the new Gaiety play, Mlle. Delys will play a part called "The Charm of Paris," and her mission is to show how Parisiennes walk, and sing and dance

Miss Louisa Peach, who has been appearing in her sketch, Taming a Husband, for the last few months, has been engaged by Miss Mary Neil and Mr. George Kirke for the leading part in Judy. The tour starts on Monday at the Theatre Royal, Scarborough.

Mrs. Crowe (Miss Bateman) has returned to town, and is ready to start her classes again. Her Dramatic School re-opens on the 24th. At this school many of the most popular players of to-day learned the rudiments of their art. Only last term Mrs. Crowe had the great pleasure of two of her students going straight from her tuition to play leading parts—Miss Viva Birkett, who has just created the part of Helen Plugenet in Mr. H. A. Jones's new play, The Hypocrites, in New York, and Miss Muriel Currey, who gave a fine performance of Miss Richland in The Good-Natured Man, lately produced by Mr. Poel. In fact, during Mrs. Crowe's course, her pupils have to study and rehearse so many and such varied parts that when they leave her they are capable artists.

Among the applications for engagements received by W. Scott Phipp for Servais Le Roy's Mystical Play was the following:—"Seeing as how you are advertizing in The Era and being desirous of entering your profession I send in this letter for the situation. You state you want a juvenile. I am sixteen, and am sure that I am suitable. If that is filled and seeing you want a heavy man I may tell you my weight without overcoat and walking stick is ten stones which doubtless you will consider heavy enough for your purposes. As to part of heroine I think my young lady could do that all right. She has not been on the stage yet but she thinks she is clever enough for this sort of thing. I have always wanted to get into your profession and can compose songs and comic pieces. My trade at present is the butchers line, but as I believe your line is composed of art I fully intend to do it."

Mr. George Musgrove's Belle of New York company embarked upon its ninth year of tour at the Camden Theatre on Monday before a crowded audience, which included many well known representatives of society, art, literature, and the drama. Indeed, the casual spectator looking round upon the brilliant assembly might well have imagined himself assisting at some West End première. The principals were all accorded hearty receptions, encores were the order of the evening, and the enthusiasm of the audience, which had commenced with the opening number, culminated in a veritable storm of cheers. It is not generally known that Miss Winnie Browne, whose fine presence and admirable voice make her an ideal "queen of comic opera," holds the Royal Society's medal for saving a youth from drowning a few years ago.

The Victoria Theatre, West Stanley, is closed pending some stage and other improvements, for the production of Sapho next week, under the new management of Mr. Cassidy, brother to Mr. Rice Cassidy, of Muldoon fame.

Miss Alice Thurgate, one of the members of Mr. Seymour Hicks' company, was driving rapidly to the theatre in a side-car at Dublin last week, when the horse shied violently at a passing tram, throwing Miss Thurgate to the ground. Had it not been for the good services of a passer-by, who quickly extricated her foot from the stirrup-step, there is little doubt she would have been seriously hurt; as it was, she escaped with a few slight scratches and bruises. Miss Thurgate is a clever dancer, and has done much good work under the banner of American managers "on the other side." Indeed, she has only returned to England for family reasons, and, having received many tempting offers, may cross the Atlantic again before long.

Mr. Charles Carey will present about Christmas a second edition of After the Ball, under a new title. The piece has been almost continuously on tour for twelve months, and has settled down into a genuine success.

Miss Dora Langham (Miss Gabrielle Ray's understudy) has again been playing the part of So-hei in See-See at the Prince of Wales's Theatre this week, owing to the indisposition of Miss Ray, and has been warmly applauded in all the musical numbers, including the "Lantern" duet with Mr. Huntley Wright.

In consequence of the unavoidable absence of Miss Queenie Finnis from the cast of After the Ball, at the Athenæum Theatre, Lancaster, last Saturday night, her part of Nellie Mather was most successfully undertaken by Miss Dorothy Westerleigh, who rendered with conspicuous ability the various vocal numbers, and otherwise displayed unusual histrionic talent.

Dr. Walford Bodie has appointed Mr. Arthur Jefferson—whose "booking agency" is rapidly progressing—as his sole provincial representative, and considering the doctor's fame, and consequent demand for his dates, renders the services of a booking agency almost unnecessary, it may be accepted as ample evidence of his faith in Mr. Jefferson's business abilities. Needless to say, Mr. Jefferson himself is highly pleased with the commission, the negotiations being the outcome of a long friendship, extending over fifteen years, during which time—apart from friendship—Mr. Jefferson has had ample opportunity of testing, by means of local cases in which he has been personally interested, the genuineness of the doctor's world-wide successful methods of treatment of his patients.

The next term at Mme. Kate Flinn's Academy for singing and voice production commences on Sept. 10. Quite a number of this accomplished lady professor's pupils get regular engagements on the stage.

Mr. W. S. Penley describes the new piece which he intends to produce shortly as "a comedy of personality." Provincial audiences will have the first opportunity of witnessing the new production; and, according to present arrangements, it will be staged at his own theatre in Great Queen-street at or about Christmas time.

Mr. Frank Curzon is not giving up the lease of the Prince of Wales's Theatre at the end of the run of See-See. His contract with Mr. George Edwardes will finish at the end of the run of the play, and Mr. Curzon will then present various attractions at the Prince of Wales's. His association with Mr. Edwardes has been very pleasant, but he is desirous of devoting his energies to his own theatres, and wants the Prince of Wales's Theatre for his own attractions.

His first production will be Miss Hook of Holland, written by Mr. Paul Rubens, in which Mr. G. P. Huntley will play the lead. Afterwards he will produce The Maid at the Ferry, by Mr. Basil Hood, Mr. Leedham Bantock, and Mr. Howard Talbot, with Miss Isabel Jay in the name-part. This will be followed by another new piece, called The Three Kisses, written by Mr. Percy Greenbank, Mr. Leedham Bantock, and Mr. Howard Talbot.

The Moody-Manners Opera Company has been very successful at the Kennington Theatre this week. On Wednesday they appeared in Carmen, Miss Zélie de Lussan creating a powerful impression by her fine performance as Carmen; Mr. Joseph O'Mara being warmly applauded as José, Mr. Lewys James singing splendidly as Escamillo, and Miss Ethel Cadman being a delightfully sweet and simple Micäela. Mr. Romualdo Sapio conducted the excellent orchestra with great skill.

As we have already announced, the date fixed for the production of Mr. Hall Caine's new play, The Bondman, at Drury Lane, is Thursday, the 13th inst. Much that is contained in the novel has been sacrificed by the author to meet the requirements of the stage. Briefly, the story shows how Red Jason, with a mother's wrongs crying out for redress, deserts from his ship, and in his flight reaches the adopted home of his half-brother, Michael Sunlocks, just as the latter has set out for the Island of Ustica in search of a fortune. Jason is made welcome, and his thoughts are turned from vengeance by the passionate pleadings of Greeba, who has plighted her troth to Michael. After a lapse of time, and hearing nothing from Michael, Greeba—urged on by her parents—gives a hesitating assent to Jason's suit. Then comes news of Michael, who has headed a revolution, deposed the Governor of Ustica and been elected President, and who now sends for his affianced bride to join him. Torn between love and duty, Greeba sets off to meet her lover, leaving Jason to follow with a double motive for vengeance.

In pursuit of his revenge, Jason becomes the tool of the reactionary party in Ustica, but in the moment of his triumph he is himself denounced by Greeba, and hurried off to the sulphur mines. Thither he is followed by Michael, who has fallen a victim to another coup d'état. What follows the meeting of the brothers at the mines it would be unfair to tell, for these are the dramatic surprises of Mr. Hall Caine's play, and constitute its widest departures from the novel.

Scenically, The Bondman gives full scope for those effects for which Mr. Arthur Collins has gained world-wide renown. Its four acts are divided into five scenes, with tableaux at the opening and close of the play. The farmyard, with its live-stock, hayricks, and cornfields ripe for harvest, stretching down to the sea, which is seen through a mist of sunlight over the edge of a craggy cliff, will be found remarkably realistic. In order to ensure the accuracy of the local colour of the scene at the sulphur mines, both Mr. Collins and Mr. Caine visited the original mines in Sicily, and the result, there can be no doubt, will be a triumph of realism.

Every part, even to the smallest, has been cast with the best available talent, as the following list shows: Mr. Fairbrother, Mr. Lionel Brough; Adam Fairbrother, Mr. Henry Neville; Mrs. Fairbrother, Miss Marie Illington; Greeba, Mrs. Patrick Campbell; Michael Sunlocks, Mr. Henry Ainley; Jason, Mr. Frank Cooper; Father Ferrati, Mr. James Fernandez; Dr. Boni, Mr. Oscar Adye; Governor Testa, Mr. Austin Melford; Christian Ann, Miss Mary Brough; and the President's housekeeper, Miss Henrietta Watson.

The periodical revivals of The Winter's Tale and their success are a standing testimony to the child-like element in any theatrical audience, or, indeed, in any audience whatever. "Tell me a story!" says the child. "Amuse me, divert me, charm me!" And playgoers of all ages are but children of a larger growth. We cannot possibly know what were Shakespeare's feelings when writing the comedy. It seems to have been one of the latest of his works; and he may have written it to amuse himself, with an old man's easy, benevolent, half-contemptuous indifference. Of course, he could not touch the "Historie of Dorastus and Fawnia" without adorning it with some dramatic cohesion and effect. Indeed, Greene's chap-book only supplied him with hints; and Shakespeare had not only to remodel the plot, but to create the characters. But he seems to have resigned himself chiefly to telling a story. In substance The Winter's Tale is irresponsible melodrama, gilded with Shakespeare's marvellous genius for flesh-and-blood characterisation, and his exquisite poetical faculty. We are not to ask why Leontes is jealous of Hermione, or marvel at the "long arm" of the coincidence which makes Florizel fall in love with the very farmer's daughter who is a concealed princess and a possible bride for him. We must just accept the play as a "story," "entertaining," as Johnson said, in his blunt way, "with all its absurdities."

It follows that any liberties taken with the text and any embellishments added are quite in place. In the first important revival of the play—Garrick's version, produced at Drury Lane in 1756, in which the actor-adapter, in his own words, "confined and bottled" Shakespeare's liquor—the original was freely cut, and liberally supplied with new lyrics, Mrs. Cibber's singing as Perdita being the hit of the production. Kemble revived The Winter's Tale at Drury Lane in 1802, with himself as Leontes and Mrs. Siddons as Hermione, her beauties of form above the waist making her an ideal statue, and her awaking being a marvellous bit of dumb show. Macready played Leontes at Drury Lane in 1823, and again in 1843. Charles Kean mounted the play in 1856 very elaborately, with fine scenery, and a large amount of dancing and pageantry, Mrs. Heath (afterwards Mrs. Wilson Barrett) being the Perdita, and Mr. Ryder the Polixenes. Mrs. Waller played Hermione under F. B. Chatterton's management at Drury Lane in 1878, with Mrs. Herman Vezin and Charles Dillon in the cast; and Miss Mary Anderson, at the Lyceum, in 1887, doubled the rôles of Hermione and Perdita, Mr. Forbes Robertson playing Leontes, Miss Sophie Eyre Paulina, Mr. F. H. Macklin Polixenes, Mr. Fuller Mellish Florizel, Mr. S. Maclean Camillo, and Mr. Charles Collette Autolycus. One fancies that the writing of The Winter's Tale did not give Shakespeare much trouble. Its charm is spontaneous. Its characters, compared with Shakespeare's strongest, are merely sketched. Hermione's troubles do not affect us as do Desdemona's. The jealousy of Leontes is mere moonshine compared with that of the Moor of Venice. We are not too deeply interested in the troubles of the leading personages; for we feel certain, from the tone of the tale, that we may rely upon seeing "happy endings" to all their afflictions.

The beauty of the mounting of this revival of The Winter's Tale simply "beggars description"—not so much by great gorgeousness as by exquisitely picturesque and artistic quality. Mr. Percy Macquoid's designs for the costumes are marvels of judicious selection and adaptation from authorities. It is impossible to do justice by description to the lovely scenery by Messrs. W. Emden, W. T. Hemsley, G. Seckman, Raphael, J. Harker, and T. E. Ryan. Each set is a gem in its way, and the above excellent artists have excelled themselves on this occasion in the exercise of the art which they understand so well. Especially memorable are Mr. Ryan's scene, Before the Shepherd's Cottage, with its lovely lake and rivulets "purling" amidst masses of moss and ferns; but the Sicilian and Bohemian Courts are most sumptuously depicted by Mr. Emden, Mr. Seckman, and Mr. Harker. Such gifted composers as Mr. Coleridge Taylor, Mr. Andrew Levey, Mr. Raymond Roze, and Mr. Adolf Schmid have been commissioned to supply the music, and have done so with happy judgment and agreeable inspiration.

And now, having dealt with the play, we come to the players. Beautiful as the production undoubtedly is, we doubt if any but the most ardent Shakespearean enthusiasts could have so utterly disregarded the thermometer on Saturday night had the acting not been of rare excellence, which it is almost impossible to rate too highly. Add to this a series of beautiful pictures, some reminding us of the classic art of Alma-Tadema, others delighting the eye with their sylvan simplicity, charming music and graceful dances, and one can hardly wonder that enthusiasm at His Majesty's ran as high as the thermometer. First in the public favour on Saturday night, as for the last fifty years, was Miss Ellen Terry, Ellen Terry the incomparable. Never, we venture to think, have the tenderness, the grace, the bubbling gaiety, the exquisite pathos, which all contribute to the fascinating personality called Ellen Terry, been more apparent than in the rôle of Hermione. In the Court of Justice scene, when Hermione answers the base accusations made against her, Miss Terry was at her very finest. The soft, pleading voice, broken with emotion; the eloquent, sorrowful face, which for a moment was illumined with eager hope when the words of the Oracle were read, only to be clouded with blank despair when Leontes denounces the Oracle as worthless; the anguish too deep for words when she hears of the death of her first-born—in fact, the whole wonderful art of Miss Terry held the audience spell-bound; and the spell was only broken when the curtain fell, and roar upon roar of applause brought Miss Terry again and again in front of the curtain. Mr. Charles Warner gave a masterly study of Leontes, a part eminently suited to the methods of the "old school," of which Mr. Warner is so popular an exponent. He played the jealous husband, who feeds on his own jealousy until his whole being is obsessed with the one idea, to perfection; and, when most torn by the violence of his own emotions, there was never absent that touch of high dignity which befits the part of a king. In striking contrast with the unreasonable passion of the earlier scenes were the chastened resignation and penitence of Leontes in the final act; and the yearning tenderness with which the King regards his own daughter, all unknowingly, when he sees in her a likeness to his much-wronged wife, was beautifully and touchingly portrayed. As Paulina, the woman with the heart of gold and the tongue of a termagant, Mrs. Tree gave us the ripe, vigorous performance which we have learned to expect from this talented actress; she held the audience every moment that she was on the stage. Most striking was her acting in the Prison scene. Paulina is holding forth in an indignant tirade against the jealous tyrant Leontes, her eyes flash, she stamps with her foot, when Emilia—played sympathetically by Miss Florence Wells—approaches with the infant princess in her arms. At the sight of the babe Paulina's anger evaporates at a breath, the strident note leaves her voice as if by magic, and she gathers the child to her arms and coos as softly over it as a dove over its nestling. Miss Viola Tree made a very charming Perdita, fresh as a June morning, with some delightful little touches of girlish coyness and sentiment. Her dancing in the beautiful rustic scene Before the Shepherd's Cottage made us echo Florizel's wish that she were a wave of the sea and would dance for ever. The part of Camillo was entrusted to the capable hands of Mr. Lyn Harding, who played it with that breadth and soundness which invariably distinguish this clever actor. Mr. Basil Gill as Florizel looked handsome enough to win the heart of any maiden, and acted with an impetuosity and youthful fervour which left nothing to be desired. Polixenes was excellently represented by Mr. Julius Knight, strongly reminiscent in appearance, voice, and method of the late Wilson Barrett. Master Tonge was a most captivating Mamillius, and spoke with excellent distinctness; Mr. William H. Day gave a very good study of an old shepherd; and Mr. O. B. Clarence made a great deal out of the small part of a clown. The expressions which chased one another across the actor's mobile features as he heard from Autolycus of the probable death which he was to die were most laughter-provoking. Mr. C. W. Somerset's Autolycus was rich in dry and smart humour, and Mr. Fisher White made a very dignified Antigonus, and was also very impressive and admirable in elocution as the Spirit of Time in the Monologue. Mr. J. S. Blythe was an excellent Gaoler, and the small parts of a Sicilian Lord and Servant to Leontes were efficiently filled by Mr. David Powell and Mr. Edward Ouston respectively; while Mr. Henry Williams as Cleomenes and Mr. Keith Fraser as Dion both put in excellent work. Mr. Reginald Craven made a convincing Mariner, and Mr. E. S. Vinden a becomingly rustic servant to the Old Shepherd; while Mr. Yates Southgate as the Officer of the Court of Judicature was duly impressive. Miss Bruce-Joy as Mopsa proved herself the possessor of a very pretty voice and a most engaging style; and her rival Dorcas was capitally played by Miss Edith Jefferies, who also sang very prettily. The trio between Autolycus, Mopsa, and Dorcas in Act II., Scene III., was warmly apreciated. Miss Frances Leighton as First Lady and Miss Ethel Wood as Second Lady Attendant on the Queen made the most of their chances.

At the close of the performance the principals were called many times before the curtain, and enthusiasm reached its height when Mr. Tree led Miss Terry forward. There were repeated calls for a speech, but none on this occasion was vouchsafed.

MR. BOURCHIER'S EXPERIMENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Mr. Bourchier desires me to thank you for so kindly meeting his views with regard to last night's performance at the Garrick Theatre. He felt it was impossible that a good impression of a play, really valuable to the public, could be conveyed to paper in the short time at the disposal of a writer under the circumstances existing previous to last evening.

His opinion was confirmed by the fact that many of the most eminent first-night representatives of newspapers were in the habit of asking to be allowed to be present at a dress rehearsal, or to read a play previous to the first performance, so as to assist them in what had been an impossible task. Mr. Bourchier feels that to see a dress rehearsal (i.e., a half-fledged performance) or to read a play before seeing it performed is a bad way of gaining that first impression so important to the critical mind. Further, it is surely more satisfactory to the representatives of newspapers to see a play when several public performances have removed the natural first-night nervousness of actors and actresses, leaving them self-possessed and confident for their work.

Again, if any small alterations are required to be made to the play, a few performances before the public—the London public—will discover these and alterations can be accomplished previous to the time when the newspaper representatives form their judgments. To musical comedy lenient criticism has always been the order of the day, because the feeling is strong that such an adaptable vehicle in the hands of clever artists can be much improved in, say, a month. Such consideration has not been extended to other productions. A play is not so adaptable, perhaps, as musical comedy, but in a less degree it can be dealt with, and Mr. Bourchier asks for one week for such work to be done, if necessary.

Mr. George Edwardes, in his interview with the representative of the Daily Telegraph, has made a statement which, in our experience in this theatre is the reverse of fact. He says: "I don't want my public to wait for some days before having the opinions of the Press. They would simply keep away until notices had appeared." As a most direct refutation of this, the plain statement of what has occurred in this theatre during the last fourteen hours will suffice. At the moment of writing both the sale of the American rights of The Morals of Marcus and the library deal for this play have been definitely settled and confirmed.—Yours faithfully,

M. V. LEVEAUX.

Garrick Theatre, Charing Cross-road, W.C.,
Aug. 31, 1906.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD'S company opened a three-night engagement on the 30th ult. at the Theatre Royal, Colchester, with The Eternal City. The cast contained several talented artists, whilst the scenery was the subject of much favourable comment. Mr. D. Lewin Mannering, in the part of Baron Bonelli, played the cultured Italian admirably, and he had to appear before the curtain after each act. He was ably supported by a talented actress in Miss Sara de Groot, who, in the rôle of Donna Roma, scored most decisively. Mr. Henry Deas was forceful as David Rossi, and Mr. J. Fortescue made a worthy Pope. Mr. W. O'Flynn showed considerable merit as Bruno, and the remaining characters, which were numerous, were represented in a capable fashion.

AMONG those present in the audience at the revival of The Winter's Tale at His Majesty's Theatre on Saturday last were Miss Marion Terry, who received an ovation from the pit on her entrance, Miss Constance Collier, Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, and Mr. Lionel Brough.

MR. CHARLES COLLETTE, who has been most successfully appearing at seaside resorts in his popular sketches, is specially engaged by Miss Marie Campi, the well-known American actress, to sustain a leading part in The King's Signet, at the Grand Theatre, Fulham, on Monday, Sept. 17.

"TODDLES."

ERA Sept. 8, 1906

Irresolute and weak-kneed heroes of farce became quite the craze at the theatres last year in Paris, and the taste for their invertebracy was transferred to London with the production of The Indecision of Mr. Kingsbury, at the Haymarket. Now we have another "erratic" at the Duke of York's—by name Toddles, which turns out to be one more adaptation from the French, and it was produced on Monday with considerable success. It will be easy to put on steam in the first act, and then all will be well with Mr. Charles Frohman's latest presentation. The original of Toddles is Triplepatte—produced on Nov. 30 last year at the Paris Athenée—which was pronounced by our correspondent to be a brightly written and amusing comedy. The wit and satire have not evaporated in the passage across Channel, and there is much laughter to be enjoyed over the droll situations of what—in its English dress—contains all the obviousness of farce. Toddles is the lightest possible fare, and is, for the most part, genuinely funny.

Lord Meadows, nicknamed by his intimates Toddles, is an impecunious peer of about thirty-two, who, up to the time of the curtain rising, has "slithered" through life, and resolved on nothing so much as letting things generally "rip." He certainly has caught something of the prevailing enthusiasm for motoring, and gives way to a pardonable anxiety about his finances when he borrows £500 from Haslitt. A valetudinarian, he has been sent by his doctor to a small spa to drink the waters. It is there that he meets his aunt, Lady Dover, a professional matchmaker, who, like some society women, makes a comfortable income out of her introductions. She decides immediately on the fate of Toddles. He is deeply in debt, and must marry. Constance Joblyn, the pretty daughter of a rich banker, is the very girl. She unfolds her project to Mrs. Joblyn, a good-natured parvenue, who is, of course, delighted at the prospect of having a peer for a son-in-law. So entirely eligible a union will further her ambition of becoming one of the grand monde. In the second scene of the first act the young couple are introduced to each other, and it becomes at once evident that the arranged "union" is regarded with little favour by either. A title does not attract Constance. She does not want to get married, and refuses to carry out her ambitious mother's matrimonial plans unless she loves the man chosen. An amusing character is Mr. Joblyn, who, being intensely bored by his wife's ceaseless whirl of entertaining, persuades some of her male guests to go home and go to bed.

The wedding-day arrives, and Toddles is discovered in bed, arguing in silk pyjamas on the absurdity of his getting married. It is twelve o'clock, and the ceremony is to take place before M. le Maire at one. From his state of lazy indifference he is aroused by the moneylender Haslitt, who sees in the marriage a prospect of a complete settlement of Toddles' debt to him; by the widow, Mrs. Bowler, a former flame, for whom he still feels some tenderness; by Lady Dover, his aunt, who, in view of a handsome cheque for "commission," comes to make assurance doubly sure; and by Mrs. Joblyn, his future mother-in-law, who will kiss him and call him Willie. Lady Dover has to wait for him in another room while he dresses, and no sooner has she gone than the Countess de Chambry arrives with her six-year-old daughter, to whom Toddles was betrothed when in her cradle. The irate mother, who sees a brilliant future alliance for her child slipping away, will take care that his marriage with Constance Joblyn does not take place, and, seizing his wedding suit and boots—his trunks have been packed for a honeymoon trip in Italy—she bears them off in triumph. With her departure Toddles returns to bed.

In the Mairie—the first scene of the third act—the Joblyns and their guests are waiting for the bridegroom, and as there is no trace of him, are growing uneasy. Just as M. le Maire's patience is on the point of exhaustion, and the wedding-party is about to depart, Toddles arrives in his pyjamas, covered by an overcoat borrowed from the moneylender. The Mayor has the contracting-parties placed before him, and, after reading an amusing and utterly unintelligible translation of a portion of the French statute in regard to civil marriages, puts the question to Toddles, Does he consent to marry Constance Joblyn? It is impossible for him to make up his mind; and before the guests have recovered from their surprise he has fled.

In the final scene, however, Toddles and Constance, left to themselves, soon understand each other. Toddles makes up his mind, and discovers that he cannot do without her, and so the curtain falls on the prospect of a second visit to the Mairie.

Mr. Cyril Maude does not follow the example of M. Levesque, the original Triplepatte, at the Paris Athenée, and make the English equivalent of that part more grotesque than is strictly necessary. It would be possible to over-accentuate incidents in the bedroom scene; but the tact of the comedian prevents the slightest suggestion of indelicacy. Mr. Maude's acting is refined and restrained, and the invincible indecision and good humour of Toddles in the second act make those scenes exceedingly gay and humorous. Miss Gertrude Kingston, as the determined match-maker, Lady Dover, plays the part with ease of manner, and the correct society tone. The character is quite in harmony with the recent revelations in a cause célèbre, and the clever actress gets every ounce out of the part. Miss Lottie Venne is delightfully comic as Mrs. Joblyn, being particularly amusing in the scene of the soirée, where the good-natured parvenue will "fuss" over her guests. It is not a great part; it is well, therefore, that a comedienne so completely equipped as Miss Lottie Venne is there to extract all possible humour from it. Miss Nancy Price as the widow, Mrs. Bowler, who so thoroughly enjoys the discomfiture of the Joblyns at the Mairie, suggests cleverly the mischievous and not over scrupulous femme du monde, and looks superb in some charming dresses. Miss Alice Crawford delights everyone by the sweetness and fascination of her Constance Joblyn. It is a decided triumph for so young an actress, and her freshness and naturalness in the final scene of the wooing were generally remarked on the opening night. Miss Crawford presents a most attractive portrait of English girlhood. Mr. Alfred Bishop invests the character of Joblyn with all the necessary eccentricity, and makes the very most of his slight chances in the first act. Mr. Kenneth Douglas plays with an agreeable rattle as Boolby; Mr. Charles Maude is effective as the society journalist, Freddy Gunner; Mr. Allen Thomas does all that is necessary for the moneylender Haslitt; Mr. Ivo Dawson as Doctor Baird has quite a professional air; Mr. Ernest Cosham contributes a capital character-sketch of M. le Maire; and Mr. King Fordham, Mr. Onslow, Mr. Daniel McCarthy, and Mr. Lytton Grey neatly fill the small parts of the valet, the chauffeur, and the first and second ushers. Miss Helen Ferrers, Miss Beatrice Terry, and Miss Madge Titheradge, too, are irreproachable in the less important rôles of the Countess de Chambry, the Maid at the Spring, and Cicely. The elegant gowns worn in Toddles are by Mme. Herbert, and Mr. Bruce Smith is responsible for the five excellent scenes of the farce.

Toddles was preceded by a wordless play, in one act, arranged by Albert Chevalier, with music by Edward Jones, entitled

"THE SCAPEGRACE."

Tom ..... MR. ALLEN THOMAS
Harry ..... MR. LYTTON GREY
Charlie ..... MR. CHARLES MAUDE
Simpson ..... MR. ERNEST COSHAM
Widow Smith ..... MISS KATE HARWOOD
Nan ..... MISS PAULINE CHASE

This is a speechless version of Good for Nothing, which was first produced at the Haymarket in 1851, with the late Mrs. Fitzwilliam as Nan, Mr. J. B. Buckstone as Tom Dibbles, and Mr. Henry Howe as Harry. In Mr. Albert Chevalier's "arrangement" Tom becomes a cabman, and young Mr. Simpson abdicates in favour of Simpson, a broker's man, to whom Nan pays the rent. The little piece derives its chief importance from the opportunity it gives to Miss Pauline Chase, who is as clever as she is pretty, for mimicry and dancing, in the rôle of Nan. It is delightful art. Mr. Allen Thomas as Tom, Mr. Lytton Grey as Harry, Mr. Charles Maude as Charlie, Mr. Ernest Cosham as Simpson, and Miss Kate Harwood as Widow Smith, give able support to Miss Chase, who is honoured by several special calls. Mr. Edward Jones, in the illustrative music, is responsible for a melodious score.

"THE ROYAL FLOWER."

A Comedy, in One Act,
Adapted from the French Comedy L'Œillet Blanc, of Alphonse Daudet, by Pem, and Produced at the Coronet Theatre, on
Aug. 29.

Vidal ..... MR. CLAUDE KING
Cadet-Vincent ..... MR. A. W. BASKCOMB
Virginie ..... MISS NINON DUDLEY
The Marquis ..... MRS. RUSS WHYTAL
Peasants ..... MR. S. RIGGBY, MR. H. RAE

On Wednesday, the 29th ult., this pretty, fanciful little piece was put on at the Coronet as curtain-raiser to Alice Sit-by-the-Fire, and it will in future precede it till further notice. The Royal Flower is a charming addition to the roses of romance, and, by the freshness and fragrance of its sentiment, and its dainty interpretation, it will rank as a rare and precious blossom in the garden of sentiment. The troublous times of the French Revolution are chosen as the setting, when all the land of the aristocrats was in the alien hands of the revolutionary mob. Safe by the banks of the Thames a little group of exiles discourse over the card-table of the extinction of chivalry, and the cynical Comte and the worldly Abbé declare that true love is dead. This a young Marquis, aged sixteen, stoutly denies, and avows that he would be willing to prove by his death that there is still some heroism in love. The bewitching Comtesse sitting on the sofa dares him to go back to France and pluck a white lily from the garden of her château, and, furnished with a plan of the grounds, he bravely defies death to satisfy the caprice of a woman, and win the approval of a pair of bright eyes. The Comtesse's château is in the hands of the Republicans, and Citizen Vidal now holds sway on the estate. Arrived there, the young Marquis finds only one white lily, the treasured gift of Vidal's daughter Virginie's sweetheart, and almost on his entrance, by way of the garden wall, he is espied by the bibulous servant Cadet-Vincent, who would solace himself with the contents of the wine-cellar unbeknown to his master. After a short interview with his daughter, in which he shows his reason for desiring revenge on the aristocrats for seducing her mother, Vidal is called away to a Revolutionary tribunal, and Cadet-Vincent perforce goes with him, after warning Virginie to go into the pavilion and there secure herself. A delightful tête-à-tête between Virginie and the all too loving young Marquis then ensues, and, touched by his daring and devotion, she hides him from the mob, and eventually persuades her father to let him go free and unscathed. A charming and idyllic little play this, with no undue straining after effect, and with boyish sentiment and enthusiasm run riot. A Royal Flower had the advantage of an admirable and tasteful interpretation. Mrs. Russ Whytal was exquisite as the lovesick enthusiast, the youthful Marquis, and very touching and convincing was her pleading in the cause of real, heartfelt love, and the honesty of purpose, pluck, perseverance, and contempt of death of the young adventurer were admirably limned. Refinement and grace peep out at every turn in her impersonation. Miss Ninon Dudley acted very prettily and tenderly as Virginie. Mr. Claude King ably portrayed the light and shade of the character of Citizen Vidal; and Mr. A. W. Baskcomb made much of the humour of the part of the bibulous Cadet-Vincent.

THE HELLERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In reply to a correspondent, a contemporary states that "there were two Hellers—Stephen, an eminent pianist, born at Perth, 1813, died 1888; and Robert, a famour conjurer, born 1830, died Nov. 27, 1878." I venture to suggest that it hardly does Stephen Heller justice to style him merely "an eminent pianist," for he was a great deal more than that: one of the most delightful composers for the piano who ever lived. Stephen Heller, by the way, was not born in 1813, but on May 15, 1814. Robert Heller, the "famous conjurer," I have never heard of, but I can mention three other notable Hellers. First, Joseph Heller (1798-1849), a well-known German writer on art and collector of art treasures; second, Robert Heller, a celebrated German novelist (1812-1871); and, third, last but not least, Amely Heller, the remarkably gifted young violin virtuosa, who appeared in London last year with such striking success, and who, in spite of her youth (for she is only about seventeen), has written and published a beautiful and finely illustrated memoir of her famous countryman, Heinrich Wilhelm Ernst, the illustrious violinist and splendid composer for his instrument, who was born at Brünn, Austria, on May 6, 1814, and died at Nice on Oct. 9, 1865. Amely Heller is the niece of Stephen Heller.—I am, sir, yours very faithfully,

ALGERNON ASHTON.

44, Hamilton-gardens, St. John's Wood, N.W.,
Sept. 2, 1906.

MR. JONES left for England on the 31st ult., but returns in October, when he will deliver a series of lectures on the drama, at, amongst other places, Harvard, Yale, and Princetown.

MISS ETHEL VAN PRAAGH and Mr. J. Edward Whitty will present next Monday, at the West London, for the first time in the Metropolis, their new play, An Unwedded Wife. This piece has met with great success in the provinces since the production last July at Leeds. Miss Van Praagh will sustain the leading part of Marion, the unwedded wife.

We need not "quarry" in the second volume of Mallory's "Morte d'Arthur" in order to ascertain in how much or how little Mr. Comyns Carr has been indebted to the ancient legend and how much to his own invention and knowledge of stage-craft. To most people, the story of Tristram and Iseult is best known through Wagner's opera, whose libretto takes up the story at the beginning of Mr. Carr's third act. His first opens in Cornwall, where King Mark is bitterly jealous of the fame of his relative and heir, Sir Tristram of Lyonesse, a brave knight, who has saved Cornwall by slaying an Irish invader, Moraunt, the son of King Gormon. In the conflict with Moraunt, Tristram received a poisoned wound, which seems incurable. As a last resource it is suggested that he shall go to Ireland and present himself incognito at the Court of King Gormon, whose daughter Iseult may be able to heal him; and Tristram promises to bring her back to be bride to King Mark. The first act ends with his departure for Ireland on a ship.

In the second, which takes place at Gormon's castle, we find the Queen Oren ever yearning for vengeance upon the knight who killed the Irish champion, Moraunt. By her medical skill, Iseult has cured the anonymous knight who has come to the Irish Court, and is anxious to know his name. Oren wears, hung round her neck, a piece broken from the sword which slew Moraunt, and when she finds the blade in which the fragment fits she will know that the owner was the "murderer." King Gormon, confident in the prowess of his Court, has made a promise to a certain Paynim knight, Sir Palamide, that if he vanquishes all his Irish opponents in the lists he may claim any boon he likes. Sir Palamide is victorious over the Irishry, and claims Iseult's hand; but at the eleventh hour he is vanquished by Sir Tristram, who rises from his convalescent's couch to don his armour for the fray. Oren, who has discovered Tristram's identity by fitting the fragment of steel into his sword-blade, comes to murder him, but finds the couch empty. Tristram enters triumphant after his fight with Palamide, and claims the hand of Iseult for his master, King Mark.

In the third act he and Iseult are returning to Cornwall on board a ship. Queen Oren, in order to make sure that the affection of Iseult shall be fixed on King Mark, has given her a love-potion, which she and the King are to drink together. Iseult believes that this potion is a deadly poison. When Tristram is told that the King is to be poisoned on their arrival in Cornwall he prefers to drink of the cup himself, sooner than be a traitor to his trust. He and Iseult quaff the one drink together; but, instead of killing them, the medicine only makes them irrevocably in love with each other.

The last act leads up to the inevitable finale of the death of the lovers. Arganthael, Tristram's cruel stepmother, tells Mark that, though Iseult has postponed her nuptials with him, she is visited nightly at her bower by Tristram. Mark and his men surprise the pair, and one of the minions stabs Tristram in the back as he is about to fight with the King. A mysterious spirit, Iseult of the White Hands, whose touch brings death, rises, and the play ends thus:—

Tristram. What sail comes o'er those seas?
Dost cry 'tis black?
Nay, look again! It shines as white as snow,
And there, beside the mast, I see that face
That was the world to me!
Iseult. Nay, I am here.
And Death and Love are one! For those white hands
Have brought me healing, too.
[She falls dying beside him.
Tristram. Iseult! Iseult!
For all Love's wounds there is no cure but Death!

For those who can appreciate a poetic drama, strongly and skilfully plotted, magnificently mounted, and acted with splendid earnestness, intensity and fervour, we can imagine few greater treats than to witness Tristram and Iseult. Mr. Oscar Asche's artistic unselfishness was shown by his taking to himself the moderately important part of Mark. As the jealous and treacherous King, Mr. Asche made an imposing figure in his rich, regal robes, and suggested, with his wonted skill in weighty utterance and facial play, the troubled mind of the villainous monarch. Miss Lily Brayton gave a magnificent performance of the part of Iseult. Its long-sustained passion was remarkably deep and intense, and she went through the difficult ordeal with the greatest success. Her acting in the potion scene on board the "Swallow" was only excelled by her finely emotional rendering of her share in the death scene, which she treated with tragic power of a very high order. Mr. Matheson Lang as Sir Tristram was nobly elevated and sensitively chivalrous throughout. He caught the spirit of the part with quick appreciation, and the beauty and dignity of his embodiment were undeniable. Mr. Charles Rock was very stern and grim as Sir Andrew; and Mr. Cecil Duncan spoke his lines with excellent distinctness and emphasis as Sir Dinas, Mr. Alfred Brydone giving a ruggedly effective impersonation of Gouvernayle, and Mr. H. R. Hignett being nobly refined as King Gormon. Mr. Henry Kitts's Master of the Ship was a bluff, rugged bit of characterisation that did him much credit; and Mr. Caleb Porter gave a clearly-cut reading of the little rôle of the Sailor. Mr Gordon Harker contributed a graphic and well-elaborated embodiment of the dwarf Ogrin; and Miss Gertrude Scott was vividly and emphatically revengeful as Oren, acting with a vast amount of vigour and intensity. Miss Edith Wynne-Matthison, who looked very picturesque in her mediæval costumes, was admirably earnest and expressive as Brangwaine, and took full advantage of her opportunity in the scene on board ship; and Miss Hutin Britton, both in her appearance and the delivery of her lines, realised in telling fashion the stern step-mother Arganthael; Miss Katharine Maude doing good work as the Waiting Woman, and Miss Agnes Brayton making a most picturesque Iseult of the White Hands.

Mr. Joseph Harker had excelled himself in the scenery, which was elaborately beautiful. The costumes, designed by Karl, were sumptuous and artistic; and the music, composed by Mr. Christopher Wilson, was musicianly and appropriate. The admirable all-round interpretation given to the play by the company evoked hearty and well-deserved enthusiasm.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, Thursday, Sept. 4.—MM. Delorme and Gally have given us an amusing farce, which from beginning to end roused much laughter. Hector Simier, only recently married, receives the visit from his wife's uncle, Théodule Bertaut, who, to all appearances, is deaf and weak-minded. The old man does not think of paying his tradesmen, and Hector is all the time advancing money to the old man, which the latter never thinks of repaying. One day Hector is informed by his valet that the uncle has kept up a lively conversation through the telephone, cracking jokes as fast as he could. He, therefore, is neither deaf nor weak-minded, and he only stays with his nephew to enjoy a free lodging and borrow money from him. But what does he do with his money? Hector soon discovers it. It all goes to Mlle. Paille-de-Riz, a music-hall cocotte. Hector at once shows his disreputable relative the door, and invites Marius Dumoustier, another uncle, from whom he hopes to inherit. This Marius is supposed to come to Paris on business, whilst, in reality, he wants to see Mlle. Paille-de-Riz, whose acquaintance he made in Monpellier. This complicates matters, for Hector must now save two uncles from Mlle. Paille-de-Riz's clutches. He calls on the damsel, and is caught himself, for he recognises in her a former mistress, who had suddenly given him the slip. Altogether, the young lady has a wonderful fascination. Prince Métoilamonpaulo has also fallen a victim to her charms. The Prince, invited by the French Government, is always escorted by several detectives to guard his Royal person, and their chief, La Reynie, arrests Hector and the two uncles, whom he suspects of wanting to murder the Prince. In the final act everything is explained. The three prisoners are hauled up before the examining magistrate—a crank who writes couplets for a revue—and the police, for once, acknowledge they made a mistake. As to Hector, he will profit by the lesson. He will leave the two uncles to fight for the beaux yeux of Mlle Paille-de-Riz, and will not trouble to secure their inheritance. The farce was capitally acted. Mme. Franck-Mel was intensely funny in the episodical rôle of an elderly lady, whom her husband sends into an hypnotic sleep, which does not prevent her from seeing the shameless manner in which he deceives her. The two uncles were well impersonated by MM. Bardès and Valot; and M. Jacquier supplied a laughable examining magistrate. As to Mlle Daveny, she imparted an unnecessary vulgar note to the rôle of the flighty Paille-de-Riz.

M. Alban de Polkes has written a drama, L'Enfant du Temple, which will be produced at the Ambigu next season. As the title implies, the work deals with the sad story of the Dauphin, Louis XVI.'s son, who, according to history, died in the Temple and was buried in the old Madeleine Churchyard. A few years after his death, however, several persons came forward, all of them pretending they were the unfortunate King's son, who, they said, had escaped from prison whilst a strange child had been buried supposed to be the Dauphin. The best known among these pretenders was a certain Count Naundorf, a descendant of whom is living in Paris, proudly calling himself Louis XVII., heir to the French throne. The history of the Naundorfs has inspired M. Reynaud, and he has produced a play, which, however, has little chance of seeing the footlights, inasmuch at it contains allegations against persons whose offsprings are still living, and who would take serious offence at the so-called disclosures. Even a Republic cannot tolerate such a proceeding.

We have had a new Carmen at the Opera-Comique in Mlle. Sylva, who proved herself not only an excellent singer but a first-class actress. Instead of adhering to the time-honoured lines, she imparted to Bizet's heroine an altogether new character. Her début proved a decided success.

Whilst on the subject of the Opera-Comique I may mention that our second lyric playhouse has been deprived of the services of three of its oldest members. M. Luigini, the chef d'orchestre, died six weeks ago; M. Gandrey, the business-manager, left in consequence of the recent Levraud incident, reference to which was made in these column; and poor M. Vizentini, the stage-manager, is in such a bad state of health that the doctors have prescribed him unlimited rest. M. Carbonne will temporarily replace the latter gentleman.

M. Antoine has been cleaning Augias' stables. He has taken the hall of the Odéon in hand, and entirely renovated it, a costly proceeding, for he had to sacrifice three hundred seats. Frequenters of the Odéon will also notice with pleasure the disappearance of the huge chandelier that used to hide the view of the stage from the occupants of the gallery. M. Ginisty had often been requested to remove this cumbersome thing, but, somehow or other, he stuck to it because he believed it would bring luck to the house. Luck, however, did not come, and the Odéon lost money every year. The general belief is that this was due to M. Ginistry's mismanagement, but M. Ginistry attributes it to the chandelier. The transformation of the Odéon will have cost M. Antoine something like £6,000.

Mr. Bernard Shaw has not been idle during his seaside holiday in Cornwall, as he has been busily occupied in the writing of a new play in five acts, to be called The Doctor's Dilemma. Though the author declares, with the humorous assurance which is peculiarly his own, that it is the most amusing play he has ever written, there is a thrilling death scene, quite different from anything hitherto attempted on the stage; and a learned medical consultation by the doctors will also be a unique feature. The play will probably be produced by the Vedrenne-Barker management during the forthcoming season, and the part of the heroine is to be assigned to Miss Lillah McCarthy.

A play in three acts, by Dolf Wyllarde, entitled As Ye Have Sown, was produced for copyright purposes at the Opera House, Buxton, on Wednesday last.

A fire originated on Monday morning under the floor of the balcony of the Plymouth Pier Pavilion, about half-way up the eastern side, and spread rapidly towards the dressing-rooms, near the entrance of the body of the pavilion. Happily, the boarding is all double, and the flames were kept under, so that the stream of water from below had great effect. It was not long before a second hose was at work. The two jets were irresistible. It was easily extinguished in about half an hour. The damage was not very great.

Mr. Hall Caine's capacity for hard work seems to be unlimited. He is engaged in writing a new play which will have close relation to his beloved Manxland. He hopes to have the piece ready for production by Christmas, and the part of the heroine will probably be sustained by a young Manx actress.

CHILDREN ON THE STAGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Seeing so many reports in the different theatrical papers regarding the remarks made upon the above subject by various magistrates, we thought perhaps a few facts as to our experiences might interest your readers. This is our fifth week on tour with Mr. Bert Coote's Fatal Wedding Co., and our daily routine having now settled down into "shipshape" order, it certainly would compare more than favourably with that of many middle-class boarding schools. There are twenty-five children in our company (including ourselves) in charge of a matron and a schoolmaster.

We rise at 9.30 each morning, and after a tubbing and rub down, we do ample justice to a good and wholesome breakfast of plain food in the shape of fish, bacon, jams, stewed fruits, with tea, cocoa, and quarts of hot milk ad lib.

After breakfast we go for a walk in charge of the matron when we are in small towns, and when in large cities two large motors are hired and we go for a ten or twelve mile drive and return at about one o'clock for dinner. Great care is observed that these drives do not take the form of an advertisement in any way, although the cars are used by the management for advertising purposes during the afternoon.

Our midday meal consists of good English meat personally selected by our matron, two or three kinds of vegetables, with milk puddings and stewed and other fruits. From two till five school is held, and although it is not compulsory for girls over fourteen to attend, most of them take advantage of the privilege. After tea we rest from six till seven-thirty, and reach the theatre at eight o'clock. We generally finish about 10.45, and leave the building at eleven o'clock.

After a supper consisting of boiled fish and other light dishes, with cocoa made with milk or hot milk alone for those who prefer it, we retire to our rooms, and at 11.45 the lights are turned out upon twenty-five of the happiest children you could possibly find.

Once a week the local hairdresser attends, and shampoos half the members of our little colony and the week following the other half come in for their share of barber's foam and brillantine. The advance agent fixes our rooms a few days before we arrive in a town, and when we reach them on Sunday after our train journey a good dinner always awaits us.

A special van collects our trunks and delivers them without any trouble on our part, and the same remark applies to when we leave the town. On arriving at the departure platform at the railway station we find our train awaiting us, the compartments having the names of the members who are to occupy them written upon slips and pasted to the windows. No favouritism is shown. Everything and everybody is in perfect harmony, and the only unhappy moments will be when the time comes for us all to say good-bye. This is our experience of theatrical life, and a pleasant experience it is.—Yours faithfully,

DOLLY AND MADGE McCALLA,
The Fatal Wedding Co.
Queen's Theatre, Manchester, Sept. 4.

Despite the great heat, a very representative audience packed the Hudson Theatre on the night of the 30th ult. to witness the first performance of the new play. After the third act the audience cheered for ten minutes, when the manager came forward and said Mr. Jones preferred to let the play speak for itself; but the people continued to cheer, until Mr. Jones was forced to leave his box and appear on the stage, and then contented himself with simply saying, "Thank you, thank you." The members of the company were then repeatedly recalled. Mr. Leslie Faber scored a personal triumph in the character of the young curate, and Miss Doris Keane shared the feminine honours with Miss Jessie Milward. The cast also included Messrs. John Glendinning, J. H. Barnes, Arthur Lewis, W. H. Denny, Miss Viva Birkett, and Miss Ada Webster.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

NEW WILLESDEN EMPIRE.

Mr. Walter Gibbons is the proprietor of the newest Empire, which is shortly to be erected on a very important site in High Street, Harlesden. The new building will be worked in conjunction with other important halls under his control, and also with projected new halls at Tooting (which will be built on the same lines), and other suburbs of London.

The house has been designed by Messrs. Frank Matcham and Co., and will have accommodation for over 4,000 people. It is practically isolated, as the rear abuts on Rucklidge Avenue, and private roadways are formed along the two sides, giving opportunities for an unusual number of exits, of which the architects have taken every advantage. In fact, designed as it is for two performances a night, the means of access and exits are so arranged that absolutely no clashing will occur between the patrons leaving and entering the hall. To make the schemes of ingress and egress more perfect, waiting-rooms, fitted with every comfort and convenience, are to be arranged for early comers. The elevation is of a bold Italian design, and the façade will be carried out in a dark red brick and a buff terra-cotta.

The chief entrance for stalls and grand circle is in the centre of the façade. There are two lobbies leading into the grand vestibule, which contain the box-office and a staircase on the right, which conducts the visitor to the stalls waiting-room, thence by a wide corridor under the pit, and a double staircase in front of the pit barrier to each side of the stalls. The grand circle is approached by a wide staircase leading to a large waiting-room opening on to a fine promenade. The pit entrance is at the left-hand corner of the façade, and here a capital arrangement is designed so that two men can be taking money at the same time, thus greatly facilitating the filling of the pit. There is also a similar arrangement for the gallery, and with the great number of exits the hall can be filled and cleared in about five minutes. The pit is a large one, containing sixteen rows of seats, and has a splendid rake, the floor is raised about 2ft. above the level of the stalls, and thus makes the division of the two lots of seats very distinct, and allows the pit to have a fine view of the stage for ærial shows, etc. There are nine rows of luxurious tip-up seats in the front divided into orchestra-stalls and stalls.

The grand circle will be one of the finest in London, it is very wide, and the architects have adopted a fine bold sweep which will enable the whole of the occupants of the twelve rows of tip-up seats to have a direct and clear view of the stage. In addition to the usual gangway behind the seats, a raised balcony is formed at the back, in the centre of which is the cinématograph room. The gallery is constructed on the same lines as the circle with balconies at the sides and wide gangway behind the six handsome private boxes at the sides of the proscenium.

The stage is 30ft. deep and 66ft. wide, and is very lofty, so that scenery can be taken up clear. There will be the usual property rooms, etc., and the dressing-rooms will be contained in a block of buildings at the side, distinct from the stage. The new building will be of fireproof construction, and supplied with an asbestos safety curtain, with hydrants and appliances for the extinction of fire, in the most desirable positions. The building is to be heated with hot-water pipes and coils—in fact, the safety and comfort of the audience has had every consideration. The ventilation will have special attention, a sliding roof being introduced. The decorations of the entrance and the auditorium are quiet but effective, and the whole building will be carpeted and furnished in a luxurious style. The electric light is to be installed everywhere, and there is no doubt when Mr. Gibbons opens the doors of this New Empire, it will be found worthy to rank with the best music-halls in London.

Mr. Wentworth Croke's Christian company, with entirely new dresses and scenery, will be at Kennington Theatre next week, paying the only visit of the piece to a London suburban theatre for the last two years. Miss Grace Chalmers will be the Glory Quayle. A matinée will be given on Thursday.

THE NEW WILLESDEN EMPIRE.
Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons. Architect, Mr. Frank Matcham.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

SYDNEY, July 31, 1906.—Her Majesty's.—J. C. Williamson, Lessee and Manager; Mr. G. L. Goodman, Business-Manager.—The Dictator still delights the crowds who witness the all-round good acting of Mr. William Collier and his company. The Collier season will end on Aug. 3, and on the following night Miss Titiell Brune will return for a short season, opening with Dorothy Vernon. Mr. Williamson's répertoire company is now on its way from New Zealand, after a "record" tour, and the company will forthwith tranship for Queensland, coming back to Sydney before going West.

Theatre Royal.—Mr. J. C. Williamson, Lessee; Mr. Bland Holt, Sub-Lessee and Manager; Mr. C. Simonsens, Business-Manager.—With Flying Colours shows no diminution of patronage or interest; but in accordance with Mr. Holt's system of constant change, G. R. Sims's drama, In London Town, is announced for Aug. 4. Meanwhile the exciting incidents and capital acting in the present play are maintaining the Bland Holt reputation of doing all things well.

Criterion.—Mr. Frank Musgrove, Lessee.—Miss Stella Chapman was specially engaged by the Public Service Dramatic Society to play Portia in their production of The Merchant of Venice, and the painstaking elocutionist justified the choice by an excellent portrayal of the character. Mr. Victor Cohen, a seasoned amateur, was the Shylock.

Tivoli.—Mr. Harry Rickards, Sole Proprietor and Manager; Mr. J. C. Leete, General-Manager; Mr. Edward Maas, Acting-Manager.—The strong man Brinn now balances a 400-lb. regulation machine gun on his chin and head; and, on the platform supporting it, an attendant, who fires twenty rounds of ammunition in succession. Little Cliff, Bertie and Alexandra, Vasco, Olive Lenton, Maud Faning, Nita Leete, Howard Hall, Tom Dawson, Lewis Sisters, Percy Clarke, Alice Fane, Lizette Parkes, Arthur Elliott, Miss E. Brown, George Bentley, Irving Sayles, with Lilieth Leyton, George Bentley, and Howard Hall in a new sketch, The Lady Burglar, keep Mr. Harry Rickards's patrons in receipt of full value for their money.

The Fisk Jubilee Singers, at the Lyceum Hall with "Jesus Saves" in enormous letters outside the theatre, have done capital business. The company is now at the Queen's Hall.

Messrs. William Holman and Neville Mayman gave an excellent performance of The Hunchback at St. James's Hall on the 25th. Following ancient and recent precedent, no scenery was used; but with the Misses Hilda Bevidge and Lilian Booth in the female parts a thoroughly artistic performance was presented. The large audience was very enthusiastic. In the intervals musical items were given by Miss Bronson, Miss Florence Gibson, Miss Gwen Duffy, Miss Kerr, and Mr. G. Kilburn Heron.

The musical event of the week was the appearance of Mr. Gerard Kean, the possessor of a splendid tenor voice reaching the upper E without effort. Mr. George Grimm discovered him at Ballarat.

The announcement that Madame Adelina Patti has decided to bring her professional career to a close will be received with a considerable amount of regret by all lovers of music; but it is not surprising that the famous prima donna should seek retirement in view of the fact that she made her début at Covent Garden forty-five years ago. Happily, time has not diminished Madame Patti's powers as a vocalist, her voice retaining to a wonderful extent its rich tones, as was sufficiently evidenced in June last when, at the Albert Hall, she sang to a crowded and delighted house such favourite songs from her repertory as Mozart's "Voi che sapete," Gounod's "Quand tu Chantes," and Lotti's "Pur dicesti." Madame Patti has arranged with Mr. Percy Harrison, of Birmingham, to bid farewell to the London musical public at the concert which he is organising at the Albert Hall on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 1. Of her admirers in the provinces, she will not, however, take leave until the autumn of next year, when she has promised Mr. Harrison that she will appear in several of the more important cities.

J. R. W.—The Sign of the Cross was first staged in London at the Lyric, Jan. 4, 1896. Mr. Wilson Barrett played Marcus Superbus, and Miss Maud Jeffries Mercia. When the play was revived at the Lyceum, Oct. 19, 1899, Mr. Barrett and Miss Jeffries played their original parts.

R. PAYNE.—1870.

A.—The Sign of the Cross was produced by the late Mr. Wilson Barrett while he was on tour in America in 1895, and was first seen in London at the Lyric Theatre on Jan. 4, 1896.

J. PATON.—We cannot say; write to the two gentlemen mentioned for the information.

A. SIMS.—We are unable to give you the date of the final closing of the Sun Music Hall, Knightsbridge. Perhaps one of our readers may be able to supply the date. Vance died on the stage there on Boxing Night in 1888.

FRANK RIDGE.—(1) The Eternal City was produced at Her Majesty's Theatre on Oct. 2, 1902. (2) Lucky Durham was produced at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, on June 9, 1904. The late Mr. Wilson Barrett played the title-rôle.

W. E.—Yes; at the Haymarket Theatre.

K. F.—The Colonel (based by F. C. Burnand upon Un Mari à la Campagne) was first produced in London at the old Prince of Wales's, Tottenham-street, Feb. 2, 1881. Morris Barnett's Serious Family was adapted from the same French original.

RATING CLOSED THEATRES.

At Bow-street Police Court on Thursday the Lyceum (1903), Limited, were summoned for neglecting to pay to the Westminster City Council the sum of £1,111 6s. 8d. in respect of a general rate made on April 6 last.

Mr. Travers Humphreys, barrister, said his clients were the trustees of the First Debenture-holders. In March last, under the powers they possessed under their mortgage deed, they appointed Mr. Ross as receiver of the profits of the Lyceum—if any. The High Court had since made an order that if any rates were legally recoverable the trustees should pay them, they taking the place, for that purpose, at any rate, of the old Lyceum Company. If rates were legally payable in respect of the theatre in present circumstances his clients—the trustees for the First Debenture-holders—were the people who must pay. The question they wished the Court to decide was whether there was any legal obligation to pay the rates at all under the existing circumstances. Up to April last the Lyceum was let to Mr. Barrasford at a considerable rent per week. That tenancy having come to an end an agreement was made at a reduced rent up to June 9, when the theatre was closed. It had been closed ever since then; it was practically empty, only a caretaker being left on the premises, and his clients contended that they were not liable for rates after the date named, they being in the same position as the owners of an empty house.

Sir Albert de Rutzen: When was this rate made?

Mr. J. C. Harvey (rate collector): On April 6, for the period ending September 30.

Mr. Humphreys: Since June 6 there has been no beneficial occupation. The trustees had power to appoint a receiver, and they appointed Mr. Ross—for what it was worth. There has been nothing to receive since June 9. So long as a house is empty and to let, there is no obligation to pay rates, and I contend that the same thing applies to a theatre. As soon as the theatre is let again, we shall be liable.

Mr. Humphreys added that a small portion of the building was let off at 50s. a month, but it was detached from the theatre, and did not affect the issue.

Mr. Harvey: The view taken by my council is that when seats remain in a theatre, and it is ready to be let at any time, there is beneficial occupation. If anyone came along and offered so many thousand pounds a week, the offer would be accepted, and we contend that that is beneficial occupation. It is, in those circumstances, a going concern, and might be opened this afternoon. The carpets are down, and the place is furnished. Take the case of the Waldorf Theatre, which was opened at a moment's notice when His Majesty's Theatre was temporarily closed.

Sir Albert de Rutzen: The theatre might be closed and let within 24 hours, as you say; but, as a matter of fact, it has not been let since June. I know of no decision bearing on the case, but I can see that the case is of some importance both to the owners of the Lyceum and the Westminster City Council.

Mr. Harvey: There are a great many theatres in the City of Westminster, and some of them are often closed in the summer. They will certainly claim exemption if this contention on the part of the Lyceum is upheld.

Mr. Humphreys: My clients have put their views fully before the Westminster City Council, and have invited them to raise a test case at this court.

Sir Albert de Rutzen adjourned the case for a fortnight to consider his decision. He hoped that in the meantime both sides would communicate to him any facts bearing on the point at issue.

The London Coliseum, Ltd., were also summoned for the non-payment of the current rate, amounting to £1,339.

This summons was also adjourned.

There was also a scummons against the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, for rates amounting to £775. In this case no question was raised, and the usual order was made.

HOW TO KEEP COOL.

We strongly recommend all who suffer from the prevailing heat to add a few drops of Condy's Fluid to the Daily Bath or Foot Bath.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1906.

MR. BOURCHIER'S EXPERIMENT.

Quite an unnecessary amount of excitement, it seems to us, has been created by Mr. ARTHUR BOURCHIER'S recent exclusion of the Press from the first night of The Morals of Marcus at the Garrick Theatre. Most London managers are of opinion that first-night notices have a commercial value, in that, if favourable, they send the public to see a piece. This, however, is quite a matter of opinion. Short of a plebiscite of the audiences in the first week of a play's run, there is no means of ascertaining the motive power which has sent the public to the booking-office and the "libraries" in that period. It has been said that any important piece of news travels through the Indian bazaars with almost incredible speed; and it may be that a theatrical success or a failure is "gossiped" widely on the following afternoon over Belgravia and Bayswater. A report in the Press, however, reaches many eyes, and ought, one would think, to influence the choices of many intending playgoers. But while one manager may think the price of a first-night stall a moderate one to pay for a "notice," another may prefer to fill his house on a première with his friends, and let them spread the glad—or sorrowful—news vivâ voce.

A wise old judge once said, "Give your decision, but never your reasons for arriving at it"; and Mr. LEVEAUX'S letter, which we print elsewhere, brings Mr. BOURCHIER'S decision into the field of discussion. For it is now explained that the manager's reason for postponing the notices of The Morals of Marcus was not indifference to the opinion of the Press, but consideration for the critics. He considers that it is impossible that a good impression of a play, an analysis really valuable to the public, could be conveyed to a daily paper in the short time at the disposal of a writer under the ordinary circumstances of first-night criticism; and that a piece is so often improved by alteration, addition, and repetition, that it is much better on the seventh than on the first night.

To each of these contentions we can only reply "It depends." With regard to the first, it depends on the critic. Mr. LEVEAUX rightly uses the term "impression" in describing the criticism of a play. The critic of a daily paper must be an impressionist. He ought to be so well acquainted with the methods and technique of play-construction, so appreciative of merit, and so sensitive to defect, that his opinion is formed by the descent of the curtain on the last act. He ought to be such a complete master of the craft of putting his thoughts into words that he can commence writing his notice soon after the end of the performance, and conclude it without inconvenience before the time his paper goes to press. The cardinal sins in dramatic criticism are not the omission of secondary detail, but want of knowledge and absence of that generous enthusiasm which is created in an appreciative soul by a fine work of art. A critic who is deficient in these qualities may take twelve hours in which to cudgel his brains; he will never produce as good a "notice" as the rapid, spontaneous writer who is an expert and an enthusiast. And as the critic, in any case, would have to complete his critique in time for publication next day, it is not easy to see how postponement for a week would help him.

We may say "It depends," also, in the case of theatrical management. In the ideally-governed theatre, the first-night performance is generally a trifle better than those which follow. The object of the ideal manager is—to take a metaphor from the training stable—to send his horse to the post just "fit." If he finds him half-trained by the night announced, he postpones the première. The "nervousness" of actors and actresses on first nights cuts both ways. As long as it does not make them forget their words or their business, it is a positive advantage for them to be highly strung. But here, again, the statement "It depends" is accurate. Some artists are always at their best on first nights; some are notoriously not so. It is a matter of temperament. Here Mr. BOURCHIER is quite consistent. He has consulted the artists in his company, and they have all decided that they would rather not be judged by their first performances in The Morals of Marcus. So mote it be.

As Mr. BEERBOHM TREE says in this matter of first-night or seventh-night criticism, every manager is the best judge of his own interests. A serious difficulty, however, is caused by the want of unanimity in the Press. It appears that the most courteous and consistent course on the part of the London papers would have been to comply with Mr. BOURCHIER'S desire for his production to remain unnoticed for a week. It was not merely a question of the possibility of obtaining admission to the Garrick Theatre by payment. It was a question of invitation or no invitation; of wish to receive you or wish to dispense with your presence for a while. If Mr. BOURCHIER did not want his première noticed, the obvious line of action would have been not to notice it. Unfortunately, in London, each newspaper is a law unto itself; and so, while some critics did not see The Morals of Marcus on the first night, others got in, declined to respect Mr. BOURCHIER'S desire, and gave accounts of the new play the next morning. Even if the circulation of a paper were microscopically reduced by an exceptional omission, one would think that the sacrifice would have been made for the sake of self-respect, good nature, and sweet reasonableness. The compliment paid to the manager of the Garrick Theatre by this refusal to regard his request was very great. It argued that the production of a new play at the Garrick is such an important event that a description of it is worth publishing at any sacrifice. So Mr. BOURCHIER scores all round; from some of the Press he obtains a powerful tribute to his position and that of his theatre; from others an agreement with his wish to try what, we feel sure, is only an experiment, and will not become a permanent practice.

DEATH OF MISS LAURA LINDEN.

We regret to announce the death on Sunday last of Miss Laura Linden, who some years ago was a well-known actress who took part in many important productions in the Metropolis. Miss Laura Linden, who was a sister of Miss Marie Linden, made her first appearance in London at Sadler's Wells Theatre, on April 16, 1881, when she played Barby Haggit in Mr. H. A. Jones's play His Wife, then produced. In Imprudence, produced at the Folly, afterwards Toole's, Theatre, on July 27 following, she played Mattie; at the Gaiety Theatre in 1883 she was the original Dulcie in Mr. Edward Rose's version of Vice-Versâ; and at the Strand Theatre in the same year she played Gerty in Silver Gilt, a burlesque on The Silver King. She was then engaged for the Olympic, where, notably, she played Louise in a revival of The Two Orphans. After touring with Claudian as Almida, Miss Linden joined the Gaiety company. She appeared in Dandy Dick as Hannah Topping when the play was produced at the Globe on January 27, 1887. Joining Mrs. Bernard Beere at the Opera Comique, Miss Linden was the Babette Steinboch in Ariane, produced on February 8, 1888. In Woodbarrow Farm, tentatively played at the Comedy Theatre on June 18, she appeared as Deborah. When Mr. Buchanan's play The Bride of Love was reproduced at the Lyric Theatre on June 9, 1890, Miss Linden was the Eridon. On August 4 she appeared with the Old Stagers at Canterbury as Mrs. Merrydew in My Milliner's Bill; as Susan in The Silver Shield; as Dorinda Croodle in The Money-Spinner; and as Lady Rose in A Pantomime Rehearsal. She was the Mary Ledger in a revival of The Parvenu, at the Globe, on February 18, 1891. In Linda Grey, produced at the Princess's Theatre on April 8, she appeared as Priscilla Royal, an American girl. In Husband and Wife, first played at the Criterion on April 30, Miss Linden appeared as Mrs. Springfield. She was the Miss Lily Eaton Belgrave in A Pantomime Rehearsal, at Terry's Theatre, on June 6; and was the Nan Canty in Mrs. Oscar Beringer's version of Prince and Pauper, tentatively produced at the Gaiety on October 12. Miss Linden assisted in the tentative production of The Light of Pengarth and The Spring Legend, part of a triple bill at the Opera Comique on December 17. In A Life of Pleasure, produced at Drury Lane on September 21, 1893, she played Phyllis de Belleville; and in the Christmas pantomime, 1893-4, at the Crystal Palace, she appeared as Maid Marian. The funeral of the deceased actress, who had been in declining health for several years, took place on Wednesday last.

BETTY BENEVOLENCE.

It will be remembered that the late Henry Thomas Betty desired that a certain portion of his estate should be distributed amongst poor actors and actresses, and that the details of such distribution should be published in the columns of The Era each week. It is gratifying to announce that the testator's wishes will, to a certain extent, be carried out. The executive committee of "The Actors' Benevolent Fund" have, through their solicitors, expressed their willingness to undertake the distribution of the residue of Mr. Betty's estate; an order has, therefore, been made by Mr. Justice Swinfen Eady, in the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice, to the effect that the interest directed to be paid to the treasurer for the time being of the Actors' Benevolent Fund shall be applied by and under the direction of the executive committee of that Charity in the payment of sums not exceeding £20 for any one payment to, or for the benefit of, poor actors or actresses in need of pecuniary assistance.

And it is ordered that separate accounts be kept of the income received and applied as aforesaid, and that an abstract of such accounts be published annually in The Era newspaper under the title of "Accounts of the Betty Fund for Poor Actors and Actresses."

THE donkey who bears Autolycus in The Winter's Tale revival at His Majesty's evidently objects to rehearsals. On the night before the production she could not be induced to enter the theatre, in spite of the coaxing appeals of Miss Ellen Terry herself. Eventually the obstinate animal had to be carried in by four of the stage staff.

THE HAYMARKET.

Mr. Frederick Harrison re-opened the Haymarket for the autumn season on Wednesday evening, when the interrupted run of Mr. F. Anstey's successful three-act comedy The Man from Blankley's was resumed, and a new first piece, written by Keble Howard, entitled Compromising Martha, was also played, with the following cast :—

Martha ..... MISS FLORENCE HAYDON
A Neighbour ..... MISS LYDIA RACHEL
Monica ..... MISS ELFRIDA CLEMENT
The Curate ..... MR. E. W. TARVER

To the theatrical society known as The Pioneers we were indebted for the first production of Mr. Keble Howard's little comedy, which was originally staged at the Royalty Theatre on Sunday evening, May 20. It would have been a matter of regret had Compromising Martha shared the fate of so many plays produced under like conditions and been heard of no more, for its merits fully entitled it to a further hearing. Admirably cast, Mr. Howard's modest effort as a dramatist gained quite a hearty reception from Wednesday night's audience. The freshness of treatment and the humour displayed in the sketches of character impressed the house most favourably, and the author was, at the fall of the curtain, honoured by a special call. Martha is a maiden lady of eighty-seven, and dwells in a charming little country cottage, as clean as a new pin. Monica, who is the daughter of the Squire, has been indiscreet enough to fall in love with the curate; and as she is fully aware her father is prejudiced against curates, the young couple meet secretly. And no better rendezvous can be found than Martha's cottage of an afternoon, when it is the custom of the dame to fall into a sound sleep. Observing the approach of a talkative neighbour of the old lady's, the lovers seek a hiding-place in different rooms; and the visitor, who has temporarily left her washing tub, has something to say with reference to the stolen interviews at the cottage. Martha bluntly denies the truth of these statements, and is indignant that her home should be associated with a village scandal. The neighbour departs, but her gossip has caused the old lady to be suspicious, and, listening intently, she hears a sound in one of the adjoining rooms. She pretends to fall asleep again, and the sweethearts emerge from their hiding-places. They are uncertain whether Martha is really asleep, and a kiss at once decides the question. Martha, playing the part of the prude, is very angry that her cottage should have been selected as a meeting place for the young couple, and she threatens to tell her neighbours, and of course Monica's curate-hating papa. Instigated by his sweetheart the curate implants a kiss on the old lady's brow and vanishes, leaving Monica to do some special pleading with the incensed dame. Surely she would not be so cruel as to wreck the happiness of two young people, who have always regarded her as a true friend. Martha gradually relents, and as the curtain descends wipes away the tears that the girl's pathetic appeal has brought to her eyes.

Miss Florence Haydon resumed her original part of Martha, and exceedingly natural was her portrayal of the rather fretful, complaining old dame. The character could scarcely have been better played, and the dame's make-up was perfect in every detail. Miss Elfrida Clement also deserves high praise for the girlish charm with which she contrived to invest the part of Monica; and Mr. E. W. Tarver skilfully and neatly hit off the love-making curate. Miss Lydia Rachel as the old dame's garrulous neighbour largely contributed to the success of the new production by a remarkably life-like character sketch.

In The Man from Blankley's the only change in the cast is that Mr. Charles Crawford now plays the part of Mr. Poffley—and plays it very well—in the place of Mr. Aubrey FitzGerald. Mr. Charles Hawtrey had a warm welcome when he made his entrance as the supposed hired guest from Blankley's; and his easy, polished performance was again a source of genuine delight to an audience made merry by one of the most amusing plays of recent times. Mr. Weedon Grossmith repeated his intensely humorous portrayal of the insufferable little cad Montague Tidmarsh, every gesture and change of facial expression being indices to the character so skilfully drawn from life by the author of the play. Mr. Henry Kemble again gave evidence of his acknowledged ability as a comedian by his telling embodiment of the pompous, but exceedingly touchy, Mr. Gabriel Gilwattle. Mr. E. Holman Clark and Miss Gwynne Herbert as Mr. and Mrs. Ditchwater made much of the laughable peculiarities of these ultra-dismal personages; and no less amusing were the Mr. and Mrs. Bodfish of Mr. H. Laurent and Miss Lydia Rachel. Mr. Welton Dale, with his perky manner and odd cackling laugh, gave Mr. Toomer due prominence at the peculiar party invited to dine at the Tidmarshes'; and Miss Maud Wynter was excellent as the gushing Cecilia Flinders. Miss Fanny Brough made all her points with the skill and ease of a clever comedy actress in her admirable assumption of the intensely commonplace Mrs. Montague Tidmarsh. Miss Alice Mansfield was effectively expansive as Mrs. Gilwattle; and Miss C. Ewell was a truly comical Miss Bugle. Miss Dagmar Wiehe looked pretty and played with real charm of manner as Marjory Seaton, the much-snubbed governess; and little Miss Winifred Winter deserves a special word of praise for her natural portrayal of Gwendoline Tidmarsh. Mr. Arthur Playfair showed a real sense of humour as Dawes, the butler hired for the evening; and Miss Muriel Alston as Jane the parlourmaid, and Miss Mary Leslie as Hannah the housemaid completed the cast. Judging by its reception on Wednesday evening The Man from Blankley's is likely to enjoy a prolonged stay at the Haymarket.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

To sit in the open-air, be well amused, and in beautiful surroundings, seems an ideal method of fighting the heat-wave with success, and Mr. J. Bannister Howard has made all this possible in the Café Chantant at the Crystal Palace and has found good response from the visitors to the Sydenham building.

The roof gardens of New York may be larger, but surely there never was one with so pure an air or so extensive a view, for from the North Tower Gardens we are told that ten counties are visible, and the panorama of the Weald of Surrey and the hills of Kent is no bad exchange for rows of chimney-pots and "skyscrapers" of a great city, not to mention the entire absence of falling soot and cinders.

The programme included Mr. Frank Lawton, the well-known whistler, with a very neat and clever bone solo and a feeling rendering of "Il Bacio," whistled in his own inimitable style. Mr. Harry Desmond had a clever song, drawing one's attention to the prevalence of "Goodbye" songs at the moment, and pointing out that nearly all the recently popular ditties are based on "Farewells."

Mr. Walter Grace rendered two songs with great vigour, despite his seventy odd years, and Miss Joan Deering accomplished the difficult feat of singing a ballad and playing an obbligato on the violin at one and the same time. Miss Jessie Harper sang truly and tunefully of "Roses and thorns," and the clever balancing of Mdlle. Ameda was an equally well appreciated turn. In weather such as we have been experiencing, we can imagine nothing more suited than the pleasant outdoor concert presented twice daily here.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

PROMENADE CONCERTS.

The interesting and varied programme at Queen's Hall on Thursday, Aug. 30, commenced with Beethoven's fine overture "Coriolan," of which Mr. Wood's orchestra gave a good account; Bach's delightful "Suite No. 2 in B Minor" for flute and strings also reflected the greatest credit on the band, and on Mr. Albert Fransella for his finished and brilliant performance on the solo instrument, particularly in the rapid and florid music in the seventh and last movement of the grand old composer's work. A most attractive rendering of Bizet's "L'Arleseinne" Suite No. 1 greatly pleased the audience, the spirited playing of the Suite being greeted with loud and long continued applause. The novelty of the evening was a tableau musicale with the quaint title "Baba-Yaga." The composer, A. Laidoff, has written for a large orchestra, in which the xylophone is employed with great effect in the clever score. The subject of "Baba-Yaga" is a witch's ride through the air, seated in a mortar, and using the pestle as a means of propulsion aided by the broom, the old method was for the witch to ride on the broomstick. Miss Elsie Horne was the pianist, and her great technical ability enabled her to successfully grapple with the difficult "Variations" for pianoforte and orchestra, "Down Among the Dead Men," by Sir Charles V. Stanford. Other effective work done by the orchestra was Wagner's Tannhäuser overture, and the overture to Raymond by A. Thomas. The vocalists on Thursday evening were Mme. Emilia Conti, who did herself great credit in the "Letter Song" from Massenet's Werther, an opera performed some years ago at Covent Garden; and Mr. Henry Beaumont, who was well received for his singing of Handel's "Sound an Alarm," from Judas Maccabæus.

Friday, Aug. 31, was a Beethoven night at Queen's Hall, the orchestra opening the concert with the great master's Prometheus overture, of which a fine performance was secured by the splendid band. It is intended to present the nine symphonies of Beethoven chronologically, therefore the second of the series, No. 2 in D major, was heard on Friday, and listened to with rapt attention, Mr. Wood's forces being at their best in the final movement. The pianist in Beethoven's "Emperor Concerto" was Mr. York Bowen, a young English composer who is equally esteemed both as composer and executant. Mr. York Bowen gained fame by his "Symphonic Fantasia," produced by Dr. Richter and the London Symphony Orchestra last February, and his Pianoforte Concerto in D Minor No. 2, played at the Philharmonic Society in June. The young and talented artist seems equally at home either in composition or on the keyboard, and the Royal Academy may be justly proud of having trained an artist who is a credit not only to them but to his country. In the "Emperor Concerto" Mr. Bowen played with masterly skill the many beautiful passages which occur in this great work, and it was evident that his playing made a deep impression on his attentive hearers, who at the close gave a warm reception to the clever performer. The solo violinist was Mr. S. Abbas, one of the orchestral players. He admirably acquitted himself in Beethoven's "Romance" in F. Included in the programme was Richard Strauss's "Till Eulenspeigels Merry Pranks" and Schubert's overture "Alfonso and Estrella." Mme. Maria de Sanset, a talented and dramatic singer from Dresden, sang the "Invocation to Hope" (Fidelio), and Mr. Lloyd Chandos Beethoven's "Adeliada"; and in spite of the intense heat a large audience was present at Queen's Hall.

The novelty of Tuesday night's programme at the Queen's Hall Promenade Concert was "Märchen," a symphonic poem by a Danish composer, August Enna. The composer has already, at the early age of twenty years, written an operetta that met with considerable success, but it was not until many years after that he devoted his attention to more serious work. The poem contains four sections, some of which are effective and original; but the impression created by the poem is that the composer is at his best when unfettered by musical convention, and writing only as his natural feeling dictates. "Märchen" was warmly greeted by the audience, although the music was not particularly well rendered by the band. Among the works most finely played by the orchestra were Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 2, in F, and the popular Tannhäuser overture. Earlier in the concert Emmanuel Chabnier's rhapsody "España" and Boccherini's charming Minuet in A for strings, were given, and included also in the programme were the "Egmont" overture (Beethoven), Berlioz's "Menuet des Follets," "Danse des Sylphes," "Marche Hongroise," from Faust, and Elgar's "Three Bavarian Dances," the concert ending with Auber's overture "Zanetta." Miss Norah Newport and Mr. Ward Cowdery were the vocalists, Miss Newport singing the "Ballatella" from Pagliacci, and Mr. Ward Cowdery revealing a fine voice and an artistic style in an air from Halévy's opera La Juive.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 3, the Musical Comedy, entitled "FLORODORA."

Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 company is appearing this week at Notting Hill Gate in the enormously successful musical comedy, Florodora, with its lilting melodies, audacious libretto, and picturesque setting. The scenery and dresses are all that could be desired, and the full orchestra and chorus, under the direction of Mr. B. J. Patterson, do justice to the pretty songs and harmonies of the piece. Mr. Daley Cooper is a very droll and eccentric comedian, and his extraordinary antics and his tireless activity as Antony Tweedlepunch, the fraudulent phrenologist, keep the audience in fits of laughter, and his performance as the mysterious musician in Act 2, Scene 1, is very clever and effective. Mr. Joseph R. Tate ambles easily through the part of the rascally Cyrus Gilfain; and Mr. R. Courtier Dutton does good service in the vocal line as Frank Abercoed, and his rendition of the songs allotted to him is much appreciated. Mr. Harold Perry is alert and animated as Captain Arthur Dongal; Miss Edith Housley is very bright, refined, and capable as Lady Holyrood, and sings her chic songs with point and precision, and is elegant and agreeable throughout. Little Miss Nellie Bowman dances delightfully and acts with much vivacity as Angela Gilfain; and Miss Violet Grazia puts any amount of fervour and intensity into her rendering of the rôle of Dolores. Mr. Edwin Oxley makes much of the small part of Leandro, overseer of the Florodora farms; and a bevy of beauty and manly elegance enact the parts of the "gentle maidens" and their swains. Mr. Jos. Tate, assisted by Mr. Edwin Oxley, stage-manage the show; and Mr. Andrew Spens is the general-manager for the company.

A NUMBER of new plays are announced this season at the Imperial Burg Theatre, Vienna. Among them are the following :—Der Falsche König, versical comedy, by Ludwig Fulda; Bora, a comedy, by Dr. F. Radler; a drama, by Max Bernstein, entitled Herreurecht; Das Fest von St. Matern, by E. Wehlisch, and a new comedy, by Dr. Otto Ernst, the title of which has not yet been decided upon.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—"Palmam qui, &c." IN The Era of last week your Great Yarmouth correspondent says that Mr. Charles Collette was supported in his sketch, Tea for Two, by Miss Joan Derby. That privilege was enjoyed by—Yours truly, JOAN DERBY.

Zweiter Bürger ..... HERR PARIS
Erster Nürnberger ..... HERR WINTER
Zweiter Nürnberger ..... HERR UHLIG

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, SEPT. 6.—The occasion of this production was a gala performance in connection with the recent Court festivities, but the little piece—which is judiciously called a "festspiel"—is better than the majority of its kind. It was unfortunate that owing to the demand for large State boxes (the Kaiser and Kaiserin, with many visitors, were present) the play had to be given in the Opera House instead of the Schauspielhaus, the acoustics of the former being disadvantageous to the speaking voice. The action passes at Nürnberg in the time of the famous Kaiser Barbarossa (Friedrich I.), about whom so many legends exist. Keen for adventure, the bold youth, Friedrich von Zollern, leaves his father's fortress and goes forth—a second Parsifal—to seek his fortunes. He arrives at Nürnberg, and speedily falls in love with the Burggraf's fair daughter Sophie, who, of course, reciprocates his affection. But sterner things claim the hero's attention. He discovers a plot to murder the Emperor; it has originated in Italy, which he had just gloriously vanquished, and is to be carried out by one Gebhardus, who has crept over from Milan for the purpose. Young Zollern turns the tables upon the would-be assassin and makes an end of him, which deed of prowess at first costs him dear. He is beaten and cast into prison for creating a disturbance on a day of public rejoicing, but it soon comes to the Kaiser's ears, and the youthful hero is rehabilitated with all honour. Sophie is faithful to him, and the lovers are united. The curtain descends on as fine a tableau as anyone could desire; indeed, the play was staged throughout magnificently. The language is smooth and pleasant, and the author, who is still young, should do better things in the future. That the acting was admirable it is hardly necessary to add. An unfortunate accident took place at the close of the performance. Herr Staegemann (Zollern) did his work too realistically, and his dagger caught Kaiser Barbarossa's (Dr. Max Pohl) eye, inflicting a somewhat serious wound. An operation, it is said, will be unnecessary, but the actor will not be able to appear for some little time, and the bill has had to be altered in consequence. The accident was not noticed by the audience, but it came to the Emperor's ears. His Majesty has repeatedly sent to inquire how Dr. Pohl is progressing, and has forwarded him flowers and fruit from the Royal gardens.

THE Royal Schauspielhaus is announcing a number of new plays and important revivals. Among the former are Franz von Schönthan's Klein Dorrit, Lehmann's drama, Das Lied Vom Braven Mann, and Dr. Blumenthal's comedy Das Glashaus. Chief among the latter are Hamlet, A Midsummer Night's Dream, Much Ado About Nothing, A Winter's Tale—whereby you will perceive that Shakespeare is as much to the front as ever—and Schiller's Wallenstein. The Royal Opera, too, appears to be getting livelier, three new works being announced: Tschaikowsky's Pique Dame, Ritter's Der Faule Hans, and Smetana's Dalibor. The ballet Prometheus, with the music by Beethoven, will also be produced early in the season.

ON Friday last the Neues Theatre reopened under the management of its new lessee, Herr Alfred Schmieden. The pretty little theatre in Schiffbauer-Damm has always been a house of high-class standing, and it assuredly will not be less so under Herr Schmieden, who brings a wealth of experience with him. The company is composed almost exclusively of artists of note, many of them—such as Herr Christians, Herr Schnidler, Frau Reisenhofer, Fräuleins Jaeger and Hartwig, and others—being formerly members of the first Berlin companies. A couple of Molière's comedies—Sganarell and Der Burgerliche Edelmann—were given on the opening night with success that augurs well for the future. A new play in three acts, entitled Frost im Frühling, by Leo Lenz, is to be produced to-night, and Max Dreyer's comedy Eine next week. On the 21st a drama by Bloem—Der Jubiläumsbrunnen—will see the light for the first time, and a week later a new comedy by Georg Engel is to be produced, by which it will be seen that Director Schmieden is nothing if not enterprising.

THE new Lortzing Opera opened last week. Under the names of Belle Alliance, the Victoria, and various others, this little theatre in the south-west has passed through many phases. It was the happy idea of Herr Max Garrison to supply that part of the city with an opera-house with popular admission prices. He got together an efficient orchestra and company under the management of a good conductor, and one of the happiest features of the undertaking is the name of the theatre Lortzing was a Berliner by birth, and he died here some fifty years ago, at the early age of forty-five. He gave to the world some delightfully melodious and soundly-written operas, the best known of which are Undine—recently done with great success at the Royal Opera—Der Waffenschmied, and Czar und Zimmermann. It was with the last-mentioned that the theatre opened, whereby another proof of judicious management was given. The interpretation of this amusing and altogether pleasing little work was first-rate: the Burgomeister was worthily rendered by Herr Greder, Fräulein Martin was excellent as Marie, and Herr Adalbert Lieban (Julius Lieban's brother) was satisfactory in the rôle of Peter Ivanoff, Peter the Great being represented by Herr Goerger. Kapellmeister Bodansky did his work in very promising style, and orchestra and chorus were thoroughly up to the mark. The mounting being tasteful and the applause spontaneous and hearty, the opening of the Lortzing may be written down a success.

HAUPTMANN'S remarkable play, Fuhrmann Henschel, has been revived with painstaking care at the Lessing, and the result is the perfection of acting such as we are accustomed to see at this theatre. It is to me—and in this, I believe, I am not alone—a matter of much wonderment that this piece has gained for itself so firm a place in the Lessing répertory, but that is a question per se. The revolting character of Hanna Schäle was played in a masterly manner by Fräulein Else Lehmann, every phase of the demon in female form being brought out as the author intended. The cast was for the most part the same as at the first production, Fräulein Orloff being new in the rôle of Franziska.

"SHERLOCK HOLMES" was visited on Sunday evening by the Kaiser, the Crown Prince and Princess, the Crown Princess of Greece, and the Kaiser's younger sons. The manager of the Berliner met the distinguished guests at the door of the theatre, and received after the performance a tasteful proof of His Majesty's appreciation. Herr Bonn played the name-part for more than the fiftieth time.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

THE coalition of two most important circuits is reported. On making inquiries at headquarters, we were informed that negotiations have been opened between the two companies, but nothing has yet been settled. Should the coupling up be effected, the operations of the combination will extend to no less than twenty-one places of entertainment.

THE London, Shoreditch, and the Royal Albert, Canning Town, on Monday next will inaugurate the experiment of two houses a night, thus falling into line with all other variety houses east of the Griffin except the Paragon. Fifteen years ago the only recognised music hall run on the twice nightly plan was the Sebright, which has since become a theatre.

MISS ANNA HICKISCH, the operatic soprano who is starring at the Empire, has had an unfortunate experience. It is her custom to spend an hour on her bicycle after breakfast, and on Thursday morning, when riding up a steep hill, the machine broke at the head, and her weight falling on her left foot the ankle was badly sprained. Though in great pain she managed to sing on Thursday; but for a few days it will be necessary for her to rest and drive direct from her door to the Empire. The accident has interfered with her rehearsals of the new grand operatic skit, Burning to Sing, in which she is to play the principal part, and which Mr. Edwardes will produce very shortly at the Empire.

MR. HARRY WRIGHT, at the opening of the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday, presented to Mr. Jesse Sparrow a beautiful floral horseshoe composed of white lilies and other choice flowers, bearing on its face in red blooms the words "Good Luck." He said: "Mr. Sparrow, on behalf of the Terriers, of which I am proud to be a member, I have much pleasure in presenting this emblem to you, our president, and to endorse by our presence here this evening the motto 'Good Luck' to this your new undertaking. This floral emblem is much too large for you to have about you always, so we ask you to accept this little jewel, which is also a horseshoe, and hope you will live to wear it for a very long time indeed." Cheers and musical honours followed, in which the ladies joined.

MR. JOHN SMITH, the manager to Messrs. Francis and Day, received a cablegram from America on Monday announcing the safe arrival in New York of the heads of the firm, and stating that Mr. Fred Day and Mr. William Francis were both in excellent health, and the Transatlantic branch flourishing exceedingly.

THE "Sixpenny Pops" department of Messrs. Francis and Day's business in London has been hitherto much cramped and hampered owing to want of space, the premises in Denmark-street having been also the headquarters of a wholesale collar maker and of a large printing concern. These two firms have now removed their businesses elsewhere, and the entire premises were on Thursday formally taken over. As soon as the necessary alterations are completed considerable augmentations will be made to the already long catalogue of the firm's popular series.

MISS ADA REEVE, whose triumphs in the Strand are nothing new to her, seems always to find her right environment. This happy state of things is due perhaps as much to her personal magnetism as to her rare histrionic gifts. Not many years since she had Australia at her feet; then South Africa capitulated to her charms; and just now she is fascinating a typically East-End audience at the Paragon as well as a representative West-End crowd of variety lovers at the Tivoli. No actress ever attained such a unique position on both the greater and lesser stages as Ada Reeve, and she has reached it by sheer hard work, thoroughness, and consummate art.

IT is understood that Mr. Oswald Stoll, who has changed his permanent residence from Cardiff to Putney, will shortly voyage to New York to consult with certain vaudeville managers in the States with reference to the future of the Coliseum.

MR. CARL HERTZ, the ever-popular illusionist, has met with all sorts of extraordinary adventures during his long career on the stage. One of the most exciting occurred on one of his voyages from England to New York. A young American on board had lost a great amount of money at poker, and Mr. Hertz shrewdly suspected that the three men with whom the unfortunate boy had been induced to play were professional gamblers. He made up his mind to give him a kindly warning. The young American at first refused to listen, but at last consented to let Mr. Hertz take a hand, on the following night, in the play. The illusionist watched to such good purpose that he was firmly convinced his suspicions were only too well founded, and when his turn came to deal he prepared a little surprise for his companions. Betting ran high. The room was crowded with men. "The pot's mine!" said one of the players, "I have three knaves!" "Three queens!" shouted the second. "Three kings!" almost yelled the third. "Four aces!" cried Carl Hertz. When the ship arrived at New York, the three sharpers were handed over to the police, and the young American recovered his money.

HERE is a good little story that Mr. Hertz tells against himself, with a moral for conjurers—do not employ confederates unless you are quite sure of them! One of his tricks, years ago in America, was to put a dollar, borrowed from a member of the audience, into an orange, and afterwards draw it (the coin) out of a small boy's pocket, the boy being the confederate to whom a dollar had of course been given before the show began. One night, when Mr. Hertz had carefully pretended to pick out a strange child, and asked him to feel in his pockets for the silver piece, the unexpected result was the production of a handful of small change, while a small voice explained, in loud tones, "Please, boss, there's only ninety cents to-night. I got thirsty, and changed the dollar you gave me to buy a drink!"

IN the course of the next fortnight Mr. George Edwardes hopes to stage at the Empire a humorous operatic sketch entitled Very Grand Opera; or, Burning to Sing. The music of this sparkling trifle is by Gustav Kerker, the well-known composer of The Belle of New York, who hopes to return from America in time to conduct the piece on the first performance. The principal parts in the burlesque will be taken by Miss Anna Hickish and Mr. Ottley Cranston. The lady, who is a charming vocalist, has distinguished herself by her impersonation of Madame Sans-Gêne in The Duchess of Dantzic, and Mr. Ottley Cranston is a well-known operatic baritone, who has won much favour in English opera in the provinces. Mlle. Juniori, the favourite Parisienne comedienne, will appear at the Empire at an early date.

MISS ALEXANDRA DAGMAR scored a decided success at the Tivoli on Monday in Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford's stirring march-song, "When the band played 'The Men of Harlech,'" and the catchy chorus was taken up with vigour by the audience. The Monte Carlo Publishing Company consider this song a most certain "winner" for pantomime, for which it will be issued free of all fees whatever.

MR. WHIT CUNLIFFE'S new satirical song, "You'll get on in England if you're not an Englishman," by Murray and Hilbury, has been secured by the Charing Cross-road publishing firm.

THE Mansfield Hippodrome will, as at present arranged, reopen on Oct. 8, under the management of Mr. T. Jennings.

A COMPANY called the Lancashire Vaudeville Syndicate has been formed to acquire the assets and liabilities of "Palaces, Liverpool." The offices are at Norwich House, Southampton-street, Holborn.

THE Palace Theatre, Darlington, Limited, has been registered. Mr. G. F. Ward is the architect, and Signor Pepi, of the Palace, Carlisle, and the Tivoli, Barrow-in-Furness, has been appointed managing director. Building operations will be commenced immediately.

DR. WALFORD BODIE has again been creating a furore in Glasgow at the Coliseum, despite the fact that it is his nineteenth visit to the city. On Saturday night at both houses hundreds were turned away. He opens again in London on Monday at the Empire, New Cross, being fully booked up this year. Mr. Arthur Jefferson, of the Metropole, Glasgow, his sole provincial representative, is arranging to book the doctor at the leading provincial theatres.

THE Palace Theatre, Cork, reopened on Monday last. Mr. Henry Kemble, the popular manager, has had a three months' booking tour on the Continent and in England, during which he has been fortunate in securing some of the best acts in the business. He has an exceptionally strong bill for the opening week, having secured through Cavill's Agency Wizard Stone, with his sensational act, The Globe of Life.

MISS DECIMA BROOKE, the charming juvenile actress who has been playing in variety with Miss Millie Hylton, has been engaged to play the title-rôle in the pantomime of Red Riding Hood, to be produced at Christmas at the New Theatre, Sunderland.

"UNCLE BONES," whose name is so familiarly associated with Margate of the past and present, took his annual benefit on Monday evening, and has now expressed his intention of retiring. It is forty years since he started as a nigger minstrel on Margate sands, and there was much sighing on the beach on Thursday, the 30th ult., when he announced his coming retirement. Though sixty-four, "Uncle" is as nimble and merry as ever, but he feels that he has done enough.

IN 1895 he appeared with the late Mr. Toole in Thoroughbred, at Toole's Theatre. The character he impersonated was that of a nigger minstrel at the seaside, Mr. Toole and Mr. Shelton being his associates in the scene. He also played the genuine Uncle Bones' act (with his troupe) with Arthur Roberts in Gentleman Joe. In his comic singing days Uncle Bones was known at the South London and the London Pavilion, where he was for a time chairman. He also went to Astley's.

MR. W. H. CARROLL, the American bioscope operator at the Ardwick Empire, was married on the 22nd ult. to Miss Prudence Helena Jones, whose father was the late manager of the Grand Theatre of Varieties, Manchester. The manager and staff of the Ardwick Empire gave Mr. Carroll a present of cutlery.

MR. J. W. ELLISON, the well-known comedian, whose songs, "All through a Gee-gee-gee" and "The sweetest singer of all," are favourites with both London and provincial audiences, will be married to-morrow (Sunday), at Margate, the bride—a Miss Palmer—being a native of that town.

THE thirteenth ordinary general meeting of the Star Theatre of Varieties, Dublin, was held on Wednesday. Mr. Adam S. Findlater, chairman, presiding. The report states that the profits for the year, inclusive of interest on investments and transfer fees, after the payment of all working expenses, amount to £1,014 2s. 9d. Deducting from this amount the interest on debenture stock and income tax, there remains, with the £953 11s. 3d. brought forward from the previous account, a sum of £610, 16s. which it is proposed to carry forward to the next account.

CONSIDERABLE dissatisfaction was expressed at the unfortunate position of the shareholders. Mr. James O'Loughlin objected to the accounts being passed. Mr. P. D. Kennedy suggested the appointment of independent men on the board; and the former gentleman moved an amendment to the effect that the directors' fees be not allowed until they paid 5 per cent. on the shares. The motion for the adoption of the report was eventually declared to be carried, amid some expressions of dissent. Mr. Loftus Walshe was re-elected a director.

MR. KARL KAPS, the director of the season's band at Folkestone, was accorded a benefit on Tuesday evening, the occasion being made the last illuminated promenade concert at the Pleasure Gardens.

MR. ERNEST HAMPSON and his refined pierrot party conclude to-night a most successful season at Low Green, Ayr. Last Wednesday evening the members of the troupe, by kind permission of Mr. Hampson, held their benefit concert in the Town Hall, Ayr, each member receiving presents, whilst Mr. Hampson was the recipient of a beautiful diamond scarf-pin.

ONE of the many pretty numbers in that charming new musical play, The Sweet Girl, is "Strolling in the evening," daintily sung by Miss Claudia Lasell. It is by Harry M. Wellmon, and is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MISS MINNIE JOHNSON, who has been giving her celebrated tank performance and exhibitions in the sea at Dover, was publicly presented at the conclusion of her successful engagement with a beautiful gold curb chain bracelet by a few residents and admirers. During her stay at the popular watering place Miss Johnson assisted in saving the lives of two lady visitors, who had got out of their depth while bathing, and were in imminent danger of being drowned.

WALTER BELLONINI, the renowned juggler, is at present delighting audiences in Bordeaux. At the conclusion of his engagement there he will go on to Nice and Marseilles, returning to the Hippodrome in November.

Two numbers free for pantomime are going strong just now in town, in the hands respectively of Miss Marguerite Broadfoote and Miss Criss Cross—"I wonder what we'd do without our girls?" and "All girls are beautiful." Both numbers are by J. F. Lambe and have been issued by Mr. David Day.

MR. WALTER GRAHAM, the human marionette, has had a striking picture post-card printed, in which his head protrudes through a gigantic poster of the Harrogate Kursaal, a poster in which Mr. Graham topped, Mme. Albani middled, and the band of the Gordon Highlanders bottomed the bill.

MLLE. ANNE DANCREY, who brought the "Maxixe"—sometimes called the Mattchiche—to London, has returned this week to the Alhambra, where she is singing with all her accustomed brilliancy and charm three songs—a march, "Chant de Gloire," a gavotte, "L'Américaine," and a valse, "Hosanna d'Amour." The gavotte proved the most popular at her appearance on Monday.

THE annual general meeting of the M.H.A.R.A. will be held on Tuesday, October 16. The agenda will naturally be a heavy one, and full particulars will be announced in due course.

THE Royal Albert Palace of Varieties, Canning Town, of which the sole proprietor and manager is Mr. Arthur G. H. Hunt, will re-open on Monday on the two-houses-a-night system There will be no chairman, Mr. Walter Leaver, who wielded the hammer here for so many years, passing into well-earned retirement.

MISS JOSEPHINE SABEL has just returned from America. During her stay in New York she was compelled to undergo a serious operation, which she successfully pulled through. Miss Sabel opened at the Paris Olympia on Saturday, and she was immediately re-engaged.

MISS VESTA VICTORIA'S motor veil attached to the "business" end of a boat-hook saved her from an awkward predicament in which she found herself on Sunday night at Brighton, whither she had gone to fulfil an engagement at Mr. Barrasford's popular Hippodrome. With a friend she took a moonlight trip in a motor-boat. When the voyagers were about seven miles out the carburetter caught fire, and though the flames were smothered, an escape of petrol made the little vessel practically a derelict. A trawler, however, hove in sight, and gave the necessary assistance, the popular comedienne being landed early on Monday morning none the worse for her exciting adventure.

MR. TOM WOOTTWELL is enjoying a well-earned holiday, the first he has taken for three years. With Mrs. Woottwell he motored last week to Portsmouth in his fine Panhard car, and, being an excellent swimmer, did some good work in the water at Southsea. He spent one evening at the Portsmouth Empire watching other people perspire. On reaching Putney Bridge on the return journey on Saturday, about 7 p.m., tyre troubles commenced, and he did not reach his home at Highgate until 11.30.

MR. HENRY CARLTON writes: "I should like to make it known through the columns of your valuable paper that I was engaged at the Palace, Walthamstow, with my No. 1 dramatic company, the week of Aug. 13, 1906, and although I only appeared there on the Monday night, I beg to thank Mr. G. Adney Payne, who, through my solicitors, Messrs. Stanley, Woodhouse, and Hedderwick, 45, Ludgate-hill, E.C., has paid me my salary in full for the above week."

LA MILO was seized on Thursday evening with a sudden attack of faintness during her series of artistic poses at the London Pavilion, where she has been fulfilling a conspicuously successful engagement for four months. The curtain was immediately lowered, and Cruikshank, the lightning caricaturist, "filled in" with an increased number of his most interesting cartoons of celebrities. La Milo appeared last night as usual.

SOME years ago the writer was introduced by Mr. Paul Martinetti to his mother, just over from America, who was enjoying, at a well-known hall, her son's fine exhibition of comic pantomime in A Terrible Night. She talked with all the engaging vivacity of a cultivated Frenchwoman, and although from the new world, possessed quite the old-world courtesy of the ancienne noblesse. It was therefore with sincere regret that early in the week we heard the news of her death at the ripe old age of eighty-three. Her heart was ever young, and that she had wonderful energy was proved last year when she again crossed the Atlantic, and enjoyed a long holiday at her son's up-river bungalow near Staines, on one occasion handling a pair of sculls in a skiff. In her earlier years Mme. Martinetti shared the triumphs of the celebrated Martinetti and Revelle's combination in the States. The sad news, which reached London by cablegram on Saturday, was not revealed either to Paul or Alfred Martinetti until their return to town on Sunday evening. To both the brothers the cordial sympathy of a host of friends in the profession will be extended.

OUIDA'S well-known novel, "Under Two Flags," has been many times adapted for the theatres, and we remember Miss Claire Howard some years ago bringing to the halls a shortened version of her husband's dramatisation of the story. A sketch on the same subject, entitled La Virandière, will be produced, under the direction of Mr. Hugh J. Didcott, at the Grand, Clapham. Miss Isabel Derry will play the intrepid heroine, Cigarette.

MESSRS. HARRINGTON AND TATE have just written and composed a new comedy number, entitled "All round the clock" (only twelve verses!), the singing rights of which they have disposed of in equal shares to Mr. Whit Cunliffe and Miss Clarice Mayne. It will be published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Company, and should be in rare demand at pantomime time. The McNaughtons have already secured it for the forthcoming "annual" at the Crown, Peckham.

MR. WILKIE BARD has been specially engaged at the Tivoli to sing an entirely new song entitled "What's the matter with England?" (dealing humorously with the burning question of "England for the English"), opening on Monday next. Mr. Bard must prove an accession of strength to an already strong programme, of which Miss Ada Reeve is still the bright particular star.

MR. WALTER HAST (of Lennie and Hast), who has just returned to England from a successful engagement in the States, reports that the "hit" of Weber and Field's latest big production in Boston was "My Tiny Firefly," by Ballard Macdonald and Donovan Meher, one of the Monte Carlo Publishing Company's "Sixpenny Successes."

THE Shapiro Von Tilzer music-publishing company has accepted for publication Miss Margaret Broadfoote's haunting chorus song "Make love while the moon shines," which should be in demand for pantomime. It is from the pens of J. F. Lambe and T. W. Thurban.

MISS LOTTIE WILLIAMS (Mrs. George Lashwood), who recently underwent a somewhat serious operation, is making a rapid and satisfactory recovery.

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Company has just acquired from Mr. G. H. Elliott the publishing rights of his new romantic song, "My Venice Girl," written and composed by Mr. Joseph Tabrar, which they will include in their "Sixpenny Successes" series at an early date. Mr. Tabrar is now quite a veteran song-writer, and his melodies and verses have brightened many a Gaiety burlesque.

MESSRS. MELLOR, LAWRENCE, AND GIFFORD have just acquired the lease of commanding business premises at Hammersmith, which they will open shortly for the sale of popular music at popular prices. It would be harder to find anywhere a more thronged thoroughfare than the Western Broadway, and their enterprise appears predestined to success. They will still continue song-writing.

ONE of the many interesting features of The Earthquake at the London Hippodrome is the introduction of the popular American song "Cheyenne" (a cowboy love song). It is charmingly sung by Miss Simeta Marsden. Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter will issue it at once in two editions.

MISS DAISY WHITE, the eldest daughter of Mr. Douglas White (who is hon. treasurer of the Terriers' Association and the M.H.A.R.A.), was married on Tuesday, at St. Luke's Church, Chelsea, to Mr. Donald Ross McBean, before a large congregation of relatives and friends. At the reception over one hundred guests were present, including brother Terriers Fred W. Millis, Harry Wright, John Moore, G. P. R. Burgess (solicitor), S. W. Salter (trustee), and Harry Lester (secretary). The wedding presents—eighty-nine in all—were costly and beautiful. The happy pair, amid hearty congratulations, left during the afternoon for their honeymoon in Dorsetshire.

MR. GILBERT WELLS, the popular song-writer, was married on Friday, 31st ult., at Christ Church, Brixton-road, to Miss Charlotte M. Nichols. The bride, who is not connected with the profession, was given away by Mr. E. C. Matthews, the well-known Irish actor, and was attended by Miss May Tilley (sister of Miss Vesta Tilley) and Miss Dorothy and Master Donald Blair (daughter and son of the bridegroom). Mr. Lester May was "best man." There was a large attendance at the church, including Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Scott, Mr. A. J. Mills, Mr. Harry Adams, Mr. Bingham Sedgwick, Miss Rosie Gaston, Mr. Will Crackles, Mr. Jack Wayho, Mr. Austin Lenton, Mr. Charles Dudley, and a host of friends. Mr. Bennett Scott's subsequent playing of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" and Miss Vesta Victoria's touching ditty "Waiting at the church" was greatly appreciated. The happy pair are honeymooning in Scotland.

MR. FRED WRIGHT, JUN., who is appearing at the Palace, has a grievance, and one which has been a great worry of recent years. He says, "The absurd resemblance between Brother Huntley and myself would (or perhaps may) form the clou of a comedy. People have paid him who owed me, people have opened bottles with me meant for him, and pretty girls with autograph books never know whose signature they want until they get it. After much thought, I am proposing to issue a safeguard to all such: if they meet me wearing pince-nez, it is Huntley; if they meet Huntley without his pince-nez, it is me."

MR. BANNISTER HOWARD has arranged for the following artists to appear at the café chantant in the North Tower Gardens of the Crystal Palace next week:—Charles Freeman, in his duologue, entitled "The Broken Honeymoon"; Stan Aubrey, comedian and eccentric dancer; Frank Crisp, baritone comedian; and the Sprees (Dorothy and Joe), in their scena, Twickenham Ferry.

MISS MAREE KEAN, who is this week having a great reception at the Colchester Hippodrome, has a series of songs being prepared for her by Mr. Nat Clifford, with which she will appear very shortly. They will savour of the "Smart Set," and Miss Kean is having a special set of dresses, of a most elaborate description, prepared for her. Until now she has been more closely identified with low-comedy songs.

MR. JAMES KIRK, who bought the lease of the Oxford for £27,100 in 1889, and later on purchased the Scotia, Glasgow, has taken over the Blue Anchor tavern in Fenchurch-street. Quite a party of artists journeyed thither a few days since to renew acquaintance with the ex-music hall proprietor and manager.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD H. LUCAS have made a most successful South African début at the Empire Theatre, Johannesburg. The clever Dickensonians opened their season with scenes from "Martin Chuzzlewit" and "Bleak House," Mrs. Lucas's performance of the death of Joe being considered the pièce de résistance in the programme. The Transvaal Critic described their show as "superb." The many friends of Mr. Joe O'Gorman in this country will be pleased to hear that his two young sons, whose dancing is especially good, recently made a very promising first appearance on any stage in Johannesburg.

MISS EILEEN DOUGLAS, who is one of the many recruits from musical comedy to the music halls, is producing a scena of an extremely novel nature at the Brighton Hippodrome on Monday, after which it will be seen at one of our leading West End halls. As it is quite an original idea, and will be most elaborately mounted, it ought to create a sensation. The scena is being arranged by that well-known producer Mr. Fred Farren; the lyrics are by Ralph Roberts (of the Prince of Wales's Theatre) and Fred Leigh, and the music by Henry Pether.

DUSE MOHAMED, the Egyptian actor-author, who has made a great success with his costume tragedy sketch The Jew's Revenge, has formed a novel combination, which he is taking on tour. Apart from the fact that Mr. Mohamed is the only English-speaking actor the East has ever produced, which in itself should prove a drawing card, he has brought over Chee-Yon-Say, late conjuror to the Emperor of China, assisted by his son Que-Son, said to be the only child conjurer in the world. The Jew's Revenge and the Chinese will constitute the chief novelties in Duse Mohamed's show, but there are other attractions.

THE 479th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, when the following members were present:—Messrs. Fred Herbert, J. Alexander, Harry Wright, A. Borelli, Wal Pink, Fred Russell, Jeff Vendome, Geo. A. Booker, Albert Voyce, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). Mr. Fred Herbert was voted to the chair. Mr. Fred Russell tendered his resignation as a member of the committee, owing to his forthcoming visit to Australia. Mr. Borelli proposed, and Mr. Alexander seconded, that the resignation be not accepted. This was carried. A letter was also read from Mr. W. Downes, resigning from the committee; but, owing to his frequent absences in the provinces, his resignation was not accepted. In accordance with the resolution passed at the last meeting, Messrs. H. Tich, Wilkie Bard, and W. Poluski, sen., were understood to have retired from the committee, and the following, being the next on the list, were therefore elected on the committee:—Messrs. Fred Griffiths, G. H. Smythson, and C. C. Bartram. The weekly financial statement was submitted and passed.

MESSRS. FRANCIS, DAY, AND HUNTER tender their hearty congratulations and sincerest thanks to all who have assisted in agitating for, and in securing, the passage of the new Musical Copyright Act, (1906). Amongst the friends and workers for the Bill honourable mention must be made of Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, Mr. John Redmond, M.P., Sir Alfred Thomas, M.P., Mr. Enoch Edwards, M.P., Mr. Keir Hardie, M.P., Mr. Crombie, M.P., Mr. Sloan, M.P., the Right Hon. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Right Hon. Sir Lawson Walton, the Right Hon. Herbert Gladstone, Earl Beauchamp, the Right Hon. Akers-Douglas, the Right Hon. Sir Robert Finlay, the Right Hon. Sir Edward Carson, Mr. Cochrane, M.P., Mr. Galloway, M.P., Mr. Ian Malcolm, M.P., the Right Hon. C. B. Stuart-Wortley, Mr. Mount, M.P., Earl Lytton, Lord Windsor, Lord Monkswell, Lord Balcarres, Lord Knutsford, Mr. Charles Willeby, Hon. Robert H. Lyttelton, Mr. R. D. Muir, Mr. Henry Percy Becher, Mr. Philip J. Rutland, Mr. J. G. Littlechild, Mr. F. M. Goodman, Mr. William Boosey, and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, manager of The Era. Also of the officers and members, past and present, of the Musical Copyright Association, and the Music Publishers' Association; all the lady and gentleman members of the music trade and music profession, and the British Press.

CHIRGWIN, that master of the rod and line, and Mr. John Barton fished last week with conspicuous success in the upper reaches of the Humber, capturing the wary roach and bream in considerable numbers. The popular White-Eyed Kaffir is entertaining with his customary success at the Empire, Leeds, this week.

MR. HARRY RICHARDSON, the musical director of the Brixton Theatre, on retiring from that position last week, was presented by the management and staff with a silver card-case. His successor is Mr. E. Moss. As we have already announced, the house is to be run with variety on the twice nightly plan.

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Company has just accepted from Messrs. Paul, Pelham, and Herbert Rule a new song with an ear-haunting refrain, entitled "Longing always for you," which is, at present, of the "free" variety.

MR. F. V. ST. CLAIR, the well-known writer of verses and songs, in recognition of the bravery of the boy Fox who attempted to rescue a drowning lad at North Shore, Blackpool, some weeks ago, composed a song poem, entitled "The Shoe Black Hero," which he recited with great pathos at the local Hippodrome performances last week. The verses were printed, and sold during the performances, the proceeds of the sale amounting to £10 15s. 8d. After deducting £2 14s. 1d. for expenses, the sum of £8 1s. 7d. was left. Of this amount £1 10s. was handed over to Fox, and the balance, £6 11s. 7d., was deposited with the Chief Constable, to distribute as he might think fit on behalf of the lad. Fox has appeared on the stage at the Hippodrome with Mr. F. V. St. Clair after the recital of the poem during the past week, and has been accorded very hearty receptions.

MR. JOHN LAWSON is reviving at the Empire, Islington, on Monday, his famous sketch Sally in Our Alley. The close of this is a powerful revelation, as far as the stage will permit, of the vicious orgies of a band of degenerates to whose base desires a pander with a "life studio" ministers. Recent disclosures in New York triumphantly justify the author in the incidents presented, which are not in the slightest degree over-coloured.

MISS KATIE LAWRENCE returned on Monday to the Middlesex, where she is such a warm favourite, and sang with all her customary success a new song, "Why can't I be a pal of yours?" by Herbert Rule and Newton Beet, both of them comparatively new lyrical contributors to the variety stage.

TO Mr. E. A. Pickering, who is shortly to be installed as assistant-manager to Mr. Alfred Butt at the Palace, was accorded a complimentary benefit at the Tivoli, Cape Town, on the 24th ult., since which date he has spent a short time visiting friends in Johannesburg. He sailed on Wednesday for England.

THE friends of Miss Agnes Hazel (Mrs. Michael Nolan) will be pleased to learn she is now making rapid recovery from her severe illness. She expects to be allowed to have a drive on the first clear day next week.

MISS NELL RICHARDSON opened on Monday at the London Pavilion, after a successful Russian tour, and made an enormous success with two new songs, "I can see red roses blooming," by Leigh and Pether, and "Snowflakes," by Mills and Scott. These pretty numbers will be featured in all the principal Christmas productions.

MISS MAIDIE SCOTT has found a trump-card in a new song by Alfred Wood and George Ess. She has also acquired three excellent songs from Mr. Chapman, of Southport, one of which has a remarkably fine chorus.

AFTER her successful series of engagements in London, lasting six months, Miss Daisy James goes on the Moss and Stoll tour for nine weeks, commencing Oct. 1.

THE latest quotations of music hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1⅞; Canterbury, 1; Empire (15s. paid), 1½; Empire (10s. paid), 1; London Pavilion Ord., 3⅜; London Pavilion Pref., 5; London Coliseum, ½; Metropolitan, ⅛; Moss Empire, 4½; Moss Empire 5 per cent. Pref., 3⅜; Oxford, 6⅜; Palace, 11s.; Tivoli, 6; Variety Consolidated Theatres, 14s.

THE usual monthly meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held on Wednesday afternoon next, at the York Hotel.

IN respect to the theft of a wig and necklace, the property of Mlle. La Tosca, at Blyth, it appears that the wig has not been recovered, and a search is still being made.

AT the International Artists' Lodge in London on Sunday Brother 876 took the chair, and welcomed the brothers present—202, 382, 119, 1,041, 1,215, 1,216, 876, 519, and two guests. A report of the result of application for reduction of fares to artists on the Batavier line was given as follows:—Between Oct. 1 and May 1 artists may travel first-class between London and Rotterdam for second-class fares, viz., 21s. instead of 32s. Two hundredweight of luggage will be carried free for each passenger. Children half-fare and half-luggage allowance. Between May 1 and Oct. 1 there will be 10 per cent. reduction on ordinary fares. Luggage 6d. per hundredweight, viz., 50 per cent. reduction. The company to retain the option of refusing a person first-class if not considered suitable. The representative of the Batavier line company agreed to try to get a 25 per cent. reduction for animals.

THE question of sending the petition with regard to the quarantine for dogs to the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Society was next discussed, and decided in the negative. It was agreed, however, that the petition be translated by the secretary provisionally, put into legal language by Mr Judge, and put before the meeting for any additions to be made.

A LETTER was read from headquarters informing the London meeting that the principle of affiliation with the V.A.F. had been agreed to, and that a telegram to that effect had been sent to President Konorah. It was agreed that the contents of the letter be communicated to the V.A.F.

THE chairman then brought before the notice of the meeting two agents' office copies which he considered should have the disapprobation of the Lodge. The first had been handed to him by Brother 1,160, a turn of twenty years' standing, owing to imperfect knowledge of English it might easily occur that an artist would sign such a document.

BROTHER 1,359 proposed, and it was agreed, that the information laid before the meeting be conveyed to the chairman of the executive committee of the V.A.F. and M.H.A.R.A. without comment, merely reporting that it had been laid before the meeting of the I.A.L.

BROTHER 1,359 asked questions regarding the coming arbitration committee re Brother 1,243 with Cadle Bros. He was of the opinion that the third party chosen should be neither artist nor manager.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE CANTERBURY.

One might have to go far for a better all-round entertainment than that over which Mr. Fred Miller presides at the Canterbury this week. There is, to begin with, the quaintly comical Mr. George Mozart, whose really laughable character studies are worth seeing over and over again. Thus, he describes in the most humorous, and at the same time not unnatural, manner the way in which people under a variety of circumstances meet. His "C.I. Detective" also furnishes some merry moments, though we are afraid that his plain-clothes officer might not be appreciated at Scotland Yard. The Florodora Girls have a delightfully pleasing item in the petite comedy Rival Sweethearts; and Woodhouse and Wells provide plenty of funny patter funnily acted. Radford and Valentine, with their irresistible whimsicalities, are once more made welcome in South London. As burlesque artists they are extremely amusing, and as jugglers they show no small skill. Hats, tennis balls, and other articles, even including marbles, are thrown into the air, and caught again with marvellous rapidity and precision. Their hoop manipulation, too, demonstrates their ability in another direction, and the catching and throwing back of the bouncing balls is one of their smartest feats. Mr. Austin Boyd and Trixie Gilfain can always be relied upon for an agreeable act, and the singing and dancing of the couple and the bagpipe-playing of the lady afford to the audience a few minutes of great pleasure.

Then that ridiculously absurd comedienne, Miss Nellie Wallace—could anything exceed in its laughable effect her original facial expressions? Perhaps grimace would be a better word to use, for the manner in which Miss Wallace twists her features about is marvellous to behold. Her song concerning what "my mother says," as well as her parody on "Where are you going, my pretty maid?" are amusing in the extreme. Miss Gladys Mavius, "the Canadian Girl," has some ear-enchanting refrains in "Won't they be glad when I come home" and "Rosie," both of which are sung by the young lady in capital style, and with excellent delivery. Miss Mavius is an artist who has made herself extremely popular with Londoners. Mr. John Ford, who, according to the programme, bears the enviable reputation of being "America's champion dancer of the world," astonishes everybody with his wonderfully intricate but neatly and correctly performed movements, and his work is admired on all hands. Ventriloquism has an admirable exponent in Mr. Bert Williams, who continues, with the aid of his dummy, to be most entertaining. Mr. Williams is so well-known as a ventriloquist and his performances so much above criticism that he needs little recommendation at this hour. Miss Bonnie Goodwin and her Piccaninnies also come in for a good deal of attention, their clever doings being watched with much interest.

Mr. Yukio Tani, the champion Japanese wrestler, is the sensational item of the programme. He undertakes to defeat any man, no matter how big or how strong he may be, who will try conclusions with him on the stage, and he offers the sum of £100 to anyone who will defeat him, while £20 is the prize for the wrestler whom Tani fails to throw within fifteen minutes. On the night of our visit three daring gentlemen went before the footlights to contest Tani's claim to the world's championship. In each case the little Jap triumphed. But far more interesting than these bouts was the demonstration afterwards given by Mr. Tani and Miss Roberts, the instructress at the Japanese School of Ju-Jitsu. How to place hors de combat a hooligan who suddenly assails you in the street is one of the lessons which the audience more or less perfectly learnt; but the special exhibition on the evening that we were present were most interesting to witness. The Holloway Trio are seen in a series of daring wire-walking exercises, which we do not remember to have been excelled for intrepidity, poise, and ease of movement. It is not, we should imagine, the safest thing in the world to skip on a wire held taut in mid-air or to stroll along the said wire with a man standing on your head; but these are among the amazingly clever acts of the Holloways. Mr. Herbert La Martine distinguishes himself in the dancing and bâton-manipulating line, and his singing, too, is praiseworthy. The cinematographic show of Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, which includes a number of stories told pictorially, is commendable in every way.

THE EUSTON.

Although the new dramatic playlet by Wm. Felton, entitled Under the Seal, is the last item in the programme at the Euston it is well worth waiting for, by reason of the excellence of the acting. The principal character is Bet, quite a typical Cockney girl, whose vulgarity is redeemed by a kind heart and a quick intelligence, the last-mentioned quality being employed in the interests of those she regards with esteem and affection. This little London girl is devoted to Father David, a priest, whose simple domestic requirements it is her great delight to supply. The good Father is troubled by a secret relating to the murder of his brother by a man named Isaac Logdale; and Bet, with the precocious sharpness of her kind, sets herself the task of unravelling the mystery which surrounds the crime. Miss Margaret Parker reveals striking ability in her representation of Bet, the little gutter-bred girl, whose devotion to the priest is so genuine and so touching in its pathos. When the craven murderer, Isaac Logdale, calls at Father David's residence, Bet's semi-serious, semi-humorous attitude towards the intruder is admirably depicted, and the girl's sudden change of expression and manner when she begins to suspect the truth is another instance of Miss Parker's powers as an actress. Mr. Herbert Harden also deserves to be highly commended for his dignified embodiment of Father David, who conceals deep feeling by a calm, unruffled manner. Mr. Morris Seaton is a sufficiently forcible representative of Isaac Longdale, who is roused to fury by the girl's searching questions and suspicious glances. Mr. E. J. Woolley as P.C. 147 completes the cast of an admirable playlet.

In contrast with this little piece, in which the tragic note is forcibly struck, we have that popular comedian, Mr. Will Evans, whose exuberant spirits are well calculated to exercise a beneficial influence upon the worst cases of melancholia and depression. He opens with an extempore ditty, and gives free play to his wit by the composition of verses on topics of the day and the leader of the orchestra. Asked to dedicate a verse to a lady and gentleman seated in a private box he does so with startling results. The occupants express indignation, the gentleman calls Mr. Evans an uncomplimentary name and the rhymester being still unchecked the couple hurriedly make their exit amidst the laughter of the audience. This, of course, is only one of Mr. Evans's little jokes, but it is very smartly worked. The hard-working comedian next appears in his latest impersonation—Mdlle. Flora de Dindigul, the Spanish dancer, whose performance we have already fully noticed. At the head of a bevy of Spanish dancing "girls," Mr. Evans as the première danseuse becomes the centre of a series of eccentric gyrations that send the audience into fits of uncontrollable laughter, and win him loud applause.

Miss Cora Caselli, in the character of an Egyptian sorceress whose knowledge of men and things is obtained by gazing upon a crystal globe, has a song in which typical allusions abound, even King Edward coming in for a complimentary reference. Miss Caselli concludes with one of those agile legmania dances by which she long ago won renown. Another young lady, who scores by her dancing, is Miss Mignonette Cokin, who meets with deserved success. Clark and Hamilton, the well-known comedy duo, are engaged here this week, and their clever and versatile performance is greatly appreciated. Mr. Clark has introduced a new polyglot song having a verse in French, German, Scotch, and Hebrew. This has proved an instantaneous success. Mr. Will Musgrave, comedian, does well with his ditties, "What a comical thing" and "I lost my train again." Woodhouse and Wells, patter comedians, are well received; Mr. Walter King, "the doleful comedian," indulges in some really funny patter, and it is always pleasant to listen to the excellent vocalisation of Miss Nina Martino. Mr. Harry Anderson, the popular comedian, has also appeared as an extra turn. Mr. Fred McEvoy, the courteous manager, who has recently returned from a brief seaside holiday, is ably assisted by Mr. Charles E. Wellman, the acting-manager.

STANDARD.

Mrs. Cecil Raleigh is being made the object of a wild ovation at the Royal Standard, Pimlico, when, with her company, in the comedietta, Kidnapped by Motor, she appears nightly before the footlights. This sketch has been adapted by Joseph Coudurier and Jessie Porter from the French of Henri de Forose and Pierre Louys. The action takes place in Paris at night. Two sisters, one of them married, leave the opera in their motor-car, and instead of being driven to their own home eventually find themselves in a strange house. Arrived here, a stern-looking, spectacled lady, without attempting to explain the position of affairs, abruptly orders them to undress. They refuse, of course, and their strange "hostess" thereupon removes their evening attire with her own hands. The two ladies wonder what is going to happen next; one faints, and the other indulges in all manner of gloomy prognostications as to their future welfare. There is a knock at the door. Fearing that something dreadful will happen to them, they barricade it. However, the spectacled lady enters by other means, and, what is more strange, brings back their dresses, and assists them in putting them on. But the reason of their being kidnapped is not made clear until the appearance of the master of the house, a costume artist named Bernstein. He tells them, with many apologies and much bowing and scraping, that an American client of his, who thought that the dresses of the sisters were the best things of the kind to be seen in all Paris, offered a handsome sum of money if he would get some garments made exactly like them. So the idea of getting the husband of the elder sister and the chauffeur out of the way for a while occurred to the artistic Bernstein. He has finished his sketches of their dresses and produces them. Are they not lovely? He now suggests that his guests should leave as quietly as possible, which suggestion they act upon. But the elder sister returns suddenly, snatches up the drawings from the table on which they had been left, and tears them into fragments, much to the indignation of the artist. Mrs. Cecil Raleigh causes a good deal of amusement by her effective characterisation of the elder sister, and the other rôles are ably handled by Miss Julia Scott, Miss Helen Vicary, and Mr. Clarence Derevin.

Miss Marguerite Broadfoote's distinctive verses are as delightful as ever. "He, oh, rum-tum," is, of course, the great favourite, but she also has an agreeable number on the subject of "Girls," and the argument that "a man's a churl without a girl." From Mr. Dick Jones we get some capital coster comedy, and Harvey and Holt have an interesting little comedy act, which tells the story of a wife going out into the snow-laden streets in search of a missing husband and the way in which she found him. A pretty melody makes a nice termination. There is an engaging comedienne and smart dancer in Miss Rosie Gaston, whose descriptive work wins her high praise; and a number of original juggling feats are skilfully performed by Primavesi. Mr. A. G. Uno's broad comedy is much in favour down Victoria way, and De Voy, Hurst and Fredericks offer an entertaining item in the negro burlesque, The Darktown Insurance Depot. As to Mr. Pat Carey, he is what we have always known him to be—irresistibly funny. He has much to say about one Widow Doolan and the methods adopted by one Tim, an artful suitor, to win the not too easily "taken in" and rather astute bereaved lady's hand. There is good humour in it, as there also is in his succeeding verses, "They're all Irish." Marlowe and Manton create merriment with their comedy duologue, Other People's Babies; and Mr. Ernest Ball is a vocalist whose words one can really hear—a great thing in these days when many artists appear to imagine that in order to make an impression upon an audience you may shriek tra-lal-la as much as you like, but on no account whatever let your hearers get the faintest idea as to the subject of your song. Mr. Ball evidently does not believe in this idiotic and altogether unsatisfactory style of singing, and his ballads, "The fireman's daughter" and "The warning bell" are interpreted with clear articulation, tunefulness, and excellent delivery. Mr. George Ascot and his boy are uproariously hilarious in their absurdity, Horticulture; Mr. John Marx gives ample evidence of his remarkable strength as a weight-lifter; and the Edisonograph treats us to a splendid series of animated pictures. We were pleased to see Mr. Maurice Volny, the able assistant-manager, looking extremely well on the night of our visit, and attending in his usual strenuous manner to the requirements of the establishment.

BARNARD'S, GREENWICH.

The usual large and appreciative audience assembled here on the night of our visit to enjoy the excellent programme submitted for their entertainment by Mr. Barnard and his popular lieutenant, Mr. Bert Dent. Miss Nancy Wentworth was first on the bill, and delighted all present with her capital rendering of her songs. This charming artist was followed by the Forburys, who were well received in their knockabout act; next came Cyrus Dare, the clever child imitator, who contributed songs and humorous sayings of little children. Fred Mason, billed as the world's champion premier whistler and mimic, whistled in capital style "Under the Double Eagle," and concluded with an excellent rendering of the song "Pretty Polly." The Two Kays followed with their scena, entitled The Nightingale, introducing the songs, "Cuckoo" and "Eileen Alannah." Conrie, Norton, and company appeared in a cleverly-acted comedy sketch, entitled The Bigamous Burglary; Lilly and Lottie contributed a capitally rendered song called "Brown eyes," and concluded with a well-executed dance.

One of the principal attractions of the evening was the turn of the Six Brothers Luck, who appeared in their laughable pantomime The Demon of the Cellar. The plot is too well known to need recapitulation here; sufficient to say, it was as well done and as funny as ever, and was greeted with loud laughter and prolonged applause. Little Ivy presented a pretty little turn, consisting of a sand-dance and a clever rendering of "How do, my Lulu?" Versatillo is well named, being a clever performer on the banjo, a good dancer, and a pleasant singer of "It's rather a serious matter." An excellent extra turn was provided by the eight pretty girls styled Goldflakes, who danced with agility and sang smartly "Goldflakes," "A coon song," and "Ding-dong." Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, as usual, exhibited an interesting series of pictures, while the long and excellent programme was brought to a successful conclusion by the appearance of Cordite and Buffalo, the marvellously clever lasso-catchers and rope-spinners.

THE NEW EMPIRE, CAMBERWELL.

Marked by a demonstration of public favour rarely to be witnessed on the opening of a variety theatre, the new Empire, Camberwell, entered on its career on Monday, and if the enthusiasm of the two crowded houses on that occasion can be taken as a criterion of its future, then success is assured, indeed. It needed not the intelligence of the merest lad in the gallery to discover that it was "not" the beautiful transformation of the interior, of the splendid entertainment provided for their enjoyment, that filled every corner of this cosy theatre on Denmark Hill with a truly representative variety theatre audience on such a sweltering evening, but that it was to honour an old friend, and to give his new venture a fillip that should send it on the high road to prosperity. This was the keynote of the evening; and Mr. Jesse Sparrow, the managing-director of the Empire, Camberwell, must feel a very proud man indeed to have demonstrated in such a marked manner the high esteem in which he is held by his legion of friends on both sides of the footlights.

The initial rise of the curtain disclosed the spacious stage filled with the members of the Terriers' Association and their ladies, with their president, Mr. Jesse Sparrow, in the centre. After the National Anthem had been sung in a most impressive manner by Mr. Hamilton Hill and the entire company, "Felix Penne" (Mr. J. F. Bursill) entered from the wings, and, addressing Mr. Jesse Sparrow, recited this opening ode:—

This sights worth all the money, and I've seen the best,
Well, friend Sparrow, you have built a pretty nest.
This house will tempt us all from our abodes,
You're a regular "Empire" builder, just like Cecil Rhodes.
Talking of roads, I'm bound to mention,
The roads round here require attention.
But folks will come, you'll find out very soon,
Aye, even if they have to drop from a balloon.
Of a noble enterprise this is the dawn,
This show will prosper, sure as you are "Bawn."
You must have done some thinking, but
You could do that with such a splendid "Nutt."
Almost as Hamlet, you'll be on the bill,
Hail, "Sparrow," Prince of Denmark Hill.
Your friends are here to-night, don't make a row,
Terriers, greet your president, with bow-wow-wow,
That's done; and always here, 'midst friends and chums,
You'll be a "Sparrow" that will not want for crumbs.
You have made friendships that will always last,
We'll rally round you now, as in the past.
The past, that word is quite unnerving,
It so recalls the name of Henry Irving,
Who, in this house, as well my memory tells,
Played Corporal Brewster in The Bells.
'Tis hallowed ground on which to-night we stand,
Here dwelt some of the brightest in our land.
Goldsmith and Ruskin, Browning, William Black;
But we'll look forward, not look back.
This house will prosper, and be a regular goldfield,
If you but bill it well with bills by "Oldfield."
Cover the walls with such a jolly lot,
That folks will raise their hands and cry "Great Scott!"
And when they come this house to fill,
They'll find the show is better than the "Bill."
Good luck, friend Sparrow; may I be so bold
As offer you this horseshoe—solid gold?
It will bring luck unto the house you've built,
And only Sherlock Holmes could find it's gilt.
Here you will give good fare—you're no Chicago canner,
Here will we come, with humble "Bob" or "Tanner,"
Enjoy ourselves beneath the Empire banner,
And show our pleasure in the usual manner.

MR. HARRY BAWN.

The author, "Felix Penne," made all his points cleverly and well, and his witty recital was punctuated with the enthusiastic cheers of the audience.

Mr. Harry Wright then came forward, bearing a beautiful floral horseshoe composed of white lilies and other choice flowers, bearing on its face in red blooms the words "Good Luck." He said: "Mr. Sparrow, on behalf of the Terriers, of which I am proud to be a member, I have much pleasure in presenting this emblem to you, our president, and to endorse by our presence here this evening the motto, "Good Luck," to this your new undertaking. This floral emblem is much too large for you to have about you always, so we ask you to accept this little jewel, which is also a horseshoe, and hope you will live to wear it for a very long time indeed." Cheers and musical honours, in which the ladies joined in most heartily, followed.

Mr. Sparrow, on coming forward to reply, received an ovation, and in feeling tones said: "My friends, ladies and gentlemen,—I've made many speeches during the thirty-five years I have been connected with the variety theatrical world, and I can assure you I've never before found it so difficult to find the words to convey to you my thanks for this splendid reception. To you, my brother Terriers, I much appreciate your great kindness and your unique gifts; and I know your wishes are not only meant for me, but are to be shared by Mr. Harry Bawn, whom you all know so well, and is associated with me in this venture. We are more than indebted to our stage-manager, Mr. William Nutt. Credit is due to him for all the work of decorating this building. He not only employed the men, but supervised everything, with the brilliant result you see before you. I am grateful to all my friends in the provinces and London, who have fairly showered telegrams of congratulations on me all day; and if their good wishes come true, then our success here is assured. The entertainments we shall provide for your enjoyment will be both new and novel to London audiences, and something you have never seen before. The success of the new Empire, Camberwell, is in your hands, and I hope we shall be associated for many, many years."

It is worthy of note that over sixty telegrams were posted up in the vestibule, the majority of which came from Mr. Sparrow's friends in London; while many came from Brighton, Leeds, Halifax, Chatham, Skegness, Maidstone, Huddersfield, Bristol, Bury, Eastbourne, Plymouth, Edinburgh, Littlehampton, Blackpool, &c.

In the words of the immortal Bard, "The play's the thing," and for the opening bill there can be nothing but praise, praise, praise; for although the majority of the artists are new to a London audience, they are individually so good that each item was re-demanded. Heading the bill is Mr. John F. Preston and his excellent company in the exciting racing episode, written by Max Goldberg, entitled Rogues of the Turf. Mr. John F. Preston, as the old trainer Flaxman, has fairly got inside his character, and stirs his hearers with his racing recital. The Captain Clinton of Mr. Geo. Hayward is a remarkably finished portrayal; Mr. Henry Marco is the Jew Moses to the life, and scores with his medley of songs; the Sam Flaxman by Mr. Herbert Wordin is a creditable performance; Miss Madge Nelson is sweet and womanly as Nell Flaxman; and Miss Madge Palmer bright and vivacious as Sam's sweetheart Phyllis. Other parts are carefully handled by Mr. Dan F. Rowe as Arthur Summerford, Mr. Tom Phillips as Jim Strongarm, and Miss Hilda Shirley as the Duchess. The new and effective scenery, the stud of thoroughbred horses, and the elegant costumes all conduce to the general success. Miss Mabel Bright and company, in their vocal mélange, Girls Will be Girls, give an entertainment full of novelty set in two acts, the first representing England and the latter America. They skilfully introduce a bright and merry coon song and cake walk, "A hammock built for two," and in the American scene, "A Chieftain's Love" episode; while Miss Mabel Bright gives evidence of a cultured voice in her solo, "For sweet love's sake." All work hard for applause, and get it in abundance.

Grey and Parry are a clever couple of acrobats, and in their laughable scene, Acrobats Past and Present, combine merry fooling with skilful and daring acrobatism. Mr. Harry Marlow and Miss May Manton create unlimited merriment in their amusing absurdity, Other People's Babies. Little Agnes La Tina fairly brought down the house with her clever mimicry of Harry Lauder and Vesta Victoria. The theme of her own song, "Dearie, dearie, de," is much too far in advance of her years, and should be cut out of her répertoire. Edie Rivers as the "Belle of Borneo" dances charmingly and looks sweet in her chic costume of blue and silver. Elton and Edwin are smart banjoists; their final duet is not only full of marvellous expression, but is difficult of execution, and wins them well-earned applause. Mr. Hamilton Hill is a fine baritone, and his rousing song, "The Fire Brigade," wins high favours. Jack Wood, the Lancashire pitman, gives due appreciation to "The Blue-Eyed Irish Boy." Miss Marguerite Hay, backed by a pretty drop scene, gives expression to her topical song, "It's all a matter of business," and wins the hearts of her hearers in the pretty motto song, "The boy that looks after his mother." Will McIvor has a capital descriptive song in "That's the art of make-believe." A series of Empire animated pictures closes a programme that has given infinite satisfaction and enjoyment, and sends the audience away with a firm resolve to support the new Empire in Camberwell.

THE GRANVILLE.
